Forget It

Forget, my dear, forget it
'Tis the very best thing you can do,
It will do you no good to remember
The things that are said about you.

Life is too short to get even.
With every mean act that you know
So forget it, my dear
Forget it
Forget it and just let it go.
Many good men have been ruined
And many good pure women too,
By some one starting a rumor
And not one words of it true.

So when you hear
Some one knocking
A man or a woman's good name
Just say it's a lie and forget it.
And never repeat it again.

Perfection

The master was painting a picture
And we children were ranged all about
Entranced by the charm of his colors
And the way he was working it out;
And we'd view every move to discover
Some beautiful touch which was new,
And we'd talk and we'd dream
And we'd wonder just what he intended to do.

The Master spake little while working
But oft as He heard us He'd smile
Though we begged Him to tell all about it.
He'd answer—"You'll know in a while."
But one morning He put down His brushes
And then with a turn of His head.
To our grief and our great consternation.
The picture is finished, He said.

Oh, Master we begged and implored Him
Don't put all your brushes away;
Please paint, something more on the canvas
Paint on to the end of the day,
Paint more for we're eager to watch you,
Paint on for we love it so much
"It is perfect, my dears" said the Master.
I should spoil it by adding one touch."

So with us God is painting a picture,
And little we know of His plan,
We look at the lad whom we cherish,
And are eager to see him a man.
But God knows the soul He is shaping,
And though for more time He's beseeched,
He hurts us beyond understanding
But He stops when perfection is reached.

I A... a Millionaire

I am a millionaire. I have another day
Another day to behold the glorious sun,
Another day to breathe God's refreshing air;
Another day perchance to see some victory won.
Ah yes, I am a millionaire.

I am a millionaire, a day to smile and sing
A day of rich companionship of those I love,
A day of toil, the joy of honest labor, fair
Another day of wonders, beneath, around, above
Ah yes, I am a millionaire.

I am a millionaire, those who say "Good morning"
And by the wave of hand bid me God's speed.
And the jolly song of workmen, men who dare.
Another day to greet the strangers honest dead
Oh yes, I am a millionaire.

A millionaire; a king as I hear the warblers sing
From tree-tops tall trying to tell me all, "the joy"
The wealth with which all, all life is rife.
Why should I not be great and strong and fair.
When all the world must know:
That with each new day I am a millionaire.

Mammy's Good Bye to Summer

Now 'Rastus, what you gloomin' 'bout?
Got a touch o' rheumatis or gout?
Too poor for one, too young for t'other?
Dat's right, smile at yo' ol' mother!

Summer's gone, and all de birds?
Well, if dem ain't foolish words!
Why man alive, if summer's gone,
So is de heat just see that lawn!

An' if de birds is gone—creation!
Dey's only takin' a vacation,
Besides, dey ain't all gone, you know;
Some never will go way no mo.'

Because dey likes dese noble scenes,
Dese mountains an' cool evergreens,
Dey likes to feel de soft wind blow
On hillsides where dey ain't no snow

What if it pours an' pours, an' pours?
Dey ain't no cracks in dese here doors;
An if dere's rivers in de street,
Dey ain't no germs fo' us to eat.

No, 'Rastus, don't set down and grieve
But jes' get up an' stretch and breave!
Jes' breave dis good ol' clear ol' air,
An' say I'se glad I'se here, not dere.

Pick up dat banjo, strike de cawd.
An' while you's playing thank de Lord.
Dat sun inside keeps shinin' on
Even after summer's gone.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

HILLTOP: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

A BRICK DOLL HOUSE

Dear Corner Members: Houses for dolls are built of many materials, there are brick houses, stone houses, frame houses, stucco houses, pasteboard houses but about the latest thing I have heard of is a cornstarch house.

Of course I don't mean a house for people to live in—it is a real house, but for dolls instead of people, and any boy or girl who will take pains to learn how to build with cornstarch bricks can soon become a good enough architect and mason and carpenter, all in one to build as big or as little, as simple or as elaborate house as is desired.

For a tiny brick house take one half cup salt, one quarter of a cup starch, mix thoroughly and add one-quarter cup cold water colored a very dark reddish orange with watercolor paints. Stir this until smooth, and on the stove to cook, stirring constantly until it thickens into one lump. When it reaches this state take it off immediately and squeeze with your hands as you would clay or wax. It will not be very hot. Press it out into a sheet about one quarter an inch thick and cut into bricks with a sharp knife.

Before the bricks harden begin to build your house on a sheet of green cardboard or wood making the cracks where the bricks join come in different places in each layer of bricks. Leave oblong spaces for windows and doors, and build a flight of front steps, sticking bent pipe stem cleaners, or tooth picks on each side of the steps for railings. Toothpicks pressed inside the windows make the sashes and bits of fine muslin can be glued on for curtains, after the house has become perfectly hard.

Cut out an oblong piece of green cardboard and crease it in the center for a roof. After this is fitted in place build the bricks up carefully into the peak of the roof, front and back. To make them fit into the roof, you will have to slope some of the bricks at their sides. Fit a chimney of bricks on the top of the roof, and cut a small fancy porchroof to go over the front steps.

When the house is all finished watch out and I will tell you how to make a garden seat, a brick well, a tiny clothes reel with toothpick arms and a cornstarch and salt post, a fountain, a garage, dishes, furniture and all those things.

LIKES THE NEW HALL

Dear Social Corner Friends: I want to thank all who sent cards on my birthday. There are many others, that have birthdays in October the glittering month of the year. We had a nice time on the 7th at Odd Fellows hall; plenty of room all on one floor, many windows and sunny. If I remember correctly Calla Lily was the first to help in starting our beloved Corner; she had a letter in the first issue. I was going to join at that time but another writer had a lengthy letter and our late editor mentioned it as containing too many words or something to that effect. I lost courage and waited another year. Many of our early writers will remember M. Roena, and will be glad to hear that she is married to her first husband's brother. How pleasing it must be to Glenwood and Faye Verna to have their uncle for a step-father.

Wetona: Yes, I always read our motto in every paper and think it good.

One Who Reads: See you have a bereavement in the loss of your mother. Hope you can be with us at our next meeting.

N. O. T.: I knew your step-mother when I was a girl. Think you are mistaken about shaking hands with me at camp ground. Come down to our meetings and find out "who is who." I also knew many of your schoolmates.

With all good wishes for the success of our Corner.

JACK FROST

Dear Social Corner Friends: I read an interesting article, which I am going to pass along to the Social Corner, that Jack Frost is not responsible for the coloring of the autumn foliage. Yet one constantly hears the frost credited with causing the brilliant foliage which now is appearing throughout New England.

The truth is such trees are getting ready to go to sleep for the winter. They might be said to have "ripened," just as corn does. So the tree begins by drawing the chlorophyl or green coloring matter, back into its trunk, leaving the bright colors of the leaves no longer hidden under the chlorophyl.

The colors have been there all summer, but we couldn't see them. Neither is Jack Frost directly responsible for the falling of the leaves a little later. The leaf stalk is held to the tree by a substance which as autumn approaches becomes something like mucilage. The leaves no longer fed by sap from the tree, dry and shrink. This shrinking of the three causes a rupturing of the connecting substance between leaf stem and tree, and then the most trivial cause will produce a down-fluttering of the leaf.

It is true that frost assists in rupturing the substance which holds the leaf to the tree, but it couldn't do so if the tree hadn't already prepared itself in advance.

POSTCARD SHOWER SUGGESTED

Social Corner Editor and Cornerites: I had a letter all ready to mail but found upon reading Saturday's paper that evidently Ethelyn had the same idea that I had, as she had sent in the same uses for salt that I had in mind. Now I must find something else.

Roxanna Wince is still at her home in Willimantic and I am sure a postcard shower would please her. Cards or letters should be addressed to Mrs. Sarah Pendleton, Windham Road, Willimantic, Conn.

Whildwind: I am glad you received my letter.

Apple Dumplings: A good way to use left over pie crust. Roll out pie crust in as nearly a square sheet as possible. Pare and core an apple. Fill the center with sugar, little salt and nutmeg or cinnamon as desired. Place on the rolled out crust. Draw up the corners on top of the apple, fasten with a toothpick, brush with milk and bake. Serve hot or cold with any preferred sauce.

Aries: Is your mint jelly green after it is finished?

Buffalo: Are you always in a hurry when you come to Putnam?

Guess I've said enough for now, so I'm going off until some further date.

FOUND MEETING ENJOYABLE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Will pen a few lines to help keep the Corner page full. Was glad to meet so many sisters of Club 2 at Odd Fellows' hall, Oct. 7. Such a grand time as we did have greeting one another with a hearty handshake and welcome to the Corner and the dear faces of those we hadn't seen for so long. Also the hall was light and airy, making one feel rested, on entering it and best of all, such a refreshing repast as was set before us at the dinner hour, each one sharing a part in helping the hostess. As the sayin' goes, many hands make light work. Nearly 40 were seated at the tables and after dinner a fine entertainment was greatly enjoyed, consisting of music and readings. All went away feeling they had spent a very profitable day; Hope to see many more at our next meeting. See many more at our next meeting. Long live our Corner.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I have attended one meeting of Club No. 2, of the Social Corner at Odd Fellows hall, and had such an enjoyable time, I would like to become a member, if I may.

Will choose for my penname,

THE WILD STORM

Dear Social Corner Sisters: If that terible gale last week didn't blow me and mine away, it did blow away everything loose about the place, and a few things that weren't loose, such as apple trees, oak trees, electric light and telephone poles.

Never have I seen the Hudson so agitated. The water was covered with white caps. I'm sure those who were sailing on the river were agitated too.

A few days later, I motored through Greenwich, Stamford, Darien and Norwalk. In each place large trees were uprooted. Some looked as if they had been venerable landmarks. So I take it, Connecticut joined us in a banging, rattling time.

I'm still waiting for the lighting company to repair the line. Oh well, people in the backwoods always have to wait for the arms of progress to reach them.

Mary France: I'd be most agreeably surprised to see you out my way, palace auto and all. I wonder if you'd know me? Sister Nema would find a few convenient, sunshiny rocks here, too. But why mention it! We're a mile, by road, from the river's edge. Still, the topographical map has us something like 460 feet above sea level. So you never can tell.

Wiltwyck: I've never been to Lake Mohonk. Others of my family have been there. It is the next beauty spot I intend to visit. Indeed I enjoy hiking. It's the only way to see nature at close range. I'm afraid roaming is becoming a vice with me. I'm always snooping around in the great out-doors, when I should be on the job at home. I can't resist the narrow—but not always straight—paths. The broad well trodden roads—What is it the Bible says? I'm not up on religious stuff, but isn't there some mention about broad roads rarely leading to the best places? I've yet to wander along an obscure path that didn't disclose something beautiful. The Catskills are full of such places. Strange how people will rush to Europe to see and rave about the scenic wonders there, and ignore the same wonders here. I shall certainly go to the observatory at Skytop for my Switzerland scenery.

I hope Mary France will soon learn to run the automobile, so she can speed this way.

Nyack-on-the-Hudson: I'm writing this in front of a window that overlooks the river. Looking across Tappan Zee, I see your old home town nestling snugly in the cove at the foot of the hills. Southward I see Grand View and Piermont; northward, Hook mountain. In the west, the Orange and the Ramapo mountains form a picturesque background. If I go to the highest point on our hill and stand on the big rock, I can see Haverstraw, and on clear days, West Point. If your old home is visible from the opposite shore, I'm certainly looking at it this minute.

No doubt you have often unknowingly gazed at my house.

Every night, before crawling in, I take a sort of "last look" across the river. The thousands of lights, that look like so many glittering stars fallen on to the hills from heaven, never fail to fascinate me. The view by day and by night is ever captivating. The changing seasons and atmospheric conditions give a new aspect each day; often many aspects in one day.

A TRIP TA STAFFORD FAIR

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Last week Tuesday Maple Leaf, Roma and myself started out to take in Stafford fair. On our way we stopped at the home of True Blue and she accompanied us. The weather man gave us an ideal day for our trip. If any one wants to take a day off, say get Maple Leaf and her Elizabeth Queen, and you will have one good chauffeur and one good car. We sped over beautiful hills and valleys with out one single mishap either way, and only stopped once by a wayside inn to get some gasoline. The scenery up that way is very lovely, the foliage of the trees was beautiful with its fall coloring. In Norwichtown we passed the home of J. G. P. but didn't even catch a glimpse of her. Further on we passed the beautiful home of Olga. The same there; looked as though no one way at home. Then we came to the home of Lonesome Pine, and that also looked deserted, but I did see her namesake standing out in the yard.

Necia: I heard of your attempting to go into the pork business. If you don't at first succeed, try, try again. You don't know what you missed by not going to Stafford fair. Had you gone you would have learned about the game of "When you and I were young Maggie." Ask Maple Leaf and she will tell you all about it.

True Blue: How is the embroidery coming on. You will have me beaten to a frazzle, for I have not had time yet to try my needle out. Am wondering what success we will have. It certainly looked easy as the demonstrator worked it. I shall want the house all to myself when I try mine, for I never like to be interrupted when I try anything like that.

I suppose you will have everything in the house embroidered next time I go up there.

Theoda: Your lovely letter at hand and will try to answer it soon. I am very busy just at the present time. Was sorry to hear of Anna Meil passing away as I had met her a number of times and found her a very likeable person.

Balsam Fir: Your letter containing picture group received and I will tell the world you look as if all belonged to the Jolly Six. The pictures are all O. K. I will write of the crowd, and also answer all your questions. Thank you for precious letter containing poetry.

Yours for the success of Club No. 2 and all the sisters, as it was Aunt Abby and myself who planned the organization of that club at her home March 15th, 1915 and it was also myself who made the little favors given out that day.

USES FOR OLD STOCKING LEGS

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: For a long time have been intending to write but have not done so. There have been so many interesting letters from the different writers that have brought back to my mind the scenes of long ago, especially those referring to the Garden of Eden. Some of you who were at Twice Twenty's picnic may remember hearing me say I had the great distinction of being born in the Garden of Eden. It has been my great pleasure to have the opportunity of going back there a number of times this summer. Things have changed there very much; much so that I was lost on one of my visits and did not know anything about where I was. I confess this was a great blow to my pride, to find that I was going in the opposite direction from what I felt so sure I was going.

I want to pass on to the sisters some uses I have found for old stocking legs. Four-legs cut in two lengthwise and stitched together with the wide top next to the narrow bottom make an ideal duster with the addition of a little furniture polish.

A number of legs cut in strips and sewed to a discarded mop stick which has the wire left at the bottom after the spring has become broken makes a very good dust mop. Be sure to put on enough to cover the wire well so there will be no scratching. I use mine to wipe the linoleum in my kitchen and to wipe the top of the stove pipe. You all know how dust collects there especially when burning some kinds of wood. In this way my good dust mop is kept in better condition for other rooms.

This summer I braided some round rugs the size of chair seats from black sticking legs. They are fine to put in a chair on the porch.

If the Social Corner pins are not all disposed of at this late date I'd like one and send my thanks for the same to the editor.

Best wishes to the Social Corner family.

HOW E. M. R. C. P. IS ENJOYING FLORIDA

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: Again I take a few moments to do my share with a letter. I will tell you sisters of the Corner how I earned over $5 at home.

A lady friend sent me a woolen knitted dress to make over for the children. I found that I could not make a dress so here's what I did.

I ripped up a worn out bathing suit of my nine year old daughter, took it for a pattern and cut out a one piece bathing suit from it. I trimmer it with navy blue silk and cotton cloth which I had on hand. Then make the pants part of a bathing suit for my boy from the rest. With the good top of his other suit my two children are now fitted out with woolen bathing suits that would have cost me quite a bit over $5 and the girls suit looks fine, and is quick drying and warm.

You see we still go swimming two or three times a week yet. As they go to school now and have homework to do also their playtime is more limited.

Yankee in Crackerland. How about it? Have you found Connecticut friends yet in Miama? Am seeing more of them every week that come along here. There are 13 from my hometown in the city here now, and Free Air started the 19th with two others from Moosup, two others are in North Carolina on their way. We figure that the 35 mark of last year will be increased here this season. Quite a circle of friends. I read of two families from Moosup going to Orange City, four miles south of this city, this week also.

And let me tell you all that the only change we can see down in Sunnyland, is, when the tourists come and go. Otherwise time flies by so fast that the seasons roll on and its always summer.

Ma of Greene Gables: Someone has chosen part of your name for a wayside inn one-half a mile from here. Green Gables is the name of the little place. The owners are from Ohio. Every time I go by I can remember one Social Corner member's name.

Aries: Received paper O. W. Thanks. Wish I could have attended the last meeting also.

Adam's Eve: Hope you like this new place of yours. But I'm sorry that the snow and frost have spoiled your pleasure in seeing the flowers and birds in their autumn beauty in the good old nutmeg state. Here in sunnyland we are seeing and hearing the birds all the time. Have a pair of mocking birds who have built their nest nearby. They serenade me every afternoon. When I try and whistle to make a feeble imitation of his warbling, the bird or birds trill their songs and just fairly give me a concert. You know I've read Gene Stratton Porter's works and can now more fully appreciate and understand the language of the birds and wild game around me. The blue-jay here is as good as a watchdog. They tell the approach of anyone and tell very quickly when a snake or other danger is near. Now near the house here when I feed my dozen hens and roosters, they are everywhere around and keep up a steady call for others to come along and feed too. Then when a hawk or an eagle comes along the jay's warning is again sounded and the hens run for shelter. Again and again have I seen the cowboys ride by and as soon as a jay sees them the call goes out. You can see the cattle look directly where the men are riding along.

Then the squirrel is an interesting little busy body to study. When my hound dog is laying under the oaks in front of the house, they gather two and three of them overhead and chatter away, just as though they could send him away. There's nothing so comical as when I throw bread crusts out for them and the birds. They streak through the trees overhead and chatter, then run down, take a crust, (the biggest possible) and sit in the fork of a limb and eat it almost human like. They sit up stiff and sit every bite their tails are a jerking over their heads. I love to watch them all the time.

Then I see a flock of quail go by feeding on their way every day between 11 o'clock and noon. They are quite tame for they have been protected by the law for the last two years. It's nothing to see a flock of 50 or more going along. I saw a local doctor who is a real sportsman, sit on his heels and try to coax young quail to eat from his hand but they would eat the scattered grain four or five feet from him and just go walking off around him. He stood there over two hours in the field.

Oh, yes, I went fishing a week ago on the St. John's river, and caught my first Florida eel. It weighed three pounds. I was one surprised woman when I lifted my bamboo pole to see that wriggler on the hook. But my husband laid it across the seat in the boat and chopped its head with his hunting hatchet. This was the first I have caught and cooked since I have been in Florida. I hope the sisters who wanted me to tell them more about this country will like this letter. And when Free Air gets down here and can stay awhile in town I'll let her give you her views of this part of Florida. She is going to stay 40 miles further south than I am. Best wishes to all the sisters and our good editor from

E. M. R. C. P. (May 7th.)

LETTERS

Dear Editor and Sisters: Here I am once again. I sure come so often that someday the editor will be telling me to take a back seat and give someone else a chance. And our Corner sure is a growin'. How many new members just recently! May I extend a hearty welcome to them at this time.

I read a great deal and recently I came across an article on letters, that I enjoyed very much. After all there is nothing quite like letters.

A mother or father separated by whom they have poured their life blood thrilling over a boy's or girl's letter.

Somehow nothing seems to open the heart like a letter. Letters are so intimate, so sincere, so honest.

Then again they are so sacred. I have never been able to understand why some editors are so quick to rush into print the intimate letters of people, no matter what the cause. There are some letters that should never find their way into print—they are too close to the heart and soul of some man or woman ever to rise above their first draft medium. No one should write a letter that can harm or hurt.

Letters should always be simple, open, honest, sometimes, bold in courage and expression, but beautiful in spirit. In a letter you are off parade, you are yourself.

If you want to put a little more love and happiness into this world, sit down and write a letter to someone you feel would welcome and love it.

Aries: Your poem A Pair of Hands found a place in my scrap book of poetry. Are you tired of guessing?

Wetona: I sure did enjoy your letter on Friendship and the beautiful poetry with it.

Stanza: I approve of your suggestions, I just love discussions, or debates or anything like that.

If I don't stop there won't be room on our page for other letters.

With best o' wishes to all.

SASSY.

CARING FOR CATS

Dear Social Corner: I would like to say to Reader of the Corner that I think by the description you give about your cat that she has the mange. You should take canned tomato and rub on her and do not feed her raw food of any description. Raw liver and kidney is bad for her indigestion, you know a kitten's little stomach is more delicate, than a dog's. If you get liver and kidney just boil them, put them through the chopper, then make a little soup of the broth put in carrots, onions, and a little potato. Vaseline is excellent to make the hair grow where it is fallen out.

I wouldn't give her evaporated milk. My kitty won't touch it, why not give her top milk or cream with boiling water, half and half. It kills the germs.

When you feed her salmon mix it with brown or rye bread, do not give her the oil of the salmon and do not feed her the cheapest salmon, just feed her the same kind you would eat yourself.

I do wish you could see my kitty. She is coal black, and her fur is so shiny it looks like satin and with her tie on to match her eyes, she is beautiful. She won't eat off the floor, we keep a little table set for her, and she will sit on the side of the table and talk when you speak to her, with her little faint, ah ah. She doesn't meow like most cats. We wouldn't take any amount of money for her.

She was never sick but once and then I fed her too many clams.

I haven't had to doctor her for fleas but three time. I put alcohol back of her ears, under her neck and back of her neck, where she couldn't reach to lap the alcohol off and she hasn't had any since. Once a week I do this and every day I take a brush and brush all the loose hairs out of her coat.

If your cat has the mange it is contagious but if it is dry eczema it is not. I wouldn't give her much salt, just a little to make her food palatable and make her drink water. Our cat drinks a vast amount of water. I would give her olive oil about one teaspoon three times a week in her milk. I give puss castor oil once in a while. I think it is good for worms if she has any.

The sulphur in her drinking water is very good indeed, but I wouldn't continue it too long. I really think your mode of feeding her has everything to do with the kitten's trouble.

I would not under any consideration feed her raw meat, and try to have her eat vegetables. Would help you further if I could. Many pet cats have died around here this summer. I think they were in the habit of eating too many bugs, and allowed to run in the hot sun.

FINDING TIME TO WRITE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Corner Sisters: How time does fly! It is going toward Saturday very fast and I had planned to write earlier in the week, but was so very busy finishing up the last of my canning that I have just found time to write, and hope that I am in time for this Saturday's edition.

Our Social Corner page was full to overflowing last week and had nice recipes, etc.

Wetona: I, too, watch the motto, by the editor at the top of our Social Corner page, and think it very helpful. It is all good advice and keeps one thoughtful.

M. M. S.: Advice as how to make a success of Living With In-Laws—deals with a very delicate matter, and while I happen to be an In-Law, I am not a widow, and still able to keep my own home going. I'm thank to say.

But we never know from day to day what is next and I do sincerely hope that you will get an inspiration from some Social Corner sister who has solved the problem. I shall be watching with interest to see what the answers will be. I wish you all the comfort possible.

Greetings and good cheer for all the birthdays and to all who are shut ins by sickness or otherwise. Sympathy to all who are in trouble of any kind.

Success to the Corner from

STUFFED PEPPERS

Dear Editor of the Social Corner. The members may be interested in the quantities of food necessary to serve 25 people. They are as follows:

Vegetables, one No. 10 can string beans, for sliced or buttered beets, 4 pounds; buttered cabbage, 4 pounds; creamed, 3 pounds; buttered carrots 8 pounds, creamed, 6 pounds, creamed carrots and peas, 5 pounds, carrots 2 number 2 can peas; buttered peas, 5 number 2 cans; celery, 3 large bunches; corn succotash or tomatoes, 1 number 10 can; potatoes boiled, 8 pounds; creamed, 6 pounds, 1 1-2 quarts of creamed, 6 pounds, 1 1-2 quarts of baked 10 pounds; mashed or buttered turnip, 7 pounds; roast beef boneless, 8 to 10 pounds; leg of lamb, 20 pounds as bought; ham 12 to 15 pounds; for hamburg rolls, 5 pounds meat pie or stew 5 pounds; steak, 10 pounds; frankfurters, 6 pounds, tongue, 8 to 10 pounds; oysters for stew 2 quarts, coffee, one half pound to 4 quarts water; butter, 1 pound should cut 32 servings of 1-2 an ounce each. Vaseline is excellent to make the hair grow where it is fallen out.

Peppers Stuffed with Hamburg: Wash peppers, slit, take out seeds, lay in shallow pan slit side up. Filling for six peppers, 1 pound lean hamburger, one cup finely rolled cracker crumbs, salted, one medium sized onion chopped fine. Mix all together with the thick tomato soup, stuff peppers and pour enough olive oil in pan to keep them from sticking or you can use butter. Bake in moderate oven for 40 minutes or until transparent and soft. Delicious.

Dear Mary, many thanks for your very interesting letter. You are some question. I have taken your advice. Write later.

GOOD OLD RECEIPES

Dear Cornerites: These are some of my old fashioned receipes nearly 100 years old.

Cheap But Hearty Bread: Take a pumpkin, boil it in water until it is quite thick; then add about 3 teaspoons of baking powder to the flour, then add it to the dough. The recipe calls for two teaspoons of cream tartar, with one quart of flour. Then put 3-4 teaspoons of soda in a sufficient quantity of sweet milk to dissolve it, mix the whole together and bake immediately.

Dyspepsia Bread: 3-4 quart of unbolted wheat, one quart of soft water. One gill or one cup of yeast, one gill of molasses and a teaspoon of saleratus.

Baked Rice Pudding: Swell a coffee cup of rice, add one quart of nice sweet milk, sweetened with brown sugar, and bake it about an hour in a quick oven

Baked puddings, bread, Indian meal, or custard require a moderate oven or moderate heat. Batter or rice a quick oven.

Four old fashioned sauces for puddings:

1 Take equal parts of sugar and molasses, boil them together, and stir in a little flour.

2. Take the juice of an orange, a cup of sugar, and the same of good cream.

4. Beat 2 eggs well, then add a cup of stewed apples and a cup of sugar. Beat well together.

Quick Potato Soup: This recipe for potato soup is extremely satisfying, and I use it often when the rest of dinner is rather light. To one cup of half inch cubes of potato add one and one half cup of water and a pinch of salt and boil until tender. In the meantime fry one onion (small) cut into small pieces with one tablespoon fat, until golden brown color. When the potatos are tender pour the liquid into the sieve (fine), Add to the liquid, 1-2 cup of top milk, one eighth of a teaspoon pepper and one teaspoon of salt. Serve hot.

THE SIGN OF SCORPIA

Editor and Members Social Corner: The sign Scorpio (the scorpion) is the eighth sign of the Zodiac, commences eighth sign of the Zodiac, commences Scorpio is a water sign, ruled by Mars and governs death and males. The astral colors are scarlet, golden brown, and black. The gems are topaz and and malachite. The tribe is Simeon, meaning "They who obey." Scorpio is feminine, fruitful and reproductive. Persons born in this period do best in partnership firms and trusts. The natural profession is surgery, medicine, ministry or public speaking. January and July are favorable months of the year. Tuesday is the important day of week. From February 19th to 26th and from July 3rd to 10th are considered most favorable for journeys on business enterprises. You agree best with people born in signs Taurus and Capricorn. Scorpio people like to be near rivers, lakes or ocean and do best in large cities. They also like to travel.

M. M. S.: I believe all young married couples should have a home of their own. One solution to your problem would be for you to marry again and have a real home of your own. People who own homes should live in them.

So sorry that both A and B Society chapters in Norwich meet on the same date. If the meetings could be two weeks apart it would give the members of each branch a chance to attend the other. This would double our capacity for social gatherings for good fellowship.

GOOD RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Members: I feel certain you will be pleased with these recipes:

Baked Rice with Enolish Sauce: 1 cup uncooked rice, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-4 pound of cheese grated or 1-2 pound mild, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Cook rice in 3 cups of water. Make white sauce with cheese and salt, put a buttered dish put a layer of cooked rice and the sauce, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until brown.

English Sauce: Mix one glass of currant jelly and slowly add one tablespoon of butter. Boil 20 seconds. Just before serving stir in one tablespoon orange juice.

Rice Pudding: 3-4 cup rice, 2 1-2 cup boiling water, 3-4 cup jelly, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Cook all together in a double boiler until the rice has absorbed the water and jelly. Stir occasionally during the cooking until done, then add whole of eggs, beat up with sugar or whipped cream.

Coffee Cake: 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 egg, 1 cup cream milk, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoons baking powder, 3 tablespoons sugar.

Mix dry ingredients and sift, then beat in sour milk, butter and egg, grease pan and pour in batter and about 1-2 of an inch thick.

For top of the cake take 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons flour, 3 tablespoons of butter, 2 tablespoons sugar mix altogether and spread on the top of the dough before baking. I imagine you will like it.

LIKES COMPANY

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: Well I guess it must be time for me to write a short letter for the corner. I have been busy as I suppose with work and company. Well you all know that company helps you to pass away the hours.

Oh, but I do like company. If some of the Social Corner sisters do come over to see the old oak, stop and make a call at Force-Brook's.

Well, Necia, I saw you in Norwich a few weeks ago. I did not stop to talk for I was too busy.

Black Eyed Susie: Many thanks for your nice card.

Best wishes to all the members and friends.

VISIT TO NEWGATE PRISON

Dear Members of Social Corner: After leaving South Windsor on our auto ride which I began to tell you about last week we enjoyed seeing the fine looking homes along the valley of the Connecticut river as we journeyed on to Warehouse Point where we crossed the bridge to Windsor Locks where we lived before moving to south Windsor. We called on a friend who has had experience with different makes of steam heaters and being desirous of knowledge on this subject, as we contemplated installing a new one for this coming winter, combined business with pleasure. Heater is in and next spring will be able to tell people whether it came up to our expectations or not. We had never been to Old Newgate prison so decided to drive on to East Granby. Connecticut situated on western slope of a ridge of Talcot mountain. The spot is of great interest to tourists and students of history. The ancient walls are still in a fair state of preservation. Originally it was a copper mine—excavating for copper began in 1707 and continued for many years. At the beginning of the Revolutionary war those excavations were utilized as a prison and many a hated Tory was confined here. General Washington sent persons here whose misdeeds made them worthy of such a fate. In 1790 Newgate was organized as a state prison, workshops erected and in 1802 these buildings were surrounded by a 12 foot stone wall with watch towers for sentries. For more than half a century Connecticut confined her convicts here. By day they labored above ground in shops or treadmill—at night headed with chains forced to descend into the mine 80 feet to sleep. In 1827 the inmates were transferred to Wethersfield. From the observatory there is one of the finest views in the state. Visitors can descend into the mine by use of ladder—ladies are given coats to protect their dresses as descending is quite small. I was quite satisfied to remain above ground.

Opposite prison is "Newgate Lodge" used as a tavern for over a century. People can spend much time here if of a curious mind, but one visit will do for me. From Newgate we went to Springfield where a very nice large station is under construction. When I returned from Rochester in September and got off the train I hardly (as the darkies say) knew where "I was at" but was getting straightened out when I came two fellef come sisters going to my city. Oh, wasn't I relieved of being alone on the journey home in the night. I went out to Rochester by auto which spoils us for traveling otherwise.

HELP WANTED ON HOOKED RUGS

Dear Social Corner: It is about a year since I've written. There seems little for me to tell of interest. I am a busy housekeeper, on a small farm, canning, making butter, feeding hens and all the small duties but nevertheless taking the time. The summer is always too short for me, we have so many visitors and callers. I am blest with the best of friends.

Maybe it is the first summer I haven't been to Bald hill, Mt. Ochepetsch, usually go from one to four times each season. Heard from there when the boy scouts were in camp. They went on a hike or two up there and brought home some lovely flowers. Last year The Lady had the most beautiful anthriniums. If none of you have ever had any just get some seed and try

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The work of laying the new city pipes for Norwich was progressing satisfactorily a half century ago this week. The last of the new pipes had been laid in Greeneville leaving only those on the Providence road to be put in. The work of attaching the service pipes to the mains had already started. The same week Moses Pierce was re-elected president of the Norwich and New York Transportation company. S. A. Gardner, Jr., was re-appointed superintendent and H. L. Parker was named treasurer. Interesting items taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of fifty years ago follow:

Monday, Oct. 18, 1875—Capt. Geary of Co. E. 3rd Regiment, will lecture here sometime this month or early in November on the Duties of Irish Citizens in America for the benefit of a charitable organization.

A long log 27 feet in length and 20 inches in diameter was taken from the site of the coffer dam, Saturday, after four days work. The log had drifted there many years ago, probably before the old shipyard was laid out.

It was reported on the street last night that spars and wreck stuff from a sailing vessel came ashore and it is not improbable that some unlucky craft foundered in it.

Tuesday, Oct. 19, 1875—The city water has been let on through about 2,000 feet of the new pipe in Cliff street and on the Roath road. It is expected to have it running through the entire length within a fortnight.

A horse driven by Henry Thompson ran away in Bozrahville, yesterday morning, turned over a new wagon and threw out Mr. Thompson who was considerably bruised.

Patrick Fenton, one of our old citizens, was painfully injured in the knee at the Laurel Hill works yesterday afternoon, but will be out in a few days.

A boy by the name of Williams who lives with his parents on the Greeneville road, shot himself in the foot yesterday while fooling with a pistol.

Wednesday, Oct. 20, 1875—M. Adrian Izar, the champion of the world finger billiard player, gave exhibitions in McGarry's billiard rooms yesterday afternoon and evening before a large number of spectators. He first played with his fingers, the French game, 200 points up, with an amateur using a cue, and won very easily. He then exhibited some very extraordinary fancy shots made with his fingers. Those present were greatly pleased and entertained.

One of the horses of the Thamesville omnibus took fright on the square yesterday noon and wound itself around the pole in a miscellaneous manner. The ladies in the bus retired to firm ground precipitably.

The last of the new water pipes in Greeneville was laid yesterday. This leaves only those on the Providence road to be put in. The work of attaching the service pipes has been begun.

Miss Potter has been announced to appear at Breed Hall this evening in a programme consisting of dialect readings, select recitations and costume character impersonations. Prof. Beale will preside at the piano.

A couple of coal vessels with cargoes for merchants on the Worcester road reached the coal wharf yesterday.

Thursday, Oct. 21, 1875—Miss Kate Putnam appears in Breed Hall next Thursday evening as "Little Nell" and the "Marchioness" in the Old Curiosity Shop. She is said to be supported by a strong company.

Hamlin B. Buckingham, one of the oldest residents of Norwich, died yesterday in his 87th year. Mr. Buckingham commenced business here not far from half a century ago and at one time the late Senator Buckingham was a clerk in his store. He was for a long time librarian of the Ohls library. He was for many years one of the deacons of the Second Congregational church and it was as Deacon Buckingham that he was generally known.

The annual meeting of the stock holders of the Norwich and New York Transportation Company, was held in this city yesterday and the following directors were elected: George W. Gill, Francis H. Dewey, Oliver Woodworth, William T. Hart, Charles T. Clark, Simeon E. Baldwin, Gilbert W. Philips, Moses Pierce, and Charles W. Copeland.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors Moses Pierce was re-elected president. S. A. Gardner, Jr., continues superintendent and H. L. Parker, treasurer.

Friday, Oct. 22, 1875—The Worthington pump had drained the interior of the coffer dam, yesterday afternoon and a large force of men were shoveling out the bottom, which, together with sand brought by the railroad, is used in "puddling" the outside. The pump throws out a barrel of water by each stroke of the piston and can be run at the rate of 60 strokes a minute. Some idea of the requisite strength of the dam can be gained from knowledge of the fact that the outside pressure averages about 575 pounds to the foot.

The streets throughout the city are being put in order for the winter campaign. Notably, Union street from Main to Broadway, has been paved with the Guidet pavement and that part of the same street which lies on the hill is being revamped with dirt. West Main street has been macadamized between the bridges, the bridges themselves with their approach having been recovered with Nicholson pavement for the second time and Spring street is being sidewalked.

Several fine monuments have recently been placed in Yantic cemetery which has long been noted for the number and variety of its granite monoliths. Conspicuous among the latter erections is that on the Colt and Barker lot. Another monument is that to the memory of the late J. M. Huntington. Both these monuments are of fine light granite of a very pure quality from the Millstone Point quarries of J. B. Palmer and Co. They were erected by Joseph A. Smith, of this city, a member of the firm.

Saturday, Oct. 23, 1875—The work of paving Union street was completed at 4 o'clock yesterday, His Honor, the Mayor, laying the last stone and immediately thereafter expressing himself in a very satisfactory manner upon the hard money currency question. The appearance and usefulness of the section of the street and of the square just paved are greatly improved thereby. The work under the supervision of Street Commissioner Cole, seems to have been effected in a very thorough manner.

It is now thought that it will be possible to begin the stone work for the new bridge for the Norwich & Worcester Railroad Company Monday or Tuesday. It is intended to work with two gangs, night and day, at least until the abutment is above the level of the water.

The building east of that formerly known as the Pequot Machine Company's building, which has had a three by four wooden fish market hung on one side of it and was otherwise and internally in the condition best known as ramshackle, has been divested of the market, is receiving a new front and is being otherwise put in order to be used as a wholesale grocery and liquor store.

Resinol

would clear her skin

Don't go through life with a red, coarse, pimply skin when it is so easy to overcome these defects by using Resinol Ointment. Gentle, soothing, and absolutely non-irritating, it relieves the soreness and inflammation at once, and unless the skin trouble is due to some internal condition, Resinol usually clears it away quickly and at little cost. Sold by all druggists.

SOCIAL CORNER

it lovely colorings and veinings far superior to petunia which it slightly resembles.

If any of the sisters have made hooked rugs will they please tell an anxious and ignorant sister just how to go to work to make one, the material used especially. The page is always full of interest to me. How I do wish I lived where I could attend some of the meetings. It is the getting together that gives our minds a chance to grow. One does get into a rather lifeless way. Books can not make up all we need. The interchange of thoughts does make such a difference. All success to the Corner.

GREETINGS FROM ROBBIN

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It is a long time since I wrote. I may be off the list, but I am still one of the original No. 2. I hear you all had a nice time in your new hall. I it will be nicer as one of our sisters said, there was no noise of trains passing to disturb the sisters who entertain. I was sorry I could not be there, but work before pleasure. I hope I may be able to be at the next meeting. I intended to help Scottie, but she always has a lot of willing helpers and she makes a good hostess.

I thank all the sisters who remembered my birthday. Some of the sisters called on me and we had a lovely time, although it was very warm. I should have put this letter in some time ago, but better late than never. What say you Neesie, True Blue, White Dawn, Chocolate, Scottie, Dearie, Hope we will have some more of the good times as I enjoyed everyone of them. Glad to hear that Calla Lily was working just the same in the original No. 2. How are you these days, Calla Lily?

I will try and get to our next meeting and bring my dishes with me. I think it is nicer to have our town and it is not so much work for the hostess and helpers.

Delilah Dead: Sorry to hear you have had such a time. Hope you are still feeling better. We used to have good times at our meeting when you were able to come.

Bachelor Maid: I was sorry I did not see you when you were in the hospital House your eyes are all right again

Chelsea: I think the idea of using the bread paper to roll your pie is very good.

Best wishes to the Corner.

ROBIN.

BIRTHDAY REMEMBRANCES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I wish to express my thanks and appreciation to the editor for the fellow slip. It was quite a surprise, therefore all the more appreciated. If not too late, I also want to thank all who Scottie Robin, True Blue, Neeta, Chocolate, Maple Leaf Catnip, Black Eyed Susie and any others I may have failed to mention.

If not too late, may I ask the editor for one of the pins? Thank you.

Best wishes as ever,

WHITE DAWN.

APPLES FOR SLEEPLESSNESS

Dear Sisters: The apple is such a common fruit, that very few people are familiar with its remarkable medicinal properties. Every one ought to know that the very best thing is to eat one or two ripe apples before retiring for the night. Persons unintitiated in the mysteries of the fruit are liable to throw up their hands in horror at the vision of dyspepsia which such a suggestion may bring up but no harm can come even to a delicate system by the eating of a ripe apple before going to bed. The apple is an excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digested shape than any other fruits.

This I have found to be true. Give the children all the apples they will eat but only a small sized one at a time for if given large ones they waste them.

MEDALS FOR STUDENTS IN YALE ART SCHOOL

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 23—(A. P.)—Students in the department of painting and sculpture of the Yale School of Fine Arts received five second medals, four first mentions and ten second mentions in the awards of the Beaux Arts Institute of design just announced. The awards were made for "a decoration for a museum hall." Medals were awarded to Dunbar B. Beck, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Philip C. Elliott, of Minneapolis, Minn.; M Alice Hubbard, of Worcester, Mass.; Rachel F. Rand, of New Haven and Frederick Clement Truckess, of Brownsburg, Ind.

ROBBERIES CLEARED UP BY ARREST OF A BOY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 23—(A. P.)—Practically all of a dozen petty robberies which were reported last week end were cleared up today with the arrest of a boy charged with delinquency. The lad was sent to the reform school in Meriden. The boy appeared to have committed the breaks merely for the pleasure of it, as practically none of the article stolen could be used by him. A large part of the stolen articles was recovered.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TO ADDRESS Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION

President Coolidges acceptance of an invitation to address the opening session of the international convention of the Young Men's Christian association in Washington on October 24, recalls two previous conventions which were held at the capital, one in 1871 and the other in 1907, at which Presidents Grant and Roosevelt, respectively welcomed and received the delegates. It recalls also the hearty support accorded the association movement by Presidents Hayes, Garfield, Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Taft, Wilson and Harding.

Theodore Roosevelt, during his public life, addressed many Y. M. C. A. gatherings and paid tribute to the association, both in its civil and military phases. "I am a strong believer in the Y. M. C. A., for the Y. M. C. A. builds up good citizens," he once said; and when assistant secretary of the navy, he declared before an association meeting: "I stand so strongly for the Y. M. C. A. because it encourages the development of manly attributes. I stand strongly for it because it emphasizes ideals, and without ideals there is no hope for a country."

Woodrow Wilson once said, "You can trust the modern community by the degree of its interest in its Young Men's Christian Association." While President of Princeton he commended the student work of the association, and later, during the trying years of the war he characterized its war activity "a means of moral sanitation."

President Harding gave the Association his "unqualified approval," and wrote of it: "Whether in peace or war, in our own country or under foreign skies the Young Men's Christian Association has been at the front of activities in behalf of the truest public interest."

October 24 will not be the only occasion on which Calvin Coolidge has addressed an important association conference. One notable event was his speech before the New York state convention at Albany, in 1923. It will be while he was still Vice-President that he said: "The value of the work of the Y. M. C. A. cannot be overestimated. It is always timely, in peace and in war. It is entitled to universal support."

Palace Theatre

"The Paramount picture, "A Son of His Father," produced by Victor Fleming from Harold Bell Wright's novel of that caption, is claimed to be the finest "picture" that has ever reached the screen. In backing up this big claim Paramount mentions—

First—the author. Harold Bell Wright's tales of the west have done more homes than those of any other writer. During the past ten years his books have been read by more than 50 million people in the United States alone.

Second—the director. Victor Fleming, who made "Adventure" and "The Devil's Cargo." He also made "To the Last Man" the first Zane Grey picture production. "The Call of the Canyon" another Zane Grey success, and "Empty Hands" are also on his long list of successes.

Then the cast. Bessie Love, Warner Baxter and Raymond Hatton are featured in the leading roles. Other popular players are Charles Stevens, Walter McGrail, Carl Stockdale, Billy Eugene and James Bailey.

In order to have "A Son of His Father" historically and geographically correct, Fleming took his company two hundred (or a) location a few miles from Tucson. Ariz., on a beautiful stretch of wild country which looking distance of the Mexican border.

All the cast in actual keeping with the story. To make the production even more natural real cowboys were employed for the riding roles. It is rather interesting to note that some of these cowboys have engaged in the cattle business since after the [illegible] of their lives mostly ruled the state of Chihuahua.

Broadway

Ridin' Tearin' action is the watchword in "Win, Lose or Draw," which will come to the Broadway theatre Sunday as the second feature. The picture features Leo Maloney who is well "known to all action picture lovers with "Senator" the human horse and "bullet" the wonder dog. The story is concerned with the efforts of two rascally mule-skinners to obtain possession of a very rich freak placer deposit located on the ranch of Pierre Fayette a Canadian Frenchman and his daughter. A very excellent cast and a fast moving story keep the interest of the audience up to the very last minute.

A new comedy, "Dandy Lions," and Kinograms, will complete the picture program. Frank Benson, director, will again lead his augmented orchestra with real concert music. All seats are only 25c.

Mathewson's Classmate Will Speak

"Christy Mathewson and Clean Sport" will be the pastor's subject at the Central Baptist church on Sunday evening. Dr. Pitt was Mr. Mathewson's classmate at Bucknell university for two years and knew him intimately in the classroom as well as on the athletic field. The public is cordially invited.

President Coolidge on the Radio

President Coolidge will address the international convention of the Young Men's Christian association in Washington on Saturday morning, Oct. 24, at 10.30 a. m. and he will doubtless have something very interesting to say.

Breed

"Loves of All Nations" is what Director George Fitzmaurice termed the bevy of beauties who decorate the harem sequence which, reproduced in full natural color, serves as the opening chapter for the Samuel Goldwyn production "His Supreme Moment."

Proceeding on the knowledge that Oriental potentates who went in for harem collections picked representative beauties of every race and clime Fitzmaurice combed Hollywood for the perfect beauty from every general subdivision of the human family. He succeeded in assembling a group of a dozen girls whom he believes are perfect types of the Latin, Slav, Norse, Teutonic, Anglo-Saxon, Celtic, Mongolian and other racial groups.

By photographing in natural color the episode in which these beauties appear he has been able to present fair-haired, blue-eyed daughters of the North, auburn-haired colleens, raven-tressed and sole-eyed Latin beauties, and olive-skinned Mongolian girls in characteristic postures, made more beautiful by the use of color which distinguishes their various races.

Ronald Colman, who was nominated by Samuel Goldwyn a few months ago as the "perfect screen lover of 1925," justifies the producer's faith in his love-making technique by revealing a wide variety of new methods of wooing in the new George Fitzmaurice production, "His Supreme Moment."

Colman, who oshares featured honors with Blanche Sweet in this picture, is called upon by the development of the story to make persistent and red-hot love to this fellow player throughout four-fifths of the picture. He does it successfully—and he never repeats in one episode the love-making methods used in an earlier sequence of the story!

Lyceum—New London

Seventh Heaven, John Golden's famous dramatic success, with a record of two consecutive seasons at the Booth theater, will be presented at the Lyceum New London, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Nov. 5, 6, 7 with a popular matinee Saturday.

Seventh Heaven will be remembered by New York theatergoers as the most thrilling and absorbing play of its time. Its author, Austin Strong, has given it a Parisian setting, with the great events of the mobilization and armistice day celebration for a background, but the war, instead of being the principal topic of the play, merely serves as a setting for its theme of human courage, and it is this theme, universal in its appeal, together with unusual and picturesque Parisian characters which have given the play its tremendous vogue.

The company which will present Seventh Heaven here, and the only one en tour, was selected and directed under Mr. Golden's personal supervision. The role of Diane, the beaten little sister, will be played by Ann Forrest, star of such motion pictures as If Winter Comes, The Prince Chap and The Great Impersonator, who is now making her first appearance in the spoken drama. Chico will be played by Louis D'Arcy, a young Belgian actor trained in Mme. Rejane's Paris repertoire company, and now playing his first leading part in the English language. The other members of the company include Charles Gotthold as Brissac, W. H. Post as Pere Chevillon, John W. Runsone as Boul, Isabel West as Aunt Valentine, Harry Foreman as Uncle Georges and other well known and thoroughly capable artists.

Broadway

"Souls for Sables," a Tiffany production, tells of a phase of modern life that is always interesting—a woman's longing for beautiful clothes. The picture, which will be shown for the first time at the Broadway theatre Sunday as the first feature, is suggested from "Garlan & Co.," by David Graham Phillips, and has as the featured players Claire Windsor and Eugene O'Brien.

Insofar as the settings are concerned they are the utmost in elegance, while the direction and photography are of the very best. Evidently no expense was spared in the gowns worn by Miss Windsor, who is seen in more than 26 changes of costume during the run of the picture. A fortune in sable furs is exhibited.

Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

An invitation is extended to both sexes, 14 and over, to enjoy an hour at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon, when moving pictures of interest will be shown. "Up the Barito River," this river is the largest of the island of Borneo. The trip is made up a slow flat and wheeler against the sluggish muddy current. We are soon walled in on both sides by the densest of jungles; we pass native huts perched up in trees; bright plumaged birds flutter among the branches. This picture is of real educational value. Another picture, showing the method of locating, stunned soldiers by the ambulance dogs; the cleverness of these animals is surprising and of course interesting. The police dogs at work will also interest the audience. An educational film entitled "Marble Fields of Carrara," will show the activities in one of the marble quarries of Italy. Hugh Kinder will furnish music for the pictures and a brief talk will be given.

First Evangelical Lutheran Church

Next Thursday night, beginning at 7:30 the annual autumn festival of the Ladies Aid society will be given in the church parlors. There will be an interesting program including a German play in one act, "Der Besuch aus America". Also plenty of good music. Refreshments will be served by the ladies.

Friday night at 7:30: Choir rehearsal. Saturday morning at 10 o'clock: Confirmation instruction in the church parlors.

Next Week at the United Congregational Church

The Sodalitas will hold a cafeteria supper, followed by a social evening, at the Community house at half past six on Monday evening. Mid-week worship Thursday evening at 7.45. Mr. Abbott will lead. The Camp Fire will meet at the Community house at 7.15 on Friday evening for a lesson in first aid under Miss Durr. The Junior Guild meets in the church school rooms at half past seven on Friday evening. Following the business meeting Kathryn and Betty Zumbro will tell of "Life in India," illustrating their story with stereopticon pictures and Indian music. All girls of the parish, 15 and over, are most cordially invited to join the new Guild and to enjoy the winter's program of work and pleasure.

STAR WITNESS, NEW LONDON RAIDS, PROVES WOBBLY WHEN IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23.—If anyone believes New London is the wettest place in the state that person might as well abandon the opinion, for though there were nineteen prosecutions in the police court today for violation of the Volstead act there were not as many convictions as that. The result may have been and undoubtedly was due to the fact that the state's chief witness, a hired purchaser of liquor, was not a competent witness from any angle he is viewed. He made what the police call a "mess" of his testimony. He seems to have fallen in, if his story is true, with men whom he did not know and whom he did not produce in court as witnesses of what he did and what he and they saw. He failed to convict Thomas J. Kehr, a grocer at the corner of Bank and Tilley street, of having sold liquor, and Kehr, after a trial of the case was declared not guilty. The complaint alleged that the hired buyer, one John McCarthy, was the purchaser, whereas in every case in which he appeared he represented that the fellows he picked up on the street did the buying. McCarthy declared that he met a stranger near a the Troy laundry, and that his new acquaintance solicited the price of a meal from him. He said he gave him money asked for and then the pair made a tour of Main street and drank home brew beer, yet he did not complain of the sellers, but went to the Kehr store, hours after he left the vicinity of it with his new acquaintance, and finally got back there and the stranger bought a bottle of whiskey and paid $8 for it. McCarthy told the prosecutor that he bought the liquor and on his statement the complaint was drawn, that the statement was not true and was so established by the evidence of McCarthy himself.

In another case McCarthy alleged that he went to the Sea Food restaurant and there bought liquor when, in fact, he was accompanied by a sailor, he said, whom he did not know, but whom he picked up on the street near the railway station. To him McCarthy told a story that he was recovering from the effects of a drunk, that he had experienced trouble with his wife, and that he wanted to go where he could get some liquor. The first thing his sailor friend wanted to know was whether he had the money to pay for that sort of enjoyment and was told that he was favored in possessing plenty of dough. The pair then went and, with the alleged result that they got into the Sea Food restaurant. There they bought a pint of liquor and paid $4 for it. When it came to identifying the sailor McCarthy balked. He was not certain as the fellow who sold the liquor had no spectacles while the accused men today wore bone-rimmed spectacles and McCarthy would not identify him. Judge Prince had heard enough of that sort of testimony and declined to listen to any more of it. He said it was of a character that permitted "frame-ups" and then decided that the Sea Food man, Thomas Stevens, was not guilty.

Teddy Ratzko, who runs a restaurant directly in the rear of the police station, pleaded guilty to maintaining a place where, it was reputed, liquor could be had. The police, half a dozen of them, declared that the place had a well established reputation as a "dump," and said they had watched it without being able to secure the evidence they desired. They had secreted themselves in a building opposite and had seen men, civilians and sailors, go in there in sobriety and come out intoxicated. They said there was a pretty generous patronage at times. Officer Graham designated the place as one of the worst in the city. McCarthy declared that he bought a pint there at $4 and indeed that appeared to be the price all around. McCarthy's associate in this case came from a lunch cart and was nowhere to be found when he was wanted today. Ratzko was fined $200.

Steve Pukas was in the game for what he could get out of it and he seemed to be getting his share. His stock and implements for making the stuff he sold, was stored in an anteroom of the police station, where it filled the door space. There was a still that had a capacity of fifty gallons, there was mush to the quantity of a gallon or more and cases of home brew that would stock an ordinary saloon. There were several gallons of the distilled beverage also. Pukas was scared as well as willing to acknowledge all, so he pleaded guilty. He was fined $200 on each of two counts and was sentenced to ten days in jail, but the latter part of the sentence was suspended.

Arthur Anderson gave McCarthy a run for his money. He pleaded not guilty and after McCarthy had testified that Anderson had sold him liquor the latter went on the witness stand and let it be known that he was a former acquaintance of McCarthy and that was why the latter hunted him up. Anderson said McCarthy was a plumber by trade and that he had worked there. Then he went to Waterbury. Anderson said the fellow came to his house and to him related the same story he told the sailor, which was to the effect that he had been on a bat and that he just had trouble with his wife. He drew a bottle of booze from his pocket and insisted that Anderson drink with him, but Anderson declined to do that representing that he was not a man who used liquor and that he was in training for a football game and would not drink anyhow. Then Anderson introduced another witness, one Sullivan, the keeper of the Roma rooms on Bank street, and he, too, accused McCarthy, saying that he wanted him to deny accusations made by the witness. McCarthy did not do that, but he secured Fred Caron, a member of the state police to testify that he met McCarthy at Norwich about the time it was alleged he was with Anderson on Bank street. Anderson asked for a continuance of the case until Saturday, that he might introduce witnesses who would be glad to give evidence in the case farther. So there ought to be something doing in contradiction when the case is resumed Saturday as it was continued till that date.

Frank May was accused of selling to McCarthy, but that case was put over for a week, as was the case against Arthur Messer, who is informed against on two counts, selling and possessing liquor for sale. The Messer case went over, that documentary evidence might be obtained.

John Henry Quinn was fined for selling. His dose was $200 and ten days in jail, with the prison term remitted. He appealed and gave bond of $1,000 to appear in the common pleas court for trial.

Louis Ramistella, Charles Lawski, May Pierson and Adoph Visconi were each fined 200. Ramistella appealed but the others settled. Other accused persons will come to trial later. They are Nick Trazgas, Mrs. Eglantine Carpenter, Nathan Pumerants, Nicholas Haddard, Henry Marcus and Louis Soltz. They are all in business in other lines besides the selling of liquor, Marcus being located directly opposite the police station. He has been under surveillance a long time, but he never was apprehended until Thursday night.

An alarm of fire this evening at 7.28, called the department to 728 Jefferson avenue, where a chimney in a house owned by H. D. Barrows was displaying a soot fire. The use of chemicals was all that was needed to extinguish the fire. The loss was trifling.

Two automobile drivers were taken into custody late this afternoon charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinance. They are James J. Ripetti, R. F. D., No. 2, Waterford, and William A. Clinton, 125 Broad street, Groton. Both Ripetti and Clinton parked their machines on that section of Atlantic street which is restricted to parking except to those vehicles used by truckmen.

Miss Ada Evans, 382 Main street, tonight was notified by the New London police of the death today of her mother in New York.

The funeral of Miss Lucy Hartwell Stewart, sister of Rev. C. M. S. Stewart, was held this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at St. James Episcopal church and was attended by many mourners. The service was read by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge. The body was forwarded to Newport, R. I., where burial will take place.

Mrs. Ulysses Myrick, 55 Pratt street was awakened shortly after 2 o'clock this morning by a man prowling around the yard of her home. Mrs. Myrick communicated with the police. Acting Lieutenant James M. Gaffney and Patrolman Edward Daniels speeded to the Myrick premises, but when the officers arrived there the prowler had made his escape. A search of the neighborhood was made, but no trace of the man was found.

Ramon Potkay, 38 Eastern avenue, complained to the police this afternoon that a neighbor, Mrs. Alexandria Gunska, residing at 42 Eastern avenue, was annoying complainant's wife, because of the frequency Mrs. Gunska hurls verbal attacks at Mrs. Potkay. Patrolman William Graham visited the Gunska home where he warned the woman against any further annoyance of Mrs. Potkay.

Edward Dalton, 176 Howard street, complained to the police this forenoon that a thief visited his automobile last night and stole a spare tire and rim.

Everett Henry, aged about six, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Henry, 2 Union street was struck by an automobile owned by George A. Messenger, 16 Rupert street, Springfield, Mass., this morning but did not sustain injuries of a serious nature. The child with companions was walking on the northerly side of Washington street, and when near the corner of Huntington street suddenly stepped to the highway directly in front of the automobile. Before Messenger had an opportunity to apply his brakes the boy was struck by the fender. A physician was called but decided that the boy had suffered only minor bruises.

Mayor William C. Fox is in Hartford this evening a guest of honor at a banquet given by officials of the Hartford Accident and Indemnity company at the Canoe club East Hartford. Mayor Fox was among the speakers at the exercises.

Mrs. Sarah S. Law is ill at her home, Quaker Hill with appendicitis. It is believed that she will be compelled to submit to an operation within a few days.

Miss Esther Liljenstein, 4 Crocker street, and Miss Clara W. Polinsky, 43 Linden street, are spending a few days in New Haven and Hartford. The Misses Liljenstein and Polinsky are making a trip by automobile.

Miss Arlene Rabson, of Danielson, is spending the week-end as the guest of Miss Helen Donovan, 260 Connecticut avenue.

The public schools here were closed today, the teachers attending the State Teachers' Association convention at Norwich.

The condition of Mrs. Mary Gardner, 18 Blackhall street, who is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, is reported this evening as being considerably improved. Mrs. Gardner was admitted to the institution yesterday following her return to New London from a three weeks' automobile trip throughout the west.

Funeral services for Henry P. Bullard, a former New London and Niantic resident, whose death occurred while visiting a relative in Providence several days ago, were held this morning at 11 o'clock in Union lodge rooms, Union street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, and prelate of Palestine Commandery, assisted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The bearers were John T. Porter Jr., George R. Morris, Morris M. Ruoff, George S. Gadbois, Henry R. Tisdale and Frederick A. Beebe. Burial was in Abington.

Donald B., infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bailey, formerly of New London, died at the residence of the child's parents, in Bimsbury, Wednesday.

Funeral services for Lester A. Waley, late of this city, whose death occurred at Preston earlier in the week, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 15 Masonic street, Rev. Joseph R. Elder, pastor of the Huntington Street Baptist church, officiating. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Orie Dunn, wife of William E. Dunn, a former resident of New London, died at a Brooklyn hospital yesterday following a brief illness. Besides her husband, Mrs. Dunn is survived by three sons and two daughters. A brother, C. Hamilton Thompson, New York, and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Bedbore, also survive.

A commercial automobile owned by Edward L. Gay, of Groton, was damaged by fire last night while it was parked on Thames street, Groton. The machine had been operated to a gasoline station to have the tank replenished with fuel. The engine was stopped while the tank was being filled and suddenly the rear of the car was noticed to be ablaze. So fast did the blaze spread, the destruction of the car being threatened, that an alarm was rung in from Box 35, corner of Thames street and Ledyard avenue, summoning the Pioneer Hose company. When the firemen reached the blazing car the machine was all aflame, but a quantity of chemicals, quickly subdued the blaze. How the fire originated Gay does not know, but it is believed that it started from defective wiring.

MEMBER OF GYPSEY BAND WANTED IN NEW JERSEY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23.—Steve Milan, traveling with a band of gypsies believed to be headed towards New London, is being sought tonight by the New London and State police. Milon is wanted for the theft of a sum of money in New Jersey. When the gypsies left that state this afternoon they were understood to have made statements that they would make their next stop in New London. Milan is described as being about 20 and is wearing kaiki. The band is traveling in two automobiles, both touring cars, one bearing Kansas registration and the other California registration.

STATE ODD FELLOWS' HOME TO HAVE NEW WATER PLANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23.—A new water plant and supplied from the borough of Groton, is being installed at the state Odd Fellows' home at Fairview Groton. A steel tank of 50,000 gallons capacity, is being erected at the crest of Fairview Heights and when the tank and its equipment is installed it will store a sufficient amount of water to maintain and supply all parts of the home and the connecting farm. An electric pump will keep the tank filled at all times. In addition to maintaining a constant supply of running water the new system will provide a 60-pound pressure for a fire hydrant. The new system will replace the present one, which is supplied by spring water. The system will be connected with a new 8-inch main, recently laid on Fairview avenue by the Groton borough water department. Work on the installation of the improved water system is being pushed to completion and it is planned to have the tank ready for use about December 1st.

LEGAL NOTICES

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Ledyard, within and for the District of Ledyard, on the 22nd day of October, A. D. 1925:

Present, BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge.

Estate of Joaquina Fidalgo, late of Ledyard, in said District, deceased.

Mrs. Joseph Geliot, of Ledyard appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that administration be granted on the estate of said deceased.

Whereupon it is ordered, That said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in Ledyard in said District, on the 29th day of October A. D. 1925, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon be given by publication of this order one time, in the Norwich Bulletin a newspaper having a circulation in said District at least five days prior to the date of said hearing and that return be made to this Court.

BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest: BILLINGS F. S. CRANDALL, Judge

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 23d day of October, A. D. 1925.

Present—NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of James H. Avery, late of Lisbon, in said District, deceased.

The Executor exhibited his final administration account with said estate to the Court for allowance; it is therefore Ordered, That the 27th day of October, A. D. 1925, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, be, and the same is, appointed for hearing the same, and the said Executor is directed to give notice thereof by publishing this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District, at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and make return to the Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest: HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk. oct24d

POULTRY.

POULTRY
PAN-A-CE-A
Starts pullets and moulted hens to laying

Nothing like Pan-a-ce-a to bring back the good feeling to a moulted, run-down flock.

Just add one pound of Pan-a-ce-a to every fifty pounds of mash, or one tablespoonful for 20 hens once a day.

Then see the combs and wattles begin to turn red. Listen to the song, scratch and cackle.

Pan-a-ce-a tones up the dormant egg organs, starts the feed the egg way.

There is nothing you can buy for your flock on the same terms on which you can buy Pan-a-ce-a.

Just tell your dealer how many hens you have; he will supply you with the right size packages to suit your flock.

Feed it, all of it: If you don't get eggs, more eggs, enough eggs that you want to feed it regularly, then return the empty container to your dealer and get your money back.

Mr. Poultryman, Dr. Hess & Clark are paying for this advertisement just to get this message to you and they mean business.

Get your package of Pan-a-ce-a from The Yantic Grain & Products Co., 3 Cove St.; Norwich Grain Co., 41 Commerce; The Yantic Grain & Products Co., Yantic; Baltic Grain & Coal Co., Baltic.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(By the Associated Press)—Heavy week-end profit taking failed to stem the rising tide of prices in today's stock market, the advance, which was spread over a broad list, ranged from 1 to 6 points in the active issues, with even larger gains in some of the volatile specialties. Trading again approximated two and one half million shares, making it the tenth consecutive two million share session.

The closing was featured by a sensational rally in Chandler Motors which was run up nearly 15 points to a new high record at 62, often jumping a point or more between sales. Heavy buying orders were placed in this stock a few minutes before the final gong, but the tape was so far behind the market that the violent upward movement was not known until after the market closed. At 3 oclock the stock was quoted around 41 on the tape.

Other motors also received good buying support. Chrysler advanced over 5 points to 199 1-2 or within a fraction of the record high; Mack Trucks showed a net gain of over three points of 228 3-4, and General Motors closed 2 5-8 points higher at 131 3-8.

Strength of Paige-Detroit, which advanced three points to a new high record at 31 1-2 was associated with unconfirmed rumors that Dodge Brothers were negotiating for control.

The upward movement today was given impetus by the optimistic survey of the business situation by Chairman Gary of the United States Steel corporation, continuation of relatively easy call money rates, a favorable Federal Reserve bank statement and reports of expanding retail trade. A further collapse of French francs was disregarded as a stock market factor, although it brought about some liquidation of French bonds. Several sugar shares crumbled to new low records for the year in sympathy with the weakness of the sugar futures markets.

Steel shares responded to reports of an increase in incoming orders. United States Steel common advanced over 2 points to 128 3-8; Bethlehem closed 2 points higher at 44, and Crucible Gulf states and Republic advanced a point or 2. United States Cast Iron Pipe soared 11 1-2 points to 210.

Oil and railroad shares, which were strong earlier in the week, failed to make much progress because of the large volume of realizing sales. Most recessions, however, were of a fractional character.

Buoyancy again developed in a number of high priced industrials. American Can soared seven points to a new high record for all time at 256 1-4. International Business Machines jumped nearly six points to a new top at 17. General Electric scored an extreme gain of over eight points, half of which was later cancelled. S. S. Kresge jumped 23 points on a few sales. New York Shipbuilding closed 7 1-2 points higher at 73 1-2; Puthe 6 1-4 at 88 1-4. Pittsburgh Coal 5 3-4 at 45 3-4, Twin City Rapid Transit 4 1-2 at 86 1-2 and United Drug 6 at 145 1-2.

American Beet Sugar, Cuban-American, Cuba Cane common and preferred and Manati all broke through to new low levels for the year.

Call money held steady at 4 1-4 per cent., all day. Time money rates relaxed, sixty to ninety days funds being quoted on a flat 4 3-4 per cent. basis instead of 4 3-4 to 4, with some longer maturities also available at the lower money rates. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Renewed weakness of French francs, which sank about 10 points to another new 1925 low around 4.20 cents, featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm above $4.84, and Italian lire rallied 5 points to round 4.00 cents.

GLOUDY TODAY; RAIN AT NIGHT OR TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1796 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

NORWICH, CONN., SATURDAY, OCT. 24, 1925

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Saturday Oct. 24, 1925

THE WEATHER
Conditions

A disturbance of moderate intensity is central over southern Oklahoma and moving slowly east-northeastward. The disturbance that was off the New Jersey coast Thursday night has moved rapidly northeastward to Newfoundland with increasing intensity.

This pressure disturbance has been attended by rains within the last 24 hours in northern New England. The temperature has risen slightly east of the Mississippi, except along the Atlantic coast.

The southwestern disturbance will move northeastward and it will be attended by rains most generally east of the Mississippi river within the next 24 hours. The weather will probably remain fair until Saturday night, however, in New England.

The temperature will be slightly higher Saturday in the middle Atlantic and north Atlantic states, but it will fall Sunday or Sunday night in the Atlantic states.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: Moderate variable becoming east and southeast and increasing by Saturday night; generally fair weather Saturday, rain Saturday night.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Increasing east and southeast and increasing cloudiness Saturday, rain Saturday night.

Forecast

Northern New England: Generally fair and slightly warmer Saturday, followed by rain or snow Saturday night and Sunday.

For southern New England: Increasing cloudiness Saturday followed by rain Saturday night and Sunday; slightly warmer Saturday in west portion; colder by Sunday night.

Observations.

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Friday:

	Ther.	Bar
7 a. m.	38	29.90
12 m.	48	29.90
6 p. m.	40	30.00

GREENEVILLE

At a meeting of the Woman's Guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal church Thursday afternoon it was voted to give a Hallowe'en social to the members of the Sunday school and their parents, next Thursday evening. A masquerade ball, games and prizes, and refreshments will be given.

TAFTVILLE

There was a large attendance at the whist given by Ponemah council, No. 34, Knights of Columbus at the council rooms on Providence street Thursday evening. The gentlemen's prizes were awarded as follows, first, John Daley; second, John Foster; consolation, David O'Brien. For the ladies, the first prize went to Miss Lena O'Brien, the second to Miss Abigail Murphy, and the consolation to Miss Mary Nolan.

Lawrence Krauss of Lisbon left Friday for Florida where he plans to spend the winter.

The annual meeting of the Taftville Chapter A. R. C. will be held in Ponemah hall, Wednesday, Oct. 28th, at 8 p. m.—Adv.

Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue is spending several days in Saylesville, R. I., at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Pingree and family.

Howard Bushnell is to occupy the pulpit at the Newent Congregational church of Lisbon, Sunday, when Rev. William J. Reynolds, the pastor preaches at the Taftville Congregational church.

Electricians are busy running a new power line to the new pumping station north of the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Weeks of Versailles who motored to Florida this fall are building a bungalow there.

Henry Cloutier has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

DIVORCE FOR CRUELTY TO STONINGTON WOMAN

Amalie D. Clemens, 40, of Stonington, was granted a divorce and custody of three minor children from Martin Clemens, 49, in the superior court at New London Friday by Judge Allyn L. Brown on the grounds of cruelty. The plaintiff alleged that her husband had beaten her on several occasions, had been a heavy drinking man and was often in the company of women of unsavory reputation. Among other incidents she told of sending her son to the jail at New London while her husband was serving a term last January for a liquor selling conviction and of giving him the sum of $380 for his release from that place. She stated that immediately upon his return home, he beat her up because she hadn't gotten the money to him by morning instead of evening. The couple were married on Sept. 16, 1906, and several witnesses corroborated the woman's testimony.

AUGUST PROVES WORST MONTH FOR FATAL AUTO ACCIDENTS IN STATE

There have been almost as many motor vehicle fatalities in Connecticut the past three and one-half months as occured in the first half of the year, records of the state motor vehicle department show. Up to and including Columbus Day, October 12, the department returns disclose, 257 people met their deaths in 244 motor vehicle mishaps in the state, which was twenty-three more deaths and twenty-five more fatal accidents than occurred in Connecticut up to November 1 last year. During all of 1924, there were 283 fatal accidents in which 302 people were killed.

About one in every seventeen motor vehicles registered in Connecticut figured in an accident up to October 1, the number reported to the department by that date being 16,972, an increase of about 1,000 over the accident total showing on the same date last year.

August proved to be the worst month for fatal accidents this year. Forty-one people were killed in thirty-nine such accidents during that month. Previously April had held the record, with thirty-eight deaths chalked up against it. In the first half of this year, there were 140 motor vehicle fatalities in the state. The number occurring from the end of June to October 13 came within thirteen of that total, being 127. Thirty were killed in July, thirty-three in September and thirteen in the first twelve days of October. The average death rate for the year, as a result of motor vehicle accidents, stands at slightly more than twenty-six a month, which is not much under a death-a-day rate.

The record by months for the first half of the year, as previously reported by the department, is: fourteen in January, ten in February, twenty-two in March, thirty-eight in April, twenty-six in May and twenty-eight in June.

SIX NORWICH MEMBERS ON COLLEGE COMMITTEE

Governor John H. Trumbull announced Friday the name of sixty-six members of his General Citizens' Committee of One Hundred which will work to further the interests of Connecticut College for Women, the only women's college in the state.

Six of the committee are from Norwich. They include: Dr. Hugh Campbell, James L. Case, Grosvenor Ely, Miss Louise C. Howe, Philip Johnson and Mrs. M. C. Murray.

The remaining thirty-four members of the governor's committee will be announced within the next few days.

Most of the local people will go to New London this (Saturday) afternoon for the formal dedication of the Colonial House, the newest dormitory on the campus. This dormitory erected during the past year at an approximate cost of $200,000 was presented to the institution by the late Charles Clark Knowlton of Ashford, Windham county.

The dedicatory address by Benjamin Tinkham Marshall, president of the college, will be preceded by a formal luncheon served at 12:30 o'clock in the dining hall of Colonial House. College students have arranged a program including singing by the College Glee club during luncheon; competitive step singing by all the classes; hockey game, inspection of college buildings and the annual art exhibit. The student council will serve tea at 4 o'clock.

SEASON FOR BURNING LEAVES HAS STARTED

The fire department was called out three times by telephone Friday. Two of the fires were the result of burning leaves. At 9.58 o'clock in the morning the department was called out for a fire in the woods off West Thames street. Flying sparks from leaves being burned by the street department set dry material in the nearby woods on fire.

The second call came in at 12:45 o'clock and was for a burning mattress in the rear of No. 15 Water street. The mattress was destroyed by fire.

At 1:40 o'clock the third call came in for a fire in a shed on the property of Carl O. Johnson, adjacent to the Backus hospital property. Sparks from burning leaves had set the roof on fire and the blaze was extinguished with a garden hose and chemicals. Mr. Johnson uses the building in connection with his nursery business.

FR. TREANOR'S FIRST PARISH TO NOTE 40th ANNIVERSARY

The Sacred Heart parish, Waterbury, will observe the fortieth anniversary of its establishment, November 15. In 1885, Rev. William Harty, then pastor of the Immaculate Conception parish, announced that Bishop McMahon had created a new parish in the city. Rev. Hugh Treanor, assistant at St. Mary's Norwalk, was appointed first pastor, with jurisdiction over about 1,500 souls. In a short time Father Treanor purchased the land on which the church stands for $4,440. A piece of property on the north of the church and six acres to the east were subsequently added. The new church was blessed March 14, 1886. In recognition of the anniversary, an interesting program is being prepared.

Father Treanor came from this parish to St. Patrick's, Norwich, and after freeing the Norwich parish from debt and having it consecrated, by his own request was sent back to Waterbury. It was in that city that he died.

CONNECTICUT PEOPLE NOW IN FLORIDA

(Special to The Bulletin)

DELAND, Fla., Oct. 21—Several families from Moosup, Conn., and vicinity are located or visiting in this part of the state.

Mr. Charles Walker, wife and daughter are now established for the winter. He is in the employ of the Deland Country club and is building a garage apartment to live in nearby.

Mrs. E. E. Salisbury and son Eldred, daughter Evelyn and Mr and Mrs. Alvin Colvin all made the trip by motor and have opened their lovely home on South Boulevard. They passed Mr. and Mrs. Daggett in North Carolina.

Alex Dundas, and wife (Lyra Salisbury Dundas) are building a beautiful home on their own sub-division adjoining the Country club estates. It will be one of the show places in that neighborhood.

William Sprague and wife are on their way by now for this city.

Hormidas Couture and family are well installed in their newly built home in Orlando, Fla. The young folks were somewhat homesick at first but are enjoying Florida now.

ROUND HILL FARM IN SILVER TRIMMINGS

Mr. and Mrs. James Babcock Palmer of Round Hill farm, Lisbon, are celebrating their silver wedding today, Oct. 24th. They were married at the Snow Homestead in the town of Mansfield by Rev. Henry Davies, who was then pastor of the Storrs Congregational church of which the bride was a member. They came directly to Round Hill farm, where they have lived ever since. Mrs. Palmer graduated from Storrs college in the class of 1896, and was a successful teacher in the town of Lisbon for two years.

Mr. Palmer is a prosperous farmer. They have one son, Earle Morgan Palmer, who is married, and is the fourth generation of Palmers to live on Round Hill farm.

Thimblettes Met

The regular meeting of the Thimblettes was held Thursday evening at the home of the Misses Marion and Charlotte Fowler. All members were present. During the evening buffet lunch was served after which vocal solos were enjoyed. Mrs. Ella Fraser being accompanist. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Neala Brand.

ST. JOSEPH SCHOOL DRIVE IS TO START MONDAY

All preparations for the drive for St. Joseph's school have been made starting Monday. The general committee and the team captains had a very enthusiastic meeting Friday night in the chamber of commerce rooms. The city was apportioned into 24 sections and each one was allotted to a team captain, who is to make a house to house campaign during the week. A special committee is calling on the business concerns of Norwich for more substantial donations.

The drive will close on Saturday, October 31, although some of the teams will continue their work over Sunday. The final accounts will be announced on Monday, Nov. 2 at a dinner held in the Wauregan hotel. The names and amounts of each contribution will be kept in the records of the new school.

Father Iciek hopes to raise $25,000 to furnish the building and to properly equip its social features. The more money he can raise the better equipment and service he will be able to render the public of Norwich.

The new St. Joseph school will render this community a two-fold service. It will save the taxpayers over $150,000 for new buildings and about $40,000 annually for maintenance of such a school. Besides it will serve as a social center for those of the younger element who need such a place for their meetings the most. The various social features of that school will be opened to the general public.

The people of Norwich have always been known to contribute and support every worthy cause. None could be better, none more profitable to the community than this modern, up to date school building. The chairman, Adelard Morin, and Father Iciek, pastor of St. Joseph Parish, hope that the drive will meet with great success.

BOY SCOUTS TO TAKE FORT SHANTOK HIKE

Norwich boy scouts will hike to Fort Shantok today (Saturday). They will take the 1:45 trolley at Franklin Square and get off at Butternut hill, the end of the first fare zone. From there hike to Shantok. A treasure hunt will be held. Each scout is to bring food to cook for supper. A. L. Pegie will be with them to talk on the history of the fort, and Chief Occum honorary tenderfoot scout, will be there.

This section has been purchased by the state for a park, and everyone should be familiar with this reservation. Scouts will doubtless be asked to guide visitors there in the near future, and it is fortunate that this historical spot will be preserved as one of the landmarks along the Mohegan trail.

MISSIONS DEPT. CONSIDERED PLANS FOR THE SEASON

The missions department of the Woman's Guild of the United Congregational church, held its opening meeting of the fall season Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community house, Church street. There was a good sized attendance and the meeting was presided over by Miss Nancy E. Lucas, chairman of the missions department. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the church, gave a very interesting talk to the women on the work of the year.

The meeting discussed plans for the raising of the usual mission fund and for the packing of mission boxes. Plans for a luncheon meeting to be held November 20th, at noon, at the Community house were also discussed. The speakers at this meeting will include Miss Miriam Woodbury, and Miss Helen Frances Smith, of Boston, the latter being a secretary of the Woman's Mission Board.

At the close of the meeting there was the usual social hour during which tea and sandwiches were served.

SUPPER GIVEN FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL ATTENDANTS

A supper was given at 6:15 Friday evening at Bushnell chapel in honor of about 70 members of the Central Baptist church school who attended the school sessions on eight of the nine Sundays of July and August. An attractive menu was served by the domestic committee under the direction of Mrs. Henrietta Tefft, and words of congratulation to the guests of the evening were spoken by the pastor, Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, and Superintendent Harold S. Burt. The waitresses were Miss Gladys Way, Miss Nellie Rathbun, Miss Belle Rathbone, Mrs. Lee Coles, Miss Bessie Grimes and Miss Belle Lumis. An entertaining programme of games was conducted after the supper.

Miscellaneous Shower Given

Friends of Miss Emelia LeClair of Occum gave her a pretty miscellaneous shower this week at her home in hinor of her approaching marriage to Peter Rondeau of Taftville. After an evening of games light refreshments were served. Those present were:

Alice Rondeau, Eva Rainville, Alma Rondeau, Viola Peltier, Laure Danis, Mrs. Aecmars, Eva Thibeault, Mrs. William Benson Victoria Brown Bernadette LaVallie Mrs. Chappell, Agnes Gadue, Leona Gadue, Della Paquette, Alice Thibeault, Mrs. Joe Rondeau, Mrs. Omar Rondeau, Irene LaVallie, Lydia Dugas, Lucy Dugas, Mrs. O. C. Peloquin, Alex Rondeau, Effie Gravelin, Tidora Paquette.

Dynamite Demonstration Given

A demonstration in the use of dynamite was satisfactorily given Friday afternoon at the Blacker farm at East Great Plain under the direction of F. W. Knipe of Storrs college. The blast was fired about 3 o'clock and there is to be another blast Monday as there was not time to complete the work Friday. About 300 pounds of dynamite is to be used in all.

Mrs. Ora Spencer was chairman of the pinochle committee. Tuesday evening the sewing circle of the council will meet with Mrs. John O. Peckham at her home on West Thames street.

ASSIGNED BUS HEARINGS HAVE BEEN POSTPONED

Mayor Milo R. Waters and the selectmen received notification Friday from the public utilities commission that all hearings on applications for certificates to operate jitney or other public service vehicles, scheduled for Oct. 20 to 29, inclusive, have been postponed. A meeting has been set for Oct. 27 at 10.30 o'clock in the office of the commission at the state capitol when re-assignments for the several hearings will be made.

The announcement is of interest locally, since the hearing on the application of the New England Transportation Co., for permission to operate bus lines between New London and Westerly and also over the route to Norwich, had been set for Tuesday of next week. The petitioners seek a certificate to operate in competition with Michael Baldelli of New London, who now provides bus service to those points.

EAGLES AERIE RECEIVES MEMBERSHIP APPLICATIONS

At the regular meeting of Norwich Aerie, No. 367, F. O. E., held this week at the Eagles home, several applications were presented and acted on. James Dwyer was elected inside guard. John Bohl of the organization department gave an interesting talk on the doings of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. The Thanksgiving class initiation committee reported everything is progressing for one of the largest classes the aerie has ever held. The aerie is having a new heating system installed and as soon as that is completed a ladies' night will be held. After the meeting a social hour was spent.

The signal is transmitted as three dots, three dashes and three dots, and was chosen because it is easily sent and easily distinguished.

London and Paris

At the beginning of the Eighteenth century Paris equaled London in population and no doubt surpassed it at some earlier periods. The footing which England gained in India gave London a fresh source of wealth through its rich commerce with the Orient; it was then that London forged permanently ahead of Paris in the number of inhabitants.

POETRY

Appropriate Midsummerly

Now the pungent breath of autumn turns the forest edge to gold;
Now hay fever settles down to be an ordinary cold.

Now a touch of frosty weather pales the dew upon the grass,
Now the hearthstone seems to ponder on the future price of gas.

Now the beech tree robes in amber and the maple dreams in red,
And I think upon an extra pair of blankets for my bed.

And a melancholy burden takes possession of my soul,
And my spirit holds no happiness, my cellar holds no coal.

So I sit in somber sadness on the threshold of the Fall,
Thinking in this cheerless meter that is swiped from "Locksley Hall."—

In this long and lazy measure that the poets take from hock
When the frost is on the Punkin and the Fodder's in the Shock;

And I weep for Springtime vanished and I bow at Summer's bier,
Mourning for the youth that's wasted and the life that's sad and drear;

And I pray to be transported to that far and blessed bourne
Where no underwear is needed and no overcoats are worn.
—Ted Robinson in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Witch

North from the yawning chimney late last night,
Just when the full-orbed moon atop you hill
The world with obscure shapes began to fill,
There softly rose before my astonished sight
A queer-clad creature, taking its swift flight
Astride a broomstick; peaked nose like a bill,
Met tilted chin; a red cloak streamed at will
From shoulders sharp. A weird, unearthly wight!

Then while I thought of Salem, straight my hair
Began to rise; slowly my blood congealed;
Tongue paralyzed nor questioned how or why!
Swiftly the flapping pinions cut the air
With narrowing circles closer to me wheeled,
In fitting climax to a cold mince pie
—Alonzo Rice in Indianapolis News.

Finally, the first girl produced a large handkerchief, evidently one of her brother's, and she wrapped this around the fish in a sort of struggle hold. With teeth set and the handkerchief firmly grasped, the hook finally was released. Both girls kept on fishing and both hoped they wouldn't get another fish, and they didn't.

VIOLENT WINDSTORM AT WOBURN, MASS. 16 PERSONS KILLED BY CYCLONE IN ALA.

More Than Five Hundred Houses Were Unroofed or Had Their Sides Blown Away—One Man Was Killed and Two Women Injured—National Guard Was Called Out To Preserve Order, as the City Was Left Without Lights and Looting Was Feared When Darkness Fell—In Pike County, Ala., 16 Persons Were Killed and Scores Injured by Cyclonic Wind—Many Persons Were Left Homeless and Property Damage Will Run Into Tens of Thousands of Dollars.

WOBURN, Mass., Oct. 25—Devastation and darkness reigned in the central part of this city tonight as a result of a violent wind storm which swept through here this afternoon. One man lay dead, two women were suffering from cuts and bruises, one of them in the hospital and more than five hundred houses were unroofed or had their sides blown away. The spire of the Unitarian church lay in ruins in Central square and the spire of the Congregational church a few streets away was standing perceptibly.

The men of company G of the 182nd infantry, national guard, kept order and patrolled to business streets where demolished plate glass windows exposed merchandise to possible looters. Every policeman on the force was placed on duty. The city was without electricity and squads of men worked at clearing the streets of hundreds of fallen trees and tangled wires.

The man killed was G. Lee Dunnigan, 21, an engineer of the Murray Leather company and a first sergeant in G company, 182nd infantry. He was repairing an automobile in the yard of his home back of the tannery when a large tree was blown down upon him. His skull was fractured and several ribs were broken, and he died in the Choate Memorial hospital soon after arrival there. Earlier reports that he was in the boiler house of the tannery were incorrect. The one-story shipping room of the plant was demolished but the boiler house was untouched.

Miss Helen Fitzgerald was driving an automobile past the Unitarian church when the spire fell, crushing the front part of the machine. She was taken to the hospital with cuts and bruises. Mrs. Artur Miller was on an automobile truck with her husband when the wind struck the machine and toppled it over. She was treated at her home for bruises and lacerations.

The sudden wind cut a swath of destruction three miles long and a quarter of a mile wide, passing from the western part of the town to East Woburn and then to Stoneham, where many trees and poles were felled. The upper half of the Woburn fire station and the second story of the water works building were torn off, the motor service station of Harry Crovo was demolished and a newly built dwelling on Pine street was shifted ten feet from its foundations. The roof of the Morse street school was carried 150 feet and the streets were windswept were choked with wreckage, and Mayor Thomas H. Duffy issued an appeal to all builders and contractors to cease their regular building work and center their labors on repairing shattered homes.

The inhabitants of damaged dwellings found refuge in the homes of neighbors. Mayor Duffy called a special meeting of the town council tonight to take steps to repair the havoc of the storm, and Mayor Curley of Boston telephoned an offer of assistance.

16 PERSONS WERE KILLED BY CYCLONE IN ALABAMA

TROY, Alabama, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Sixteen persons were reported killed and more than a score injured by a tornado which struck Pike County, Alabama, early today. Many homes were laid waste, causing thousands of dollars damage.

Relief measures were undertaken this afternoon and first aid was rushed to several communities which bore the brunt of the terrific storm. Victims who fled here were sheltered by citizens of Troy and the local hospital was taxed to capacity in taking care of the injured.

After sweeping through this section, the tornado rushed on its way southward.

Loss of life was reported in the Goodhope section at Luverneo, in the Oak Grove neighborhood at Union Springs, in Comer and Shiloh, the last three places being in Barbour County, and at Eufaula, where three negroes were reported killed and several persons injured.

THREE NEGROES REPORTED KILLED ON PLANTATION

EUFAULA, Ala., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Three negroes were reported killed and the overseer's home on the plantation of former Governor B. B. Comer, blown away in a wind storm which swept over Barbour County early Sunday morning. The deaths occurred near Comer, Alabama, the Comer pecan orchard, a vast acreage is a complete wreck, according to information reaching here.

Several people are reported injured and physicians were summoned from Eufaula.

In the Oak Grove neighborhood Noah Griffin's home was destroyed and Mr. Griffin, his wife and one child seriously injured. Two children escaped unhurt.

At Orion on the Montgomery-Troy road the home and store of Walter Kelly was completely demolished. Mr. Kelly and his family all escaped injury while a brother was slightly hurt.

In the path of the storm which came up from the west and passed out toward the northeast, a trail of wreckage was left, homes demolished; barns blown down, household goods strewn along the highways and through the fields; timber laid low and farm crops completely ruined.

In one neighborhood, Goodhope, five people were killed and one whole family of nine almost wiped out Fourteen houses were completely destroyed. Noah Griffin, one of the seriously injured, was hit on the head by a heavy piece of timber which was blown through the window of his home just before the tornado picked up the house and scattered it in pieces.

STORM WAS VIOLENT IN VICINITY OF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—A rain and wind storm which lashed the Metropolitan area today caused the death of two persons by drowning, endangered small craft in neighboring waters and did considerable property damage.

John Hamby, commodore of the Bergen Beach Yacht club and Fred Doevoll, were the men drowned. They lost their lives when the motorboat Ruthie, in which they were riding with two other men, capsized off Rockaway Point. The others were saved.

Two hysterical women and 15 men, drenched by the waves beating over the sides of their vessels, were rescued by coast guard patrol men off the Sandy Hook station after being adrift for several hours on a string of 12 empty barges in the lower bay.

The barges, pulling a small tug backwards, had drifted from Perth Amboy, N. J., six coast guard men sighted the helpless craft as they passed Sandy Hook and set out in a small boat under the command of Captain Rudolph Rodgers. They succeeded in pulling the women and men from the barges and brought them ashore. The women, hysterical and exhausted by their battle with the waves which beat over te sides of the barges, were given first aid treatment, the barges were abandoned.

Six other coal barges were reported to have been blown away from their moorings at Perth Amboy, N. J., and to be drifting about in New York bay.

A 24-inch smokestack, weighing several tons, was blown from the top of a five-story building and crashed to the street in the midst of traffic without injuring anyone. Traffic had to be detoured.

A 70-year-old man was picked up by the fender at the foot of the Woolworth building and thrown to the sidewalk suffering lacerations of the head.

Scores of trees in Central Park were uprooted or snapped off near the ground, in many instances blocking paths and driveways.

Pulled through the window of her fifth story apartment by a heavy clothes line whipped by the wind while she was hanging out clothes, Mrs. Lucille Day, 27 and expectant mother, fell to the concrete court yard and died after the performance of a caesarean operation. Her baby died twenty minutes later.

The wind attained a maximum velocity of 85 miles an hour at 1.10 p. m. lashing the waters of upper bay into the highest waves seen in years. An inch and a half of rain fell during the storm.

The coast guard picket boat 182 of the Atlantic City station went aground seven miles north of Barnegat, N. J., the crew reached the shore in safety and expected to float their boat tomorrow.

A funeral cortege was held up for fifteen minutes on the Williamsburg bridge at the height of the storm by the wind which threatened to blow over the hearse.

Forty feet of shed over the elevated railway tracks at the Brooklyn terminal of the Brooklyn bridge was blown to the street, severing a trolley wire and typing up trolley traffic.

The roof of a 5-story tenement in Brooklyn was lifted by the wind and dropped on a fence next door. None of the tenants was injured.

In Jamaica trolley traffic was halted at several points by fallen trees across the tracks. Many trees were uprooted in Prospect park, Brooklyn.

REPORTS OF DAMAGE BY STORM IN THE STATE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Two storms, one a downpour of rain, and the other a heavy wind attaining a velocity of 50 miles an hour, swept over New Haven today, doing considerable damage of a minor nature. The property damage, however, was not heavy.

Reports from up-state indicated that one section of the storm struck north of Wallingford and swept in a southward curve to the east shore towns. New Haven was in the center of the rain storm which set in on Saturday and did not stop until this afternoon. hTe rain was followed by a bank of fog.

North Haven, Wallingford and Meriden were hard hit by the storm, but the damage was not heavy. In front of the Granite Bay hotel at Short Beach the waves washed over the roadbed of the trolley line and in a short time the rails were covered with debris.

At Momanguin the waves washed far up the shore and several small boats were carried from their moorings. It was reported that two or three bath houses were demolished. On Stevens street a telephone pole also was blown over the wires with it.

In Hamden a tree fell across the roadway on Lover's lane, and Evergreen avenue and on State street Hamden, a telephone pole was blown down. Just south of the town hall on Whitney avenue half a maple tree fell to the sidewalk, Orange and Milford reported but comparatively light winds and no damage.

About this city branches were blown from trees. A window in the jewelry store of Max Goodman in South Orange street, was broken by the wind.

TWO STORY HOUSE WAS BLOWN TO THE GROUND

BAYONNE, N. J., Oct. 25.—(AP)—After an all night rain and wind storm the wind reached such velocity this afternoon that a nearly completed two story house near the shore was blown to the ground.

No one was in the building at the time.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Turks to Have 24-Hour Clock

Angora, Turkey, Oct. 25. (AP)—Another step towards western ideas was taken today when a special government commission decided in favor of the adoption of the Gregorian calendar. The 24-hour clock will also be introduced.

Town Burned in Hungary

BUDAPEST, Oct. 25. (AP)—A conflagration which has been raging since midnight Saturday threatens to destroy the entire town of Szegszard, in southwest Hungary. This town, which has a population of 14,000, is renowned for its red wine.

CAILLAUX TO PRESENT HIS FINANCIAL PLAN TODAY

PARIS, Oct. 25. (AP)—Speaking before the electors of his own department of Sarthe, at Chateau Du Loire, today, M. Caillaux declared unequivocally against a capital levy, thus setting a trest countless rumors that he had bowed to the will of the Socialists and extremists of the radical party and that his financial program, which he will submit to his cabinet colleagues tomorrow and to the cabinet meeting would embody their wishes.

The finance minister sketched in broad lines bis plans for financial rehabilation and incidently intimated that he had decided it was necessary to resort to further inflation to meet the indistent and immediate demands on the treasury. But he drew a distinction between "inflation" and his own proposal, which he termed "an operation consisting only in substituting Bank of France notes for bonds, which often pass as currency."

M. Caillaux refrained from presenting any details of his new proposals for refunding Franc debts to the United States and Great Britain, upon which he has been working, but expressed confidence that before many months a satisfactory settlement would be made, and in which France would be safeguarded should German reparations fail to meausure up to the expectations of the Dawes plan.

There was what may be taken as a direct reference to his personal crisis tomorrow, when, in the opinion of many political friends and enemies, he may be forced to resign or perhaps bring down with him the whole painleve cabinet, when he declared in conclusion that, "Like old oaks in the Sarthe, which had been struck by lightning but still remain standing, he too, stand upright for the defense of the finances of the republic and for the defense of the republica against reactionaries and against feudalism."

GROOM WAS CHLOROFORMED WHILE ON WAY TO WEDDING

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 25.—(A. P.)—A mysterious rival yesterday waylaid and chloroformed J. Lincoln Laffman as he was on his way to the Church of the Immaculate Conception at Irvington to be married to Miss Gertrude Hibbert of East Irvington, he reported to police today.

The bridal party went home after waiting for him for some time, and Laffan, later found unconscious in his automobile by three youths, was taken to Tarrytown hospital, where he was revived and told the following story:

When he left his home in his automobile to drive to the church he noticed that another car was following him. At a secluded spot the following car forced him into a ditch. Two men, one masked and armed with a pistol, jumped out.

"You will never marry that girl," the armed man declaimed, and his companion, seizing Laffan, forced a drug-soaked handkerchief under his nose. Laffan next memory was awakening in the hospital.

In Laffan's car police found a note pinned to the seat, "You will never marry the girl I love." It was signed "unknown lover."

FOUR PERSONS WERE KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 25. — A Pennsylvania railroad excursion train, bound from Philadelphia to Niagara Falls, crashed into an automobile at Milton, near here, early today, killing its four occupants, Tughman and Nevan Wagner, brothers; Floyd Hottenstein and Elwood Dye, all of Milton. The victims were hurled some distance and were dead when members of the train crew reached them.

The steps of seven of the twelve coaches in the train were torn away by the wreckage of the motor car, which was pushed and dragged nearly two blocks before the train was brought to a stop.

Hottenstein and the Wagners, who live a few miles outside of Milton, had been spending the evening in town and were taking Dye to his home when the Crash occurred. The crossing is unguarded and it is believed the driver of the car was unable to see the lights of the approaching train because of fog and rain.

EAGLE CAPTURED AFTER FIGHT IN NORTH MADISON

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 25. (AP)—Dr. Leonard C. Sanford, of this city, a former member of the fish and game commission, has directed that a large eagle captured in North Madison last Wednesday be sent to the American Museum of Natural History in New York city. The eagle of the golden head variety, was killed at the home of Austin Ackerman. It measured seven feet from wing tip to wing tip.

The eagle swooped down to raid a chicken yard and became entangled in a rambler rose bush in the front yard at the Ackerman home. Mr. Ackerman and a hired man gave battle to the huge bird and killed it after a long fight. The eagle was sent to Dr. Sanford here.

AIR MEET AT HARTFORD NEXT SUNDAY AFTERNOON

HARTFORD, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Three of the features of Hartford's fourth annual air meet that were postponed from Saturday because of weather conditions here and at other fields and which could not be presented today for the same reason, will be put on at Brainard field next Sunday afternoon, Major Talbot O. Freeman, commander of the 118th observation squadron, said tonight.

Prohibition Agent May Have Been Poisoned

James Asher, Known in Chicago as the "Lone Wolf," Died Suddenly.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25—James Asher, known as the "Lone Wolf" of the prohibition enforcement service, here, died suddenly today under circumstances which led police and enforcement officials to suspect that he may have been poisoned by bootleggers whom he had continually harassed during his three years as a federal agent.

Edward C. Yellowley, prohibition administrator, who is aiding the coroner in an investikation of the death, said Asher had several times been threatened. An autopsy will be made and the vital organs examined for possible poison traces.

About 8 o'clock this morning Asher complained to his wife, Mary, that his head ached. A little later, after taking a hot bath, he went to bed, saying he thought he was dying. A physician at his hotel managed to keep him alive for an hour and a half. He pronounced death was due immediately to cerebral hemorrhage.

Administrator Yellowley, summoned at once, was the first to advance the poisoning theory. Asher was associated with him in the east for some time before the agent came here.

During the last few weeks Asher has been working as an "under cover" man and it was upon his complaints and warrants that several federal injunctions were issued. One of the injunctions closed the place owned by a man known as "Sawed Off" who thus signed an "open letter" recently to President Coolidge, defying him to enforce the dry law here.

Asher gained considerable notice when he cleaned up Peoria, which was called by prohibition officials the wettest town in Illinois. After raids there conducted by out-of-town agents under Asher's direction, he was accused of ruthlessness and wanton destruction of proprerty of saloons and soft drink parlors.

Asher was 44 years old and has a son in the prohibition service in an Eastern City, Yellowley said.

NATIONALISTS RESIGN FROM GERMAN CABINET

BERLIN, Oct. 25—The Nationalist members of the German cabinet resigned today. They are Herr Schiele, minister of the interior, Dr. Vonschieben, minister of finance, and Dr. Albert Neuhaus, minister of economics.

Neither a cabinet nor a parliamentary crisis is expected to follow the resignation of the ministers. The situation tonight indicated that Chancellor Luther will fill the vacancies with non-partisan ministers, then appear before the Reichstag for ratification of the security pact and arbitration treaties initialed at Locarno.

On Friday the governing board of the German nationalist party passed a resolution that the results of the Locarno security conference were not acceptable. This was looked upon as foreshadowing the retirement of the nationalist members of the cabinet.

A meeting of the national party members of the reichstag was held today, but it was attended by only fifty of the 111 members. A resolution was unanimously adopted approving the decision of the three ministers to resign. This action by a section of the parliamentary group of the nationalists is taken as evidence that the reactionaries are anything but united on the question of accepting or rejecting the Locarno agreements.

SIX NEGROES KILLED AND SIX HOUSES BLOWN DOWN

UNION SPRINGS, Ala., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Six negroes were killed and six houses blown down early Sunday morning in Homer and Springhill, a few miles east of here in Barbour County. About a quarter of a mile of telephone wire was blown away. Poles were blown out of the ground and considerable crop damage done. No white people were injured or killed, it is reported.

17 Planes Blown From Moorings

Strewn Along a Five Mile Stretch of Beach Near Sollers Point, Md.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 25. (AP)—Seventeen of the 23 United States navy seaplanes here for a navy pageant tomorrow, broke from their moorings near Sollers Point in a 75-mile gale today and were strewn along a five-mile stretch of beach tonight. Another plane moored off Bay Shore Park, tore free and disappeared.

The 17 planes mentioned in the information received here, were part of a squadron of 24 sent from Hampton Roads in connection with the Schneider cup races, including six torpedo and bombing machines, ten scouting and one staff plane. All were at anchor off Sollers Point when the storm broke, sweeping them from their moorings onto the beach.

Seven of the derelict planes were total wrecks when found. Hopes were held out that the other ten might be partially salvaged. Commander T. G. Ellison, in charge of the squadron, said only the six which held their anchors would be able to take part in the pageant, which is scedulued to precede the Schneider cup race at Bay Shore Park. Two of three pursuit planes moored at Bay Shore Park rode out the storm and were safe tonight. No report had been received regarding the whereabouts of the third. It pitched out of sight on the bay, riding a high running sea.

None of the planes were occupied during the gale. They were moored with 500-pound anchors and tore from theri moorings one by one. All of the Sollers Point escapes eventually were deposited on the beach. At Bay Shore there were no boats of sufficient speed or seaworthiness to pursue the plane which tore free there. Boats from the U. S. S. Shawmut, moored here for the Schneider races were rounding up the planes tonight.

SAYBROOK VALLEY BUS SOLD TO THE SHORE LINE RAILWAY

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 25. (AP)—The Saybrook valley bus line was sold today to the Shore Haven Shore Line Railway for $22,000. Final papers will be drawn up tomorrow between John Behan of this city, and representatives of the Shore Line road. The deal was closed late last night a few hours before a 30-day option expired.

The line has been operated by Behan for ten years and he will retain the waiting room here and will rent it to the new owners. The sale includes a franchise which runs indefinitely and rolling stock consisting of six busses.

The territory covered includes all that part of Middlesex county between Middletown and Saybrook, with subsidiary line running from Moodus and connecting with the valley line at East Haddam. The valley line will connect at Saybrook with the buses now conning from New Haven to New London.

SEARCHING FOR MISSING NEW LONDON ENGINEER

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 25. (AP) — Search was begun in this vicinity today for Kenneth Watrous, 46, a government engineer of New London, who disappeared yesterday at Glastonbury, where boats of the Merritt, Chapman and Scott corporation, of New London, are engaged in dredging a channel. Watrous was attached to the government survey office at Providence, R. I., and was directing the work for the government. It is believed he was drowned.

Twice in the past, friends say, Watrous had suffered nervous breakdowns from over-study.

PEACE OF WORLD OR WAR MAY HANG ON MEETING NOW BEING HELD IN PEKING

(Editor's Note—Will the bolsheviki capture the mind of China? The great oriental republic seethes with hatred of the foreigner and the battle is on to determine whether her millions will march with the white civilization of Europe and America, or with the Red revolutionists of Moscow. The approach of trouble in the east is so imminent and the issues so momentous that Drew Pearson a newspaper correspondent widely informed on far eastern affairs, has been sent to China. He has been in all parts of the republic, and has written for this newspaper six articles, telling what is going on there as the representatives of the Powers sit down to their conference today. The first of these articles appears today. The others will follow daily.)

By DREW PEARSON

PEKING, China.—When the delegates of the Great Powers sit down with China in this city on October 26 at the Customs Conference, they will probably settle down to a long-drawn out haggle over tariff increases on this petty article and that, while the rest of the world forgets there is a Customs Conference and turn to more interesting things. But nevertheless at this conference will be decided whether or not China remains a friend to the western world, or becomes a Communist disciple of Soviet Russia, and finally, whether or not there is to be a great color war between the whites and the yellows of the Pacific.

Having made this statement, I am probably branded as a scare-monger news-gatherer in search of sensations. But let me produce the evidence.

China is more united than at any time in its history, not by nets of railroads, nor by the same methods of government, the same rulers, nor the same language. But it is united by one definite spirit that is stronger than any material thing, and that spirit is the will to rid the country of foreign domination, and even more than that. It is united by hatred of the foreigner.

This hatred of the foreigner will not cause a color war today, nor tomorrow, nor, in 20 years. It may in 50, for China has learned all too well the lesson that she cannot oppose the battleships and armored tanks of the western world. But this color war will come, unless the conciliatory and helpful hand of the western world heads it off, because the seeds of hate have been planted in the younger generation—the students who will be the rulers of their country tomorrow.

A Soviet Fruit

This hatred of the foreigner sweeping over China today was fanned into flame by Soviet propaganda. But Soviet propoganda would have been powerless had not the situation favored it. In the first place remember that China became a republic over night and in ten turbulent years has tried to swallow all the new doctrines of democracy and economics which other countries have not yet absorbed in one hundred years. In the second place, remember that the foreigners living in China have been rather conservative autocrats who tried desperately to check this tide of change instead of guiding it. Into these two opposite-turning wheels, the Bolshevikf threw a monkey-wrench. The result has been chaos.

Now let me give a picture of how this chaos effects the foreigner here in the city of Peking. The Chinese employees in the British Legation are on strike. If the dozen or so American employees at the British embassy in Washington went on strike, it would be hard to imagine any serious consequence. But the British Lexation in Peking employed 300 Chinese. The legation is enclosed by a huge wall capable of withstanding siege, and to be entirely self-supporting, has its own water supply and electricity. Before the Chinese walked out, which they did at three in the morning, they put the water pumps out of order, damaged the dynamos and stole half the electric light bulbs so that the lexation, for a short time, was without light or water. In a city like Peking,

BULGARIAN VILLAGES WERE BOMBARDED BY THE GREEKS

Greek Troops Continue to Occupy Bulgar Territory and Are Manifesting No Intention of Retiring—League of Nations Council is to Meet in Paris This Afternoon—League Leaders Assert That the League "Will Stand No Nonsense From the Balkan States."

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 25—(A. P.)—Bulgarian official agency reports that Greek artillery today bombarded the villages of Pipernitza and Petrovo, about 15 miles north of emirhissar, killing and wounding a number of persons.

Greek troops, it is declared, continue to occupy Bulgar territory and are manifesting no intention of retiring.

An official bulletin from Petrich says: "The Greeks resumed artillery practice at 10 o'clock this morning, six civilians, three men, two women and a child were killed."

The Bulletin announces that representatives of all the foreign legations have arrived at Petrich to investigate the situation thoroughly, notably the number of dead, and that an international commission expected.

News that the bombardment had been resumed by the Greeks on the second day after M. Briand's invitation to submit the differences to the league of nations and his warning to abstain from hostilities stirred the Bulgarian population to indignation.

"But," said M. Kaltoff, the foreign minister to the correspondent of the Associated Press, "we will not permit ourselves to be carried off our feet by any act of the enemy; we will proceed in an orderly manner, in strict compliance with the rules of the league of nations.

"Our soldiers now on the way to Petrich are instructed to refrain from replying to Greek provocation, unless obliged to do so in self-defense. It is quite untrue that we are reinforcing our troops with Comitadjis. Only uniformed men are included in our armed forces."

Public feeling is becoming more and more aroused against the action taken by Greece. It was voiced by Premier Tsankoff in a statement tonight: "Greece thought that because we were completely disarmed her demand for the punishment of our frontier guards and the payment of eight million drachmas, would be met at once. But we refuse to do this unless the conscience of the world, operating through the league, finds us guilty. If the league council finds the Greeks guilty then let them suffer the consequences.

"The fact that Greece is armed to the teeth, does not confer upon her the right to hector us."

The bulletin of the operations received this morning does not record any sign on the part of the Greeks to retire from any of the positions occupied by them on the Bulgarian side of the frontier.

WILL STAND NO NONSENSE FROM THE BALKAN STATES

PARIS, Oct. 25—(A. P.)—An overwhelming peace impetus having been injected into Europe generally by the Locarno security agreements, the council of the league of nations which meets in Paris at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in special session is determined, as league leaders said tonight, "to stand no nonsense from the Balkan states." Furthermore, the council intends to prevent new military conflicts from wrecking Europe's new regrime of European co-operation.

Hope that the council can regulate th eGreco-Bulgarian outbreak is to be found in the fact that both Bulgarian and Greece have expressed their willingness to abide by the council's decision, and that Greece in a formal note to the league of nations today virtually agreed to withdraw her troops from the frontier provided Bulgaria does the same.

Should both parties to the dispute retire to their respective frontiers, the problem from a league standpoint becomes different, for Bulgaria appealed to the league on the ground that Greece had invaded her territory. If mutual invasions ceases to exist, either Bulgaria or Greece must ask the council to mediate on the causes of the conflict and bring in a solution calculated to prevent from outbreaks.

It is planned tonight that the council shall first meet in private session, after which there will be a public sitting to hear explanations from both Bulgarian and Greek representatives. The council will adjourn until Tuesday to consider the statements.

Should either party insist on a council inquiry to determine the responsibility for the outbreak, the council may vote to send a special commission to the Macedonian frontier to make an investigation.

The Greco-Bulgarian trouble is regarded in league circles as all the more unfortunate and untimely as hopes were entertained the Balkans would follow the greater powers of Europein constructing a Balkan security pact, on which BGreece had been taking the initiative and which would include Greece, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Rumania and possibly also Turkey.

Doubtless efforts will be made not only to settle the new frontier conflict but to encourage the creation of a Balkan pact, rendering similar disputes unlikely.

GREEKS ARE USING THEIR BIGGUNS ON PETRICH

SVETI KRATCH, Bulgarian frontier, Oct. 25—(A. P.)—Despite the hope that through the league of nations Greece and Bulgarian would suspend hostilities, the Greeks on the heights over Petrich continued to fire their big guns all yesterday and far into the night, and all night long the roads were choked with refugees from occupied villages hurrying northward away from the relentless shells.

In the meantime, fleeing Bulgarians reported, their pursuers were so anxious to transport the food supplies they had captured to Greek soil that every movable vehicle was commandeered, and in some cases oxen were hitched to wagons by thin ropes and even strings, in the absence of harness.

Another story the refugees tell, though it is not confirmed, is that Greek guns menacing the Struma valley were masked with white flags.

Last night's bombardment spared Petrich heavy damage, the fire of the Greek cannon being diverted largely to neighboring villages, several Bulgar posts were set afire, but the troops commanders declared they they in no case returned the shots.

Colonel Stoinoff, commander at Petrich, who retreated to Sveti Kratch under artillery fire, said that for several days before Oct. 19—the date of the frontier incident—the Greek commanders had been moving troops to the front.

"Now," he added, "there are three divisions of Greeks on our front. What was the need for such heavy armament for simple frontier duty? It is my conclusion that the Greek commanders had contemplated just such operations as are now developing.

"We sent to each division three successive invitations for a parley. Each time our officers kept the appointment; each time the Greeks failed to respond. We have not replied to their gunfire, and we could not, because we haven't a single piece of artillery here."

FIGHTING CONTINUES ON THE BULGARIAN FRONT

PARIS, Oct. 25—(A. P.)—Fighting continued on the Bulgarian front today at the very moment members of the league of nations council were hastening to Paris for an extraordinary meeting calculated to extinguish the new Balkan flame.

From Sofia came word that two Bulgar towns, hitherto untouched—Pipernitza and Petrovo—had been subjected to a bombardment by Greek troops during the day.

An official Greek statement issued at Athens declared that the Bulgars had occupied Greek territory in the neighborhood of Demkirkawour (Demirkapu?) refusing to retire.

Admiral Hadjikiriakos, acting foreign minister, in a telegram to the secretariat of the league, promised that the Greek forces would retire "when the last Bulgarian soldier is withdrawn from Greek soil."

While contradictory statements are coming out of Sofia and Athens with consistent rapidity, the neighboring states display considerable alarm and also a determination in no case to be drawn into the row. Rumania and Czecho-Slovakia have both announced their neutrality, and Belgrade has given the strictest orders to prevent invasion of its territory by the belligerents where the three states meet.

A new element was injected into the situation by the report that the Stamboulisky Agrarian leaderh Athanasoff and Stojanoff had arrived at the Bulgarian frontier at Zaribrod with the intention of again collecting their bands to harass the government while its hands are full dealing with the Greeks.

From Belgrade it was reported that fifteen trainloads of troops left Sofia yesterday for the front, and with them numerous bands of Comitadjis (irregulars). Sofia, however denies that there are any number of Comitadjis available and explains that only one band has gone forward, but instructed under no circumstances to open fire unless absolutely necessary.

To any one actually out of hearing of the sunfire, the position is very hard to determine, in view of the conflicting statements from the opposing sides. Each asserts that the other started the trouble when firing began Oct. 19, and the Greeks in an official statement asserted that the first shot fired was by Bulgarians, who killed a Greek sentry. His body, the statement avows, was recovered two hours later on Greek soil.

On the other hand, the Bulgarians reiterate their first allegation that Greeks attacked a Bulgar post without provocation, and today advanced a further claim that on Saturday the Greeks planted white flags all along theinr front, sumulating preparation to retire, and then opened a concentrated fire on the Elwuonowo railway station, the most westerly point attacked thus far.

COMMANDER REPORTS SNIPING OF GREEK FORCES

ATHENS, Oct. 25. (AP)—The commander of the Greek troops in Macedonia advises the government that Bulgarian comitadjis have been sniping Greek forces in the occupied zone, the Greeks dispersed Bulgarian detachments who appeared before the village of Bribetshani.

Announcement is made that orders have been issued to the Greek troops to withdraw to their original positions on the Greek side of the frontier as soon as the Bulgarians have evacuated the Greek territory they still occupy.

A semi-official communique contridicts the rumor from Bulgarian sources that Greek soldiers have massacred Bulgarian prisoners. It asserts that the fe wprisoners taken have been sent to Saloniki where they are being well treated.

DISASTER CAUSED BY THE WIND IN PERSIAN GULF

KARACHI, British India, Oct. 25. (AP)—Brief details of the disaster caused by a cyclonic storm in the Persian Gulf confirm the early reports of great loss of life and the destruction of many small vessels.

COAST GUARD IN STATE OF WAR AGAINST RUM SHIPS

BOSTON, Oct. 25. (AP)—In an appeal for prohibition law observance here today, Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the United States Coast Guard, declared that his service was "virtually in a state of war against the rum ships." At a mass meeting in Tremont Temple he told of instances where rum runners had attempted to ram destroyers on patrol boats. The smuggling of rum on the northern Atlantic seaboard, he said, had been tremendously cut since last spring.

WILLIMANTIC

While crossing Union street at a point opposite the Wood Smoke shop Saturday noon, Herbert G. Waldo of Mansfield Depot was struck by a Ford sedan driven by William A. Costello, of this city. The man was dragged a distance of 20 feet, until the car came to a stop on the sidewalk in front of the property of Kilbourey Brothers, with Mr. Waldo underneath. The sedan was raised from the sidewalk in order to allow Mr. Waldo to extricate himself. Mr. Waldo, who complained of a painful shoulder injury, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where Dr. E. J. Ottenheimer found that his injuries were not serious. The accident was witnessed by a large crowd that was of the opinion that Mr. Costell might have brought his car to a stop sooner than he did, for it was traveling at a moderate rate of speed.

The funeral of Mrs. Louise E. Prue was held Saturday morning from her home, 98 South street, and was largely attended. The celebrant of the solemn mass of requiem at St. Mary's church at nine o'clock was Rev. E. L. Mathieu, the deacon was Rev. H. C. Belec and the sub-deacon, Rev. J. J. Papillon. Mrs. M. J. Farrell was at the organ during the services and the requiem quartet of the St. Cecelia choir, Mrs. Arthur Marrotte, Mrs. Marceline Goodwin, Mrs. Lodia Fortier, Joseph Vegiard and Joseph F. Gaudreau, director, sang the mass. At the offertory, Mrs. Spencer of Meriden, formerly of this city sang "Pie Jesu" and as a recessional, "Face to Face." The flower bearer was Arthur Bergeron Jr. The bearers were Thomas Mullen, George Tormey, George H. Millerd Jr., John A. McKenna, Conrad Dubeau and John Healy, all connected with the Prudential Insurance company, by which the husband of Mrs. Prue is employed. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Father Mathieu, assisted in the responses by Rev. Fathers Belec and Papillon. There were beautiful floral forms.

JAMES FARRELL TRIPPED, FALLING TO HIS DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 25—James Farrell, 53, who was found dead at the foot of the stairs on the first floor of his home, 81 Park street, late Saturday forenoon, probably died from suffocation. This was after he had been rendered unconscious by a fall down the stairway, in the opinion of Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason who conducted an investigation. According to Medical Examiner Mason, Mr. Farrell had been dead at least twenty-four hours, which would tend to indicate that the accident occurred Thursday night, or early Friday morning.

Mr. Farrell, who was well-known throughout the city was of a jovial nature. He leaves a daughter, Miss Frances Farrell a student nurse, at New Haven, and two brothers, Joseph P. Farrell of the Norwich police force and William J. Farrell of Denver, Col. He was a nitve of the town of Killingly, but had been a resident of this city for many years. He was the son of James G. and Catherine Reardon Farrell. He was a carpenter by occupation and had been in the employ of the American Thread company at the time of the strike.

Saturday morning, Police Chief Allan McArthur was called to the Farrell home as Mr. Farrell had not been seen at his home Friday. Gaining an entrance through a window of the bath room on the ground floor, the chief found the lifeless body, attired in trousers and shirt pitched forward to the bottom of the stairs, the two legs resting on the two lower steps. The last seen of Mr. Farrell alive was Thursday evening when he returned from his work, called on his next door neighbor, Mrs. Carl V. Enander, and paid his monthly rent, remarking that he was in a hurry as he had an important engagement. An examination of the stairway disclosed the fact that a section of the carpet on the fourth step from the top was torn, which fact led to the belief that Mr. Farrell tripped and was flung headlong down the stairs.

WILLIAM HORRIGAN'S DEATH DUE TO SUICIDE BY GAS

MYSTIC

The Garden club's illustrated lecture was a success, many availing themselves of the opportunity of seeing the beautiful pictures and hearing about them. This closes the meetings for the season. Appreciation is due Mrs. L. P. Allyn, the president, for getting the club formed.

Thirty members of Mystic grange attended Avopdale grange meeting on Thursday night. All speak highly of the address given by C. M. Gardner of Springfield, Mass., high priest Demeter.

The fish markets have a good supply of eels for this time of year and they seem to sell readily.

Those attending the state W. C. T. U. meeting in Middletown returned home Saturday afternoon. According to the report New London county has 326 members out of the total of 4005. Hartford has 831, and New Haven 823, only eight making the difference.

Mrs. William E. Congdon and her uncle, Mr. Miller, stopped on their way from Boston to Philadelphia and visited at Dr. Congdon's Thursday.

Miss Edith Morrill has returned to New York, after spending the summer here.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Johnson, and daughter, Ethel and Miss Ida Maynard have returned from a motor trip to Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Denison of Westerly, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood of Norwich, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Lathrop and Miss Jennie Denison.

A party of five from Bridgeport visited over the week-end at Wallace Phillips'.

A. C. Latham camp, Sons of Veterans is to meet Tuesday evening.

Thirty members of Mystic grange attended neighbors' night at North Stonington Friday.

Mrs. Mabel Kaye Larabee, well known as a former resident of Mystic was soloist at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning. The pastor preached on "The Christian Calling." Sunday school was at 11:15 and Young Peoples' service at 6:30; at 7:30 p. m., there was a special harvest home service which Mystic grange attended in a body. Trophy Morn was the soloist and the pastor preached.

Plans for a big Christmas bazaar at the Methodis church are going forward. Special features will be an opening address by a prominent citizen, the first day, and a musical program the second day.

Rev. Herbert Stanley Brown commenced his labors with the Mystic Congregational church June 13, 1886, after being married in New York June 3, 1886 by Rev. Timothy Dwight D. D. assisted by Rev. S. H. Bray, to Miss Emma C. Hall. His ordination to the gospel ministry and his installation in the pastorate of the church was on June 23, 1886. The above is from Wheelers history of Stonington. The church was organized on the 30th of January 1653 with 37 members from the First Church of Stonington. Rev. H. S. Brown was pastor from June 1886 until August 11, 1890. Forty years ago Mystic had a Chautauqua circle; it met with Miss Eliza Landers. The account reads: The interest and attendance upon the meetings of the circle has increased and quickened with the year's increasing growth and beauty. The program presented was unique and merits commendation. The readings were given by Mrs. Ida W. Bingham and Rev. O. D. Sherman. Mrs. Champlin presented a very spicy paper on what the bird's songs brought to mind of the fond memories of past years; going back to childhood's days, as she and her mates rummaged in the attic of grandfather's dwelling, and so through the bright sunny hours of youth and mature age. Miss Sarah Denison read Letters from Above. The music was furnished by two choice voices of Mystic, Everett Noyes and Miss Eliza Landers; also one piece by Mrs. Walter Price of Westerly which was excellent. The next meeting will be at Dea. J. A. Pathbun's, Ashby street. This circle met once in two weeks and all those mentioned except two have passed on.

SISTER, WHO IS 96 GOES TO PARTY OF ONE 100

(Special to The Bulletin)

MYSTIC, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Uranah B. Mattison and daughter, Mrs. Fannie M. Kent, of 24 Jackson street, went to Providence in an automobile Friday. Mrs. Matison is in her 96th year and went to be at the celebration when her sister, Mrs. Amy Baker, celebrated her 100th birthday Saturday. A party was given for her. A large cake with 100 candles was made for the event. It is rare that two sisters live to such an age and in full possession of their faculties. Mrs. Mattison's sight is impaired, but she has excellent hearing and listens every Sunday to a sermon over the radio and can repeat a good portion of it afterward. She enjoys callers and appreciates every kindness shown her. She has the love and devotion of her daughter, who looks after her comfort in every way.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

No aeroplane came from Hartford to Danielson Sunday in that development service which likely will mean an emergency landing field near Danielson for the Colonial Air Lines, which is to carry United States mails between Boston and New York, in a transcontinental mail carrying arrangement. The day was not exactly right for aeroplane flights, in fact, it was exactly wrong.

Nevertheless, there is something to be said about the plans for a landing field near Danielson. Warden Walter Anderson suggested Sunday that the borough farm, at the southern boundary of the borough, has a field that may be developed as an emergency landing places for aeroplanes. There is a field in which a clear space 3500 feet in length and probably half as wide can be made suitable for the purposes of the planes by no too great expenditure of time and money.

The borough farm as a landing place for planes is ideal, as to location. It is not distant from Danielson center. It is bordered in the west by the Quinebaug river a fine marker for flyers looking down from on high. It is on the direct line of flyers who will be in the Boston-New York air service.

Strange as it may seem, few have ever thought of the borough farm as a possible site for planes to land. Warden Anderson has given close attention to the proposal of having an emergency landing field in Danielson since the matter was first broached, and to him may be given the credit for suggesting the borough farm site.

G. E. Parsons, who was to have flown here from Hartford Sunday had weather conditions been favorable, is expected to fly here at the first favorable opportunity. He will be met by a committee of which Warden Anderson is the head, be shown the proposed five flying field at the borough farm and any other available sites he elects to inspect.

Sunday here was a wild day for wild people—if you feel that way about it. And if you do not—well, it was just a wild day! There are arrangements under which the wild people can be left out and the weather considered on its own.

There were times during Sunday, especially after one o'clock in the afternoon, when the weather man was on a rampage. He had the wind fluctuating between the southeast and south and the southwest—and rain pelting against window panes as it only when nature gets a bit rough. No rainstorm of such severity has been experienced here for a long time. And that, too, applies to all this section of eastern Connecticut.

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, funeral services for Mrs. Willard S. Danielson were conducted at the home on Hutchins street by Rev. Roger C. Stimson of the Methodist church. During the services Miss Eleathes Sheldon of East Killingly sang We Would See Jesus. Miss Amelia Hutchins was the accompanist. The bearers were Fred Case of Worcester, Gilbert Perry of Putnam, Bradford Danielson of Moosup, James Danielson, Clifford H. Stockwesther and Burdette C. Hopkins of Danielson. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Louise Peloquin of Connecticut Village, in the northern section of Danielson, was injured, just before 8 o'clock Saturday evening, when she was struck and knocked down by a car driven by Edward Ray of Elmville. The accident happened in Main street opposite the Cyr building. The injured woman sustained a severe injury to her ankle, possibly a break, also shock and bruises. She was assisted into the shoe department of the Church company store in the Cyr building, where Miss Nellie Delaney, nurse at the Connecticut mills, happened to be at the time. Miss Delaney gave the injured woman attention. Dr. W. H. Judson was summoned and after an examination, advised that Mrs. Peloquin, who is about 32, be taken to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam that X-ray photographs be taken to definitely establish the nature of the injuries.

Mr. Ray, driver of the car that figured on the accident was greatly distressed over the affair, having done everything possible to avoid striking Mrs. Peloquin, who was crossing from the store of F. E. Bilgood, on the west side of the street, to the Mdme. Cyr store, in the Cyr building, when the accident happened.

You can take your choice of these theories. Nothing in favor of any of them is to be said here. At about 12.30 Sunday morning—which would be not a great time after midnight Saturday —sundry and various persons in their right minds and otherwise aver they heard a series of explosions and flashes of light—to the north of Danielson. Some of these observers say there was an earth tremor (hope this escapes Oneco's subtle weathe 'prophet). Efforts to trace out the story on Sunday amounted to little or nothing. Some people said they were awakened from sleep by the alleged explosions. Others, who were wide awake, say the shocks were heavy it is too much to announce that the disturbances were an earthquake. The fact is, no one here could be found to give an adequate and satisfying account of the disturbances. Anyway it was a poor time of night to stage any such unusual demonstration. At least in Danielson where people, as a rule, retire at seasonable hours.

The Baptist Crusaders are to hold their belated picnic Tuesday evening at the Gallup farm, at the head of Reynolds street. They are to assemble at the church at 6.30 and hike to the fact, which is about a mile out, on the Providence highway. At the farm there is to be a husking bee and an oyster supper. (There's a program that should get every Crusader out!) If the invitation were open to the public, barns and barns full of corn would be husked, and oceans of oyster stew consumed. But this affair is for the Crusaders.

The Killingly Trust company has had a prosperous year. This is proved because it cuts a melon and pays 10 per cent extra to stockholders. The Killingly Trust Company was organized and commenced business the latter part of October 1914. Its capital was $25,000 and paid in surplus $2,500. By good management of its officers and board of directors it now has a capital and surplus of $55,000 or just double the amount originally paid in by its stockholders and in addition has paid regular dividends each year, inasmuch as the stockholders originally paid in a surplus of $2,500 the directors have now voted to return this amount and have declared a 10 per cent. distribution from surplus, after the payment of which the bank will have a capital of $25,000, surplus earned of $25,000, undivided profits earned in excess of $2,500. The Killingly Trust company since its organization has been closely affiliated with the Windham County National bank, one of eastern Connecticut's most successful banking institutions, and is managed by the following: William A. Gaston, president; Nathan D. Prince, vice president; Francis E. Storer, secretary and treasurer; Frank J. G. Bailey, assistant secretary and treasurer. The board of directors includes the above, with the addition of A. Don Bitgood, Obadiah Butler, Arthur B. Lapsley, Luther Pilling, William H. Putnam, Frederic E. Snow, Charles A. Tillinghast, and Nathaniel G. Williams.

Speaking of automobile traffic, Danielson, realized at the week end that it was on a main line. One reads, of course, of areas where so many automobiles roll along every hour that newspaper people write about it. But one usually imagines that this can happen only in some other place than where one lives. It appears that Danielson has been projected into the traffic zone.

If one who stays in Danielson a great deal and knows little of modern traffic jams in places where they are supposed to happen can be listened to, Danielson had a jazz of a time Saturday and Sunday, not to forget Friday evening.

It would appear that about every car headed for the Yale-Brown football game at Providence went through this town. Of course every car did nothing of the kind. There were three cars from Pawtucket, two from Boston and five or six more from other parts of the United States headed for Andrews field, but you never could make anyone around here (Danielson) believe that.

There was a flash, swish, "I'm gone" continuity of traffic over the week end —going to and coming from the game. In some parts of this illustrious country Rolls Royces, Packards, Cadillacs, Lincolns and other superlative cars must cost about 15 cents each, or the equivalent thereof, in cash, to people who have lots of it and don't care what they do with it. A Ford in that gang—pardon, the expression, would be just out of place. And the same might be said of Hudsons, Clevelands and 'steen other makes of cars.

These football patrons seem to be rich in everything, including raccoon coats. They had a carload of liquor, too, if Danielson people who saw the Yale-Brown game and spent idle moments observing the people in the stands are to be believed—and they are.

Well, Danielson has a few big days every year if "big" days offer nothing better than watching the elect going somewhere while the majority here stay at home—and may money that might be spent very foolishly.

PUTNAM

Guy Howard of Webster, Mass., is the champion among the men and Mrs. V. T. Anderson of Danielson, is the woman champion for the 1925 season at the Putnam Country club. E. CONN. MILLS ASS'N. TO HAVE FINE PROGRAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Oct. 25—Walter N. King, officer manager of the Bleachmont Worsted company of this city, who, with Prentice W. Chase, has been named a committee to arrange for the annual meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association Wednesday, November 11, says that they are planning an exceptionally fine program. At a recent meeting of the executive committee, a nominating committee consisting of Fred P. King of Goodyear, George Robertson of Danielson, Alfred Boutilier of Occum, Fred Taylor of Danielson and Charles A. Anderson of Danielson was appointed to draw up a slate for the approval of the meeting.

The association is in good financial condition, according to the report of Prentice W. Chase, secretary and treasurer, Mr. Chase and Walter King of Putnam, who were appointed to make arrangements for the annual meeting, were instructed to have something good in the way of refreshments. Mr. Chase told the executive meeting that every account in connection with the textile products exhibit at Danielson last year had been closed and everything was ready to be turned over to the incoming officers, without any unfinished business.

NOANK

Mr. Trask, of Boston, is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzpatrick.

Rev. J. S. Russell of Shelton, supplied the pulpit of the Noank Baptist Sunday.

Karl Ebbets of New York is spending a few days with his parents Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ebbetts.

Neil Morrison and Elbert Rathburn who motored to Amherst, Mass., for the week-end, witnessed the football game.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Douglass entertained friends from Hartford recently.

William Tourjee has returned from New York.

The D. of A. have planned two social events, one being a Hallowe'en social the other a whist.

Harry Douglas of the village received word Friday of the sudden death of his brother, William, of New London who died apparently in his sleep, from heart disease. Besides his widow who was Winnie Cady of Mystic, he is survived by two brothers, Alfred of Station 11, Waterford, Harry, of Noank, and by five sisters, Mrs. Ezra Daball, Mrs. Henry Meyers, Mrs. Benjamin Cottrell and Mrs. Herman Konken of New London and Mrs. Stephen Austin, of Mystic.

Mrs. John Sawyer entertained the members of the Woman's Home Missionary society at her home. After the business meeting refreshments were served.

Miss Ida Thompson has returned to New Haven after a visit with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. L. Ashcroft.

Rev. J. Garfield Sallas preached on the "Christians Calling" at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 2:15. In this service there was an opportunity for children to be baptized, also the reception of new members. The Young Peoples Service was held at 7:30.

THOMPSON

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Perkins, of Bridgewater Corners, Vt., and Mr. and Mrs. Jarod Standish and sons Paul and James of Wethersfield, were recent guests at H. P. Amidon's.

The Theft Detecting society had an oyster supper at the Vernon Stiles Inn, Thursday.

Sunday the 25th was rally Sunday, the subject of the pastor's discourse "God's call for the lost child."

JEWETT CITY

The funeral of Mrs. Raymond P. Cheney was held at the Congregational church Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. G. Keene Gray officiated, the service being very brief. Miss Irene Stewart was at the organ. The beautiful flowers, arranged by Mrs. F. E. Robinson and Mrs. J. T. Stewart were silent tokens of the great regard in which Mrs. Cheney was held. During her illness the flowers sent her were her greatest comfort and pleasure. Burial was in Leonard cemetery. The bearers were Enoch B. Cheney, Wallace H. Payne, Norman B. Parkhurst and William T. Crumb. The Eastern Star burial service was used, conducted by the Worthy Matron Mrs. James G. Blair. Relatives and friends were present from Walpole, Mass., Mt. Vernon, N. Y., Wells, Vt., Hanover, N. H., Jamaica, Vt., New London, Mystic and Moosup.

Officers Henry Vegiard and Harvey Maynard and Deputy Sheriff John Dolan made a raid at Rose Bahuke's place on Mechanic street Friday night. They found thirty-four quarts of Gordon dry gin, six quarts of Old Crow whiskey, one can of alcohol, four cases of home brew, glasses and funnel The woman was tried in Judge John T. Barry's town court and was fined $200 on two counts, which amounted to $447. She was also given three months in jail which latter sentence was suspended for one year. She paid the fine. A few more raids like that would clean up the town debt!

Watch for Jewett City Hardware Store Aluminum sale, Oct. 30. — Adv.

The high wind Sunday put the electric light system out of commission for a time. Supt. Hiscox and his men found that a fallen tree in front of Ernest L. French's home had ripped down the wires. They repaired that and then a tree fell in front of Ashland Boarding House and tore down the wires. Then a street light fixture at the entrance to Ashland club grounds blew down. On Green avenue a set of primary fuse plugs blew out. By eight o'clock the street lights were in working order, but from Ashland Bridge to Pleasant View, the damage had to wait for daylight to be repaired.

Ladies' Night was observed by the Men's class of the M. E. church, with the members of the Bethel and Voluntown churches, at the home of Ransom H. Young in Bethel, the invitation coming through P. J. Gustafson, Mrs. Young's father. The trip was made by automobiles loaned by members of the church. Between seventy and seventy-five relished a well prepared supper of baked beans, cold pork, cold ham, pickles, potato salad, cabbage salad with jellied tomato, white bread, pumpkin and mince pie, cake and coffee.

After supper the company met in the living room where the regular business of the class was held, the president in the chair. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. J. W. Carter.

After business was transacted the meeting was turned over to Irving Thornton who acted as toastmaster. The following program was given: Group singing; reading, Mrs. Ella Geer, "Will Then I'm Four'n" and "Jessica at Boarding School"; group singing; song, quartet, "Memories of Galilee" and "I Know Whom I Have Believed;" reading, Frank Mell, "The Orthodox Team" and "The House by the Road." At this time several members were called upon and expressed their thanks for the fine supper and program of the evening. Song, quartet, "Light is Breaking"; reading, Geo. Thornton, "Let Me Walk With the Crowds in the Road"; song, Rev. J. W. Carter, "Ole Black Joe;" group singing. The social part was concluded with the singing of "America" by the entire group.

The meeting was turned over to the president who asked that the "Rugged Cross" be sung before the class song. This was followed by the class song "God be with You Till We meet Again." Benediction was pronounced by Rev. A. H Clement. A rising vote of thanks was given the host and hostess for their splendid hospitality, all

The Stream of Life

The stream of life flows from an unseen source
Through varied scenes along mysterious ways;
Turning the wheels of service in its course
Or beautifying earth with hymns of praise.

The simple flower that blossoms in the light,
The gloomy shadows from the clouded sky,
The vital stream creates for pure delight
Or bears upon its breast while gliding by.

From the vast ocean of unconsciousness
The rising mist is driven to corridors
Is stormy rain or dews of tenderness
And fall somewhere into the lap of Time.

The mystic flow of Life's experiences
Grows as evolving cycles onward roll
Until at last is born the blessed sense
That brings to consciousness the living soul.

—By REV. WILLIAM WARE LOCKE

The Armorer's Song

Let hammer on anvil ring,
And the forge fire brightly shine;
Let war rage still,
While I work with a will
At this peaceful trade of mine,
I honor the man who shakes it;
The sword is a weapon to conquer fields
But naught is the lad who the bloody sword wields
Compared to the lad who makes it.
Clang! Clang! Clang!
Then huzzah for the anvil, the forge and the sledge!
Huzzah for the sparks that fly!
If I had a cup I would straightway pledge
The armorer—that is I!

Let others of glory sing
As they struggle in glory's quest,
Let them wave their brands
In their mailed hands,
While the sword smites shield and crest,
Oh, war is trade I have not essayed,
Though goodliest fame attends it,
I sing of the one who, when fight is done
Takes every good sword and mends it.

Clang! Clang! Clang!
Then huzzah for the valiant, the squire or the knight,
Who loveth the battle-cry!
But here's to the swordsman that maketh them fight,
The armorer—that is I!

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Give me a pound of flapper's delight.
What's flapper's delight?
Dates.—The Progressive Grocer.

I saw your husband yesterday, but he didn't see me.
I know. He told me.—Klods Hans, Copenhagen.

He—How do you put up with your husband?
She—At all the cheapest hotels.—Penn. State Froth.

Alfred—That young bride next door worships her husband, doesn't she?
Ethel—Well, she certainly places burnt offerings before him at every meal. — Royal Magazine.

A '24 Graduate—Well, Church, what are you doing now?
Chuck Sister—I have a position in my father's office.
The Same '24 Graduate—I'm not working either.—Denver University Parakeet.

A young deer came through the fields at Whittier's Corner, N. H., and ran into the street. It attempted to leap over a passing touring car, its hind feet going through the top. As it fell, it was hit by a car coming the other way and was thrown against a big tree, the blow killing it.

An old manuscript discovered in the archives of the Leningrad library is said by the Academy of Science to be the original manuscript of the famous oriental tales, A Thousand and One Nights. As early as the fifteenth century it was believed that this manuscript had been destroyed. This rare find has now been incorporated in the Russian National Museum, of Moscow.

The steamer Fenix, which, it was asserted, was the oldest in the world in active service, recently was destroyed by fire at Koepig, Sweden. Built in 1848 at Motala wharf, the boat had been making regular trips between Koepig and Stockholm. Since its launching it had been renamed several times and was rebuilt in 1900. At the time of its destruction there were sixteen passengers besides the crew aboard, all of whom escaped.

The Prague Czecho-Slovakia Iron and Steel Works is reported to have made successful tests of a method for making coke from low-grade coal with equipment supplied by the German Kruppa. Previously it has been impossible to make coke from the coal found in the region of Kladno where the firm is located, owing to the fact that the coal crumbled to dust during the coking process. The new method is said to make possible the production of coke from low-grade coal and also from lignite.

When the manager of an Allentown (Pa.) moving picture inserted an advertisement in a paper announcing that every child with a horseshoe would be admitted to one afternoon's performance he misjudged the horse population of the city. Instead of about 200 youngsters appearing with the "luck charm," 4,000 stormed the theater. Many of the horseshoes were new, and go— horseshoeing establishments were obliged to lay in a new stock before they were able to continue in business.

THE PRESIDENT ON HOME LIFE

Speaking before the international convention of the Y. M. C. A. at Washington President Coolidge dwelt upon the training of youth and bore down heavily upon the importance of parental responsibility and the tendency in these days to a laxity in that important element in the lives of the younger generation.

Frequently the question is asked these days, "Why is there so much crime?" and "Why is it that so much of the crime today is committed by young people?" President Coolidge did not ask or attempt to answer these particular questions, but in praising the work which this organization is doing he directed attention to the larger service that needs to be rendered by the parents of today. The situation today he pointed out does not call for "more public control through government action, but more home control through parental action."

Hearty and widespread endorsement will be given to his statement that "Too many people are neglecting the well being of their children, shifting the responsibility for their actions and turning over supervision of their discipline and conduct to the juvenile courts. The refugees from broken homes and those whose bringing up has been neglected make up a very large proportion of the undesirable criminal class.

After noting how strongly there exists the disposition to leave the training of children to teachers, playground directors and courts whether it concerns respect for laws, rights of others, conduct, health, safety or any one of the many essential things, the president hits the nail on the head when he says, "The home is the cornerstone of the nation, and any effective better-homes movement must begin with the training of the youth for home responsibilities, or we shall see the disposition to attempt in some way to turn over to the government the responsibilities for the rearing of children constantly increased."

The importance of the home and good home influences to the nations cannot be too strongly emphasized. That the president stands as an advocate of such creates no surprise.

BUILDING AT WASHINGTON

It was only recently that the department of justice received notice that it must leave the building it has been leasing, since it was wanted for other purposes and the rental the department was paying was inadequate.

The department isn't ideally located, but it is housed and it is not pleasing to think that it must pull up stakes and get out at a moment's notice. The immediate evacuation was discounted by government authorities, and it is evident that they knew what they were talking about since it is now announced that the department is to remain for a period of five years under the agreement but at an increase in rent. Where it has been paying $75,000 a year it will henceforth pay $100,000.

Such cases of course call attention to the situation which prevails in Washington regarding public buildings. The department of justice is not the only branch of the government that occupies leased quarters. Others are even more unsatisfactorily situated, several buildings being occupied by the various bureaus. But higher rentals and cramped quarters lend emphasis to the plea for a public building programme in Washington and the importance of giving heed to the plea for the $50,000,000 bunding plan that would be extended over a period of five years. In the next five years the department of justice is to pay out in rent a half million dollars. Considering what the other departments must be paying in rent it is evident that it will not be many years before such rents, if applied to construction work, would take care of the expenditure. Or looking at it the other way the building of its own office buildings will soon put an end to the great outlay that is now being devoted to rents.

When the government figures that it can save money by erecting government buildings in cities throughout the country, the evidence that it can do so by providing for quarters for its departments at Washington is readily understood. The Washington building programme, if pursued on reasonable lines, would appear to be a good business proposition.

PAROLE REFORM

At the meeting of the parole board in New York state last week there were 31 applications for parole. Fourteen of these first offenders failed to get their release on the expiration of the minimum period of their sentence and they were surprised when they found that the former policy of the board had been changed."

That was a rather rude awakening. Someone ought to have told the prisoners in advance. If others had been treated with leniency there certainly was no reason why such a policy should not be continued indefinitely. From the standpoint of the prisoners there's no reason why any consideration should be given to the public protection and welfare. But that is what the board has at last been driven to, or at least has decided to do. Those who commit crimes of violence must henceforth show conclusively that they have reformed, or they will not get their parole when the minimum of their sentence has been served.

New York has grown weary and disgusted with the manner in which criminals have been turned out of prison when the minimum sentence has been served only to advance the time when they can return to their old activities. They have protested against the manner in which the safety of the public has been lightly regarded until it appears some move has been made to have the parole board function with a greater respect for the safeguarding of the people.

The purpose of the law for the paroling of prisoners was to permit those who have actually learned their lesson in connection with their participation in crime to be given a chance to get out and be men among men. When that can be put into practice and get results it is to be applauded, but parole boards which act with little regard for the facts or little knowledge of them and are disposed to be free and easy with the criminals just because such a construction can be put upon the law, it is time for demanding serious reform within the board itself. That demand has apparently been heard in New York state.

INHERITANCE TAXATION

Personal appearance of a half dozen governors, representing 32 from the entire country, made substantial progress in setting forth before the house ways and means committee the desirability of ending the federal inheritance tax. No less a convert than Chairman Green of the committee resulted from the presentation of the arguments in behalf of such a move, and a move which bears also the advocacy of President Coolidge and which has been called for long and loudly from all parts of the country.

Levying an inheritance tax is a matter which should be left to the states but the government has stepped in and imposed an additional burden that amounts in some instances to confiscation. If it were a case where the government needed the money it would be a different matter. But no such emergency exists and inasmuch as it does not the time is ripe for putting an end to an undesirable situation.

Inheritance taxation has been carried to the point where there is justified protest. Not only do the states, in most instances, insist upon imposing such a tax, but there is also a demand for taxes by other states on property which a person happened to own there at the time of his death, and this leads to a serious situation in the case of large estates with claims from several commonwealths and the federal government also putting in its claim.

There is unquestionably a desire for the straightening out of the inheritance tax situation. The states have reason for coming to an understanding between themselves concerning such legislation, but they are right in their belief that the federal government should retire from the field.

RALSTON'S SUCCESSOR

Filling the vacancy in the United States senate caused by the death of Senator Ralston of Indiana has awakened much interest. It was understood in advance that the appointee would be a republican, since the governor is a republican, and thus contribute to the strengthening of the republican forces in the upper house. It was known of course that the appointment could only be until next year when an election to fill the place for the remainder of the term will be held. It was appreciated, also, that there was an intensely complicated political situation in Indiana which would add to the uncertainty of the appointment.

Governor Jackson has filled the vacancy by naming Arthur Robinson, who is known as a personal friend of the governor. He aspired for it, but so did others. He is not a nationally known figure as ex-Senator Beveridge would have been, but his selection does not necessarily mean that he will stand as a candidate when it comes to election time. It is in fact believed that his appointment now will mean that the field will be open for others as aspirants next year and that less damage to those aspirations would be done by such a choice.

Even those who did not favor Mr. Robinson are declaring that he will average well with the average senators. While they supported others they regard the appointee as an honest man and have nothing to say about him that is detrimental to his or Indiana's interests. He has a chance to show that the governor made no mistake in naming him and naturally Indiana and the country expects that he will measure up to it.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Powdered starch will help to clean soiled wallpaper.

Add a pinch of soda to epsom salts and you will find the dose less objectionable.

Use fancy-shaped cookie cutters to cut the bread for the sandwiches for the buffet lunch.

The best bait for a rat trap is an oyster.

Bread used for making toast should be at least one or two days old.

Candles will burn better and more slowly if they are stored in a dry place six or seven weeks before they are to be used.

Never beat whites of eggs in an aluminum pan. It will always darken it and make it ugly. Use a china or porcelain bowl.

When mayonnaise has curdled the addition of a little unbeaten white of an egg will make of it a smooth, successful dressing.

When storing blankets wrap them in plenty of newspapers and lay slices of yellow soap in the folds. Moths dislike soap and printers' ink.

If you wish to remove whitewash from a ceiling dissolve one pound of alum in one gallon of strong vinegar. Apply with a brush, let the mixture soak in well, scrape and wash.

If you cook the suet and raisins together in a little water before adding to your mincemeat you will avoid the small lumps often found in mincemeat; also the coating of suet in the mouth after eating it.

To improve the flavor of currants and raisins in pudding and cakes, place them in a bowl, pour boiling water over them and leave to soak over night. Drain and dry in oven before adding to other ingredients.

Leftover rice can be given a new and delicious flavor by adding chopped green pepper, onion and tomato and baking with a light sprinkling of cheese over the top.

PLAN YOUR MEALS AND SAVE WORK

The trite saying can be revised and read, "order in the kitchen's first law." If the housewife observes this law, getting the meals will be as pleasant as playing a game of golf or tennis, and the results will be more satisfying than if done in a haphazard, unsystematic manner. Skill and order are very closely allied, and without one or the other the ensuing meal is apt to be a careless, undesirable affair.

The lettuce for the dinner salad can be washed in the morning and placed in the refrigerator. In the evening after the dinner menu is in the process of cooking, the table can be set and the fruit for the dessert prepared and be in readiness when the meat, potatoes and vegetables are cooked. Place the bread, butter and cream on the table only after the dinner itself has been put there.

Consider the details of the meal in preparation and then plan the work accordingly.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Lemon juice and milk rubbed on face and neck before retiring is a splendid tonic for the complexion.

One's hair may be gradually darkened by applying sage tea. Buy the dried sage leaves at a drug store. Mix with equal parts of strong black tea and brew strong as you would for ordinary tea. Apply after each shampoo.

The conscious tasting of each mouthful will make eating more interesting on the principle that interest follows attention. Many people bolt their food without getting its full flavor. Drinking a glassful of hot water (flavored with fruit juice if desired) an hour before breakfast will help prepare the stomach for its work.

Pimples always have a cause. If it is not unwise diet, it may be ineffective cleansing methods, constipation or a skin disease. At bedtime steam your skin with hot towels until it is reddened. Make a lather of tincture of green soap and hot water; scrub with this using a soft complexion brush. Leave the lather on for five minutes, rinse well and dash on some cold water. Your skin will smart a little at first, but will get used to the treatment. If the pimples do not yield to this external treatment consult a physician. Young people are frequently troubled with pimples, but outgrow them in time.

BEAUTIFUL HANDS

In these days of dainty, perfect grooming, the application of creams and massaging of the hands are equally important functions of the boudoir as the care of the face and throat, hair and scalp. It is especially important to give the hands regular and careful attention during the summer.

In washing the hands one should be very certain of the quality of the soap, and select that which seems to agree best with the skin. When the skin is inclined to dryness, one of the almond-meal preparations will frequently be found less drying and keep the hands in better condition than soap would.

THE FAMILY MAGAZINES

When the entire family reads the magazine it is a help for each person to write his or her initials on the cover when finished with the issue. In this way the housewife knows when it can be thrown out and anyone desiring to clip an article knows when he is at liberty to do so.

SONNY'S POCKETS

Before putting the suits or rompers of the small son into the laundry, the safest plan is to empty out the pockets and then brush out the corners with a stiff whisk. One never knows just what has been in those pockets, and the safest plan is to get all out before putting the suits in with the other clothes.

EASIER TO MOVE

Sprinkle the greased layer cake pans with a little flour before pouring in the batter and the cake will not stick to the pans after baking.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Novel bedroom slippers are formed of wooden sabots painted in gay colors and decorated with sprigs of flowers.

The double strand of medium sized pearls is more popular in Paris than the single or triple strands that are more prevalent.

In coatings, needle point effects worked out in solid colors and in weights familiar as bolivias are highly regarded.

A new undergarment which has been very appropriately named "scanties" combines vest, brassiere, girdle and panties.

For the traveler on either continent a dressing bag of dark blue leather shade would be a charming and most acceptable gift.

Pile fabrics are again in the foreground of fashion favorites, according to the Dry Goods Economist. In every avenue and in many forms one sees them confidently presented for consideration.

Something decidedly new in shoe fabrics is that of the natural unshorn calfskin in brown and white and black and white combinations to make oxford ties.

In the market for silks novelty multi-colored velvets, brocades are one of the successful fabrics of the present fall season. One outlet is in the form of an applique work applied to sheer and to semi-sheer fabrics.

All of the shops are stressing windbreaker as an important sports item. They are showing these in colored suedes as well as in the conventional browns with collar, band and cuffs of knitted wool which very often embodies Indian blanket motifs.

In daytime dress, the frequent association of the open neck in V or square outline with the high draped scarf, the high collar effect acceptable to women who otherwise would not endure it.

Ribbon motifs are applied to the small felt hat at front or side. These motifs are sometimes very elaborately constructed of twisted or pleated ribbon in the most intricate designs. There are also flower adornments seen on these new small hats. Two flowers are usually grouped gracefully at one side.

SHORTER NECKLACES

The rivieres of diamonds used as necklaces are getting shorter. They fit the neck fairly close with no slack whatever. One of the leaders of fashion was seen with a diamond necklace almost tight fitting, while several women had pearl necklaces made up of small pearls, also tight to the neck; that is to say, falling easily on the base of the neck, resting on what are usually called the "salt cellars," but without a superfluous pearl or diamond.

ABRUPT CURVES ON FANS

Extreme novelties among fans are of abrupt curves, high in the middle. Sticks are of sandalwood, shell or ivory, the wood carved and gilded; others are cut out in most delicate patterns. Some are set with tiny jewels, for these sticks are invariably showily elaborated, and are covered with silk gauze, on which artistic scenes are painted by hand. They have an exotic appearance, almost Oriental and very decorative.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Soak clothes in soft water to which has been added a little laundry bleach and washing will be easier next day.

To remove axle grease apply lard to spot, and wash in warm, soapy water. If in silk, place a pad underneath spot and sponge with chloroform until soil is removed.

When sponging or removing spots from a serge dress rub with a solution of boiling water to which a little ammonia has been added. Keep adding fresh boiling water as you use it.

To wash colored ribbons make a lather of cold or lukewarm water and fine soap. Wash the ribbons by "sousing" them up and down and squeezing. Do not rub, pull or twist them, very soiled pieces may be cleansed by rubbing in a good suds with the palm of the hand. Rinse them several times; always in soapy water of the same temperature as the wash water.

To prevent white clothes that are to be packed away from becoming yellow dip a sheet in bluing water (use enough bluing to make the sheet quite blue) then spread the sheet over the top of the chest in which the clothes are packed.

TO WHITEN TOWELS

If towels are laundered at home there comes a time when some sort of whitening process is necessary. Place the towels in a boiler of cold water to which has been added white soap flakes and the juice of a lemon. Set on a low burner and gradually let the water come to a boil. Rinse well and hang while quite wet in direct sunshine.

SAVE A LOOSE MOP-HANDLE

If the wooden handle of the floor mop becomes loose and cannot be screwed into the mop, instead of attempting to make it tight by winding cloth around to try soaking of the mop-stick in a bucket of warm water for approximately an hour. The handle will screw tightly and will remain tight for some time.—The Delineator.

REMOVE THOSE STAINS

The vinegar cruet needs severe treatment to prevent its getting brown and coated. This coating can be removed by crushing an egg shell and putting the pieces in the cruet. Then add hot, soapy water and shake until the cruet is clear and sparkling.

STRIKING SCRAP BASKET

Quite suitable for the library or a man's room is a scrap-basket that is made of the covers of two beautifully bound old English books put together with the edges touching and forming a diamond. The base is of red leather to blend with the red and blue leather of the covers.

FIRST THE SUBBERS

Put the rubbers on the jars before filling them with the hot preserves. Then screw the tops down onto the rubbers. It will save burned fingers.

CONCERNING WOMEN

A Feminist club has been organized in Paris.

New Hampshire had 14 women members of its legislature.

Sixty women traffic managers recently organized the Women's Traffic club of Los Angeles.

Forty-six colleges in 22 states will have parent-teacher courses work.

Miss Ruth Smith of Atchinson, Kan., has built up a $50,000 business in two years from the sale of gingham aprons.

LINOLEUM'S USE URGED

Linoleum is an excellent covering for the nursery floor. The floor covering is not only sanitary, but is easily cleaned.

CORDUROY AND FUR

A becoming coat and cap for a tiny child is of white corduroy, with collar and cuffs and a single revere of white fur. The cap is a small, close-fitting one also trimmed with fur.

RECIPES.

Steamed Chicken: — This is a very good way to reheat a half or a whole chicken left from dinner. In fact, when for any reason labor must be economized some housekeepers cook an extra chicken to have on hand for this second days' preparation. The result of preparing chicken in this way is quite different from the so-called left overs digestibility is often sacrificed.

Instead of using a steamer have ready a sauce pan in the bottom of which is an inverted cake pan. Place the chicken on this. Pour in enough boiling water to fill half-way.

Cover and boil for about 40 minutes. Remove the chicken; slice it and serve with bread sauce.

Spinach Forcemeat: Add to a cup of cooked and chopped spinach two tablespoons of finely minced parsley or celery and half a cup of dried bread crumbs that have been soaked in half a cup of milk and squeezed partly dry. Add also one well beaten egg, two tablespoons of cooking oil or melted butter, and two tablespoons of grated cheese. Stir all the ingredients together well, seasoning with half a teaspoon of salt and a little paprika. This makes a nice stuffing for a veal roast or for any rolled steak or baked fish. The addition of the cheese blends well with the fish, but when the stuffing is used with meat, the cheese may be omitted and minced chives or onion added.

From Small Beginnings

"Buffalo Bill, the Frontiersman's Boy, The Great Indian Fighter

"Buffalo Bill," rose from being a mere nobody of the western plains to being a man whom kings and queens were proud to talk with; and he became the adored hero of every small boy from Boston to San Francisco. What a picture he presented as he galloped into view in his Wild West Show, his white horse prancing his long hair streaming in the wind, his whole appearance that of the typical "Buffalo Bill" of the dime novel reader's dreams!

"Buffalo Bill's" father was a wandering, restless frontiersman, who kept on the edge of civilization and longed for the unknown. Danger was the air that he breathed, and young William R. Cody found himself, even as a child, in the thick of trouble. When the boy was only 10—and sick at that—he had to ride 30 miles with bullets singing after him, to save his father's life. As a small child he had to threaten grim Indians. At 11 he took part in a desperate fight with two redskins, became separated from help, killed his Indian and came back alive. Once he started to go to school, but he had a fight with a bigger boy, used his knife, and found it best to go west with a wagon train. In the winters he went trapping, and fought and dodged Indians as naturally as he breathed. Then he became a pony-express rider, and once rode 322 miles without stopping, riding on 21 ponies, and every foot of the way in danger.

That is the sort of a boy he was at 15! At 18 he became a scout in the Union army in the Civil war. At 21 he became a buffalo hunter for the Kansas Pacific railroad, supplying the railroad builders with meat. Because of his expert ability in shooting buffalo he gained the name of "Buffalo Bill." Until he was about 30 he was a scout and a guide for the United States forces engaged in fighting Indians. On one occasion he had a hand-to-hand fight with Chief Yellow Hand, whom he killed. Thus, by a life in which one desperate event followed another, and by unimaginable strength courage and skill, Buffalo Bill made his name known far and wide.

Then, at 37, he brought together representatives of all the people among whom he had lived and fought, and formed his Wild West show. Everywhere in this country and in Europe he was hailed year after year with the utmost honor and delight. When he died he was buried on the summit of a western mountain, a fitting place for one who from childhood had represented all the best elements of the frontier.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The National Association of Manufactures which meets in annual convention today at St. Louis, has as its head John E. Edgerton, who hails from Lebanon, Tenn., where he is president of a large woolen mills corporation. Mr. Edgerton was reared on a North Carolina farm and received his education at Cumberland and Vanderbilt universities. After leaving college he entered upon a career as an educator, first as a school teacher and later as principal of a military academy which he helped to found at Columbia, Tenn. In 1912 he returned to Lebanon to become president and general manager of the woolen mills there. During the World war Mr. Edgerton served on numerous relief commissions, both state and national. After several successful years as head of the Tennessee Manufacturers' association, he was elected president of the National association of Manufacturers in 1921.

Stories That Recall Others

Modesty

The parents had been trying for some time to impress a sense of modesty on four year old Betty. The following incident caused them to feel that their efforts had not been wholly in vain.

Betty was seated on the floor, playing with "dress up" paper dolls, when her grown up cousin breezed in. She started toward the child and was prepared to exclaim over the dolls, when she was halted by a frown of disapproval. "Don't look," scolded the youngster, "Can't you see they're dressing?"

Hard Problems

Harry's father is engaged in reinforced concrete work. Concrete being thus, in a way, the foundation for the family bread and butter, is often mentioned in the table talk or about the evening lamp. Harry, at the age of eight, shows some indications of following in dad's professional footsteps. One day, at school, his teacher announced:

"Now children, for our arithmetic lesson we will take up some concrete problems."

Accordingly a number of practical problems were put on the board and worked out with more or less interest on the part of the pupils. Nothing further was said in this connection for several days, when Harry, coming into the schoolroom one morning asked: Miss Jones, when are we going to have some more of those cement problems?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Holes and Gullies in Streets

Mr. Editor: I wish to join the howl against our neglected streets and to express the belief that direct complaints to the powers that be get scant consideration. Promises are easily made, notes can be quickly taken, but there's no fulfillment.

As one who has to use the lower part of Elizabeth street I feel confident that all that is needed to prove my contention is to take a ride over one of the numerous streets where holes and gullies are leaving a string of broken automobile springs.

Ruddy Prepares for Winter

His life full long will be and good
Who always eats the proper food.
—Old Mother Nature.

In his interest in getting acquainted with Ruddy the Red-backed Mouse over in the Green Forest, Peter Rabbit had forgotten that he had started out to find out how many of his friends and new neighbors really looked ahead and prepared for the winter. He was reminded of it one day when he had stopped to pass the time of day with Ruddy.

"Can't stop to talk this morning, Peter," declared Ruddy.

"Why not?" demanded Peter.

"Too busy," replied Ruddy.

"Busy?" said Peter. "Busy about what?"

"Getting ready for winter," replied Ruddy.

"You getting ready for winter! How do you get ready for winter?" inquired Peter.

"The same way that all thrifty people do," retorted Ruddy, "by laying up a supply of food."

"Not all folks lay up food in the same way," said Peter. "I've found that out."

"Of course they do," retorted Ruddy. "They all store it away where they can get it."

"What about Johnny Chuck?" demanded Peter. "What about Buster Bear?"

"Oh, they don't store up food," said Ruddy.

"Huh, exclaimed Peter. "If you should see Johnny Chuck now I guess you'd think he stores up food. He's got so much of it stored under that skin of his that I hardly dare go near him for fear he may blow up. Buster Bear's storing food the same way. He spends all his time eating."

Ruddy sat up and scratched his nose thoughtfully. "I never thought of that before," said he.

"What is it you never thought of?" demanded Peter.

"I never thought of that being one way of laying up food," said Ruddy. "I'd hate to lay up food for all winter that way. But then, of course, those fellows sleep most of the winter."

"I suppose that means that you don't sleep," said Peter.

"No more than I do in summer," replied Ruddy. "I sleep when I'm sleepy, that's all."

"Which reminds me," said Peter, "that you seem to be out in the daytime a great deal of the time."

"Certainly," said Ruddy. "Why not? I know there are some members of the Mouse family who seldom come out until after dark. Daylight or darkness makes no difference to me. I come out when I feel like it. I'm just as much at home in the light of day as I am in the darkness of night. In fact, I rather like daylight. At this season of the year when one must get ready for winter, it is very handy to feel equally at home in daylight or darkness."

"Where do you put your supplies for winter?" inquired Peter very bluntly.

Ruddy chuckled aloud. It was a pleasant, squeaky little chuckle. "My, such questions as some people can ask!" he exclaimed. "If you really want to know, Peter I'm going to tell you. I put them where they will do me the most good when I need them."

"Oh," said Peter and grinned. "If I want to find them I suppose that is where I must look for them."

"Exactly," replied Ruddy. "Like my house my storehouse is my own secret. Now I've stood here talking too long already. I must store some of these beechnuts, and there are some seeds that I must gather while I can get them."

"But if you don't sleep all winter and are running about I don't see why it is necessary for you to lay up any stores of food," protested Peter. "I don't do it."

"That's all right," replied Ruddy. "Next winter after the first hard ice storm, when you can't get anything to eat, just think of me, Peter, comfortably eating whenever I am hungry, and not having to go out in bad weather to get my food."

OBITUARY

Robert Eugene Morse

Robert Eugene Morse, infant son of Joseph and Agnes E. Morse, of No. 480 Boswell avenue, was found dead in his bed Sunday morning. Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, medical examiner, was called to investigate and found that death was due to natural causes. The child was born in this city July 30 and was two months and 25 days old.

Mrs. Allen T. Main

The death of Mrs. Allen T. Main of Fitchville, occurred in this city Saturday afternoon, following a brief illness. Mrs. Main was a native of Arcadia, R. I., and was born June 10, 1884, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rivers. October 15, 1902, in Groton, she was united in marriage with Allen T. Main and about seven years ago Mr. and Mrs. Main moved to Fitchville, where they have since made their home.

Mrs. Main is survived by her husband, two brothers, Joseph Rivers of Fitchville, and William Rivers of Norwich; two sisters, Mrs. John McCann of Fitchville, and Mrs. John DeJarlais of Crompton, R. I. There are eight children, Elsie A., Mabel, Nelson, Charles, Helen, Martha, Harold and Catherine Main all of Fitchville.

Mrs. Main was a devoted wife and a kind and loving mother and was beloved by a host of warm friends who are deeply grieved to learn of her death.

Mrs. Frank Pendleton

After a long illness Sarah J. McKnight Pendleton, widow of Frank Pendleton, died Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. She was about 62 years of age and was born in this city, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McKnight.

Mrs. Pendleton leaves one sister, Mrs. William Wallace of Norwich, and one brother, William J. McKnight, also of this city.

Charles Berberich

After a brief illness Charles Berberich died Saturday morning at the home of his brother, Frank Berberich, No. 89 Sherman street. He was a native of Germany and was the son of Michael and Barbara Berberich. When a boy he came to live in this country, and in this city in September 1897 he was united in marriage with Mary Koreck by the late Rev. Hugh Treanor.

Mr. Berberich had been employed in mills in Norwich but of late had been an overseer in a North Grosvenordale mill. Surviving are his wife, one son, Joseph A. Berberich of Winchester, Mass., two brothers, Frank Berberich and Albert Berberich of this city and two sisters, Mrs. Leonard Hoffman of Norwich and Mrs. Albert Busch of Florida.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. F. Leon Hutchins have been guests of the former's mother, Mrs. A. A. Hutchins, in Greene, R. I.

Mrs. Joseph C. Worth, who has spent the season at her cottage in Neptune Park, has taken an apartment at the Crocker House for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert S. Raymond, of Broad street, who are on a tour of the White Mountains, have been at Jaffrey, N. H., during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins of Washington street, entertained a supper party, Thursday in honor of Mons. and Madame Marechal and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McClure.

Dr. George R. Harris, of Taunton, Mass., formerly of Norwich, with Mrs. Harris and their son, George R. Harris, 3rd, also Miss Harriet Harris, of Norwich, were entertained during the week by Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Pratt Smith, of "Redwood," Lebanon.

A cable received Sunday afternoon by Mrs. Edward D. Fuller, of Broadway from her brother, William A. Norton, announced the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Norton with their youngest daughter Ruth in Paris, where their second daughter, Miss Louise Tyler Norton is studying art.

Mrs. Robert W. Perkins gave a tea at her home on Broad street Thursday in honor of Mons. and Madame Marechal of Paris. Mrs. Alfred McClure of West Hartford poured, and Mrs. Joseph C. Worth and Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins assisted in the dinning room.

Delegates to N. E. Conference

The New England conference to be held in Worcester, Mass., Nov. 12th and 13th will be attended by a large number of industrialists from Connecticut. E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut, has asked local industrial organizations of the state to appoint delegates and replies have already been received stating that practically all of them will be represented.

Baked Bean Supper

In spite of the rain, there was good patronage for a baked bean supper given Saturday by the C. L. Class of Trinity Methodist church. Mrs. Chris G. Allen being chairman of the committee in charge.

PASTOR CLASSMATE OF MATHEWSON SPEAKS UPON ATHLETE'S LIFE

The name of Matty today is a synonim of fair play and clean sport, said Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., in his sermon Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church. Rev. Dr. Pitt was speaking on the topic Christy Mathewson and Clean Sport. Mathewson whose recent death stirred the sporting world as no other individual's death has ever stirred it, was for two years a classmate of Rev. Dr. Pitt at Bucknell College. Being in close personal touch with Christy during his college days, Rev. Dr. Pitt knows from first hand of the sterling qualities of Mathewson's life, not only as a college student and athlete but as a successful professional ball player.

After telling how he had been requested to speak on Mathewson by a woman and an elderly man of 75, Rev. Dr. Pitt said: If this man's record is such that a young woman and a man of 75 or so are so interested in it that they want to hear something of him, then I thought I probably ought to do it.

A new attitude has come over the world in the thought of play or sport, he said. Telling of the recent dedication of a church gymnasium, Rev. Dr. Pitt said there is a new day dawning in the Christian church when it puts its money into a gymnasium. Today play is believed to be indispensible to the life of all. It is considered one of the best schools of ethics in all the world. What a town this would be if the town acted for the whole town and not for one particular section.

Rev. Dr. Pitt said there is more time for leisure in this generation than in previous generations and that there will be more leisure time in the next generation. They are already talking of the six hour day. With particular reference to Christy Mathewson the pastor told of Christy's graduation from college in 1903 and said he was the first college man to attain fame in baseball. Since Mathewson entered the field men have used their heads as well as their bodies. Christy Mathewson was a product of a Baptist Academy and of a Baptist college. Suppose he had never attended a Christian academy or a Christian college would his career be what it has been?

We were in the same college class for two years. Mathewson was one of the best all-around athletes and one of the best all-around students in the class or in all the university. After college days some of us were a bit sorry that Mathewson decided to give his life to sports. Who can tell now but what his was the wise choice? I don't think it is exaggerating to say that Mathewson was the best known and best loved man that ever graduated from Bucknell.

When Mathewson joined the New York Giants, baseball was not as clean a game as it is today. It was a common thing not only to have a game of baseball on the field but a tongue fight on the side. This was not in Mathewson's line. Seldom did he answer the tongues of the crowd or of the opposing team. Rev. Dr. Pitt went on to tell of the influence Mathewson had over McGraw. The name "Matty" today is a synonm for fair play and clean sport. Consider the influence of such a life over the young. I feel I should like to do something, feeling I had as good an influence over the young of my generation as did Christy Mathewson.

He went in the prime of manhood. Why? Because of the war. He did not ask to be excused like certain prize fighters. He became a captain in the army, was gassed and he came back a victim of tuberculosis. October 7th, a few hours after the opening of the world series, Mathewson passed to his reward.

I feel the day is coming when Jesus Christ will come into his own in every realm, business, political, society and certainly in the realm of sports. I think it will be found that Christy Mathewson played a large part in the realm of clean sport the country over.

THE BELOVED DEAD
PRIEST'S SERMON TOPIC

The nearness of All Souls' day, which comes Monday next, Nov. 2nd., suggested to Rev. John J. Reilly the theme of his sermon at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday. It was the 21st Sunday after Pentecost, and throughout the world, Pope, cardinals, arch-bishops, bishops, monsignori and priests read the same epistle in offering the holy sacrifice of the mass—Ephesians 6, 10-17, also the same gospel, Matthew 18, 23-35—the parable of the wicked servant.

Father Reilly pictured the Roman Catholic church as a tender mother, receiving the infant at its birth, taking means to strengthen it throughout life, finally fortifying the grown man or woman in the chamber of death to meet the soul's Maker. Even then, the church does not cease its ministrations, but through faith goes beyond the grave, solacing those souls detained in a probation state because yet unworthy to enter the presence of a sinless God. This solace and aid is given through prayer, almsdeeds, visits to the Blessed Sacrament, the offering of the holy mass. The soul lost in Hell through mortal sin is beyond prayer, those souls already in Heaven need it not; but the unhappy dead, who, though repentant, are kept from the full enjoyment of the presence of their Creator until even the slightest blemish must be expiated, they are crying out to their friends who mourned their departure to put their words into deeds, to aid them while they are able, knowing that in turn they themselves may one day need the help of their friends on earth. "It is appointed to every man once to die; and after death the judgment. "The Catholic doctrine of Purgatory is so strong a tenet of belief that the preacher was not required to prove it; merely to remind his hearers that on the special day which the church sets aside, it is the part of love, gratitude, the impulse of kinship, to pray especially for these holy souls in their purgation state, not forgetting at the same time the souls of all the faithful, and of those who have none to pray for them.

The Scripture refers to "Hell's fire." Father Reilly gave point to his brief sermon by an anecdote showing the terrible effect of earthly fire upon the body; what then must the suffering be of the sensitive soul, if the torment of being shut out from God's presence may be increased by actual punishment, even though this penalty be but temporary? "It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead, that they may be loosed from their sins" and he urged new devotion to this appealing cause, now, when shortening days are a reminder of the brevity of life and when trees and shrubs bared of foliage foreshadow the approaching time which will find each one stripped of all his possessions save whatever good deeds he may have accumulated.

The Junior Choir sang the hymns at this mass, Mrs. T. J. Healey being at the organ and Miss Margaret E. Driscoll aiding by singing the solo portions of the service. At the high masses this fall the solos have been by Miss Sadie A. Driscoll, a pupil of Miss Helen Lathrop Perkins.

There appears no let-up in the hard work of the three parish priests in hearing confessions week after week, so that many at this mass were at the altar for communion, administered by Rev. Myles F. Galvin, assisted by Father Reilly.

At the 7:30 mass, the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May gave communion to an equally large number, including the Holy Name society, of which Michael J. Murphy is president.

FINED FOR TRAPPING
SKUNKS OUT OF SEASON

Upon complaint of Allen S. Burt, grand juror of the town of Ledyard, Alfred Main of Ledyard was arrested last Friday by Deputy Game Warden W. S. Watson of Baltic for setting skunk traps out of season and having one skunk in his possession. Main was presented before Judge Samuel E. Holdridge and pleaded guilty. A fine of $2 and costs, amounting to $13.32 was paid by Main. Two hunters from Quaker Hill were hunting on Saturday in the vicinity of Lawton Hill, when they came upon the traps They notified Game Warden Chappell of New London who in turn notified Deputy Warden Watson to be on the lookout. The result was that Main was caught attending his traps with one skunk in his possession.

Automobile In Ditch Dirt

An automobile that ran into soft dirt where the gas and electric department had filled in a ditch on Crescent street sank to the hubs Sunday afternoon and was stuck there until help was sought from the street department which sent a motor truck to pull the automobile out.

Peggy, grade thoroughbred, entered by the third U. S. cavalry, and winner last year, again was awarded first honors when the judges rendered their decision at the end of the seventh annual 100-mile endurance ride for horses fostered by the cavalry branch of the army and the federal department of agriculture.

NOTABLE PICTURES SHOWN AT COLLEGE EXHIBITION

The seventh annual exhibition of pictures opened Saturday at Connecticut college at New London during the formal dedication of Colonial house. The pictures, the work of 19 American artists, are on view in the new building and the exhibition will be open to the public from 10.30 a. m. to 5 p. m. until November 8th.

Perhaps the most interesting picture of the group is The Red Kimona, by Joseph DeCamp. This painting was awarded the Lipincott prize at the Pennsylvania academy exhibition in 1921. The pattern of the figure against the rectangular shape of the window is very effective and the red of the kimona is a striking and handsome note of color. It is one of this distinguished painter's best pictures. Frank Benson and Charles Hawthorne are each well represented by important and characteristic paintings. Mr. Benson's Color Study being especially noteworthy. Nearby is Edward Redfield's The Birches and Harbour and on the same wall The Wave by Ettore Caser.

Robert Henri has painted many pictures of children, all showing a delightful insight and appreciation of child character, and certainly nothing more delightful than the Little Girl in Red in the present exhibition. It is a masterly bit of painting too, and one of the best pictures in the show. Olinsky's The Hostess is another very pleasing picture and Frederick Frieske's sensitive and personal art is well represented by his picture called The Pet Rabbit.

Among the out-of-door pictures is John Carlson's Winter Landscape. Full of a deep feeling for nature and convincingly real, it yet owes much of its beauty and dignity to the painter's fine sense of design. On the same wall is Childe Hassam's Montauk, recently on view in New York, a small but distinguished landscape, and nearby October, by Henry Bill Selden, showing a decorative group of birches against a background of river and hills, which was exhibited last spring at the National picture academy. Early Spring, Trott's Island, by Chauncey F. Ryder and The Dock, by Haley Lever.

The one example of still life is by Charles Rittenberg. The note of green in the grapes repeats in delightful fashion the color of the room and makes the picture seem particularly suited to its place over the mantel. There are also the Grey Breaker by Paul Dougherty and Frank Desche's striking picture, The French Negligee; Girl Reading by Irving Wiles and one of Richard Miller's charming figure pictures, called The Daffodils.

It is an interesting show and affords an opportunity to see the work of a number of the foremost American artists. Through the kindness of Robert W. MacBeth all the pictures for this year's exhibition were loaned by the MacBeth Gallery of New York.

EFFECTED ORGANIZATION OF LUTHERAN BROTHERHOOD

With 40 members present a delicious supper was served in the parlors of the Salem Lutheran church, Hickory street, Friday evening, at 8 o'clock, the assemblage gathering for the purpose of organizing a local Lutheran Brotherhood. The interior of the church was attractively trimmed in palms, autumn leaves and potted plants, the decorating being by Johnson, the florist. The menu served by Mrs. Richard Berkoff was as follows: Fruit cocktail, soup, celery, olives, turkey, cranberry jelly, sweet potatoes, mashed turnips, ice cream, cake, gingerale.

The speaker of the evening was Otto Bergquist of Boston who emphasized organization among laymen for more effective work, saying that organizations of this kind were being formed in every church throughout the United States, namely the Lutheran Brotherhood. Short talks were also given by local men present. During the evening several vocal selections were rendered, Miss Edna Hanson at the piano.

At the close of the banquet it was decided to organize a temporary local Lutheran Brotherhood and the following officers were named: Chairman, C. W. Pearson and secretary, Elmer Pierson. Another meeting will be held next Thursday evening, when the officers will be elected for a permanent organization.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the banquet was: C. W. Pearson, chairman, Richard Pierson, Victor Tongren, Carl O. Johnson, Arthur Ellison, Walter and Elmer Pierson.

APPOINTED SUPERVISOR IN N. E. FOR MACCABEES

S. C. C. Ward of Portland, Me., has been appointed general supervisor by the Maccabees and taken charge of the society's fraternal work in the New England states. He was elected past supreme commander at the society international convention in Washington last summer, the highest honorary position in the order.

OREGON WINNING HENS COME CLOSE TO RECORD

Hanson's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Oregon, won the fourteenth annual laying contest conducted by the Connecticut Agricultural College at Storrs. In the fifty-one weeks from November 1st, 1924, to October 23rd, 1925, the ten pullets in the blue ribbon pen laid 3,384 eggs or practically twenty dozen eggs apiece. This record has been beaten in but one year since contests started at Storrs fourteen years ago. Its the second time that a pen of chickens from Oregon have traveled 3,000 miles across the continent and trimmed everything in sight. These western hens got away to a good start last November and were leading the contest at the end of the second week. They had their ups and downs, however, and were passed and repassed by a pen of Leghorns from Massachusetts and a pen of Wyandottes from Rhode Island up until the thirty-eighth lap of the race, after which they were never headed. They beat their nearest competitor, another pen of Leghorns owned by Meadowedge Farm at Sterling Junction, Mass., by the safe margin of ninety-four eggs. The following is a list of the winning pens and their 1924 White Leghorns, Connecticut 2088 scores for the last twelve years:

Year	Breed	Place	Score
1915	Wyandottes, England		2072
1916	Wyandottes, Rhode Island		2265
1917	Barred Rocks, New Hampshire		2119
1918	Oregons, Oregon		2352
1919	Barred Rocks, New York		3022
1921	Wyandottes, Rhode Island		2334
1922	Barred Rocks, New York		2284
1923	White Leghorns, Washington		3210
1924	White Leghorns, Washington		3437
1924	White Leghorns, New York		2531
1925	White Leghorns, Oregon		2394

Average Winning Score 2321

Hilltop Farm at Suffield repeated their performance of a year ago and came through with the highest Connecticut pen and in addition made the highest single bird record in the contest. Keewaydin Farm's pen of Barred Rocks from Darien, Conn., were an easy first in their class with a margin of more than 150 eggs over the next pen in line. In the White Rock group Ellen Day Ranken from Huntington, L. I., was likewise an easy winner by practically the same lead as the Barred Rock pen. In the Rhode Island Red class, Deer Brook Poultry Farm at Short Falls, N. H., finished sixty-one eggs ahead of D. Hart Horton from Farmingdale, L. I., all of which was gained in the last four weeks of the race. As already indicated the best pen of Leghorns came from Oregon. The second best hailed from Massachusetts, the third from Connecticut, the fourth best pen is domiciled in North Carolina and the fifth in New Jersey. Such geographical distribution as this plainly suggests that there are some mighty good hens in many different sections of the country.

There were entered in the contest 140 pens of ten birds each or a total of 1,400 hens from twenty-five different states, the Province of Ontario and England. They laid a grand total of 210,468 eggs. The table below shows the number of birds in each of the principal varieties, the average individual egg yield for the year, and the general average for all varieties that took part in the contest:

100	White Rocks	129.6
180	White Wyandottes	148.9
200	Barred Rocks	156.4
360	Rhode Island Reds	138.8
580	White Leghorns	159.4
1400	Average for all breeds	150.3

High individual records have especial value for poultrymen who pedigree their breeders. They use high record hens as dams for their choicest cockerels. The outstanding performance in this respect was the record of White Leghorn hen No. 1325 from Suffield, Conn., that laid 287 eggs during the year. This Leghorns record has been beaten but once and that by a hen from the same farm in the 1924 contest. In the Rhode Island class hen No. 530 owned by Deer Brook Poultry Farm at Short Falls, N. H., stood first with a production of 275 eggs. This is the second best individual Red record in any Storrs contest.

Among the White Rocks, hen No. 311 from Huntington, L. I., scored 227 and won the distinction of being the best bird in her class. Keewaydin Farm at Darien, Conn., that furnished the high pen of Barred Rocks also had the high hen in No. 194, with a tally of 268 eggs. The individual honors for Wyandottes was won by hen No. 418, owned by Carterlea Farm at Troy, Mo., with a lay of 267 eggs for the year.

The following is a list of the twenty best pens in the order of their production:

Pen	Breed and Owner	Eggs
184	Hanson's Leghorn Farm, Wh. Leg. Corvallis, Oregon.	2394
209	Meadowedge Farm, Wh. Leghorns, Sterling ct., Mass.	2300

NEW DORMITORY DEDICATED AT CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

Colonial house, the new dormitory at Connecticut college at New London, was formally dedicated Saturday. The building is a $200,000 gift from the late Charles Clark Knowlton of Ashford, Windham county, whose death occurred when the building had been only partially completed.

President Benjamin T. Marshall, in making the dedicatory address, said:

"Mr. Knowlton, the donor, who visited the campus once, more or less incognito, that he might see the college for himself, and who had at that time in mind to help others to build a stone dormitory, remarked to one of his small party: 'I want to do something for this college to help make it the very best anywhere.' His complete and sole gift of this building was the bigger and better answer he made to the purpose then in mind.

TOOK PLUMBERS' TORCH FOR FIRE IN HOUSE

What appeared to be a fire to a Polish resident Sunday afternoon in a house on Central avenue under construction by the Norwich Land Title company proved to be a false alarm for when the fire department responded at 5.38 they found a plumber working on one of the pipes in the building with a blowtorch. The polish man seeing a flickering through the window from the light of the blow torch and thinking that the house was afire called out the department.

FUNERALS

Miss Mary J. Mulcahy

The funeral of Miss Mary J. Mulcahy was held Saturday morning at 8.30 o'clock from her late home, No. 247 North Main street with a large attendance of relatives and friends. At 9 o'clock there was a requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church, Rev. William A. Keefe, celebrant, and Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ. At the offertory Miss Josette LaValley sang Pie Jesus, and as the waiting hymn she sang Jesus, Lover of My Soul. At the recessional the choir sang Nearer, My God, to Thee. Miss Josephine Hartie was soloist of the mass.

The bearers were William Ryan, Thomas McGuinness, Joseph Barry, Daniel Barnett, William McHenry and Frank McNerney, and burial took place in St. Mary's cemetery, Rev. Father Keefe conducting the committal service. There were many beautiful floral forms. Hourigan Bros. had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. J. L. Weatherby Huntington

The funeral of Isabell Fitch, widow of J. L. Weatherby Huntington, formerly of Norwich, was held Saturday in Washington, D. C., and burial was in the Arlington National cemetery. Mrs. Huntington's death occurred Thursday in New Haven after a short illness and was a great shock to her many friends. She leaves five children Capt. Phillip W. Huntington of New York, Major Henry Huntington of Oregon, Mrs. Graham Powell and Mrs. Archibald Hassan, both of Washington, and Perit Fitch Huntington of Duluth, Minn.

WEDDING

Buckingham-Spenard

Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the parsonage of the United Congregational church on Union street, the pastor, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, united in marriage William Alfred Buckingham and Mrs. Flora Dudley Spenard, both of this city. The groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William A. Buckingham, and great-nephew of Connecticut's war governor, William A. Buckingham, and the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Curtis Dudley of North Madison. Only immediate members of the family were in attendance.

The couple were attended by Walter M. Buckingham of this city, brother of the groom, and Mrs. Roland Ives of Yalesville, sister of the bride.

The bride was dressed in hand-embroidered flat crepe of titian color while her only attendant wore a gown of black beaded satin.

The couple are well known in Norwich and vicinity, Mr. Buckingham being with the J. B. Martin company. Following a honeymoon trip to New York and North Madison, Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham will take up their residence at 30 Hamilton avenue.

AUTOISTS APPLYING FOR 1926 REGISTRATION CARDS

HARTFORD, Oct. 25.—(AP)—That many Connecticut autoists are applying for their 1926 registration cards and plates early is indicated by a report of the department of motor vehicles that approximately 4,000 applications had been received up to noon Saturday. Early applications are being made for the most part it is believed by autoists who wish to retain their 1925 registration numbers next year After November 15, no registration numbers will be reserved and holders of low numbers or any other preferred numbers for 1925 will have to take their chances as to new numbers with all of the other applicants.

The department has been registering motor vehicles at the rate of 200 a day since the first of October. This number will have to be increased to about 3,500 a day for the remainder of the year, it was pointed out by the department, if all those who are expected to want to drive throughout the winter without interruption are to have their machines registered by January 1.

It is estimated by the department that applications for registration of about 150,000 motor vehicles will be received by the department up to January 1.

Piles Go Quick
Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1009 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

ACADEMY ROMPS THROUGH WEAK PLAINFIELD TEAM FOR 26 TO 0 VICTORY

With practically an entire second team on the field the Academy swamped Plainfield high school Saturday afternoon before one of the largest crowds of the season by the score of 26 to 0. From the first minute of play the local team had every advantage there was. The N. F. A. team was at least fifteen pounds heavier than Plainfield and was able to break through their lighter rivals practically at will. Plainfield worked a number of forwards, but did not gain very much ground by this method of attack as the majority of the forwards were thrown diagonally across the field. The upstate team had one play that the Norwich eleven were unable to stop. Namely the old fashioned cross-buck. Three times this play was worked against the local boys and a total gain of about fifty yards was made by it. The Academy had a number of chances to score but they did not have the necessary punch to put it over. Over anxiousness lost the local team a chance to have added another touchdown to their final score. In the first quarter Courbois carried the ball across the line for what looked like a sure touchdown, but one of his team-mates was off side and the ball was brought back and the Academy penalized.

Pheno Tombari was the shining star of the game. Several times he intercepted forward passes and made long gains. Once on an intercepted pass he scored a touchdown. Playing in a little over one-half of the game he gained a total distance of about 175 yards for the N. F. A. Murphy at center made some pretty tackles; throwing his opponents for a number of long losses. This is Murphy's first full game at center and he showed up well.

The following is the game by quarters:

First Quarter

Capt. Jimmy Williams won the toss and chose to receive the ball at the north goal. first quarter: Stevens of Plainfield kicked to Ed Brewer on the Academy's thirty-yard line and Radio ran it forward ten yards before being downed. On the first play Plainfield was off side and was penalized five yards. Vitliano went off left tackle for six yards and first down. Ed Brewer hit the center of the line on the following play and went seven yards before being stopped. McGlome went around end for five yards and another first down. McGlome was again given the ball and this time was sent off tackle for three yards' gain. On the next play Plainfield piled up the interference and Vitliano who was carrying the ball was held for no gain. A long forward was then tried by the academy boys, but was knocked down in midair by a Plainfield half back. Courbois then went back and sent a beautiful kick sailing down the field to Stevens who was downed in his tracks. Plainfields ball, first down. On their first play Plainfield high sent Stevens on an end run but he was thrown for the loss of one yard. Frenche threw a forward that Vitliano intercepted and which he ran forward eight yards before being downed. Academy's ball, first down. Brewer hit the middle of the line and twisted and turned for a gain of fourteen yards before a Plainfield back was able to stop him. Vitliano was then given the ball and twice around right end. The first play made three yards while the second made five more. Next Ed was again given the ball and this time he plugged guard and tackle for ten yards and a first down. Vitliano went around right end for a short gain of a yard and a half. On the following play McGlome threw a pretty forward to Courbois that netted seven more yards for the local boys. On the next play the Academy was penalized five yards for being off side. Academy tried another forward, McGlone to Courbois, which made first down but Courbois in trying to sidestep an opponent fumbled the ball and a Plainfield player recovered it. Plainfield's ball, first down. Tetreault gained one and a half yards off right tackle. Misura met a stone wall and failed to gain. Plainfield attempted a short forward that the Academy blocked. Stevens, on the last down, went back and sent a short high punt to Courbois who made twenty yards before being tackled. Radio Ed Brewer gained nine yards on two off-tackle plays and Norm Courbois who took the ball on the next play completely fooled his opponents by squirming through guard and running fifteen yards for the locals first score of the game. Courbois easily kicked the goal, adding the extra point to the score. Connell kicked off to Frenche on Plainfield's thirty-eight yard line as the quarter ended.

Second Quarter

Plainfield's ball, first down. Stevens lost one yard and a half on the first play. Plainfield then tried a forward pass which they failed to complete. Misura was held for no gain. Stevens threw a forward which Courbois intercepted, but fumbled, and the ball was recovered by a Plainfield player. First down, Plainfield. Misura gained three yards on a left tackle rush. On the following play Murphy threw Tetreault for a three yard loss. Frenche threw a forward to Gallup for a ten yard gain and another first down. Tetreault was again thrown for a three yard loss. Misura also lost three yards. Plainfield then attempted two forwards, both of which they failed to complete. Stevens went back and punted to Tombari who ran the ball forward ten yards before being downed. Tombari, on the first play made four yards on a short end run. C. Brewer carried the ball forward through left tackle for seven yards and first down. Tombari gained seven yards on a right tackle play. The Academy tried a forward that was incomplete. Norm Courbois slid between guard and tackle and made a beautiful run of twenty yards through a broken field. Ed Brewer gained two and a half yards through left guard. Pheno Tombari duplicated his quarterback's feat and went around right end for a pretty twenty yard gain. C. Brewer on a run around left end scored the second touchdown of the game. Courbois failed to kick the goal. Tombari kicked off to Misura on Plainfield's 40 yard line. Tetreault, on the first play was thrown for a two yard loss. Frenche threw a long forward that Tombari intercepted and ran forty-five yards for a touchdown. Courbois kicked the goal and added the extra point. Tombari kicked off, this time to Royle as the half ended. Score N. F. A. 20, Plainfield 0.

Third Quarter

Connell kicked off to the Academy but the ball went offside and Plainfield elected to have the Academy again kick. Connell again kicked off this time getting away a beautiful kick that went to Plainfield's twenty yard line. Tetreault gained seven yards off left tackle. Frenche made one yard between guard and tackle. Tetreault went over for first down. Frenche was thrown for a yard loss on the first play. On the second Stevens lost five yards. Frenche again took the ball but fumbled. He recovered himself but lost six yards. Plainfield tried another forward which was incomplete. Academy's ball, first down. Vitliano made five yards at left end. Ed Brewer made four and a half at left tackle. Courbois made first down on a thirteen yard run at left end. Vitliano on a run around left end reeled off eight yards before being downed. The local team tried a forward which Plainfield blocked. Vitliano made three yards and first down at right end. Two forward passes were tried by the Academy neither of which was successful. Courbois made three yards at end on the next play. McGlone six yards off left tackle. Plainfield's ball, first down. Misura on a run off left tackle gained five yards. Tetreault on a wide end run made fifteen yards. Misura was held for one yard loss. Tetreault on a cross buck mystified the entire local team and reeled another fifteen yard gain.

Fourth Quarter

Stevens threw a forward to Walsh for a half yard gain. Murphy threw Tetreault for a five yard loss. Frenche made one and a half yards around right end. Academy ball, first down. Pheno Tombari, on the first play, hit right tackle and went down the field for sixty yards to the Academy's fourth and final touchdown of the game. Tombari's run was a beautiful example of broken field play. Courbois failed in his attempt to kick the goal. Tombari kicked off to Misura who caught the ball on Plainfield's fifteen yard line and was downed immediately. Stevens, on a wide end run around the right side of the line gained four yards. Tetreault going through left tackle gained one yard. Misura went over for first down on the next play. Stevens went through right tackle for two yards. Tetreault gained six yards on an end run, Misura made a yard and a half through left tackle, Stevens threw a short forward to Walsh for a gain of half a yard, Misura got ten yards on a wide end run. Tetreault was thrown for a yard loss. Stevens made a three yard gain around right end. Tetreault made a yard and a half through left tackle. Plainfield threw a forward which Tombari intercepted and ran twenty-five yards with before being downed. Academy penalized five yards for off-side. Two forwards were tried, neither of which were completed. Pheno Tombari on a wide end run around the right side of the line made a twenty-five yard gain. C. Brewer tried a run around left end as the final whistle blew. Final score—N. F. A. 26, P. H. S. 0.

HARTFORD AND WINDHAM PLAY TO SCORELESS TIE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 25—Before a crowd of over one thousand football fans, Coach Thomas A. Callaghan's Windham High school eleven held the husky Hartford public high school gridders to a scoreless tie at the Recreation Park field Saturday afternoon. Only once did the Capitol City visitors threaten Windham's goal line, which has not been crossed in this city for three seasons and then, in the first quarter, the Crimson and Blue held on its own twenty yard mark for downs. After the first quarter, the locals outplayed their opponents in all departments. "Tommy" Melkie tried two dropkicks for Windham but both were unsuccessful.

Hartford came here with three victories and no defeats behind them. Their victims included Bulkeley High of New London, Crosby High of Waterbury and Weaver High of Hartford. When Coach Johnny Newell trotted two full teams out onto the field, things didn't look any too rosy for Windham, in fact the advance dope was that the game would result in a Hartford victory, but old man dope was forced to take another setback. Coach Callaghan's men showed a valuable aptitude to follow the ball, taking advantages of Hartford fumbles, which were several and they also showed plenty of aggressiveness.

Twice during the game, Windham had the ball within Hartford's ten yard line. Windham played the best football Saturday that it has exhibited all season. Next Saturday, Wilby High of Waterbury plays here.

NUTMEGS-LORRAINE GAME IS POSTPONED—RAIN

On account of the heavy rain Sunday the scheduled game between the Norwich Nutmegs and the Lorraine Football Club of Westerly was postponed to a later date, possibly next Sunday November 1. Sachem Field, the field where the game was to be held, was a sea of mud an hour before game time so the Nutmeg management immediately got in touch with the Westerly aggregation and called the game off. It is hoped that the game can be arranged for next week as local fans were on dge for this game and hope that it will be played in the near future.

The Nutmeg team will hold practices three nights this week, namely Monday, Wednesday and Friday which all members are requested to attend. The following will report this (Monday) evening, weather permitting at Chelsea Parade, head of Broadway at 7:30 sharp so that a good signal drill may be gone through: Butts, Carlin, Conerfry, Sullivan, MacLaren, Burns, Sterrill Chase, Al Williams, Ludlow, F. McGrath, C. McGrath, Kelly, Harris(Pallocha, Hagberg, Grover, Radinsky, Hyatt, Blinderman, R. Fidell Bobrishne, Adams, Perkowski and Steinman. It is urgent that the above men report as signals must be learned and practice must be gone through if a championship is to be had.

MORELAND'S TOE WINS FOR AGGIES OVER TUFTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

MEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 24.—After three straight beats in as many weeks the Connecticut Aggies returned to the victory column today, when they defeated Tufts here this afternoon by a score of 3-0. A drop kick by Moreland in the last quarter, with but five minutes left to play, provided the Aggies' margin of victory in a game that was closely contested and hard fought throughout.

Coach Dole presented a changed starting lineup against Tufts today, and one that showed real power in its running attack, even though no touchdowns were made. Costly fumbles lost two touchdowns for the Storrs team, as Connecticut consistently outrushed Tufts.

Captain Frink was unable to start in his usual position at left end because of a shoulder injury received in the Massachusetts Aggie game at Storrs last week. In his place was Logan, who captained the frosh team last year, and he turned in a fine performance for his afternoon's work. Daly, regular center for the past two seasons was shifted to right end by Coach Dole, where his ability to snatch forward passes out of the air could be better utilized. Lorentsen, substitute guard filled the center position well, making good passes and playing a strong defensive game.

For three periods the team battled to no score, and it was anybody's game. In the second period, after driving through the Tufts line and off the tackles, Connecticut drove deep into the territory of the Medford team, and a score seemed certain. Eddy, Connecticut's star halfback, made a pretty run around Tufts right end, carrying the ball to the Medford one yard line where he was hit by three Tufts men, fumbling the ball. It was carried across the goal line and into the end zone, where Tufts fell on it for a touchback, averting a sure Connecticut score.

In the third period Schofield made a pretty run back of the kickoff, bringing the ball from his ten to the thirty-five yard line. Here the Aggies were stopped and forced to punt. Tufts started an offense that gained thirty yards, but the Connecticut line held and McDonnell was brought out of the line to drop-kick. His boot fell short and it was Connecticut's ball on their own eight yard line. The period ended with the ball in midfield, a yard to go for first down, and in the Aggies possession.

As the final period ended it looked as though it would be a tie game similar to the Tufts Aggie game last year. The Aggies opened a drive that carried them to the Tufts twenty yard line, only to lose the ball on a fumble. McDonnell punted to Moreland on the Tufts forty-yard line, who ran the ball back twenty yards on the next play. Eddie tore around the Tufts end for twelve yards and a first down. The Aggies then tried a couple of line bucks and on fourth down Moreland went back to the twenty-five yard line and dropkicked the ball over.

Tufts threatened in the few remaining minutes of play, working down to Connecticut's thirty-yard line with a well functioning forward passing attack. Further gains were stopped, however, when Makofski, Connecticut's fullback, intercepted one of Tufts's heaves and it was Connecticut's ball. The Aggies punted to midfield and the game ended as Tufts was lining up for the first play.

The summary:

Tufts		Conn. Aggies
Bowker	Left End	Logan
McGrath	Left Tackle	Nanfeldt
True	Center	Lorentsen
Rosener	Right Guard	Johnson
Soule	Right Tackle	Zolin

RITOLA WINS 10-MILE RACE AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—Running over a heavy track entirely submerged by water, Willie Ritola, Olympic and Finnish champion, gained further athletic honors today by winning the national ten-mile A. A. U. championship run at the Lewisohn stadium. The Flyning Finn ploughed through mud and water to win the title, held last year by E. Earl Johnston, of Pittsburgh, by a lap and three quarters, from Fred Wachsmuth of the Millrose A. A.

The Finn covered the ten-mile distance in 53 minutes, 5 2-5 seconds. The world's record of 50.40 4-5 was set by Alfred Shrubb of England Nov. 15, 1904. The American championship mark is 51.03 2-5, held by Kahlenmainen.

LAUFER LOWERS BACK STROKE SWIMMING RECORD

CLEVELAND, Oct. 24—Walter Laufer, national back-stroke champion, lowered a world swimming record and established one in an indoor exhibition here tonight. Laufer swam the 200 meter backstroke in 2:42, lowering by 7 3-5 seconds the previous record held by Stubby Kruzer of Chicago. Laufer also established a new record for the 220 yard backstroke, making it in 2:43. These are said to be the lowest records in either outdoor or indoor tanks.

EASTERN COLLEGES RUN TRUE TO FORM IN SATURDAY'S CONFLICTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—(By the Associated Press)—Revived by play which defied the elements in running true to form and forecast, eastern collegiate football tonight had fully recovered from rude jolts of a week ago and was ready to push on to another round of titantic struggles with every member of the "Big Three" apparently counted out of the championship quest.

The elimination of Princeton from the title chase by versatile Eddie Tryon and Colgate, adding a new chapter of revolt against the old order of things to the fall of Yale before Pennsylvania and the decline of Harvard, was paralleled by a bold challenge hurled at the cleated feet of Pennsylvania and Army from the hills of Hanover, N. H., swooping down on hapless Harvard to crush the Crimson as they had never crushed them before. Dartmouth warriors elbowed themselves into position alongside Cadet and Quaker and tonight stood forth conspicuously in the front row of sixteen undefeated eastern contingents.

Cornell, also unbeaten but untried by keen opposition, straddled the path of both Dartmouth and Penn., while Army, adding St. Louis yesterday to its list of middle west victims, saw the championship goal line obstructed by a growling Yale Bulldog which had been refreshed and strengthened by a welcome banquet at the expense of the Providence Brown Bear.

Syracuse and Colgate, two remaining contenders among the teams with clean slates, were faced with the possibility of elimination either by formidable opposition from other elevens or in a battle which brings them together at Syracuse on Nov. 14. Penn State and Ohio Wesleyan confront the Orange in the next two weeks, however, while Colgate men whose title hopes are somewhat dimmed by a tie with Lafayette, apparently meet their only remaining major test in the Syracuse struggle.

Navy, Washington and Jefferson, Lehigh and Holy Cross, also among teams with unbroken victory strings for the campaign, have as yet failed to bring forth sufficient offensive power to claim the consideration which Army, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania have received. Navy's tie with Princeton likewise tends to diminish Annapolis chances.

Carnegie Tech, going down before Pittsburgh, and Georgetown, bowing before unbeaten Bucknell by the baseball score of 3-2, had their winning streaks shattered yesterday, but Boston college, Dickinson, Fordham, New York university and Penn Military college remained unchecked.

In spite of wet, soggy fields, dripping pigskins and slippery fingers, daring football prevailed in both east and west under most unfavorable conditions. Game and gambling offensives triumphed over the elements, particularly in the Washington and Jefferson victory against Lafayette, 7-6, Pennsylvania against Chicago, 7-0, and Dartmouth in a grim tussle with Harvard.

The superb Pennsylvania eleven, beaten only once last year and victor over Yale and Brown this season, maintained the east's big advantage over the middle west in the season's inter-sectional competition by bringing forward a defense equally as good as that of Chicago and flashing a stronger offense which thrived in the air.

Harvard, bewildered by the multiple passes of Dartmouth looked doubtfully ahead to the Princeton game two weeks hence, but found solace in the Tigers' tumble before Colgate. The reverse suffered by Roper's men was the more comforting to Harvard after the latter's two straight victories, because it marked defeat for the only remaining member of the "Big Three" which had escaped hitherto.

Fulfillment of the expectations yesterday gave football critics a chance to catch their breath before another heavy week-end promising turbulent scrimmages. Yale, although still erratic and uncertain against Brown, gave new evidence of potential strength likely to put the powerful Army machine to its stiffest test before the annual navy engagement. The gallant stand of Illinois against Michigan likewise set the stage for another gridiron threat at Philadelphia between the cohorts led by Red Grange and the conquering Pennsylvania host.

Added to these classics on the program were a clash of unbeaten teams in the mid-west, pitting Michigan against Navy, an attempt by Brown to stop Dartmouth, and tests of two New York winning streaks in promising encounters—Cornell coming to New York for its annual struggle with the best Columbia team since the revival of football at the metropolis university and Syracuse stacking up against a formidable, invading host from Penn State.

Princeton-Swarthmore, Colgate-Michigan Aggies, and Harvard-William and Mary co tests round out the major games in which eastern interest will be centered.

YALE ROWING SCHEDULE HAS BEEN ANNOUNCED

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 25—R. N. Jessup, of Cleveland, Ohio, manager of the Yale university crew, tonight announced the schedule of the oarsmen for 1926. The Yale-Harvard regatta next year will be a week later in the season than the races of last June as commencement will be a week later. The schedule follows:

May 8, Yale, Columbia, Pennsylvania at Derby; varsity, junior varsity and freshmen; all races two miles.

May 15, Yale, Harvard, Princeton 150-pound crews at Cambridge; mile and five sixteenths.

May 22, Yale, Princeton, Cornell at Ithaca; varsity, junior varsity and freshmen; all races two miles.

June 25, Yale and Harvard at New London; varsity, four miles, junior varsity, and freshmen, two miles.

It is probable that Yale will enter her third crew in the American Henley regatta to be held in Philadelphia on the Schuylkill on May 1.

MICHIGAN LEADS TEAMS IN WESTERN CONFERENCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 25. (AP)—Michigan with her goal line uncrossed this season, leads the Western conference tonight with three victories. Iowa has two victories and no defeats, just a step behind, but has an illinois touchdown and field goal on its records These two teams and Minnesota are the only conference teams without a shutout this season. Minnesota plays its first conference game next Saturday against Wisconsin.

The Michigan victories were over Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan Aggies, the latter non-conference. Half of the 126 points of Yost's powerful squad were scored on Indiana. Benny Friedman has scored almost one-fourth of the Michigan total, but there are six touchdown men on the team. The conference standing:

Team	W.	L.	T.	TP.	OP.
Michigan	3	0	0	126	9
Iowa	2	0	0	93	10
Chicago	0	0	1	13	10

N. E. CONFERENCE TEAMS FARE WELL ON SATURDAY

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 25.—(AP)—the exception of New Hampshire, which tied Springfield 10-10, every team in the New England college conference won their games yesterday.

Massachusetts Aggies overwhelmed Norwich, 54-19, Maine downed Bates 16-7, Connecticut Aggies tripped Tufts 3-0, and Rhode Island turned back City College of New York 12-7.

New Hampshire and Massachusetts Aggies are undefeated to date, though the Granite staters' record is marred by the tie contest with Springfield yesterday. Despite this, however, New Hampshire should rank with Massachusetts, and these two elevens are apparently the best in the New England conference. Unfortunately, they do not meet this year, which will make it impossible to settle definitely which should be adjudged the best conference team.

The result of the New Hampshire-Connecticut Aggies game to be played at Manchester, New Hampshire, November 7, and the Massachusetts Aggies-Springfield game to be played at Springfield, November 26, should give a fair index as to whether the New Hampshire or the Massachusetts Aggies can be considered the best team in the New England conference.

If Connecticut defeats New Hampshire, M. A. C. will take top honors by virtue of a 13-0 victory over the Nutmeggers last week, especially if Massachusetts can turn back Springfield later on. On the other hand, if the rugged Granite Staters overwhelm the Connecticut team, and Springfield manages to defeat M. A. C., then first honors must go to the New Hampshire eleven.

The Connecticut Aggies, which last year defeated every conference team is out of the running this season, having sustained defeats already at the hands of Massachusetts Aggies and Maine. Two conference games with New Hampshire and Rhode Island have yet to be played by the Nutmeggers, however, which if won, will considerably improve the standing of the Storrs team.

Maine came from behind yesterday to defeat Bates 16-7, in a game that showed the Pine Tree Staters could stage a strong comeback after their gruelling game with Dartmouth a week ago. Dickson, Maine's right guard, looks like the opportunist of the year among the linemen of the conference. Yesterday he recovered a blocked kick and ran fifty yards for a touchdown, duplicating his feat of two weeks ago, when single-handed he blocked a Connecticut Aggie drop kick, recovered the ball and raced seventy five yards for the only and winning touchdown of the game.

Rhode Island took advantage of the breaks yesterday, and aided by brilliant work on the part of Brown and Donnell in the backfield, turned back C. C. N. Y. As a contender for conference honors, however, Rhode Island was eliminated by a 26-0 defeat at the hands of New Hampshire earlier in the season.

GALE DOES DAMAGE TO HANGARS AND PYLON

BAY SHORE PARK, Baltimore, Oct. 25—Rain clouds over the international Jacques Schneider trophy seaplane race course had been vanquished tonight by a northwesterly gale which, while it afforded the racing pilots an anxious day with their charges, promised clear skies for the morrow. The race, originally scheduled for Saturday, was prevented by rain.

The canvas hangars of the racing ships stood the test of the gale during the day and tonight all the ship had escaped injury. All were kept firmly lashed. One navy pursuit ship, moored off shore, was carried away.

The British Gloster-Napier III reserve plane, which Pilot Bert Hinkler will make another attempt to qualify before the racing tomorrow, narrowly escaped serious injury when the gale struck, the presence of a crew of mechanics in its hangar saved it from being crushed against the hangar supports. As the ship shied before the blast, the crew leaped upon it and brought it to a halt with its wings a few inches from the pillars of the hangar.

The canvas front of one of the Italian hangars was shredded by the wing against the propeller blades of the big Macchi flying boat within, the plane's lashings held fast and it suffered no damage.

The prize marking the northwest angle of the triangular Schneider cup course, was destroyed. The slender tower erected on a barge was sheared off half way up. The contest committee said it would be replaced before the race. Today's storm also made it impossible the completion of the salvaging of the engine of the wrecked supermarine Napier S-4, which fell with Captain Henry C. Biard, British pilot, Friday. The supermarine's Napier-Lion engine was raised immediately after the wreck and lashed to floats. Weather conditions since have prevented its being pulled across a sandbar in front of the hangar runway.

MISSOURI AND IOWA LEAD VALLEY CONFERENCE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Missouri and Iowa, State will fight it out at Columbia for the leadership of the Missouri Valley conference next Saturday.

The two are tied at the top of the list with two victories each and no defeats.

Ames, playing Washington yesterday faced defeat until the latter part of the final period when a brilliant aerial attack netted three touchdowns in quick succession. Missouri, battling the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan won by the bare margin of a field goal from Captain Whiteman's toe.

Nebraska retained its ascendency over Kansas yesterday at Lincoln and won from the Jayhawkers 14 to 0.

What is thought to be a record for modern football was made in the Drake-Grinnell game at Grinnel when Drake players were tackled behind their own line for three safeties, making all of Grinnell's six points.

Drake won 7 to 6, and retained third place in the Valley standings.

Oklahoma battled Southern Methodist University to a standstill at Dallas and won 9 to 6. And the Oklahoma Aggies won easily from Texas Christian 32 to 7 in non-conference games.

MALONE GETS EXTRA MONEY FOR GAMENESS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 25—Because he refused to quit after having been fouled twice in his fight last night with Tiger Flowers, negro pugilist of Atlanta, Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight, was richer by $1,000 today.

Captain "Billy" Fawcett, Twin Cities fight promoter presented Malone with a check for $1,000 in addition to his guaranteed purse for what he characterized as a "real service to the sport of boxing."

LOCAL BOYS SHOW WELL WITH AGGIE FRESHMEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn. Oct. 24.—The Connecticut Aggie Freshman eleven battered its way to a clean-cut victory over the strong Milford School eleven here this afternoon on Gardner Dow field, 14 to 0. The Aggie squad outplayed the prep school boys in all departments of the game, scoring 14 first downs to one for Milford.

Gridiron warriors from the eastern part of the state played a prominent part in the Aggies first win. McNamara, former Norwich star, played a slashing game at guard. Hewitt, formerly of Chapman Tech., took care of the right end position in fine style. Milford making no gains at all around his side of the line. Allard, the heavy back from Plainfield High, gained at will against the prep boys. Usher of Windham got into the game during the last quarter. Gilman, the light but aggressive guard from Norwich, was injured in practice last week and didn't get into the game, but he will be ready for next week's game.

FOOTBALL HOLDS CENTER OF ATHLETIC STAGE FOR A FEW MORE WEEKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. (AP)—Bustling autumn winds, sweeping over a national gridiron of colorful combat and blowing light rumors of baseball trades for the mythical stovepipe league, hurried sportdom ahead this week to a warm and inviting indoor campaign.

Battles of the ring and the professional basketball court were already drawing their share of the reviewing throngs which only two weeks ago sheived the baseball scorecard and the traditional warfare on the umpire. But indications today were that the struggle of the moleskin-clad armies would completely overshadow the field at least another month, with more than a million spectators at collegiate classic, weekly.

Fully 400,000 alone looked upon ten outstanding contests of the east and middle west yesterday. The place held in the esteem of Philadelphia fandom by Eddie Rommel of diamond fame passed t othe broad shoulders of Al Krues of Pennsylvania; Red Grange of Illinois and Cowboy Kutsch, of Iowa made the West forget Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby; Eddie Tyron of Colgate and Andy Oberlander of Dartmouth and Harry Wilson of Army basked in the glare of a spotlight which only a few days before had been turned on Walter Johnson, Hasen Cuyler and Max Carey.

Never befere has football clamored so loudly for recognition as America's most popular amateur sport. Its place in the realm of the simon pure as balancing that of major league baseball in the professional sphere has been strengthened this year by the unanswerable argument of record-breaking crowds.

Baseball yielded the center of the stage this fall more readily than in former years. The trade winds of the diamond, which began to howl loudly out of Pittsburgh during the closing chapters of the world series, tonight had died to a mere whisper and the stovepipe league had adjourned sine die without an exchange of players in sight after clinging desperately to an empty rumor of New York-Cincinnati and Boston-Washington trades for over a week.

But there remained behind a few choice morsels, among which was Tony Lazerre's record of 60 home runs in the Pacific Coast league—A warning salvo of competition for Babe Ruth from a new Yankee player next season. For Tony will join Bob Meusel and Lou Gehrig in circuit-clouting warfare with the Babe as a member of the New York Americans in 1926, and though Ruth has turned his back upon the threat to trail the moose and bear through Canadian wilds, it will be there to greet him next spring when he thaws out in the training camp.

The first major event of the indoor pugilistic campaign will be whisked in tomorrow night at Newark, N. J., on the wings of unfavorable comment from ring critics who choose the occasion to aim at Harry Wills the verbal guns hitherto trained upon Champion Jack Dempsey.

They look upon a 12-round, no decision match between Wills and Floyd Johnson, western heavyweight, as lacking in the elements which go to make up a well balanced bout and as precluding any opportunity for Wills to improve his standing. They point to the fact that Johnson was knocked out by Jess Willard and Jack Renault in 1923, and that the following year he met defeat at the hands of Jack Sharkey, Tiny Herman, Tony Fuente and Pat Lester. Predictions for a speedy Wills knockout were freely made.

Matchers of greater promise smothered the ruffled edges of the opening indoor effort, however. Paul Berlenbach's impressive display of punching power in stopping King Solomon focused new interest on his light-heavyweight title defense early in December against Jack Delaney, while the tentative machine of Harry

WEEK END AUTOMOBILE MISHAPS NOTED IN AND ABOUT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26.—Felix Kelley, United States coast guard, stationed aboard the patrol boat 186, state pier, was arrested Saturday night by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan, charged with violation of the automobile law in blocking traffic and operating a motor vehicle without having a license for registration. He will be in police court Monday morning. His automobile was held as surety for the appearance of the accused.

Lorain C. MacPherson, 1 Stetson street, Norwich, reported to police early Sunday morning that while he was backing his automobile at the corner of Deehon street and Unoco avenue, the car was ditched and in order to get the machine back on the highway a wrecking device had to be brought into service. MacPherson also stated that his automobile was damaged.

The automobile owned and driven by Louis Ellonsky, 26 Moore avenue, struck and injured Alex Eskagina, a youth residing at 93 Potter street, on Bank street, Saturday evening. The youth was crossing the street and walked in front of the machine, being knocked to the pavement with considerable force, sufficient to cause lacerations of the head and scalp. He was taken to the office of a physician where the wounds were dressed.

An automobile owned and driven by Theodore Tucker, 71 Thames street, Groton, and a public service automobile, owned and operated by George Librizzi, 135 Jefferson avenue, were in collision Saturday evening at Bank street, corner of Pearl street. Both cars were damaged.

Pomeroy Robertson, 10 Alger Place, will be in the police court Monday morning on a charge of reckless driving as the result of the machine he was driving colliding with the iron bridge on the approach to the Thames river highway bridge, this forenoon. Robertson has twice before been arrested and convicted on a reckless driving charge, one conviction being established in New London and the other in Waterford. Robertson was bound from Groton to New London and when his car reached a point where there is a highway leading to the United States Coast Guard Sectional Base, state Pier, a truck belonging to the coast guard driven by Wentworth G. Gace in which were Charles Hannigan, L. Sawyer and Norman Lovery, was about to divert its course from the bridge approach to the approach to the state pier Robertson was travelling at an estimated speed of 35 miles an hour and to avoid a collision Robertson's car crashed against the iron fence.

An automobile, a Hudson sedan, owned and operated by George P. Graves, East Greenwich, R. I., was wrecked this forenoon and Miss Babe Lillegren, a passenger sustained lacerations about the face and head, when the car crashed against a stone wall and through a fence at the foot of Fort Hill, Poquonoc. Miss Lillegren is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital. Graves was taken into custody and will be in the Groton town court Monday morning on a charge of reckless driving.

Graves was operating the automobile down the steep incline of the dangerous grade and when nearing the bottom the car started to skid on the wet surface, made slippery by a heavy rain. Before Graves could get the machine under control, it left the side of the highway and plunged over the wall and then crashed through the fence. Graves escaped injury, but Miss Lillegren was cut by the shattered glass of the windshield. She was attended by Dr. E. P. Douglass, after which she was removed to Lawrence hospital for further treatment.

John McCarthy or Felix McGrath, whatever his name is, has a lot to learn before he succeeds in the business he is engaged in—that of investigator for the state police in the direction of liquor law violations, or as some of the worldly fellows call him, a stool pigeon, who is sent out to decoy offenders and trap them. He says he is actuated in doing what he is seeking to do by a desire to retaliate for a wrong that was done him, and he says he will continue his course while liquor is unlawfully sold. McCarthy claims he, when residing in Waterbury, was on a drunk and that poisoned liquor was sold him. He declares that he was made sick then and that when he recovered he made up his mind that every seller or hooch or poisoned liquor he could get hold of should answer before the bar of justice. He does not disclose that he caused any prosecutions in Waterbury—in the city where poisoned liquor is sold, according to his statements. Instead he came here, where he at one time worked, and where he had some acquaintances. Here he picked up strangers indiscriminately and they are manifestly men of questionable character. Them he made decoys of and induced them to buy liquor wherever he thought it could be secured. He made dupes of them, though there was no reason for that on the fact of his transactions with alleged sellers of the bad liquor. He was a civilian and he could, supposedly, have bought liquor where it was sold as easily as could the fellows he induced to buy it. He says he secured a sailor in several instances to buy for him, and in other cases he picked up men who were soliciting money with which to buy food. He himself, as admitted, donned the uniform of a sailor in the service of the United States government and in that uniform he deceived the parties he says who sold to him, that act being in itself an unlawful one. He sought to induce men to violate the laws because they would make a few dollars by so doing, but he also had the incentive of securing money for himself for he admitted as a witness that he was in the pay of the state police as a buyer of liquor, or as the party who furnished the money to buy and who was in league with the men who bought. It was alleged by the defending party that the money McCarthy obtained in his activities was the inducement that led him into the employment of the state police.

The veracity of McCarthy is under suspicion by his recital of what he alleged to be facts to the prosecutor and the latter so stated in open court, Saturday, when he declared that McCarthy did not tell the same alleged facts on the witness stand that he told to him and on which the prosecutions were based. McCarthy told the prosecutor that he himself bought the liquor in several places whereas under oath he disclosed that he did not buy, but that his accomplice was the buyer. The prosecuter asked to have three cases nolled on the statements McCarthy made as a witness Saturday and the court allowed the nolles to be entered in the disposition of the cases.

It is alleged that McCarthy is traveling under an assumed name and that in fact he is Felix McGrath, a man who is living apart from his wife. McCarthy declared to a witness that he never was known as Felix McCarthy, but in the face of that statement one of the state police referred to him several times while testifying as Felix. In one of the many cases so far heard has conviction resulted from a trial, that being in the case of Nicholas Haddad, heard Saturday. In the other cases pleas of guilty were entered and fines were imposed. Haddad tried out his case and he was convicted. He appealed and on the action of the court of common pleas will depend the final disposition of that case. In two cases Judge Prince found the accused not guilty because of the nature of the testimony which, he stated from the bench, savored of being such as might come from collusion. He said he would not convict upon such testimony and he discharged the accused.

It is to be supposed that so competent a lawyer as Prosecutor Hollandersky went over the evidence in the possession of the state's representative and that he had the facts before him when he made the complaints to the court and asked for the punishment of the offenders. In an allegation against Pumerantz, keeping a locker hall on Green street, it was represented to the prosecutor that Nathan Pumerants was the offender, yet when the case was put on trial McCarthy failed to identify Nathan Pumerantz, but picked out Benjamin Pumerantz as the man who sold liquor. The Nathan Pumerantz complaint was nolled. It was the same story in the complaint against Stavros, when the case was begun, and McCarthy could not identify the accused as the man who sold to him. That case was dismissed. It is apparent that some one has blundered in securing the evidence against these men accused, and that the blunders are of such a nature that they are not regarded as natural mistakes for a man to make. With his desire to clean up the sellers of harmful liquor, McCarthy has not hesitated to drink what he bought, according to his own statements. That does not appear as convincing as to his statement that he was poisoned by liquor and that his desire is to punish the sellers of that which harms anyone who drinks it. The prosecutions brought here the past week will encourage law-abiding citizens to make a more determined effort than ever to wipe out the business but public sentiment desires that the offenders shall be trapped in a way that will leave no doubt that they are engaged in violating the law, and that such evidence shall be obtained by men who are sincere in the desire to wipe out the trade, and to put a stop to it while there is a law against it.

The outcome of cases that are yet to be tried will be watched with interest. The accused have engaged attorneys to represent them and they are in for a contest that will be enlightening. Tuesday and Thursday next there are cases assigned with the same accuser who has appeared in the cases disposed of. McCarthy is understood to be a guest at the state police barracks in Groton and there he will be located until the trials are disposed of.

Sidney O. Keeney, 31, died Saturday morning at his residence, Thames View, Waterford, after an illness of several months with tuberculosis. He is survived by his wife and five children, together with several brothers.

M. P. Currier, of Boston, Saturday night communicated with the police requesting assistance in locating his son, M. K. Currier, jr., who is missing from his home. The young man left by automobile Saturday for his home but did not reach there. Inquiry was made at several local hotels, but the young man was not registered there.

Miss Frances Brightwell, Bannon House, Connecticut college, where she is a student, reported to the police Saturday night that while walking along Main street earlier in the evening she lost a three-strand string of pearls.

Youths this afternoon forced an entrance to the building of the New London Hebrew Educational society, corner of Frost and Hillsdale streets by smashing a window. The police ascertained the identity of the boys but they will not be prosecuted because officers of the society have made it known that the arrest of the boys is not desired.

Andrew Richards, abut 70, of Niantic, dropped dead from heart disease on Douglass street Friday afternoon Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman who investigated the facts pronounced Richard's death due to chronic heart trouble. Richards had been in New London since about noon and about 2 o'clock while passing through Douglass street, between Water and North Bank streets, he was observed to collapse, falling to the sidewalk where his body rolled several feet before stopping. A telephone message was sent to the police station. Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Augustus Ray were dispatched to Douglass street, where they found the man dead. Richards has a family residing in Niantic.

Mrs. Mary B. Knight, 87, widow of Henry I. Knight, died Friday night at the residence of her son-in-law, Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church, 92 Ramsdell street, Groton, death resulting from an illness of a week from bronchial pneumonia. Mrs. Knight had been a resident of Providence all her life, having moved to Groton about six years ago. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Atha, Mrs. Knight is survived by another daughter, Miss Bessie Knight, of Providence, and a son, Herbert Knight, of Montclair, N. J.

FILIPINO BOOTLEGGING LEADS TO SECOND ARREST

NEW LONDON, Oct. 25—Felix Palma and Gurilimo Manilila, Filipinos, and members of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 187, stationed at the state piere were taken into custody early Saturday morning by State Policeman Henry Albright, Groton barracks, charged with having liquor in their possession for sale. Their case was continued until Monday morning and in default of a surety on their respective bonds they were remanded to jail.

Officer Albright was in the vicinity of State and Main street for the purpose of endeavoring to detect a man wanted for violation of the liquor law and observed Palma and Manilila, each with grips approaching. Suspecting that the Filipinos had liquor in the grips, Albright held them up and his suspicion proved well founded for the Filipinos had four quarts of liquor. Palma and Manilila were taken into custody and when questioned they revealed a story, which, if true, will probably result in the arrest of an officer of the patrol boat, for the story, if correct, implicates the officer with conniving with the rum-fleet officers off Block Island. Palma and Manilila declared that the 147 was in the vicinity of Rum Row Friday afternoon when the master of a supposed lumber laden schooner caused a case of whiskey to be lowered overboard which case was picked up by the crew of the patrol boat. The whiskey was put aboard the coast guard craft and was taken in charge by the officer. During the task of picking up the case of whiskey the patrol boat was hurled against the side of the schooner, resulting in the smaller boat being damaged. When the patrol boat reached New London harbor it was decided that repairs should be made and the boat was taken to the Thames shipyard. Arriving there early Saturday morning the master of the boat, according to the Filipinos, placed all but four quarts of the liquor in his locker, giving the remainder of the booze to the Filipinos. The four quarters were placed in the grips that were in the custody of Palma and Manilila when they were arrested. The state police and officers at the sectional base are continuing their investigation.

arrested this afternoon charged with violation of the liquor law as the result of evidence being obtained against him by Charles Hannigan, a member of the United States Coast guard local section base, No. 4, State pier. A considerable quantity of evidence was obtained, and Deptula was held for trial, in the police court Monday morning, furnishing a cash bond of $100 for his appearance.

Hannigan appeared at the police station during the early morning and declared that he had purchased a pint of liquor at Deptula's place and that the liquor was the same brand as that which Palma and Manilila were possed of when arrested Saturday. As the case was one in which the state police were interested Hannigan was referred to the Groton barracks with his information. This afternoon State Policemen Fred Caron and Bernard Kenerson, with sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolmen William Graham, William Corcoran and Edward Riordan armed with a search warrant, issued by Judge Victor Prince, swooped down upon the Main street place. As the officers entered the place, Deptula and his wife and two daughters attacked the raiders, the two girls using broom handles as weapons. All were overpowered and a quantity of liquor, hooch and $1500 in cash was seized.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

Young Lochinvar's come out of the west. And with him, he's brought the best "western" of the year. In this case Victor Fleming, well-known producer of movie thrill-dramas is our Lochinvar, and the name of his picture is A Son of His Father.

Harold Bell Wright, the favoite author of millions of Americans, wrote the story. After seeing it on the screen the secret of his popularity is easily seen. There is never a quiet moment or the least drag in the action. "Big Boy" Morgan, the "Son"; Nora the girl who comes to find her brother; Charlie Grey, the sick friend; Holdbrook, the villain; Zobester the head of the smugglers, and all the rest are just such people as one is apt to meet every day.

It is the tale of cattle rustlers and their never ending quarrel with the ranchers. Morgan is a young rancher who was sworn to clear Arizona of those men who over-run it. Then little Nora, a young Irish girl arrives on the scene.

A fine cast is headed by Warner Baxter, Bessie Love and Raymond Hatton. Other players include Walter McGrail, Carl Stockdale, Billy Eugene, James Farley, Charles Stevens, Valentina Zemina and George Kuwa.

Victor Fleming the producer of Empty Hands, Adventure and The Devil's Cargo directed A Son of His Father, Anthony Coldeway, scenarized Wright's novel. It's a Paramount at the Palace theater today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

At the Breed

Red-hot romance is the dominant keynote of His Supreme Moment, the new First National picture now playing at the Breed theater.

A beautiful and luxury-loving New York actress falls in love with a young mining engineer and promises that they spend a year in South America as brother and sister before making their final decision. Faced with the hardships of the primitive life, the girl loses beauty, and her love for the man is submerged. Yet when he is attacked by rebellious native miners, she saves his life in a spectacular fight which ends in the burning of the mine buildings.

Back in New York, the man pleads to the blandishments of a young actress who was instrumental in financing his mining venture, and who aided in making the trial marriage a failure. The actress returns to the stage, where she is co-starred with her mother, also a successful actress. An unnatural material jealousy is overcome and the mother succeeds in uniting the girl and the young mining engineer.

Blanche Sweet and Ronald Colman portray the New York actress and the mining engineer who experiment with love. With her characterization of the fancy-loving daughter of Broadway Miss Sweet adds new laurels to her long list of screen successes and Ronald Colman, as the fiery lover restrained by his promise, amply justifies Samuel Goldwyn's prediction that he would be a leading candidate for the 1925 title of "perfect screen lover."

To emphasize a play-within-a-play effect, George Fitzmaurice, the producer, has photographed two gorgeous stage productions in full natural color by the improved Technicolor process in His Supreme Moment.

The picture is an adaptation from a novel by May Edginton and is a Samuel Goldwyn offering through First National.

WESTERLY

For a brush and wood fire off Mystic avenue, Pawcatuck, near Clarkeville Village, Pawcatuck fire whistle, No. 41, Clarkeville, was sounded Friday afternoon about 1:15 o'clock. The P. S. Barber Hose company firemen responded and a line of hose was laid to a hydrant to prevent the spread of flames, which endangered adjacent buildings. Thick black smoke arose from the burning brush, which gave the appearance of a large fire. The firemen returned to their house on Liberty street about 2:30 o'clock, the recall sounding at 2:45. The effective work of the fire fighters prevented the spread of the flames and the loss was trifling.

Bound for the football game in Providence, Saturday morning, Douglas G. Hill of 66 Clinton Place, Bronx, N. Y., driving a Ford touring car, with three companions crashed into the rear of the Overnight trucking bus to New York, drivne by Benjamin H. Rose, of 89 Hempston street, New London. The latter's son, who was sitting on the tailboard sustained injuries to his left leg just above the heel, which was bruised when struck by the radiator of the touring car. Hill suffered minor cuts on his hand. Dr. M. H. Scanlon who was passing treated the injured young men. The hood of the touring car was bent, twisted and jammed and the radiator sprung. The glass in the windshield was thrown mostly into the rear of the truck. The collision occurred just on the Connecticut side of the boundary, on the Pawcatuck river bridge. Patrolman C. Wilson Brown of Pawcatuck investigated and found that the number plate "P-9490 Conn." of Clarkson Barnes of 157 High street, Bristol, Conn., a classmate of the operator of the car, had been taken with the owner's consent for use on the touring car, but the driver agreed to pay all damages. It was claimed that when the brakes were set on the touring car the wheels were on the electric street car rails on the bridge, so that it continud to skid until the crash. Temporary repairs were made to enable the party to reach Providence in time for the game. An extension of the no parking zone by the Westerly town council meeting, in special sesion last Friday morning, was amended to read that parking was prohibited on the north side of the Rhode Island end of the Pawcatuck river bridge, and the advantage of having no cars there became apparent in the traffic congestion, which followed the smash.

An automobile accident in Dixon square investigated by Patrolman George H. Champlin involved three automobiles, Sunday morning about 11 o'clock, when the rain poured down its hardest. A Dodge roadster driven by Mrs. Delia E. Glossenger of East Lyme, came out of the driveway of the Rhode Island hotel, just as a Ford touring car driven by Wilfred Lord, of Wickford, R. I., accompanied by Albert Kuling, of the same place was passing, headed toward Elm street. As the Ford automobile was swung to the left to avoid hitting the Dodge car, it smashed into the Ford coupe of William J. Wood, of Stonington, who was accompanied by Henry Friedman of that place, the coupe was parked at the curb line and headed in the other direction on the opposite side of Broad street from the hotel driveway. The coupe sustained a broken front spring, bent front axle and a broken left running board and front fender. The Ford touring car had a sprung radiator and broken headlight. Mrs. Glossenger admitted her responsibility and agreed to pay the damages.

"Evacuation Day" was observed by Hancock Post, No. 81, G. A. R., of Connecticut, which now has for surviving members Charles H. Holdridge of Pawcatuck, Stephen W. Collins, Westerly, and Nathan Lewis, of Pawcatuck. Members of Amos P. Chapman camp, Sons of Veterans, was engaged on Saturday in removing their furniture and fittings from their rooms in the Westerly Memorial and Library association building on Broad street. The flag, banners and furniture were taken to Vets' Hall in the Walton block, West Broad street, where it will be in the custody of the Sons of Veterans. Budlong Post, No. 18, G. A. R., of Westerly continues to occupy post rooms in the Memorial building. It has been stated that the room occupied by the Connecticut G. A. R. men for many years is now needed for other purposes.

It was learned Saturday, that Donald Brown Fancher, Westerly amateur radioist "1BVD," chief projectionist for Westerly and Hope Valley picture houses and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Fancher, of Franklin street, married Sunday Oct. 11 Miss Frances Arlene Davis of Pawcatuck. The wedding took place in West Mystic where Rev. Byron C. Hatfield, pastor of the First Baptist church of Westerly performed the ceremony.

DEATH OF WILLIAM CLARK IN A NEW YORK HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 25—Having gone to New York in company with his wife a week ago Saturday for hospital treatment, William Clarke, 68, of 42 Elm street, died Saturday morning about 11 o'clock at St. Luke's hospital, New York. Mr. Clark had taken an active interest in business, political, religious and recreational activities of the town.

He was the son of William and Mary Stuart Connell Clark, born in Paisley, Scotland, Sept. 23, 1857. When he was 8 years old his parents moved to Newark, N. J. Mr. Clark obtained his early schooling in Newark and entered the thread manufacturing business in the mills operated there by his father. He continued with the Clark Thread mill in Newark until 1891, when with his father and brother, R. K. Clark, came to Westerly and organized and operated the William Clark Thread company in Pawcatuck, where a large mill was built. The American Thread company took over the Clark mill interests in 1899. William Clark continued with the mill as superintendent and agent until April 1924, when ill health caused his resignation. He was president for many years of the Westerly Light and Power company, and a director of the Westerly branch of the Industrial Trust company, also a director of the Narragansett Electric Light company in Providence.

He held membership in the Misquamicut golf club at Watch Hill, the Agawam Hunt club, Rhode Island country club, and the Hope club, of Providence and was a member of the Wool club and Senior Golf association of New York and the Colonial club of Westerly.

He married in Newark Ada McGregor, of Newark, and to them were born three children, Jennet McGregor, whose death occurred in the Bradford train wreck on April 17, 1916; William McGregor, a graduated of Yale, class of 1918, connected with the American Thread company at Willimantic, and Robert Stuart, a graduate of Yale, class of 1923, now at Lancaster, Penn. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell, of Westerly and Mrs. Mary Clark Darrach of Hopkinton, N. H. and a brother, Robert K. Clark of Springfield, Mass. Mr. Clark's body was brought to Westerly Saturday night on the Bostonian express.

LEGAL NOTICES

MAYOR'S OFFICE
CITY OF NORWICH, CONNECTICUT

The electors of The City of Norwich in the State of Connecticut are hereby warned to meet in special city meeting in the Town Hall in the Court House Building in said City of Norwich on Monday, the second day of November, A. D. 1925, at eight o'clock in the evening for the following objects and purposes, viz:

1. To determine whether or not said meeting will authorize and sanction the borrowing by the city of a sum of money not to exceed one hundred sixty thousand dollars on notes or certificates of indebtedness of the city in anticipation of the receipt of the sale of bonds by the city under the provisions of an act of the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut entitled "An Act Authorizing the City of Norwich to Issue Water Bonds" passed at its January Session 1925 and approved May 21st, 1925; said sum so to be borrowed to be used for the purpose of meeting the expenses that may be incurred by the city under the appropriation authorized by a special city meeting of the city held August 4th, 1925 for a permanent water supply for said city, such sum so to be borrowed to be repaid out of the avails of said bonds, when issued.

2. To determine whether or not said meeting by vote will approve and authorize the issuance of bonds by the city to the amount of one million eighty thousand dollars ($1,080,000.00), either at once time or in different issues under the provisions of an act of the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut entitled "An Act Authorizing The City of Norwich to Issue Water Bonds" passed at its January Session 1925 and approved May 21st, 1925.

Dated at Norwich, Connecticut, October 24th, A. D. 1925.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—(By the A. P.)—Extreme buoyancy of the stock market, which advanced to record high levels on an unprecedented volume of business, and acute weakness of French francs, which collapsed to the lowest level in nearly twenty months, were both the most interesting and contrasting features of this week's financial markets.

While the advance in stock prices has received much of its impetus from the operations of professional pools, which were aided by abundant credit facilities, there is a feeling in some quarters that the recent sustained rise in security prices has been founded on something more than speculation.

Unusual prosperity obviously exists in several lines of industry, particularly in the automotive field, and such recognized leaders as E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation and Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank, have only recently expressed their confidence in the soundness of the business structure, and have predicted prosperity for the months to come.

The week's advance in stock prices, with a few conspicuous exceptions, was an orderly one. Commission house brokers report that one of the most unusual features of recent trading has been the growing investment demand, as reflected in the increasing cash and odd-lot business, and the relatively strong position of margin accounts.

While the most violent fluctuations have taken place in the speculative motors and specialties, such standard industrials and rails as United States Steel common, American Can, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Marland Oil, North American company, American Smelting, American Tobacco, Southern Railway, New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio all have broken through to the highest levels in a year or more.

Weakness of French francs reflects the financial crisis that has again arisen in France as a result of unsolved external debt and budget problems. Sterling exchange, on the other hand, developed strength in the face of another heavy outflow of gold from England to the United States, demand bills being quoted today at 4.84 1-2, a new top on the current movement.

FAIR, COLDER TODAY; RAIN TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1799 1925

NORWICH, CONN., MONDAY, OCT. 28, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Monday, Oct. 26, 1925

WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over Ohio Saturday night has moved northeastward to Maine and the lower Saint Lawrence valley. This disturbance has increased decidedly in intensity and it became a severe storm during Sunday. The barometer reading at Eastport, Maine, 8 p. m., being 28.80.

Pressure remains high over the north Pacific states and the vicinity of Bermuda and it is relatively high and rising over the Ohio valley and Tennessee. The eastern storm has been attended generally by rains over the eastern half of the country, except Florida peninsula and by shifting gales in the north Atlantic states, the highest wind velocity being 88 miles an hour from the northwest at New York city.

The western disturbance will advance eastward and it will be attended by rain almost generally east of the Mississippi river in the next 6 hours. The weather will remain generally fair until Monday night, however, in the middle Atlantic and the north Atlantic states. The temperature will be lower Monday in the north Atlantic states and Tuesday and Tuesday night over most sections east of the Mississippi river. Storm warnings remained displayed along the New England coast.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Westerly gales diminishing Monday with fair weather.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Diminishing winds and northwest with fair weather Monday.

Forecast

Eastern New York: Generally fair and colder, except probably snow flurries in extreme north portion Monday; Tuesday rain in south and rain or snow in north portion.

Northern New England: Partly cloudy and colder, possibly snow flurries in north portion Monday; Tuesday snow or rain.

Southern New England: Fair and colder Monday; Tuesday rain.

MOTION LIST MATTERS FOR COMMON PLEAS

The following matters are on the motion list for the short calendar session of the common pleas court which is to be held at New London this (Monday) morning at 10 o'clock:

Alexander H. Manes vs. Max Sternlieb, disclosure of defense or judgment; Waterman & Wolfe vs. Mary J. Rogers, argument of demurrer.

Some women are so backward that they are always several years shy when it comes to telling their ages.

Straighten Up! Nicest Laxative, "Cascarets" 10c

Don't stay headachy, dizzy, sick. Nothing else relieves that bilious, constipated feeling so nicely as candy-like "Cascarets." Take one or two of these pleasant laxative tablets any time, to gently stimulate your liver and start your bowels. Then you will feel fine, your head becomes clear, stomach sweet, tongue pink, skin rosy.

"Cascarets" gently cleanse, sweeten and refresh the entire system. They never gripe, overact or sicken. Directions for men, women and children on each box, any drugstore.

FORESTER DAVIS SUFFERS SEVERE INJURIES IN FALL FROM TREE

Henry E. Davis, 68, of 138 Palmer street, who has made forestry his calling for years, was severely injured about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon in a fall from a tree on North Main street, sustaining nine broken ribs, a broken collar bone and concussion of the brain. He is at the Backus hospital in a semi-conscious state and the report is that his condition is serious. The nature of his injuries is such that there is fear of pneumonia developing.

Mr. Davis was at work with Andrew Banker in the employ of the street department in clearing away a big limb from an oak tree that had been blown off in the storm and had lodged against an electric light pole on the westerly side of North Main street between the Hourigan and Sylvia gas stations. A line crew from the city electric department was also at work and Davis was up in the tree about 30 feet from the ground when a limb suddenly broke off, letting him fall.

As Davis felt himself going, he shouted to Banker who was on the ground under him and fell almost at Banker's side. He landed on the ground in a sitting position and although he did not hit the concrete highway at this point, the force of his fall was enough to knock him out.

A telephone call for the ambulance was made but before it could respond Joseph F. Ring, who had come along in his automobile volunteered to take the injured man to the hospital in his machine. At the hospital, where Davis was attended by Dr. J. J. Donohue, it was found that he had seven ribs on his left side and two on his right broken, collarbone broken, and concussion of the brain.

Earlier in the afternoon Davis has cleared away the wreckage of limbs that blew off a tree on Washington street near the Eliza Huntington Memorial home.

Another bit of tree wreckage that had to be cleared up by the street department was on Laurel Hill avenue opposite the home of G. Everett Hall.

The Greeneville section of the city was without street light Sunday night because of the damage to wires by the tree on North Main street, where Mr. Davis was injured.

HENRY J. LAFONTAINE TO BE ST. PATRICK'S ORGANIST

It became known Sunday that the rector of St. Patrick's church, Monsignor May, had engaged Henry J. LaFontaine as organist, to succeed Frank L. Farrell, now organist of St. Mary's church, New Haven. Mr. LaFontaine will play for the first time the coming Sunday, Nov. 1st. For over six years he has been organist at St. Mary's Memorial church, Norwich, Rev. William A. Keefe pastor.

Mr. LaFontaine is a graduae of St. Patrick's school and of Norwich Free academy; while at the parish school he studied music with the Sisters of Mercy, teachers at the Perkins avenue convent. Later he was a pupil of Frank L. Farrell. After graduating from N. F. A. he studied with Siquismund Stojowski, of New York city, one of the most noted pianist-composers before the public, and perfected technique with him. He has made many public appearances as a concert pianist throughout the state, and as accompanist for well-known artists. He was organist for Rev. Frt. Macejewski at St. Joseph's church, Norwich for a year, then at St. Mary's for Fr. Wm. A. Keefe from June 1919 to date.

At St. Mary's, his choir was known for its excellence, and under his direction acquired a most enviable reputation, both in Catholic and non-Catholic circles. The dedication of St. Mary's new church was a musical event. Mr. LaFontaine has appeared in numerous concerts. He has studied singing, under instruction of Frederick S. Weld and Miss Helen L. Perkins and the last two years with Charles J. Dyer. He has been vocally endorsed by great New York singers and teachers. He is just back from a European tour of four months of travel, coaching and association with the world's best known artists; was a guest of Josef Schwarz, Chicago Opera baritone; coached in Baden-Baden with Rose, director of Vienna Opera. In Bayreuth, Mr. Dyer's intimate friendship with Sigfried Wagner opened all musical doors and the American tourists were invited by the Wagners to assist in all the musical gatherings and dinners at the great Bayreuth Festival. In Munich, they were guests of Baron Frankenstein in attendance of opera, attending in the Royal Box. Mr. La Fontaine coached with Julius Schweitzer, Kappellamelster of European fame. He had organ study and work in Roessanone.

With Mr. LaFontaine's ability, enthusiasm and thorough preparation, he is certain to do great things as choir director at St. Patrick's.

DIES ON VISIT IN NEW ROCHELLE NEW YORK

While visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. T. Hall, of New Rochelle, N. Y., the death of Olin F. Miller, 70, of Jewett City occurred Sunday morning. His health had been failing for the past two or three months. He was born in Groton, the son of James and Elmira Borrows Miller and was educated in the public schools of the town. For 35 years he has been connected with New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company, serving for a number of years as station agent at Jewett City.

Fraternally Mr. Miller was affiliated with Union lodge, No. 31, F. and A. M., of New London, Pequot lodge, No. 85, I. O. O. F., of New London, and the Norwich Nest of Owls, No. 1396. He was also a member of the Railroad Veterans association and the Cable club, a Masonic railroad organization.

Surviving besides his wife are a daughter, two brothers, John Miller of New London and Benjamin Miller of Jewett City and a sister, Mrs. Walter Spicer of Bristol, Conn. Burial is to be in Groton.

SEEK COURT ORDER TO CONTINUE PAPER MILL

In the superior court short calendar session at New London Friday Judge Allyn L. Brown took the papers in the motion for an order for further continuance of business for a period of four months in the case of H. G. Graig and Co., Ltd., and others against the Uncas Paper Board Co. of this city. Attorney Arthur T. Keefe asked for the continuance, stating that he believed that if the business was running, the chances for a favorable selling price in case of sale were better. Attorney Frank L. McGuire, counsel for the National Surety Co., the Norwich Belt Manufacturing Co., and the J. E. Smith, Kelly and Co., joined with Attorney Keefe in asking for the further continuance of business.

Frank L. McGuire was appointed permanent receiver for the United States Electric Co. in the case of Jones and others against the company. An order allowing claims was granted The court took the papers on the receiver's account and report. The papers were also taken on the motion for allowance of receiver's and appraisers' compensation.

The appraisers were Attorney Morris Lubchansky, Attorney Daniel M Cronin and Richard Davidson. The sum of $25 each was suggested for the appraisers. A motion for dividend went off.

Judgment was entered in the case of Attorney John C. Geary against John J. Gagnon which was a motion for disclosure of defense or judgment.

Judgment by default for non-appearance was entered in the case of J. R. Whipple corporation against Rice.

Summer Hotel Case

Judgment of foreclosure with the limitation of time set as the first Monday in December was entered in the case of Samuel Kalytike and others against Liebman and others of Lebanon. This was another case bearing on the summer hotel in that place and it was brought out that Kalytike had sold certain property to the defendants for $8,500 in which transaction he had taken a mortgage for $3,900 on which interest to the amount of $275.25 was due besides the principal. Judgment was entered for the amount. Robert Perkins of Lebanon gave the valuation of the property as $4,500. It was brought out that the Federal Land bank also held a mortgage on the property for $1,600.

The court took the papers in the case of the Standard Oil Co. of New York against George and Pauline Keller in which argument of motion for more specific statement was made.

Judgment by default was entered in the case of the Westminster bank against Davis and others.

Judgment of default of failure to plead was entered in the case of Charles A. Richards of New York against the Connecticut Corp., of North Stonington. Limitation of time for redemption was set as the first Monday in March when the plaintiff is entitled to money representing a mortgage for $40,818.52, or title to the property. P. LeRoy Harwood gave the valuation of the property at $50,000.

Judgment by default for $1,634.75 was entered in the case of the Builders Mortgage Corp., against Mrs. Addie L. Kellogg. The limitation of time was set for the fourth Monday in November. The plaintiff holds a mortgage on the property of the defendant situated at 19 Mott avenue and James R. May set its value at $8,500 It was brought out that the Savings bank of New London holds a mortgage on the property for $5,000 and Robert Congdon one for $2,750. Mr. May was appointed receiver for the express purpose of being able to enter the house, which is now vacant to shut off the water should it be found necessary.

A number of cases went off the list.

Fire in Automobile

A few minutes before 9 o'clock Saturday morning a telephone call was received by the fire department for a fire in an automobile owned by Herbert Hammond in the rear of No. 179 Broadway. Three gallons of chemical were used on the blaze and no damage to the automobile resulted.

GIVES INSTRUCTIVE LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

A good sized congregation at the Community house Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock heard an instructive lecture upon Christian Science, which was given by Salem A. Hart, Jr., C. S., who spoke upon The Fulfillment of Scriptural Promises. Mr. Hart, who is a member of the board of lectureship of The Mother Church at Boston, was introduced by Frank Coxeter and spoke in part as follows:

When the seventy disciples, whom Jesus had sent forth on a mission of healing, returned with rejoicing, the Bible tells us that he said to them: "Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you." (Luke 10:19). This promise, or assurance, of spiritual power to heal is beautifully set forth in the following correlative passage on page 55 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science: "The promises will be fulfilled. The time for the reappearing of the divine healing is throughout all time; and whosoever layeth his earthly all on the altar of divine science, drinketh of Christ's cup now, and is endued with the spirit and power of Christian healing"

Webster defines the word "promise" as that which causes, or gives ground for, hope, expectation, or assurance. Now, I feel sure that we will all agree that the promises made in the Bible are true, and were made for all time; so have we not the right to expect the fulfillment of these promises? Christian Science answers this question in the affirmative and is fulfilling the promise of health and long life to the afflicted; of deliverance and forgiveness to the sinning; of comfort and protection to the sorrowful; of peace and plenty to those in want and woe, of wisdom and strength to the humble and obedient. It fulfills God's promise found in Isaiah: "And I will bring the blind by a way that they knew not: I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and not forsake them." (Isaiah 42:16). So, if there be any here this afternoon seeking a solution for the problem of grief and separation; if there be any who are sick or in want; if there be any who are struggling with misfortune or sin; if, perchance, there be any who for the first time have crossed the threshold of Christian Science, we have for you a joyous message of love, of deliverance, of comfort and happiness.

Spiritual Healing

Many are under the impression today that Christian Scientists are cold, indifferent, and unsympathetic regarding the belief of sickness and suffering, and charge us with doing nothing to afford relief to those who are struggling with such beliefs. This is because it is difficult for a person thinking in terms of matter to comprehend how healing can be done without drugs, manipulation, or material means.

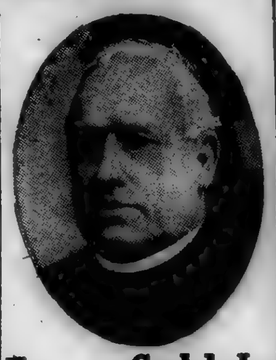
Christian Science does not approve of or recognize the use of material remedies or material means of any sort as an agency of healing; on the contrary, it adopts the purely spiritual teaching and practice of the blessed master and only by intelligent and absolute reliance on God, "Who", as the Psalmist declares "forgiveth all thine iniquities; Who healeth all thy diseases," is true healing made possible, and is man rescued from the false beliefs of sin and disease. Christian Science treatment is not a system of denials; it is not the hypnotic influence of one human mind upon another; nor is it suggestion or mesmerism, as is sometimes ignorantly stated. To the accusation that he cast out devils by Beelzebub, Jesus replied, "If I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out?" (Matthew 12:27). Error cannot correct error; no more can the human mind uninstructed in spiritual law grasp the import of spiritual healing, nor the means by which it is brought about.

The Christian Science practitioner never attempts to heal matter, never regards persons as a patient. He knows instantly that a patient is an erring sense of mind, recognizes that causation is mental, and endeavors to reveal to the patient the science or truth of being; and when this truth is revealed to the consciousness of the sufferer, he is healed.

Thousands of men and women have been healed of sickness and sin through reading the Christian Science textbook alone, as evidenced by testimonials which will be found in the last chapter, "Fruitage," and also by those given at our Wednesday evening testimonial services, proving that the revelation of truth contained in those pages opens the door of human understanding, brings to human consciousness man's true relationship to God, and permanent healing, unlaborled and joyous, follows as a natural consequence. This understanding of God impels man to learn His will and do it. Thus governed, man learns that it is God who "healeth all thy diseases" and is an ever-present help in trouble. Christian Scientists are learning to trust this God and rely on His promises. They are proving that He does answer the righteous prayer of the sick and sinning.

Prayer

True Christianity includes prayer, and prayer is generally believed by Christian people to be the means by which man communicates with God. There are many differing opinions among Christians as to what constitutes true prayer, and we sometimes hear the opinion voiced that Christian Scientists do not pray, that they are a prayerless people. It seems almost incredible that such a belief could exist today. Christian Scientists not only pray without ceasing, but they pray understandingly. "It is true they do not petition God to grant material desires and pleasures. They do not ask Him to conform His will to theirs. On page 1 of the Christian Science textbook, Mrs. Eddy states,



Every Cold Is Dangerous—Begin Taking Father John's Medicine Now

NO DANGEROUS DRUGS.

Over Seventy Years of Success

"The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God,—a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love"; and it is from this standpoint that the Christian Scientist prays the prayer of affirmation and such prayer is answered by removing from consciousness everything unlike God, good.

Jesus attached so much importance to the right concept of prayer that He gave us the greatest of all prayers known as the Lord's Prayer. The first chapter in the Christian Science textbook is on prayer, and in this chapter Mrs. Eddy sets forth clearly and concisely what constitutes true prayer and what the purpose of prayer must be, all of which is in exact accord with the teachings of Jesus Christian Science treatment is prayer which delivers men from the fatal beliefs of sin and sickness, and is the means of gaining the perfect understanding of God and His reflection, man. On page 16 of the Christian Science textbook Mrs. Eddy writes "Only as we rise above all material sensuousness and sin, can we reach the heaven-born aspiration and spiritual consciousness, which is indicated in the Lord's Prayer and which instantaneously heals the sick." And then follows the Lord's Prayer with its spiritual interpretation, the reading of which has healed thousands instantaneously. The fervency and sincerness of the Lord's Prayer as revealed in the spiritual interpretation quiets fear, removes malice, envy hatred and jealousy, stills the tempests of mad ambition.

The Bible

Christian Scientists accept the teachings of the Holy Bible without reservation as their daily rule and guide. This Bible is not a Bible of their own, as is sometimes ignorantly believed (if by this is meant a specially written volume for them alone); it is what is known as the King James version of the Old and New Testaments, the same Bible that is used in most of the churches today, and I am glad to say that every Christian Scientist possesses a copy of this volume which he studies daily, together with the Christian Science textbook, and is recorded that when Jesus appeared to his disciples on the shores of the Galilean Sea after his resurrection, he said to them; "These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets and in the psalms, concerning me. Then opened he their understanding, that they might understand the scriptures" (Luke 24:44-45). Mrs. Eddy has written on page 99 of the Christian Science textbook, "Truth has furnished the key to the kingdom, and with this key Christian Science has opened the door of the human understanding."

Friends, Christian Science shows that scriptual promises were ample and far-reaching, and were not made for a limited time only, as is sometimes believed, but for all time. It also shows that these promises are not a hollow mockery, but are based upon absolute spiritual law and power available to every phase of daily experience. Christian Science teaches the science of Christianity or the Christ, truth, which heals and saves. It breaks the day dream of life and sensation in matter. It declares God aright and furnishes a key to the Scriptures which dispels mystery and makes plain the word of God to man. It reveals the only true God who is love, unchangeable, ever-present, and impartial, whom to know aright brings permanent peace and happiness. Let us ponder the words of Mrs. Eddy "Love is impartial and universal in its adaption and bestowals. It is the open fount which cries, 'Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters'."

STATE IS PREPARING TO MEET SNOW CONDITIONS

To cope with snowstorms in Connecticut during the approaching winter, the state highway department has laid plans to keep clear a total of 1,900 miles of main line and connecting road systems. The snow removal program of the department, on a larger scale than ever before, has as its goal the keeping open of the Connecticut roads at all times throughout the winter so that travel may be maintained with the minimum inconvenience.

Added equipment has been secured to replace trucks and plows long in service and an aggregate of 175 heavy duty trucks, with snow plows attached is now available for this work.

At a cost of approximately $140,000. twenty-nine new trucks were added to the state's equipment last week. Fourteen new machines were brought from the Mack Motor Truck company, the same number from the White Motor Truck company, and one Indiana truck was bought. These will replace sixteen machines which have outlived their usefulness for such heavy duty, and thirteen will be used to increase the present equipment.

About 100 miles of roads have been added to the mileage which the state will attempt to keep open for travel this winter. The mileage has also been increased by the widening of sections of the Boston Post road to thirty-six feet in Fairfield county for a distance of about twelve miles.

Much of the state's present truck and tractor equipment was secured from the government from the stock of surplus war materials with which the government was overstocked after the war. Distribution of this material now has ceased and it will no longer be possible for the state to get equipment of this kind free of charge.

During the past three seasons the cost of snow removal in this state has been as follows:

1922-23, 1500 miles, $175,021.78; 1923-24, 1800 miles, $53,000.20; 1924-25, 1800 miles, $70,453.36.

The cost of the work, of course, is regulated by the severity and frequency of storms. The entire state is divided into eleven supervisors' districts for snow removal organization in each district there are foremen in charge of snow-fighting forces, and the entire scheme is directed from the main Hartford office, through co-operation with the U. S. weather bureau which gives advance warnings, where possible. The trucks usually start operating when the snow has reached a depth of two or three inches and they are continuously employed until the roads are cleared. Each truck carries from two to six laborers. In hilly sections, V-type plows are used in addition to the pusher plows. The equipment is located at strategic points and frequent communication by the district men with headquarters makes it possible to keep the exact progress of conditions at hand and the information is available for the traveling public at all times.

B'NAI BRITH DANCE FOR HEBREW YOUNG PEOPLE

On Thursday evening Rose of New England lodge, No. 398, and the Ladies' Auxiliary lodge, No. 40, Independent Order of B'nai Brith, gave a dance in honor of the Norwich Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A. at the rooms of the latter organization, Olympic hall. About 200 members of the four organizations attended the dance. Mrs. Alex Pasnick, president of the auxiliary, in welcoming the guests said in part: "The B'nai Brith order is an American organization stressing universal brotherhood and patriotism. B'nai Brith organizations in Norwich are justly proud of the character and deportment of the young men and women of our Y. M. H. A. and Y. W. H. A. and we are endeavoring this evening to exemplify the teachings of our order by coming closer to the precept of universal brotherhood."

Music was furnished by Zimmerman's seven-piece orchestra, which entered with enthusiasm into the spirit of the evening to the delight of the dancers. The dance committee consisted of Abner Schwartz, Alex Pasnick, Charles Jacobson and Max Hanover. Mrs. Rubin Alexander had charge of the refreshments, assisted by Miss Sarah Sachner. The dancing and entertainment lasted until 12.30 p m.

NEED MORE SPEED TO GET 1925 DRIVERS' LICENSES

Approximately four thousand applications for registrations for the year 1926 had been received by the state motor vehicle department up to noon Saturday. Many of those applied in order to avail themselves of the opportunity to retain their 1925 registration number. After November 15 no registration numbers will be reserved and holders of low numbers or any other preferred numbers for 1926 will have to take their chances as to new numbers with all other applicants, first come first served.

As the department has been registering motor vehicles for 1926 since the first of October, the issuing had been done at the rate of about 200 a day. It will have to be increased to about 2,500 a day for the remainder of the year if all those who are expected to want to drive through the winter without interruption are to have their machines registered by January 1.

Judging from the experience of last year, it is estimated that applications for the registration of about 150,000 motor vehicles will be received by the department up to that time, but the difficulty in the past has been that most of the registrants have delayed until the last few days of the year before applying for renewels with the result that considerable congestion has been caused and the registrants themselves have been forced to wait in line for hours at a time. In anticipation of a recurrence of this rush, alterations to provide three additional registration windows have been made in the issuing division of the department at the capitol at Hartford and similar preparations have been made at the branch offices in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury and New London, and in Stamford, where an additional branch office is about to be opened.

ST. PATRICK'S TRAFFIC PROBLEM TO BE SOLVED

For months, the congestion of automobiles outside St. Patrick's church following the three Sunday masses, especially the 9 o'clock mass, has been a serious problem, both for the church authorities and the city officials. So large and so prosperous has this congregation become that a considerable proportion of its congregation motors to the services, while the number of taxi cabs driving up to the church is an additional source of anxiety and danger.

From the pulpit at the three masses Sunday, it was announced that the city authorities have communicated with the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. May, making the suggestion that some measure be adopted to relieve this acute condition, possibly to avoid some fatality. Where cars are parked three or even four deep along the curb, Chief of Police George Linton has pointed out, it leaves a dangerously narrow driveway, even on Broadway; while on narrow streets like Perkins avenue, Union and Otis streets and up Slater avenue the danger is even greater.

The parish priests expressed satisfaction that the authorities had taken up the matter so courteously, merely giving due warning, instead of taxing cars. It was set forth that the school grounds would hereafter be open for parking, and this outlet will mean accommodation for fifty or seventy-five machines, at least. The people were admonished to patience in taking their cars after the masses, also to adopt the new plans cheerfully as a measure of safety.

Why You Should Contribute Towards The St. Joseph's School Drive

Because a good school is an asset to a community and the new St. Joseph School will be one of the largest and finest school buildings in the city.

Because it will teach American children—Norwich children—to become good and loyal American citizens.

Because it will teach the same subjects as are taught in other city schools.

Because it will also teach religion so necessary in forming human character.

Because the Poles in Norwich are loyal American citizens who have contributed to every worthy cause and drive and this is the first time they are making an appeal.

Because the new St. Joseph school saves the tax payers $150,000, which amount the Township would have to spend to accommodate the 500 children that are attending that school.

Because the new St. Joseph school saves the township from forty to fifty thousand dollars annually for maintenance of a school building. The taxes are high enough without making them higher.

Because it will be a community center, serving for the benefit of everybody, regardless of creed or nationality.

SO GET BEHIND THIS DRIVE AND BOOST THE THING ALONG. LET'S PUT IT OVER

Germania Lodge, No. 11, O. D. H. S., moved Saturday from its old quarters on Shetucket street to its new home in Cadillac hall.

Broadway Theatre

A new show, a perfect program opens at the Broadway theatre today to make a host of new friends for that popular playhouse.

Yes, it's B. F. Keith's world's best vaudeville consisting of five big time acts:

Tip, the greatest dog in the world is presented and introduced by Bob Leo. It's an act far away from the beaten path.

Lea Manning and Violet Hall in The Proposal by John McGowan is just full of real fun.

The Three Bernard Girls in Atta Girl Mom, radiate charm and grace and make the offering as versatile as it is clever.

Harry Stanley and Dorothy Quinette offer Books. It has a perfect binding, inside of which is fun, song and dance.

Libby, Sparrow & Co. close with a very novel entertainment done in a new way which pleases.

On the screen is the perfect picture Souls For Sale, suggested by David Graham Phillips' novel Garlan & Co. A perfect cast with Cyrile Windsor, Eugene O'Brien, Ellen Percy and George Fawcett are at their best.

Don't forget the Country Store tonight.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ISSUE ULTIMATUM TO GREEK AND BULGARIAN GOVERNMENTS

First Supreme Test of the League's Power to Break Up War —Greece and Bulgaria Warned That They Must Unconditionally and Within 24 Hours Order All Their Troops to Retire Behind Their Respective Frontiers—Warning Given Athens and Sofia That Resumption of Hostilities Will Be Visited by Severe Punishment—After Sixty Hours Military Officers of Great Britain, France and Italy Will Visit the War Zone to Report to L. of N. Council Whether the Council's Edict Has Been Carried Out.

PARIS, Oct. 26—In the same room where Woodrow Wilson in the closing days of the peace conference proudly read out the articles of the league of nations covenant, and M. Clemenceau, as president, in staccato tones declared them adopted, the council of the league tonight delivered what is virtually an ultimatum to Greece and Bulgaria that they must unconditionally and within twenty-four hours order all their troops to retire behind their respective frontiers.

It is the first time since the birth of the league that the council has gone so far. Its action constitutes the supreme test of the league's power to break up war. It was carried out in a tense atmosphere in the crowded clock hall of the foreign office, and was accompanied by an admonition from Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, that it would be an intolerable thing—"indeed, an affront to civilization—" if with all the machinery of the league at their disposal and the council ever ready with its good offices, frontier incidents like these between Greece and Bulgaria should lead to war-like operations instead of being submitted for peaceful adjustment to the council, which would always safeguard the honor and interests of the nations involved.

The resolution subsequently adopted unanimously was really a reproof to both Greece and Bulgaria for their failure to obey President Briand's injunction to cease all hostilities and withdraw behind their frontiers. It was framed by Mr. Chamberlain after the Greek representative, M. Carapanos, had told the council that the Greek troops would evacuate Bulgarian soil as soon as all the Bulgarians got out of Greece, and after Bulgarian insistence that Bulgarians are not on Greek soil at all.

It declared that the council was not satisfied that military operations had ceased and that the troops had been withdrawn. And, after fixing a 24-hour limit for the issuance of instructions for such withdrawal, the council fixed 60 hours for assurance of the fulfillment of the orders.

All the troops must be warned that resumption of firing will be visited with severe punishment, and both governments, Athens and Sofia, must give all facilities to the military officers of Great Britain, France and Italy, who will immediately repair to the war zone and report to the council whether the council's edict has been carried out.

"And let it be carefully understood," said M. Briand, "that this time limit runs from now. It will not suffice to retire to the special frontiers; there must be no shooting from the frontiers."

M. Morloff, representing Bulgaria, said quietly: "My government authorizes me to conform unconditionally to any invitation addressed to it."

M. Carapanos, like M. Morloff, seemed to shrink under the council's implied condemnation. "I have no objections," he said almost inaudibly, "but I must transmit the details to Athens. I think that my government will comply."

M. Briand, still weak from the hemorrhage of the nose from which he suffered earlier in the day, again intervened, saying: "We consider the words of both of you encouraging. We shall now pursue our task with independence and dignity."

The council adjourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, when it is expected the Greeks and Bulgarians will be permitted to present their respective views as to the cause of the conflict.

Ther council is proceeding confidently in the assumption that its decision will be obeyed, and believes that it can inaugurate a discussion of the question and ascertain the facts and responsibility as well as the problem fixing the amount of reparations due.

The council chamber was packed to the doors. A large number of prominent French women attended, while the notable figures present included M. Locheur, M. Boncour and the diplomatic representatives of a large number of states not represented in the council.

The rapidity with which the league machinery got into action and the council's unhesitating assertion of the league's authority was one of the main topics of discussion in Paris tonight. During the secret session of the council, several members including Paul Hymans of Belgium, frankly intimated that the league's future was at stake. They declared that if the covenant was to mean anything in the future, the pacification of Europe must be enforced now on any members of the league who seemed to be evading obligations which they had sacredly undertaken.

Meanwhile there is anxiety on the part of some as to whether the Hellenic government will in fact within sixty hours effectively evacuate the large section of Bulgarian soil it is supposed to be occupying now.

Should Athens decline to accept the council's ultimatum it would immediately force the council to decide whether Greece thereby rendered herself an aggressor nation, subject to the league's penalties. Such a contingency might mean enforcement of the famous article XVI which formed the pivot of the Locarno security negotiations with Germany.

Article XVI says that if any member resorts to war, disregarding the stipulations of the covenant, it shall be deemed to have committed an act of war against all the other league members, who will undertake to submit it to severance of all trade and financial relations and even possibly to such military penalties as might be recommended by the council.

BULGARIA TO OBEY EDICT OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—On the day fixed for a conference under the auspices of the council of the league of nations at Paris to settle the Greco-Bulgarian dispute without further bloodshed, Sofia heard official reports of an all-night bombardment by Greek artillery of the town of Petrich on the Macedonian frontier, and neighboring villages.

King Boris, who has returned to Sofia, expressed profound regret at the continuation of artillery fire against defenseless places.

Instructions were sent to M. Morloff, at Paris, to agree unreservedly to any and all suggestions by the council of the league of nations and accept all instructions.

GERMAN CABINET TO GO ON WITHOUT NATIONALISTS

BERLIN, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—The Luther-Stresemann cabinet will continue to function without the assistance of the nationalist party, and, furthermore, promises rigid adherence to the foreign policies which culminated in the security pact and treaties at Locarno.

This announcement came from government headquarters today, where there appears to be no inclination to allow the withdrawal of the three nationalist ministers to develop into a government crisis or a parliamentary situation which might necessitate new elections for the Reichstag.

The cabinet this morning formally accepted the resignations of Herr Schiele, Dr. Von Schlieben and Herr Neuhaus, and then voted to continue in office. The vacancies will be filled by Chancellor Luther taking over the ministry of finance, Herr Gessler, minister of defense, assuming the post of minister of interior also, and Dr. Krohne, minister of transportation, added economics to his duties.

The chancellor in the meantime hopes to obtain from M. Briand and Mr. Chamberlain amplified interpretations of some of the agreements concluded at Locarno, and he expects in the course of the next few weeks to be able to produce concrete evidence that the entente leaders are prepared to redeem the verbal pledges given to him and Dr. Stresemann regarding the evacuation of the Cologne Bridgehead and disarament.

TAX HEARING BY HOUSE WAYS AND MEANS COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—Taxpayers bombarded the house ways and means committe today with arguments for repeal of a majority of the special taxes now in effect.

The committe, which will start work next week on a bill revising the revenue law, was asked to wipe out levies on automobiles, automobile trucks, tires and accessories, jewelry, fire arms and accessories, cameras and lenses, and stock, together with some of the stamp taxes and those applying to brokers and taxi operators.

Recommendations for repeal of only a few of these taxes, which aggregate more than $250,000,000 annually, was made in the $300,000,000 reduction program suggested to the committee by Secretary Melon, and the widespread requests for additional relief finally provoked Representive Treadway, republican, Massachusetts, to read a clipping today stating that, if all requests for repeal were granted, "the government soon would have to pay a bonus to citizens to exist instead of collecting a tax from them."

One witness remarked he would be satisfied with the "core of the treasury's $300,000,000 tax reduction apple," which led Representative Mills, republican, New York, to quote the storied schoolboy's answer to his playmate that "there ain't goin' to be any core."

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Secretary Hoover urged a strengthening of the nation's moral fibre.

Automobile and various other taxes occupied the house ways and means committee.

A cotton crop of 15,226,000 bales was forecast by the department of agriculture.

Opposition to the Nickel Plate merger was continued before the Interstate Commerce commission.

Captain John Halligan, Jr., was appointed chief of the navy department's bureau of engineering.

CREW ESCAPED AS DREDGE SANK OFF OLD SAYBROOK

OLD SAYBROOK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—When a dredge being used to fill in land at a new development known as Indian Town sank off shore during the storm yesterday the crew of 23 men on it got ashore safely. After the dredge began to leak and fill rapidly, the men got into two scows and aided by a motor boat reached the shore after battling with rough seas.

TEN YEARS FOR BEATING AND ROBBING AN AUTOIST

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 26—Geo. E. Williams, 21, was today sentenced to serve 10 years in prison, and Frederick A. Martin, 17, his companion was sentenced to serve three years, when they were found guilty in superior court of having beaten and robbed an autoist who had consented to give them a lift from this city to Boston last August.

Navy's Open House to the Public Today

In Celebration of Navy Day, Which This Year Commemorates the 150th Anniversary of Its Founding.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. (AP)—The navy will be at home to the public everywhere throughout the United States tomorrow in celebration of Navy day, which this year commemorates the 150th anniversary of its founding.

Selected on the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, the day falls in the week during which, in 1775, bills were reported to the continental congress for $100,000 to outfit armed vessels for use in the Revolution. Early in November of that year, those bills were enacted and in the same month rules for the regulation of the navy of the United States colonies were considered and dropped.

The celebration has been approved by President Coolidge, as planned under the auspices of the Navy League of the United States in cooperation with a number of patriotic societies. The program calls for navy yards and all other shore stations to be thrown open to public inspection, while all available ships have been sent to different ports for the public to visit. With the scouting fleet in Cuban waters for annual exercises, fewer ships than usual are available for these visits, but the number is sufficient to care for more than a score of ports.

Orders have been issued by Secretary Wilbur for those ships at the various ports "to full dress ship" while naval officers in Washington and at shore stations who ordinarily appear in civilian clothes will wear their blue uniforms. Army officers also, as a compliment to the navy, will appear in uniform.

In addition to the public inspection there will be athletic meets and other events in a number of addresses by naval officers and civilians have been arranged throughout the country, many to be broadcast by radio.

The speaking program began today with an address on naval aviation problems by Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics, at Des Moines, Iowa, and one tonight by radio from New York on "The Ideals of the Navy" by Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of naval operations. A similar subject will be taken by Secretary in an address tomorrow before the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Assistant Secretary Robinson, who has just returned from an inspection trip to the West coast and Honolulu, will speak tomorrow before the Rochester, N. Y. Chamber of Commerce, and Major General John A. Lejeune, commandant of the marine corps, will speak at Minneapolis.

SEPTEMBER PROSPEROUS FOR THE NEW HAVEN ROAD

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad had another prosperous month in September. Gross revenues increased $901,047 over the same month last year and net income of $990,378 compared with $568,483. The nine months' net income aggregated $4,810,037 in contrast to $1,370,318 in the same period of 1924. Railway operating expenses in September were $257,786 higher than September last year, but for the nine months were $649,154 less than a year ago.

POLICE SEEK RECOVERY OF TWO STOLEN AUTOS

HARTFORD, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—Hartford and Connecticut police were today bending their efforts towards the recovery of two more automobiles said to have been stolen in New York by members of the Frank "Cowboy" Tessler gang and alleged to have been disposed of here by Eugene G. Reising, East Hartford inventor and pistol expert, in the expectation that the cars would be secured during the day. This would bring the number of cars recovered to six and the police now estimate that the total number of cars they say Reising sold here is ten or twelve.

FRENCH GOV'T CAUSES RALLY IN CURRENCY

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—The action of the French government in supporting the franc by drawing upon the proceeds of the Morgan loan caused a quick rally in the currency in the local foreign exchange market today. Following the earlier rise in Paris and London the rate on the franc was quickly marked up about twenty points to as high as 3½ cents and held slightly below this level until the close. Quotations in preliminary trading, however, were reported as low as 4.04 cents.

CAILLAUX FORCES FRENCH CABINET TO CONSIDER HIS FINANCIAL PROJECTS

PARIS, Oct. 26. (AP)—M. Caillaux, who on Saturday was generally considered politically a man of the past, showed today that he was still a factor of the present by obliging the cabinet against its will to take into consideration his financial projects before adopting the socialist policies approved by the radical party at Nice.

Asked by Premier Painleve, the man who brought him back to public life, to hand in his resignation, M. Caillaux stoutly refused. He declared that if the cabinet resigned and was reconstructed without him on a platform involving a capital levy, he would overthrow it in parliament.

The measures which the finance minister forced upon the consideration of the cabinet are based upon the organization of an amortization commission which would have charge of the issue of paper money, short term bonds, regarded as belonging in the same category, and the accumulation of a sinking fund to guarantee the retirement of any new issue of banknotes and the payment of the interior and exterior debts. The amortisation commission would have also the duty of preventing the total circulation and the floating debt ever exceeding the present limit.

The finance minister's resolute attitude upset all the calculations of the premier and the majority of the cabinet, who, averse to hearing his new projects for financial restoration, were forced to give way and postpone their final decision until the proposed measures had been passed upon.

"Monsier Caillaux is a hard morsel," said one minister after the cabinet meeting. "What is called in America hard boiled."

This morning's session of the cabinet was one of the stormiest on record; its echoes reached the lobby where the correspondents waited for news. M. Caillaux not only declared war on what he called the "monied coalition," which was fighting him, but demanded of the minister of justice that action be taken against French bankers, who, he said, according to information received through diplomatic channels, had been adding to the difficulties of the hour by selling francs short in the foreign markets.

The fate of the cabinet will probably be decided at a meeting of the ministers tomorrow. It will be presided over by President Doumergue. But first the cabinet will deliberate on the text of M. Caillaux's plan, which he submitted this afternoon.

"The general opinion is, whatever may be decided by the preliminary meeting presided over by Premier Painleve or the council of ministers presided over by the president of the republic, the cabinet cannot outlast the opening of parliament.

Three Men Held For West Haven Murder

Coroner Mix Holds Macri, De Melio and Collins Criminally Responsible For The Death of Henry B. Johnson.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 26—Joseph Macri, Nicholas De Melio, Edward Collins and Charles L. Pavis, were held criminally responsible for the death of Henry B. Johnson of this city in a finding handed down by Coroner Ell Mix today. The body of Johnson was found beside the road across Forest and Oak streets, West Haven, September 9.

The coroner, giving a history of the events leading up to the death of Johnson, finds that the deceased, a widower and formerly a resident of Hartford, applied at the Yale Hope mission here for lodging on September 3, 1924. Superintendent MacDonald of the mission and his wife became interested in the man and Mr. MacDonald secured a position for him with the Index Visible company, of New Haven, where he became a steady worker. He took a room at the Mission.

At 6.15 o'clock on the evening of September 8, 1925, the finding says, Johnson was observed in a sitting position near the Army and Navy store at Congress avenue and George street, "apparently being under the influence of intoxicants or drugs there being a number of people about him who observed his condition and that he did not talk coherently."

At the same hour, the coroner finds, Joseph Macri and Nicholas De Melio came along Congress avenue and observing deceased in the condition described, went to a taxicab stand nearby and engaged Edward Collins, a taxicab driver, to take his cab to the spot where Johnson was sitting.

"Thereupon," the finding continues, "one Charles L. Pavis who was at the cab stand got upon the front seat with the driver, the cab was driven to where deceased was, he was placed therein, Macri and De Melio sitting on the back seat with him and the cab was then driven with its five occupants out Congress avenue to a house in Allingtown where they requested persons there to be allowed to leave deceased in the driveway.

"I find permission being refused, the cab was turned about, driven northerly on Campbell avenue and arriving at a street or lane, driven to the end of said lane, it being their intention to leave deceased near a place where there was a swamp and some bushes, that the occupants of said car observing children there, the cab was then turned about, driven through Campbell avenue to Forest street and to Oak street, and arriving at the place where deceased body's was found the deceased was taken from the cab and left by them."

MAY CLEAR UP POOR-BOX ROBBERIES IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—A warrant charging Charlotte Lehman, who has confessed in Brooklyn, N. Y., to robbing church poor boxes, with similar acts here may be asked for by Captain of Detectives James Deegan, it was learned today.

The woman's arrest may clear up a series of poor box thefts reported in three Roman Catholic churches here last January," Captain Deegan said today. He said that three members of his department had been assigned to locate relatives of the woman here. He has asked Brooklyn authorities to question the woman concerning the robberies here.

BELIEVE GILPATRIC USED LIB. BONDS FRAUDULENTLY

HARTFORD, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—Suspicion is entertained that G. Harold Gilpatric former cashier of the First National Bank of Putnam, used Liberty bonds held by the bank for safe keeping to make up the $145,000 addition funds necessary to make good the shortage of $330,000 in the state treasury. It has been definitely determined, it is claimed, that $185,000 was forwarded to the federal reserve bank at Boston by Gilpatric and consisted of $134,000 of the bank's funds and the remainder of the funds of the Cutler and Gardner estates, but no definite information had been obtained in the check-up where the remaining $145,000 had been secured.

FALL RIVER LINER STRUCK A SUBMERGED OBSTRUCTION

Paddle Box of The Steamer Commonwealth Was Disabled Off Point Judith Sunday Night—The Steamer Was Towed Back to Newport, Where the 300 Passengers Were Transferred to a Tug and Ferried to the Dock—Mishap Caused But Little Excitement Among Those Abroad.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 26—The 350 passengers on the Fall River Line Commonwealth, disabled off Point Judith, last night, were landed safely here late today and most of them proceeded to New York on a special train. They agreed that the mishap caused little excitement aboard the steamer.

The Commonwealth was towed into the outer harbor by the tug Commissioner, sent from New London early today. There the passengers were transferred to the tug and brought to the dock. Later the Commonwealth was towed in. Officials of the line said that the only damage was to one of the paddle boxes and that repairs could be completed here in time to enable the steamer to sail on her regular run from Fall River to New York tomorrow night.

The paddle box was disabled when, the steamer, plowing through rough seas on her run from Fall River to New York after a stop here, was hit by a succession of great waves. When it was found that further progress was impossible the steamer was anchored and a radio call for help was sent. The tug Commissioner responded, as well as the Coast and Red Wing, and early today the tug took the Commonwealth in tow. The trip in here was without incident.

Sidney Mitchell of New York, president of the United Paper Board company, one of the passengers, said:

"There was no undue excitement on board the Commonwealth. I have only the highest praise for Captain Robinson of the Commonwealth, who saw to it that no fears were aroused and explained that the steamer was in no danger."

C. W. Porter of New York, said that he went to bed early in the evening. When he awoke this morning, he expected to see the skyline of New York and was surprised to see the Rhode Island shore, as he had not been awakened. Many of the other passengers slept throughout the night, although the weather was so rough that a number were kept awake by seasickness.

Among the passengers was Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledyard of New York and Newport, who has been ill. She was on her way from here to New York, accompanied by her physician, Dr. Charles D. Easton. On the arrival of the Commonwealth here this afternoon she returned to her Newport home.

Captain Robinson of the Commonwealth said he believed the wheel struck a submerged obstruction. The damage was to the port wheel, which had two buckets and their arms smashed, as well as the rim on both sides.

As soon as the passengers had been ferried ashore from the outer bay, the vessel was towed into her dock here and repairs were started immediately. The steamer Richard Peck was ordered to replace the Commonwealth on the run out of New York tonight.

The wrecking tug Commissioner and a coast guard cutter reached the vessel at 7.30 o'clock this morning, but because of the heavy seas running, it was three hours before they could put a hawser aboard.

DAMAGES TO SHIPPING BY WEEK-END STORM

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—The rescue of 33 members of a disabled steamer, damages to other vessels and delays in the arrival of seven trans-Atlantic liners were among the consequences of the storm in the north Atlantic during the week-end.

Huge seas whipped by gales disabled the Norwegian steamer Elven, bound from Rotterdam to Sydney in mid-ocean and the American steamship American Trader went to the rescue today. Captain Fish of the latter vessel found the Elven helpless, with its steering gear broken and its boats carried away.

The heavy seas for a time prevented a rescue, but later the crew of the Elven was taken off and the American Trader continued towards this port.

The Elven was one of the ships which turned off their courses last week to aid the foundering Italian freighter Ignazio Florio. The 28 survivors of the Italian vessel are bound for New York on the United States liner President Harding, which was further delayed by the storm and is not expected until tomorrow.

Captain Howell of the Red Star liner Lapland, which arrived today 48 hours late, said the voyage had been a series of storms which at times made it necessary virtually to heave to. The ship, however was undamaged and none of the passengers or crew was injured.

Other liners which are scheduled to dock one to two days late are the White Star liner Celtic, the Cunard-Anchor liner Tuscania, the United American liner Mount Clay, the Royal Mail packet Orbita, and the Cunard-Scythia.

VILLAGE OF HAZARDVILLE WAS THREATENED BY FIRE

HAZARDVILLE, Conn., Oct. 26—(A. P.)—Fire which for a short time threatened to sweep through the center of this village because of the strong wind, damaged a frame block at the corner of Main and Maple street early today, the damage being placed at $10,000. Thomas S. D'Arcey, a former representative, owned the property which locally was known as the Landshultz place. The building was occupied by Michael Stek's grocery on the street floor and by three tenements upstairs. One of these tenements was the home of Mrs. Martha Weeks, 80 years, who lived alone but on Friday by reason of an injury from a fall went to her daughter's home temporarily.

DIVERS TO PLACE PONTOONS TO RAISE SUNKEN SUB S-51

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 26—Weather permitting, navy divers early tommorrow will start sinking pontoons with which navy officials hope to raise the sunken submarine S-51 from the ocean floor off Block Island where she was sent on September 25, with a loss of 33 lives when rammed by the steamship City of Rome.

Since the last unsuccessful attempt to raise the undersea craft with derricks several weeks ago, divers working from the navy tender Vestal have been preparing the hull for the pontoons which were assembled at the Norfolk and Brooklyn navy yards. It is expected that several days will be required to attach the pontoons to the S-51.

EASTERN STATES POWER CORPORATION ORGANIZED

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—Formation of the Eastern States Power Corporation to acquire and hold securities of public utility companies was announced tonight by the Carlisle interests of New York and Schoellkopf interests in Buffalo.

H. E. MacHold, former speaker of the New York state assembly, will be president of the company and its board of directors will be headed by F. L. Carlisle. The authorized capitalization consists of 100,000 shares of preferred stock, 500,000 shares of class A common and 750,000 shares of class B common all of no par value.

SCHOONER LUCY EVELYN WAS NEARLY WATER-LOGGED

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 26—The coastwise schooner Lucy Evelyn, towed into the harbor here by several of the tugs of the New Haven Towing company, presented an unusual sight. The boat left Eastport, Me., with a cargo of lumber for New Haven. Off Cape Cod, the schooner was swept by huge waves and was towed into Boston harbor, where temporary repairs were made. Then the boat proceeded to New Haven but was again caught by gales. The schooner was nearly water-logged before being towed here.

CHINESE CUSTOMS CONFAB HAS OPENED IN PEKIN

PEKING, Oct. 26. (AP)—Delegates of 12 powers, besides China, assembled in the picturesque winter palace in the old forbidden city of the emperors today for the opening of the Chinese customs conference and heard China's spokesman propose that the powers restore to her complete control of her customs tariff, withheld for 30 years by her foreign treaties.

WIND MAY BE PARTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR QUAKES

BOSTON, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—The same forces that cause wind storms and tornados, such as those that swept Woburn, Mass., and Troy, Ala., yesterday, may be partly responsible for earthquakes, it was declared in a statement issued today by the Engineering-Economics foundation. The statement pointed out that while the foundation was engaged in organizing knowledge concerning earthquake hazard builders and engineers should consider the factor of wind pressure with the same care that they consider the factor of earthquake force.

"The Woburn storm is of special interest to the foundation," said the statement, following so closely as it does the earthquake of the week before, the severest the northeastern area of the United States and Canada has felt since February 28, 1925.

"The Alabama tornado occurred in the general area where tornado is more common than it has been in New England. That whole area, moreover, is closely associated with severe earth strain. It suffered from the Charlestown earthquake and the records of the past year show both types of emergency occurring in this area this year."

HOW JESSE GUILFORD FRUSTRATED AUTO THIEVES

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Jesse Guilford "steps gun" of goldfom, won a little match with automobile thieves in which the latter were trapped on the first fairway and defaulted, it was disclosed today. Jesse admits he had the breaks of the game with him. The thieves forfeited the contest when Guilford's auto "went on a toot" and got on their nerves.

Just as he was on the point of notifying the police Saturday night that his sedan had been stolen, a friend telephoned that his car was standing in a near-by street making a terrible racket. Jesse grabbed a niblick, ran to the scene and found the car deserted and the horn tooting for all it was worth.

The gasoline had just drained down to the three gallon mark. Guilford recently installed a solenoid device to blow the horn when the gas supply became low. It worked.

SENATOR FERRIS FAVORS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 26.—(AP)—United States Senator W. N. Ferris, of Michigan, who was here today to attend a class reunion of a commercial school at which also he was to speak, said that he believed "the United States should enter the league of nations with or without reservations; that the United States should join the world court with or without reservations." He also said, referring to his own attitude, if the matter should come into the senate, that "I will always vote for any bill that will tend to prolong peace, not that will establish permanent peace because there will never be that."

SHIP MADE RECORD TIME FROM MIAMI TO NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—The Admiral Line, announced today that the H. F. Alexander had clipped 11 hours—more than 20 per cent., from the Miami to New York record when she arrived today, concluding her first northbound trip. The ship averaged 24 knots during the 43 hours it required her to make the voyage.

WILLIMANTIC

Samuel Cordner of South Manchester was charged with reckless driving and William August, 20, of 65 Bissell St., South Manchester, was charged with intoxication when in the local police court Monday morning. The case was the outcome of a collision of automobiles on West Main street shortly before midnight Sunday. Cordner was driving a Ford runabout owned by Mrs. Ida May August, mother of one of the accused and the machine struck a car owned by Eli Aronson of Hartford. The latter machine was parked by the side of the road and was unoccupied. When struck it was jammed backwards and damaged the front part of another Ford car parked directly in the rear. Cordner denied any reckless driving on his part stating that he was turning out for another car when his machine skidded on the wet macadam causing the accident. Police Officers Edward Leahey and William Hurley were summoned and finding both August and Cordner intoxicated, placed them under arrest. August had sustained a cut over the right eye by being thrown against the windshield.

Aronson testified as to the damage to his machine, but said that he did not witness the collision as he was in a nearby house. The case was ordered continued for one week, when an effort will be made to have a witness to the accident testify on behalf of the state. Cordner was released on a bond of $100.

Through his guardian at litem Probation Officer S. Arnold Peckham, William August pleaded guilty to intoxication and was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $13.15 which he paid.

Melvin E. White of Bristol was found guilty of charges of reckless driving and failure to endorse his operator's license, when brought before Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman of the Coventry town court, Saturday night. He was fined $25 and costs on the first count, Justice of the Peace Gilman remitting $10 of that fine and another fine of $1 for the second offense. White's car collided with one operated by Joseph Macfarlane, of South Coventry, on the Coventry highway. Following an investigation by State Policeman Edgar A. Abild, of Stafford Springs, White was arrested. He pleaded guilty. Grand Juror Robert G. Brooke prosecuted the case. Further arrests are said to be pending as the result of State Officer Abild's investigation.

Mary Matchuck of Chaplin who, in connection with her husband, conducted a place which became known to some as "Pa and Ma's Hotel," in the Chewink district, settled up her fine and costs for violation of the liquor law Saturday, when she handed officials of the Chaplin town court $134.35. The woman was in court September 25 charged with the sale of liquor and having in her possession liquor with intent to sell. She was alleged to have sold moonshine to a state police officer traveling in disguise. The next day State Officer Frank Kulowsky and assistants raided the place and secured several bottles of homebrew but no hard stuff. Justice of the Peace Charles B. Russ imposed the fine and costs. Mrs. Matchuck was given two weeks in which to make a settlement, but she overlooked the matter and was finally notified that unless she settled up she would be sent to jail. She decided on the former Heartily endorsing the recommendations made at the meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club last Tuesday, Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in addressing the congregation at the service Sunday evening, stated, however, that the recommendations were purely secular and failed to include what he believes is the most essential need in the city at present. That, he said, is an increase in religious faith and men. Men characterized as having double-track minds, being able not only to do their life duty well but also competent to be entrusted with the affairs of the city and living in the confidence of everyone in the community. Then again, he went on they must be men who are religious. Religion is the great dynamic of life, he said, it clears the eye and straightens the mind, encourages the faint of heart, rejuvenates the old and makes heroes of the young. Rev. Mr. Muirhead stated that to the lack of religion among the people of the city is due the present condition of local affairs.

A two story wooden barn on the Frank Braun property in Mansfield was totally destroyed by fire along with some of the contents, about one-thirty o'clock Monday morning. When the blaze was discovered by Clarence Laramee of Laramee Brothers Wet Wash, who was in the vicinity collecting washings, the top of the building where the hay was stored was a mass of flames. He sent in a call to the bank street engine house of company No. 1, and after obtaining permission from Mayor George W. Hickey the department made a trip to the place which is just over the city line, but they found that nothing could be done to save the structure. Some of the contents including wagons and farm implements were removed to safety. The building was owned by Braun Brothers, ice dealers on the old Eaton Place. It is understood that the loss is partially covered by insurance. Fire Warden Forest Gray of Mansfield was notified of the fire.

In the police court Monday morning, Timothy Connor of Quercus avenue pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. His wife was the complainant, giving the information to the court that her husband came home intoxicated Sunday night and created a disturbance. She sent for a police officer. Judge Frank H. Foss imposed a fine of $5 and costs amounting to $13.15 which was paid.

The case of Alphonse Morin of Ives street, charged with intoxication was continued for two weeks.

The funeral of Mrs. Delia Miron Chalifoux was held Monday morning. Requiem high mass was sung at St. Joseph's church by Rev. Charles M. Kelley. Miss L. Monica McKeon sang several solos during the services. Mrs. E. R. Portelance was at the organ. The bearers were Azarie Bertrand, Sr., Michael Denault, Louis Cote, Theophile Loiselle, Clement Hurteau, Sr., and Arthur Bertrand. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Kelley read the committal service.

A Buick sedan owned and operated by Dr. W. P. S. Keatink and a Ford delivery truck, owned by Joseph Astmann and driven by Louis Keller, collided on Windham Road Saturday night doing considerable damage to the Buick, a fender being ripped off and a tire punctured. The car was a new one. Astmann agreed to settle for the damage.

Some twenty-five members of St. John's Commandery, No. 11, Knights of Templar attended service at St. Paul's Episcopal church Sunday evening. Rev. F. C. Williams was assisted by the prelate of the commandery, Arthur L. Clark. Rev. Mr. Williams spoke on The Christian Soldier, as exemplified by the Knights Templar. At the offertory, G. Raymond Young of Norwich, gave several beautiful violin solos. The junior choir of the church was assisted by Misses Flora Baker and Helen Bradshaw and Mrs. A. M. Grant of Mount Hope.

The application for a marriage license of Irving F. Gove, of 1150 Main street, Hartford and Thusa G. Turner of this city was filed in Hartford last week. Mr. Gove is in the printing business in Hartford. Mrs. Turner is a matter of the faculty of Windham High school having taught there for several years. Mr. Gove was formerly employed in this city. They will be married about Thanksgiving.

From the family home in South Coventry, the funeral of William P. Horrigan was held Monday morning with a large attendance of friends and relatives. At St. Mary's church there, Rev. Dennis F. Moran sang the high mass of requiem. Miss Celia Day was at the organ and assisted by Miss Annie Wellwood sang during the services. As the body was borne into the church Misses Day and Wellwood sang, Thy Will be Done, at the offertory De Profundis and Some Time We'll Understand, as a waiting hymn. Burial was in the family plot at St. Mary's cemetery, where Rev. Father Moran read the committal prayers. The bearers were John, Walter and William Costello, Joseph O'Brien and Jeremiah and James Young. Kilbourey Brothers had charge of the arrangements.

Funeral services for Mrs. Helen A. Witter were held at her home in Chaplin at two o'clock Monday afternoon, with Rev. John K. Knott officiating. During the service a trio, Mrs. Winslow B. Gallup, Wilbur Lanphea and B. M. Welch sang Rock of Ages and Asleep in Jesus. The bearers were Andrew Grant, Christian Church, Frank Martin and Winslow B. Gallup. Burial was in Chaplin cemetery. The J. C. Lincoln company had charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. James P. Bath is chairman of the local work of the Red Cross to make up Willimantic's allotment of seventeen sweaters, at the urgent appeal sent out by the American Red Cross divisional headquarters for 30,000 sweaters.

Assistant Secretary D. D. Cavanaugh has sent out notices of the meeting of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association at the state armory here next Wednesday evening.

Many radios in this section were eagerly tuned in on station WCAC of Connecticut Agricultural college station Monday evening to listen to Arthur J. Roy, Willimantic's popular baritone soloist. He was heard in several numbers. Mr. Roy has the honor of being one of the first local singers to broadcast from this station having given several selections shortly after the station was opened. He is a soloist at St. Joseph's church and is gifted with a baritone voice of rich quality. He was accompanied by Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, also of this city.

Mayor George W. Hickey presided at a meeting of the general committee for the testimonial to be presented St. Joseph's Boy Scout band and its director, Charles N. C. Wheeler at the town hall Monday evening, November 16. The conference was held in the chamber of commerce parlor Monday evening.

YOUNG HUNTER INJURED IN A PECULIAR MANNER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 26—Henry Lucas, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Lucas of Chaplin, a student at Windham High school, sustained a severe injury to his left eye and multiple cuts about the face, about 2.30 o'clock Monday afternoon, when struck full in the face by a shower of sharp splinters from a piece of timber, struck by the accidental discharge of a shot-gun which he was carrying. The boy was going hunting for the afternoon. He stopped at the home of Wilfred E. Burdick and after a talk with Mrs. Burdick started down the West Road, and was near a wooden bridge which spans the Stone House brook on the dividing line of the Burdick and the Walter Vail property in Chaplin, when in some manner the gun was discharged. The shot struck the timbers of the bridge a glancing blow and a myriad splinters flew into the boy's face. Mrs. Burdick heard the shot and Lucas call for help. She ran to his assistance and finding that he was bleeding badly she advised him to remain there while she ran to Alfred Siswick's store nearby and summoned assistance. Mr. Siswick brought the boy to his home and from there he was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where Dr. A. D. Marsh of Hampton cared for his injuries.

SEE HOW CAREFULLY WE LAUNDER COLLARS AND SHIRTS

We are anxious to show you just how we wash and iron your collars and shirts, the care we take in doing them, and how nicely they look after being professionally laundered by us. Soft collars and soft collared shirts laundered by us stay clean and hold their shape longer than those done at home. We want you to come in and convince yourself by seeing the process these shirts and collars go through every week in the year.

YOUR LAUNDRY AT ONE-HALF PRICE!

We are so anxious to have the housewives of Norwich and vicinity inspect our clean and up-to-date plant that we are going to give to each person who GOES THROUGH OUR LAUNDRY a card allowing them to have their washing done during the week of November 2-6, at ONE-HALF PRICE. You can send anything.

EVERYBODY WELCOME OCTOBER 26-31.

FUNERAL OF J. F. FARRELL WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 26—Funeral services for James F. Farrell were held from his home, 51 Park street Monday morning. Requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at 10.30 o'clock was sung by Rev. Paul Bartlewski. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends including a delegation of Willimantic Lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. E. Beautiful floral tributes were sent. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance was at the organ and sang Nearer My God to Thee as a processional. At the offertory she played O Salutaris and gave Some Sweet Day as a waiting hymn. The bearers were David Loree, George Wanderman, J. S. Donahue, Jeremiah Haggerty, Frank P. Fenton and George Watrous, all members of the local lodge of Elks. Heading the B. P. O. E. delegation was Exalted Ruler Albert J. Fournier. Burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery in Greeneville where Rev. William A. Keefe read the committal prayers. Kilbourey Brothers had charge of the arrangements.

You Needn't Add Bran to Quaker Oats

It already contains the "roughage" that makes laxatives seldom needed

YOU needn't add bran to Quick Quaker or Quaker Oats . . . the "bulk" that you need is already there. It ranks as a bulk food because Quaker milling leaves a large percentage of oats' gentle "roughage" stay.

Some people, we are told, don't know this important point about Quick Quaker and Quaker Oats. Start today. Note how well you will feel, how seldom laxatives will be needed.

All the richness of oats and milk . . . the protein, carbohydrates, minerals and vitamines . . . plus the "bulk" so necessary to your diet, are contained in this supreme breakfast dish . . . an almost perfectly balanced food.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Miami—"where it's always summer" is due for a chance to spend some of its Alladin's stock of wealth on something a bit different. Henri I. Baer of the Palisade Kennels at East Killingly is leaving for the Golden city Wednesday evening and is taking with him about 40 police dog puppes. He figures these should sell well down there. Mr. Baer will dispose of the puppies before returning and does not expect to be away very long. All the puppies are thoroughbreds. They will be taken south from New York by boat.

An explanation of the crashes and brilliant flashes reported as happening to the north at 12:25 or thereabouts, Sunday morning was made Monday A limb broke off a tree near the residence of Dr. F P. Todd at that period of the story and fell across an electric power line. This threw out a switch at a station of the D. and P. Gas & Electric company west of Mechanic street. The flashes were caused as an effort was made to throw in the switch at the station, this effort being repeated. Linesmen who were called out cleared the trouble sufficiently to protect the public from any danger during the night.

No great amount of damage was reported Monday in this or nearby territory from the heavy gale of Sunday afternoon Some trees were blown over and numbers of limbs torn off trees. In some places fences went down under the force of the gale, but no damage of any importance was reported.

Nothing is being done at points where the rails of the trolley company cross the route of the new concrete highway between Morin avenue and Elmville as to putting in concrete. It is possible that this delay is due to awaiting a decision from the Public Utilities commission as to allowing the Connecticut company to operate bus lines on this route instead of maintaining trolley service. In the meantime concrete is being put in on other parts of the highway.

The many members of Putnam lodge of Elks resident in Danielson have received notices that the organization hopes to turn out its full strength for the Armistice day parade to be held in Putnam incident to the dedication of the Memorial bridge across the Quinebaug river in Pomfret street. The parade is planned to be the largest and most impressive held in Putnam in many years.

Concrete recently laid along the frontage of the central fire station in Academy street has so hardened that it can now be used by the fire apparatus emerging from the state through two of the front entrances. The concrete in front of the third entrance can be used in a day or two. The department has been called out but twice while the concrete was being put down, and arrangements were such that there was no delay in' rework is now completed on both the spending to the alarms. The concrete Academy and School street sides of the building. It is a very fine improvement, carried out by the borough of Danielson.

Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion, as well as the Service battery, has been invited to participate in the Armistice day celebration at Putnam. It is likely, it was said Monday, that the legion post here will go to Putnam in a body. The present prospect is that Danielson will not have a great observance of Armistice day this year, efforts being centered on making Putnam's observance a big day.

Approximately $2,000 is now on hand toward the $2,800 apportionment of Danielson for the American legion's $5,000,000 endowment fund. The apportionment was an exceptionally heavy one, and is accounted for by the fact that the apportionments were based on the amount of bank deposits of each district. Danielson has bank deposits much higher per thousands population than the greater majority of places in Connecticut, so drew an apportionment really too large for the number of people resident here.

Danielson's first amateur boxing contests are scheduled for Thursday night There are to be seven bouts, bringing together some of the fastest amateurs in Connecticut, including Joe Howard, state middleweight champion. These bouts are sanctioned by the A. A. W., and Promoter Frank Barber says that he feels very fortunate in having been able to get together such an array of boxing talent. In later amateur bouts aspirants for ring honors from Danielson and surrounding towns will have an opportunity to appear and enter.

When the new Green Hollow state road project is carried through, which it likely will be in time, there is a prospect of various changes from the route of the present Green Hollow road. There are numbers of opportunities for taking out curves and getting lesser grades than places in the present highway allow. Nothing definite is known as to when construction of this new highway will be undertaken, but the word is that it is coming. Danielson and all of Killingly is interested, of course, in seeing that the present route between Danielson and Wauregan is not abandoned as trunk line if the new highway is built.

There was a 10-minute traffic jam that completely blocked things at Franklin and Water streets, Sunday morning at 10:15. This was largely caused by half a hundred motor cars getting under way at one time after the close of the 9:15 mass at St. James' church, and was aided by the movement of traffic over the trunk line highway. The situation is further complicated on Sundays for the time being as traffic detouring because of the closed bridge in Main street sends hundreds of cars daily by Water and Franklin streets. It is possible a traffic officer may be asked for to go on duty Sunday mornings at the hour mentioned, to prevent further blockades such as that of Sunday morning.

PUTNAM

Dr. Olsen, a representative of the government, was in Putnam last week, and with the assistance of Dr. Lamarche, the school physician and Miss Snyder, school nurse, made an examination of between four and five hundred school children. The prevalence of goitre in the United States has caused the government to have this investigation made. Out of the large number of children examined, twenty were found to be affected with this disease, in an incipient stage in most of the cases. During this examination attention was also paid to the condition of throat and nose for bad tonsils and adenoids.

This examination was made only of pupils in the High school, seventh and eighth grades in the city and at St. Mary's parochial school. Dr. Olsen paid a high compliment to the school physician and nurse, saying that the physical condition of the pupils was excellent and he would so report. He also noted the excellent dental work done especially in the High school and the eighth grade pupils.

The state department of health the following statement in reference to this examination by the federal authorities:

"At the request of the Connecticut state department of health, representatives of the U. S. public health service are now in Connecticut making a thyroid survey. Interest in the thyroid gland has been intensified during recent years by the discovery that thyroid enlargements, sometimes called goitre when it occurs in excessive degree, may be prevented by a small amount of iodin. It would seem that the thyroid requires a minute particle of iodine in order to perform its function and when not enough iodine is present the gland enlarges, possibly for the same reason that the muscle of one's arm enlarges when greater demands are being made upon it. The plan of the survey is to select several cities or towns in each county and examine a representative group of perhaps 500 to 1,000 school children in each. In order to measure the maximum incidence of thyroid enlargements it is particularly desired to examine children of adolescent age. This would include pupils in the seventh and eighth grades in the grammar schools and students in the high schools.

John O. Fox who was operated on at the Massachusetts General Hospital Boston, Thursday, is reported in a critical condition.

Donat Houle, fifteen, died Friday at the Louis Pasteur hospital, Worcester, following an operation for appendicitis. This is the second time within two years that the boy had undergone a surgical operation. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Houle of Providence street and was working in a mill in Danielson until a short time ago. The body was brought here and the funeral was held Monday morning at St. Mary's church.

Victoria Cheminski was arrested Saturday night at her home at 60 School street, charged with violation of the liquor laws. The raiding party consisted of Special Officer W. E. Jackson of Willimantic, Deputy Sheriff Ayer and Captain William Jarvis. A search of the house resulted in the discovery of 71 bottles of home brew beer which they confiscated. They also found on the premises three drunks whom they lodged in the police station. In court Monday morning Mrs. Cheminski pleaded not guilty and was bound over to the superior court on her own recognizance. She was one of the nineteen arrested last January on a similar charge. At that time she was given a suspended sentence in superior court. Her husband had been in the service, but had died after the war and left her with three children, one born after his death. She gets a pension of $42 a month which she said was not sufficient to take care of the children and herself and she was trying to increase her income by the sale of liquor.

Two of the men arrested were fined $10 and costs; the other was released on parole.

William Aldrich and Henry Bugbee of the Hi-Y club, Perry Barber from the Second Congregational Sunday school and Stanley Amidon and Frank Cushman of the Putnam High school attended the Connecticut Older Boys' conference at Hartford Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The conference was held at the Asylum Hill Congregational church and the conference dinner was served at the Hotel Bond. The boys were entertained at dinner by the Rotary band and were greeted by the mayor of Hartford, Norman C. Stevens and many others. The boys report a great time.

Judge A. McClellen Mathewson has been mentioned as a possible candidate for mayor of New Haven by the republican party of that city. Judge Mathewson was a former resident of Woodstock and at one time had a law office in the Union block in Putnam. He went to New Haven and has been a successful lawyer there for a number of years and has been judge of the New Haven city court for several terms.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rich, Mrs. G. A. Hawkins and Miss Mary Eddy who have been for several months at their home in Putnam for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. William Falter have returned from Springfield, Mass., where they attended the funeral Saturday of Mr. Falter's brother-in-law, Edward Mossey, who died Wednesday.

Miss Sadie Harrison spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs S. Harrison. Miss Harrison is an employe of the Louis A. Wolfe Corporation at Worcester, Mass.

Miss Elizabeth Russell of Worcester, Mass., spent the week end with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Russell

Mrs. Charles E. Dean of Mechanics street, was in Willimantic several days last week to visit her husband who is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital.

Mrs. Genevieve has returned from a visit with relatives and friends at Somerville, Mass.

Mrs. Thomas Duffy and little son, have returned from a visit with friends in Worcester.

William Easton of Woonsocket spent the week end with his family on Pleasant street.

Mrs. May Torrey and daughter, Miss Leslie Torrey of Cambridge, Mass., have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Whitney.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lorillard will leave Pomfret early in November and will go to France, to remain for a year or two.

Mrs. Edmond Gilbert has returned from a visit with friends in Worcester.

Mrs. Jacob Rosenwald spent Saturday with friends in Webster, Mass.

Miss Grace Edick who has been ill for the past six weeks is slowly regaining her strength.

Mrs. B. Haviland of Ballouville who is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Justin S Greene on Center street, fell a few days ago and broke a rib.

Mrs. John Savin who has been at the Day Kimball hospital for several weeks has recovered sufficiently to return to her home in Pomfret.

John H. Thompson of Hartford has been in Putnam during the past week on business.

BOROUGH BARBERS BALK AT NEW BOBBING LAWS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 26.—Barbers have been perturbed over a ruling of a special commission of the state fixing November 2 as the date when, and thereafter, it will be required that a separate entrance for women and a separate room for women be maintained at barber shops of the state. There are some barber shops in Danielson. It may be stated in advance, that will ignore that ruling, and they will do it by advice of counsel.

A master barber stated Monday that he had taken the matter up with an attorney, and had been advised that the commission has absolutely no authority, to make any such ruling; that it is beyond the commission's jurisdiction to impose any such regulation and no statute warrant for so doing exists.

No barber shop in Danielson is appointed as the commission says they must be on and after November 2. In some instances it would be very expensive and difficult, if at all possible, to comply with the separate entrance and separate room ruling, when the barbers do not like at all, and which the average person will quite fail to get the meaning intended. A merchant here suggested Monday that it would be about as reasonable to ask shoe stores to provide a separate entrance to their establishments and a separate fitting room for women.

TRUST CO. SPREADING— TO ANNEX A STORE

Following a meeting of the directors of the Danielson Trust company Monday morning announcement was made that the directors have under consideration plans for enlarging the bank's quarters.

This enlargement will involve taking over the store in the Trust company building now occupied by the Keystone store. It is likely that the present entrance to the Keystone store will be replaced with plate glass frontage in keeping with the present bank frontage.

The plan is to remove the partition separating the bank's present quarters from the Keystone store. This would allow of extending the lobby and giving more space for the bank's working force and more cages for tellers. The bank's growing business necessitates having more space both for patrons of the bank and for the its working force.

No changes such as are contemplated will be undertaken until after the Christmas season. It is likely that the work will begin early in January.

At Monday's meeting of the directors a semi-annual dividend at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent per annum was declared on the savings deposits of the institution. The semi-annual report showed that business had been very good during the past six months

The Danielson Trust company was established in the fall of 1914. It has grown steadily, in the meantime has acquired title to the building where its business is located and now finds that further expansion requires it to take over all of the lower floor of the building excepting a small store on the Railroad square side.

COLLECTOR JOSEPH PLESSIS WAS PROMINENT CITIZEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 26—Joseph Plessis, 5[illegible] who died at his home on Woodstock avenue Saturday night after suffering for several months from an incurable malady, for the past month had been confined to the house and for three weeks was unable to leave his bed.

He was born at St. Aime, Province of Quebec, April 23, 1873, the son of George and Adeline Mathieu Plessis. The father, George Plessis, was born and spent most of his life in this town. He and Mrs. Plessis lived at South Adams, Mass., for one year and then returned to St. Aime. Later he came to Putnam and was a farmer here for four years but he was not satisfied away from his birthplace and finally went back to St. Aime, where he died a few years ago. Joseph Plessis' mother was born in St. Louis, Province of Quebec. She died in St. Aime in 1915.

George Plessis for two terms was mayor of his native place, where he was highly esteemed.

The parochial schools of St. Aime gave Joseph Plessis his early education. This was supplemented by a three years' course at St. Croix college. In 1892 he came to Putnam and entered the employ of Chandler and Morse where he remainded for twenty-four years. He left there in 1917 to become assistant manager of the Ballard and Clark Hardware store, now the A. Gilman Hardware company. In 1919 he opened an insurance office and continued in that business until his death. A part of his time was given to the real estate business. His wide acquaintanceship and his high standing made him successful from the start.

October 26, 1891 he married Miss Anna Cadoret, daughter of Maxime and Seraphine Cadoret. Three children were born to them, Bertha, who has been her father's assistant in the insurance business, Gertrude and Arthur H. Plessis.

Mr. Plessis, who was a lifelong republican, was elected representative to the General Assembly in 1913 and reelected in 1915. He was a member of the Board of Relief of Putnam for ten years and was president of that body for five years. Six years ago he was selected personal tax collector for the town, an office which he held at the time of his death. He was a prominent member of Cargill Council K. of C. and of the Artisans of America. For more than 15 years he was a collector at St. Mary's church.

HOPKINTON

Benjamin Lamphear, 94, for several years an inmate of the town farm, was struck by an automobile Wednesday night, while crossing the road in front of the asylum and so seriously injured that he died that evening at Westerly hospital. He suffered a broken leg, a broken arm, several broken ribs and severe bruises and cuts. His funeral was held from the undertaking parlors at Hope Valley, Saturday afternoon.

Norman Lewis, of Ashaway, and Walter Johnson of Potter Hill, two 15 year old boys, while on a hunting trip in the woods near Canonchet, with David S. Hoxsie and Joel Sherman became separated from the men and lost their way. Several men and boy scouts from Ashaway and Hope Valley hunted for them all night Saturday night in the severe storm and found them after daybreak safe in a cave, where they had found shelter.

Street lights were installed on the unlighted streets of Ashaway last week. In the early evening Sunday they were out of commission because of the high wind but later came on repairs having been made.

From the recent sale of building lots it would appear that these villages are destined to grow, as a result of the construction of the new cement road by the state, with a consequent increase of the taxable property in the town.

Miss Mildred K. Taylor left town last week for a vacation trip.

Rev. E. P. Mathewson did not preach at Pendleton Hill Sunday on account of the storm.

Mrs. Benjamin P. Langworthy of Providence is visiting in town among former neighbors and friends.

On account of the strike of the employes of the Pawcatuck Woolen Mills because of the 10 per cent cut in wages quite a number of the residents of this town are temporarily unemployed and some have found work elsewhere.

Religion that is kept for Sunday is apt to ferment about the middle of the week.

I hope to tell you!

PRINCE ALBERT is the greatest little trouble-shooter you could pal around with. It smooths out your smoke-wrinkles toot-sweet. It's got everything you ever wished for in a real, honest-to-Pete smoke . . . and nothing else except! Clamp on the ear-phones and get this message of jimmy-pipe joy.

No matter what your previous experience has been in trying to smoke a pipe, forget it. Write it on the ice! You can smoke a pipe if it's packed with P. A. Yes, sir! For a fact, they'd have to sue you to get that jimmy-pipe away from you, once you give P. A. a work-out.

Cool and sweet and fragrant, P. A. puts a padlock on pipe-worries and throws away the key. Can't bite your tongue or parch your throat. The Prince Albert process fixes that. Just downright, deep-rooted contentment—morning till midnight.

Quality without a doubt. And quantity too. You get more for your money both ways when you smoke P. A. There are TWO full ounces in every tin. (Look at the U. S. revenue stamp.) Get going! Steer straight for the store where they hand out such happiness in tidy red tins. It'll be P. A. for yours after that.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidor, and pound crystal-glass humidor with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Look at the U. S. revenue stamp—there are TWO full ounces in every tin.

THE LEAGUE AT WORK

The decision of Greece and Bulgaria to hold their armies in check and to submit their case to the league of nations in the hope that it can be adjusted must be regarded as the wise one. It is unfortunate that it was not resorted to before there has been bloodshed through resistance and renewed attacks. The eagerness to fight is a characteristic in that quarter of the globe and it is not easy to restrain those who are looking for a test of strength with their neighbors.

Because the submission of the matter to the league does not necessarily mean that the solution reached will be satisfactory, or that it will be accepted as given, but there will be the satisfaction of having resorted to other methods than the use of bullets to settle the differences, and that is one of the things which the league was organized to do. Getting nations out of old habits is quite as hard as changing the established practices of individuals, but if nations can be brought to realize the importance of submitting such matters to adjustment in keeping with the facts valuable progress will have been made in the right direction.

As the league begins its struggle to take command of the situation it is to be sincerely hoped that it will succeed. Neither Bulgaria nor Greece can afford to plunge into devastating war, and that is bound to be the result no matter which might win, and through a clash of arms there's no assurance that the one displaying the greater strength would be entitled to the decision according to the facts.

The league is expected to help in maintaining the peace of the world and in preventing wars. Certainly it must be given a chance if it is going to function at all. Both countries involved in the present unpleasantness were inclined to follow past practices at the start, but being made to realize their mistake as members of the league they are to be commended for at least giving the league a chance through suspension of hostilities until it can be seen whether a settlement can be effected.

TOO LITTLE CARE

The toll continues to be collected at railroad crossings, regularly and positively. Each week the number is increased and each week new emphasis is placed upon the importance of giving heed to known danger spots.

Can there be any wonder in view of such cases that there is a demand for the routeing of main highways so that traffic will not be obliged to negotiate such places, or that there is a demand for the establishment of lights or signals at such danger spots that will serve to warn both day and night for those who have to use them?

At Milton, Pa., a party of four in an automobile was annihilated when an excursion train crashed into the machine at a crossing which is unguarded at night. The belief is that the driver of the car was unable to see the lights of the approaching train because of fog and rain." Two Vermont residents were killed by a Canadian train near Sherbrooke as the automobile was driven in front of the locomotive.

In the Pennsylvania case the very fact that the crossing was unguarded at night furnished a first class reason for approaching that point in a manner that would have prevented the accident, but if such was needed there was additional reason provided for driving cautiously because there was fog and rain. Apparently these conditions made no difference. It was a case of push ahead and trust to luck, and the product of luck in this instance was extremely distressing.

Such affairs are all the more deplorable because they are apparently so unnecessary. It is recognized of course that the exercise of care may be a bit irksome to some drivers, but when it is a case of being thrown into eternity through being careless there would seem to be good and sufficient reason for taking the opposite course first, last and all the time. There is little probability that too much care would be exercised under such conditions.

STANDING BY THE LAW

Those who are trying to blame Secretary Kellogg of the state department for excluding those who are known to have revolutionary tendencies from the country are not likely to get very far if they are to be classed among the supporters of law and order. The inference that it is intended to go forth from the criticism is that it was the exercise of his personal feelings by the secretary, but they do not have to look very far to find out that he is acting in keeping with the laws which he is sworn to support.

If laws mean anything they should be respected. If they do not mean anything they ought not to have been enacted and the quicker they can be discarded the better. But the secretary of state doesn't make the laws. There are times however when he is called upon to decide whether they are going to be enforced, and it is fortunate on such occasions that an upholder of the laws fits in that important chair at the head of the department of state.

Those who are prone to rush to the defense of the radicals and those of revolutionary tendencies should realize that congress is the federal law making body and that it is in support of its law regarding alien adricals that the secetary of state acted. He would have been subjected to just as much criticism from other directions had he seen fit to make an exception of certain applications for entrance to this country, but he can stand criticism for enforcement of the law much better than he could the dodging of the law. As long as the law exists it should be enforced. If the law isn't a good one the fault rests with congress. If it should be repealed that duty devolves upon congress, but until congress modifies it or removes it there is good reason for expecting that it will be lived up to. Certainly it is a commendable position on the part of the secretary of state in backing up his subordinates in the enforcement of the law. In fact just because certain ones have been excluded from the country does not furnish a satisfactory reason for the ending of the law.

NAVY DAY

Today marks the 150th anniversary of the American navy. It is also the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, a strong navy man, and it is the day which will be observed at naval posts throughout the country as Navy day.

The first of our naval vessels were required to deal with pirates. They have dealt with many other problems since that time and it is the navy which is today regarded as the first line of defense in a nation which has an extremely long sea-coast.

We are not maintaining our navy in the expectation of having it engaged in war. Our desire is for peace, but for our protection we must make adequate preparations. We must establish safeguards by taking precautions. We cannot wait until trouble breaks out before establishing a navy. As President Coolidge has said we must have regard for the "dignity and security of a free people," even though our country represents nothing but peaceful intentions.

Thus we have reason for being interested in our navy today and tomorrow as well as yesterday, and we should fully employ every opportunity it to get better acquainted with it. Navy day has been established to aid in that object. With naval stations opened to the public today and special opportunities provided for inspection of ships and shops, besides varied programmes of entertainment, it is an occasion that should be taken advantage of by those of the public who are able to do so.

It furnishes a chance to get in touch with the inside workings of the submarine base on the Thames which it is not possible to do every day. It is likewise a day for doing honor to the navy on which so much dependence is placed.

DISTRIBUTING AUTO MARKERS

The department of motor vehicles is calling attention to the fact that opportunity is being provided now for those who want to retain their present marker numbers for another year to do so by making early application therefor. Truly those who are interested should act while there is plenty of time.

It is also referring to the fact that the difficulty in the past in getting registration numbers to auto owners was that "most of the registrants have delayed until the last few days of the year before applying for renewals with the result that considerable congestion has been caused and the registrants themselves have been obliged to wait in line for hours at a time.

No one knows better than those who have done it what it means to wait "hours in line" and then have the door shut in their faces. Additional registration windows have been provided this year at Hartford and at the branch offices to deal with this situation and it is to be hoped that the relief will be adequate.

But while these additional preparations are being made for six of the cities of the state it is causing the citizens of the other cities of the state to wonder a bit as to why some of the accommodation could not be extended to them. There seems to be no reason why the auto owners in and about every city in the state should not be able to get their markers in their own cities instead of being obliged to go elsewhere and spend hours waiting outdoors because of the congestion that prevails in forcing so much business to so few centers. The department would stand in the way of getting better responses if it gave the proper encouragement.

Fertile Imagination

"It must be a wonderful thing to have a great imagination," laughed Mrs. Gray, glancing up from her home-town newspaper.

"Yes" encouraged her husband. "What have you there?"

"An account of Maggie Ann's wedding. You remember little Mag Brown, don't you?"

"I never forget her," laughed Mr. Gray. "The little girl with the big blue eyes and the awfully skinny legs? I should say I do recall Maggie Ann."

"She's Marilyn Annabelle now, John."

"Might've known she'd do that some day," mused Gray, twinkling. "She always was a wonder on this business of laying it on thick. Best little fibber in three counties."

"Oh, Maggie never lied. That was just her remarkable imagination. Any modern psychologist will tell you that the reason poor Maggie used to—er—fabricate that way was because the dear child wasn't quite happy in her surroundings. They were terribly shabby, you know, and poor Mag just had to play pretend. Remember the time her little brother had measles and was quarantined?"

"Yes—and your mother took Mag to your house. And then what did that child do but impress the rest of us with the brilliant idea that her old house was an enchanted castle, and the little sick brother a royal captive! I'll never forget how we stormed that place one afternoon and gained access to the castle dungeon. I mean the sick boy's bedroom. And then we all came down with measles and the whole town had to be quarantined!"

"Poor Maggie! I used to feel so sorry for her, John, but really, I don't believe she had a bad time of it, after all. It seems to me that she got more fun out of everything than the rest of us did. When we girls wore new shoes, they were shoes and nothing else but Maggie's always turned out to be the slippers that Cinderella lost."

"She sure did get a kick out of that aircastle building, didn't she? Did you say that her wedding announcement is in the old home-town news?"

"Yes—the report must have been written up by Mag herself. Listen: 'Miss Marilyn Annabelle Brown was married this day to Llewlyn Cane—'"

"Old Lou Cane, eh?"

"The ceremony took place at the family residence'—get that, dear?—'of the bride, who was given in marriage by her father. The ceremony was most impressive and young Mrs. Llewelyn Cane thrilled all hearts as she swept down the heavily carpeted stairs'—"

"It isn't the first time little Mag swept those stairs down, either," interjected Gray, with a chuckle.

"'Swept down the stairs on the arm of her proud husband, to the strains of Lohengrin's—'"

"Picked out with one finger by the bride's little 12-year-old niece—"

"The bride wore white chiffon over old rose—"

"Maggie slipped up there. She didn't have to tell everybody how old the dress was," grinned Gray.

"'And carried a huge boquet of lilies of the valley.' Oh, wait—there's some more on this side, John. 'Mr. and Mrs. Llewelyn Cane will pass their honeymoon out of town—'"

"They'll come to Chicago for a day. It's only a two-hour trip from the old town."

"'Owing to Mr. Cane's pressing business affairs, the happy couple will return within a few days to the home of the bride's mother.'"

"Slipped again!" exclaimed Gray. "That last sentence is way off. It ought to read: 'At home—June 1. The Brown manor, Stratford on the Thames', or something classy like that. And now that she's safely married, no doubt she'll put a period after all this romancing, and settle down to a staid housekeeping—"

"Don't you ever believe it!" retorted Mrs. Gray. "The castle-building has just begun. You don't suppose that the children of Marilyn Annabelle are going to be just ordinary youngsters!"—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

Robert Bonner, The Great Publisher

It was not long ago that everyone in the United States who loved horses was talking about the wonderful animal known as Maud S. That was in the days when trotting races were popular, and tracks for them were to be found in every village. The owner of Maud S. was a greatly envied man. For that fast horse, and for others equally fast, Robert Bonner paid the great sum of a half million dollars.

Some years before "Bob" Bonner, a little Irish boy, had come from an immigrant steamer without money enough to afford a ride on a horse drawn street car. He had looked about him with open eyes, ready for a job or ready for a fight, for he was not in the least bit afraid of life. It was not particularly easy to find his first work, but he found it at last in a printing office, and learned how to set type. At an age when the boys of today are in the first years of high school "Bob" Bonner picked type from the cases and absorbed his first lessons in publication. He learned how to do everything that was done in the office, and he watched the make-up of the "Hartford Courant" for which he set type for a long time. He saw all the good in the paper, and all the opportunities for making a paper that would sell. With it all he had a good time and saved money enough to launch out for himself.

At 27 he was able to buy a paper in New York city known as The Ledger and in this he made use of all he had learned. In fact, with The Ledger he woke people up. He made it the most wonderful paper that the city had ever seen. Families that have not moved so much that they have lost all their family heirlooms still have piles of The Ledger treasured away carefully. In the first place, Robert spent money on the paper as he spent it on his horses later. He made every issue of it trot in snappy style. No writer was too expensive for Bonner to obtain. In the second place he had a quick Irish brain and he knew exactly what would interest the readers. Dickens was popular—and Dickens wrote for The Ledger; Henry Ward Beecher drew crowds, and he wrote for The Ledger; Sylvanus Cobb wrote wildly romantic stories that everyone wished to read—in The Ledger Bonner made every number a delight, —and something new and startling. Therefore money flowed in upon him. He made his own actions attract attention—and more money flowed in upon him. His paper was unique in its success. The little compositor had made his dream come true.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Most Rev. Edward J. Hanna, whose name is being mentioned in Vatican circles as the next American cardinal, is archbishop of San Francisco and celebrated as one of the most eminent scholars of the Roman Catholic heirachy in American. Archbishop Hanna was born 65 years ago in Rochester, N. Y., and received his early education in that city, later completing his studies in Rome, at the University of Munich, and at Cambridge, England. After his ordination to the priesthood he returned to America to become professor of theology at St. Bernard's Seminary, Rochester. In 1907 he was nominated coadjutor archbishop of San Francisco, but failed to receive the confirmation of Rome on account of a charge of modernism. The charge was later disproved and in 1912 Father Hanna was appointed auxiliary bishop of San Francisco. Upon the death of Archbishop Riordan he succeeded to the archbishopric.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Suggests Inspection of Streets

Mr. Editor: Why not invite the public works committee to make a tour of inspection of the city and note the condition of the streets and give them some repairs before winter sets in?

Would suggest, among others, that they take a look at the easterly end of Dunham street and see what the residents thereon are getting for their taxes, which are just as high as in other parts of the city. Is it too much to hope for a little relief?

Stories That Recall Others

Aggressive Measures

Donald's grandmother had had her hair bobbed and grandfather didn't like it, so Donald decided he didn't like it either.

They had been to the circus and seen the antics of the clowns among other things. When Donald was getting out of the car he looked at his grandmother and said: "If anyone calls you a funny sap, grandma, punch 'em in the nose."

Turned Loose From Himself

Joe is a watchman and incidentally a friend of the constable, who happened to leave his handcuffs with the watchman over night. During the long hours of the night Joe picked up the bright shiny pair of handcuffs and between rounds at punching the time clock, dangled the steel bracelets in his hands. He slipped one over his wrist cautiously, imagining that he was using them in an emergency, and the other on the other wrist, without fastening them, of course. He was telling himself how easily it could be done when he realized that he had actually handcuffed himself!

Visions of what might happen if he should be surprised by a would-be robber under such conditions came to Joe. He became nervous and excited but all his efforts were in vain. He managed to get to the telephone and implored the constable in the wee small hours of the morning to bring his key and turn him loose. The constable came to his rescue.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Looking for a Winter Home

This truth, I pray, let inward sink:
The folks are few who truly think.
—Old Mother Nature.

It seemed to Peter Rabbit that almost every one he met these days was thinking of winter. Peter believes that it is time enough to think of unpleasant and uncomfortable things when they arrive. "Why," said Peter, "should folks be thinking of cold and snow and storm and unpleasant things on such beautiful days as these days of late fall?" But nobody answered the question. Most folks were too busy. In fact, as he thought it all over it seemed to him as if almost everybody with the exception of his cousin, Jumper the Hare, and himself was too busy to really enjoy this lovely weather.

So it was with considerable pleasure that Peter discovered a small friend of his taking a sunbath. It was little Mr. Garter Snake. As Peter came hopping along little Mr. Garter Snake raised his head and darted out his tongue in the sauciest way. At least it looked saucy. Really it wasn't saucy at all. I don't know what little Mr. Garter Snake would do if he couldn't run that little tongue of his out. You see, it is by means of it that he learns much of what is going on. You know he has no ears. He learns much through that slender little tongue, that you or I would learn through our ears. He can feel sounds with it, so to speak. Anyway that is as near as I can explain it to you how he uses that little tongue.

"Hello, Mr. Garter Snake!" exclaimed Peter

"Hello, Mr. Garter Snake," exclaimed Peter. "It certainly does my heart good to find somebody not too busy to have a good time."

Mr. Garter Snake's bright little eyes almost twinkled. I suspect he would have winked if he could have. But he couldn't, because you know he has no eyelids. "What makes you think I'm having a good time?" he inquired.

"Any one taking a sunbath as you are must be having a good time," said Peter. "I take a sunbath every day, but you are the first one of my friends whom I have found with time enough to take a sunbath."

Little Mr. Garter Snake yawned. "I be able to have a few sunbaths before now," said he. "It is rather nice to really haven't anything else to do just I go to sleep for the winter."

"Oh," said Peter, "are you going to do that?"

"Of course I'm going to do that," replied Mr. Garter Snake. "What did you think I would do?"

Peter was frankly honest. "I didn't think anything about it," he confessed. "Do you really sleep all winter?"

"What a silly question," retorted little Mr. Garter Snake. "Did you ever in your life see a Snake around in the winter?"

"No," replied Peter, "No, I can't say that I ever did."

"No, and you never will," replied Mr. Garter Snake. "It is one of those things that don't happen. When I finally go to sleep for the winter it will be for the winter. There will be no waking up until spring comes with some warm sunshiny days. Br-r-r-r-r-r-r! How I hate cold weather! If it were not for these sunbaths in the middle of the day I should retire for the winter at once. But as long as I can enjoy these sunbaths I mean to come out for them every day."

"That reminds me!" exclaimed Peter. "Where do you spend the winter?"

"Where do you suppose?" inquired Mr. Garter Snake.

"I don't suppose," retorted Peter. "I really haven't any idea. You see, I have never thought about it before. Where do you spend the winter, Mr. Garter Snake?"

POETRY

Fledglings

Why should we waste and weep?
The summers weave
A nest of blossoms deep.
Sad hearts, why grieve?
We downy birdlings are
Unfledged for flight;
God's love wind woos afar;
Its name, Delight.

From arcades vast and dim
What songs disthrall?
Through nature's endless hymn,
Our kindred call
Mysterious murmurings,
What night is lone,
Glide, as to lift our wings
For flights unknown.

In melody we form,
By sweetness fill;
For gladness, pure and warm,
Our bosoms thrill.
Soon shall our choiring bands,
Upborne for glee,
Find in God's garden lands
Their bridal tree.

Eternity prepares
Her gift in Time
And flows by fragrant airs
That lead the prime.
Chill shadows touch the eyes;
Their orbs are wet:
But God shall for us rise,
When stars have set.
—THOMAS LAKE HARRIS

The End

No freeman, saith the wise, thinks much on death;
No man with soul he dareth call his own
Liveth in dread lest there be no stone in time to come for yesterday's warm breath.
No more than he for such end hungereth
As falls to those who speed their souls a-groan;
Death may be King, to sit a tottering throne
And hale men hence—let cowards cringe to Death!
Who giveth, taketh; and the days go by;
No seed sowed we; let him who did come reap;
Sweet peace is ours—and everlastingly.
A little sleep, a little slumber! Ay
This much is known; there is for thee and me
A little folding of the hands to sleep.
—WILLIAM RICE

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Mrs. When does the fight begin?
Mr. Right now. I've lost the tickets.
—Harvard Lampoon.

"Cloudy day sir," said the bell-hop.
"Yes," growled the stingy traveler "and no change coming, either."—The Progressive Grocer.

Do you play the races?
No. My fruitless struggles to place a winner could hardly be designated as play.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Teacher—Jimmie, why don't you wash your face? I can see that you had eggs for breakfast this morning.

Jimmie—No, that was yesterday, ma'am.—Good Hardware.

Soph—Do you play on the piano?
Frosh—Not when mother's around. She's afraid I'll fall off.—University of Southern California Wampus.

FLY-TOX

Every Bottle GUARANTEED

FLY-TOX was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by the Rex Fellowship. In a simple, easy and thoroughly effective way, FLY-TOX kills flies, moths, mosquitoes, fleas, ants, roaches and other insects. It's so convenient to saturate the air with clouds of FLY-TOX. Flies, by merely winging through the mist, become affected with the strange action of FLY-TOX, and die. This mist lingers just long enough to do its work. It then evaporates and leaves only a pleasant, clean odor. Wall paper or drapes are not stained. FLY-TOX is harmless to humans. Those stray, shadow flies that invade the most carefully screened homes are quickly and easily eliminated with FLY-TOX.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

FOUND RAIN AND SNOW ON CANADIAN TRIP

William Kendall of Norwich and Lee Heap of South Second avenue, Taftville, have returned from an 800 mile automobile trip to points in Canada. While there they visited Mr. Kendall's relatives in Sutton and viewed some of the beauty spots in that part of the country. As is usual at this time of the year they experienced an abundance of rain and snow, which left the roads in some places very slippery and impassable for automobiles unless equipped with chains.

TEAMS BEGIN DRIVE FOR ST. JOSEPH SCHOOL WITH ZEAL TO SUCCEED

Unbounded enthusiasm for the success of the drive for $25,000 for equipping St. Joseph's school was the ruling note at the supper at 6:15 Monday night at the Wauregan hotel given for the teams that will push the drive through this week. Many of the teams had been at work Monday and the captains were on hand with encouraging returns to report, but these were deferred till this (Tuesday) evening, when the first results will be reported at headquarters which have been arranged in the Sellas building.

Every seat of the 175 that had been set at the tables was filled when General Chairman Adelard Morin called the meeting to order, leading in the singing of a verse of America, after which the blessing was asked by Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, who was a special guest and was seated at the head table with the pastor of St. Joseph's church, Rev. S. A. Iciek, and the general committee.

General Chairman Morin opened the speaking programme by stating that inspiration to put the drive across would reach everybody from this first meeting of the teams, whose members were to feel that they were engaged in a work of interest and importance to every man, woman and child in Norwich. The amount that was asked for was as nothing compared to the saving to the town which the establishment and maintenance of this school by the Polish congregation would save the town. He exhorted the team members to [illegible] to work with the spirit not to halt or slow up until the task before them had been accomplished.

Monsignor May was greeted with warm applause as he was introduced by Mr. Morin to speak and he responded with an earnest and eloquent plea to the workers. Drives, he said, were nothing new in Norwich, where a remarkable reputation for success had been made in the war days. These had been for the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A., the K of C, and the Y. M. H. A., and not many places had scored such success as Norwich had. Then there had been the drive for the Backus hospital and after that the drive for that piece of architectural beauty that overlooks the Shetucket River, and this had been followed by the drive for Sacred Heart Church at Norwich Town after the damage there by fire. Now on a hilltop that overlooks both rivers there has been built a school building that is never to be closed to the public, regardless of creed, color or nationality. The spirit of co-opration exists in the community and this Polish congregation asks you to carry a part of their heavy load. These Poles ought to receive co-operation from us. The pages of history in the Revolution blaze with the names of Polish leaders who helped in our fight for liberty and now the people of that nation are settling by thousands among us. We need the best schools in Norwich for our children and their school compares with our best. We are going to co-operate with the people of St. Joseph's parish. Read your roll of honor and note the Polish names that went to fight for freedom. Their fathers and mothers love our country's flag and their sons and daughters of the first generation are true American citizens (applause). They are imbued with the spirit of Americans, true to God and the Star Spangled Banner. These boys and girls are asking us to pledge ourselves to give our aid to this school in order that it may be completely equipped, for the better it is equipped the better children and the better citizens it will produce. Let us pledge ourselves to make this drive for St. Joseph's school a magnificent success.

Chairman Morin introduced as the next speaker Max Hanover, whom he said had been a worker in all good causes.

Mr. Hanover responded briefly but earnestly, saying that he was thrilled with the spirit that was shown at the meeting and he was here to help the Polish people, heart and soul, for their school which would be a monument to their enterprise, their thrift and their citizenship. We know the Polish people, he said, as good citizens, law abiding, honest, keepers of their obligations and ever ready to lend a hand to help. The Polish team made a wonderful record in the hospital campaign. The sum of $25,000 which they ask now is but a drop in the ocean for this community of 30,000 people. Mr. Hanover predicted a tremendous success from the showing made at this rally meeting.

Father Iciek was the final speaker, making a profound impression upon his hearers, as he spoke impressively of his ideal for making the school building a community center of usefulness to all. This gathering, he said, exceeded his most sanguine expectations, as he saw that representative group of citizens all imbued with one idea, one object. Life is not so much in dollars and cents as in what you can do for others. Here is the opportunity. That school is a necessity. It is an American school in every sense of the word, these are American children in every sense of the word, coming to the school to fit themselves to be better American citizens. You will help to educate American citizens yet unborn. A school that teaches American citizenship and knowledge of God is an asset to any community. A school that teaches the English language is an asset to a community, and a school that teaches another language is an asset for knowledge of other languages unlocks the treasures of the world in other tongues.

Father Iciek spoke affectingly of what he had known of the military service that Polish boys from his parish in Duluth and from the Norwich parish had rendered in the defense of the flag of America, and went on to speak of his ideal for the school building as a social center open to all to enjoy what it offered in recreation and educational lines. This building with 17 classrooms, accommodating 1,000, has saved the citizens $200,000 in cost of construction and will save close to $50,000 annually in maintenance costs.

Father Iciek closed by quoting the words of Jesus, "Whatsoever ye do to one of these little ones, ye do to me," and declared that those who aided in this drive would be making a contribution for God, for country and for humanity.

Brief reports were made by the team captains, who were called on in turn by Thomas F. Shea, team organizer. Every one reported themselves and their workers as ready and enthusiastic to get to work and several reported parts of their districts already canvassed.

Ex-Mayor J. J. Desmond, who is on the general committee, was invited to speak for them, responding with witty touches that introduced his serious predictions of success as he noted the universal good spirit in Norwich towards this drive, a demonstration of brotherly, neighborly feeling and good citizenship. Those who are asked to help, he said, should consider it such an opportunity as is rarely offered and should consider it a privilege to respond to the utmost of their ability.

General Chairman Morin added a few earnest words to the workers as he declared the meeting closed, reminding them that this is the first time the Polish citizens have ever asked for any help, but they have been asked every time in the past and they have always done their part.

Rondeau—LeClair

Peter Rondeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gaspard Rondeau of Lisbon, and Miss Emelia LeClair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William LeClair of Occum, were united in marriage Monday morning at 8 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, Occum, at a nuptial high mass by Rev. Frederick H. DesSureault. The altar decorations were cut flowers and palms. Miss Irene LaValles presided at the organ and Arthur DesSureault sang Ave Maria. At the close of the ceremony Peter DeVito of Norwich sang At Dawning.

The maid of honor was Miss Alice Rondeau, a sister of the groom, and the bridesmaids were Miss Alice Thibeault and Miss Eva Ramsville. The best man was Armand Demers. The bride was beautifully gowned in white crepe de chine and carried a shower bouquet of roses. The maid of honor was gowned in coral crepe de chine and carried pink Columbia roses.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents in Occum and a reception was held. The house was attractively decorated. The bride presented the maid of honor a cedar chest and also presented gifts to her bridesmaids. To the best man the groom gave a smoking set. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

During the day the bride and groom left for a wedding trip over the Mohawk trail and on their return will reside at Taft's station. Mr. Rondeau is employed as a mechanic by the Connecticut Company.

Podziewski-Hathaway

At St. Joseph's church Monday morning at 8 o'clock Rev. Peter Sroka united in marriage John Podziewski of No. 114 High street and Miss Elva Hathaway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hathaway of No. 21 Thames street. The maid of honor was Miss Stella Sonkowski, and the best man was Charles Podziewski. Others attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hathaway, Walter Wroblewski, Miss Julia Kisia, Frank Podziewski, Miss Helen Majewski and Mr. and Mrs. William Doerr.

The bride was gowned in white georgette with pearl trimmings and carried white roses. Following the wedding ceremony there was a reception at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Podziewski, at No. 114 High street, with over 100 guests present. After November 1 the bride and groom will be at home to their many friends at No. 114 High street.

MacDonegal-Mowrey

Miss Hattie Mowrey of Leffingwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Trafford Mowrey and Edward MacDonegal, son of Charlotte and the late Edward MacDonegal of Yantic, were united in marriage Saturday morning at 8 o'clock at the parsonage of the Central Baptist church by Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor of the church.

The couple were attended by Miss Elizabeth MacDonegal, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, and the best man was Harold Lamphere. The bride was charmingly gowned in pale blue silk and carried a bouquet of orange blossoms, and the maid of honor was gowned in orchid crepe de chine with gold lace.

Following the ceremony a reception was held and a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the groom, relatives and friends attending, several from Rhode Island. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, including silver, cut glass, china, linen and electrical household articles. After a short wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. MacDonegal are to make their home in Yantic.

MERRY MASQUERADE FOR CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

One of the first of many Hallowe'en socials which will be held in this city during the present week, was held at A. O. H. hall, Main street, Monday evening, when members of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus made merry, featuring a masquerade which was voted a decided success.

Over a hundred members of the organization were present during the evening and the array of costumes was most interesting, every possible phase of life, from childhood to old age and from the sublime to the ridiculous, being represented by the members.

The entertainment started with the grand march, music being furnished by the Musical club, these members also in costume, furnishing the music for the dancing, which was enjoyed until late into the evening.

At the conclusion of the dance program refreshments were served by the following committee, whose efforts were responsible for the success of the affair, Miss Loroetta Gadie, chairman, the Misses Honer Furlong, Catherine Finnegan, Marie Desmond, Mary Hamil, Mazie Maloney, Katherine Buckley, Lucy Woods, Irene Day, Mary Corcoran, Eleanor Fitzgerald, Lena Sullivan, Mary Burns, Frances Kelly, Mary Neller, Sadie Kilroy, Mae Kearney, Mrs. Raymond Wheeler and Mrs. Nellie McHale.

SELECTING CAST FOR AMERICAN LEGION PLAY

At a meeting of the play committee of Robert O. Fletcher Post No. 4, American Legion, held Monday evening at the Legion rooms, Chairman William A. Anderson reported that many of the 150 people who are to make up the cast of Princess Bonnie, had already been signed up by Comrade Harry W. House, chairman of the talent committee.

From reports of chairmen of various committees it was evident that the comic opera, Princess Bonnie, which is to be staged in Norwich, late in November, was destined to be one of the best plays staged by the Legion, even exceeding Kathleen, which has been called one of the best home talent productions ever staged in Norwich. Rehearsals have already begun at the Legion rooms and will continue daily under the leadership of a director from the John B. Rogers company and the leading parts are being assigned to members of the cast, among them being Miss Eunice Taft, Mrs. Myra Frink Ward, Tyler Stanton, George Madden, J. Warren Kane, Robert McNeely and William Mitchell.

Chairman House of the talent committee announced that the members of the cast would include a majority of the favorites who have been seen in previous local productions in addition to which a special chorus of 50 voices was being signed for special song numbers.

CELEBRATED THEIR THIRD WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

A party of thirty relatives and friends called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Tryon at 98 Franklin street Saturday evening and showered them with gifts in honor of their third wedding anniversary. During the evening a delightful entertainment program was provided, James Garvey rendered a number of pleasing solos, while Mr. Tryon and Miss Genevieve Connell favored with a group of snappy uke numbers, the accompaniment being furnished by Mrs. Tryon at the piano.

Later in the evening games were played, after which a dainty luncheon was soerved by the hostess, assisted by Miss McCann and Mrs. Batty. Guests were present from Middletown, Jewett City, Taftville and Norwich.

Sunday Service at Almshouse

A religious service was held at the Almshouse Sunday afternoon, when Rev. Charles E. Reeves of Norwich Town, gave an address. He was accompanied by several young men from the First Congregational Sunday school who provided the singing. Miss Marjory Merry playing the piano accompaniments.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Palmer and Miss Alice Palmer of Norwich were at Saybrook Point recently, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Clark at Oyster river. Mr. and Mrs. Clark accompanied them on their return and visited relatives in Norwich and Preston over the week-end.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

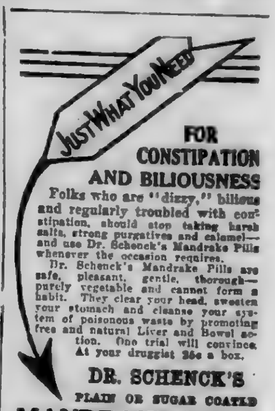
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.



FOR CONSTIPATION AND BILIOUSNESS

Folks who are "dizzy," bilious and regularly troubled with constipation, should stop taking harsh salts, strong purgatives and calomel—and use Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills whenever the occasion requires.

Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills are safe, pleasant, gentle, thorough—purely vegetable and cannot form a habit. They clear your head, sweeten your stomach and cleanse your system of poisonous waste by promoting free and natural Liver and Bowel action. One trial will convince. At your druggist 25c a box.

WILLS SCORES TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT OVER JOHNSON IN THE FIRST ROUND

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26.—(AP) — Harry Wills, negro heavyweight scored a technical knockout over Floyd Johnson, of Iowa, in the first round of a twelve round match here tonight—the sudden ending leaving 9,000 spectators stunned.

Johnson received Wills' mighty left to the body and head just as the bout started and he appeared to be worried. Then a right to the head drove him to the ropes, but he withstood the attack and ventured to the center of the ring as a white towel floated in from his corner.

Referee Harry Lewis, Wills and Johnson all gazed at the towel in seeming astonishment and the throng rose to its feet in clamor. Lewis took Johnson by the arm and led him to his corner, and then informed the press representatives that he could do nothing other than award the fight to Wills after that towel had dropped into the arena.

As the fighters departed loud protest came from the crowd which had seen two minutes of a contest which had a championship heavyweight contender as one of its principals.

"Fake, fake," came the cry. "That's the end of boxing in New Jersey."

But as a matter of fact Johnson was not far from oblivion when the succoring towel appeared. The negro had gone at him smilingly as they tapped each other lightly in the center of the ring. He was fully confident. A half minute of sparring preceded the first blow of the contest, a left driver to the body. Then he wrestled his foe to the ropes and drove a right flush to the chin, after which Johnson became cautious and bore away. Another left found his jaw, and he backed to the ropes to receive a solid shower of rights and lefts to the head and body.

But the Iowan, known in the past as the "bulldog of the West," continued to throw his arms out before him and gradually worked out to the center of the ring as his seconds went into action.

Dr. William Silverstein, physican for the state boxing commission examined Johnson after he had reached his dressing room and pronounced him in good condition. The blow that rocked him was a left jab to the head, according to his handlers.

Wills had been a top-heavy favorite to win by a knockout within five rounds, for Johnson, once in line for heavyweight honors, had deteriorated as a boxer since his defeat three years ago by Jess Willard in seven rounds at the Yankee stadium. That was the day of Willard's comeback, which eventually led to his knockout at the hands of Luis Angel Firpo.

Johnson gave Willard a hard fight, absorbing a lot of punishment early in the battle.

Tonight he was a much different man, although he appeared in good condition for the battle. The weight was announced as 203 for Johnson against 215 for Wills.

"I was punch-drunk," Johnson said in his dressing room after tonight's bout. "Wills' left caught me on the right side of the neck and left me dizzy. I didn't know where I was."

Jack Dempsey, reported to be on his way to the ringside, failed to appear.

The preliminaries—George Courtney of Oklahoma and Charley Arthur of Newark, middleweights, fought a battling ten-round contest as a preliminary to the Harry Wills-Floyd Johnson bout. Courtney proved the better boxer, but the Jersey veteran was able to remain in the ring to the end.

The referee stopped the semi-final between Frank Moody, of Wales and Homer Robinson, Pittsburgh negro in the seventh round because the going was too slow to suit him. He declared it an unsatisfactory bout.

SYRACUSE AND CORNELL ONLY TEAMS IN EAST WITH CLEAN SCOREBOARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(By the Associated Press)—Four eastern football elevens, two of which have proved to be scoring machines of immense powers, today boast uncrossed goal lines, which have come to be a rarity in the great college sport.

Cornell and Syracuse stand out because opponents have been unable to score a single point against them, while New York university and Bucknell have kept touchdowns away. N. Y. U. has seen a lone field goal go sailing between its posts while Bucknell was forced into a safety on Saturday by Georgetown.

A few days hence Cornell will face Columbia at the Polo Grounds, Syracuse meets Penn State, Bucknell opposes Holy Cross and New York university tackles Fordham. The list of uncrossed goal lines appears to be due for depletion.

The "Red Tornado," its force shattered a year ago, seems to have regained large proportions although the opposition it has encountered has been only mediocre. Syracuse has returned from a western invasion with a two-touchdown victory over Indiana in its hardest contest up to this time.

Cornell's scoring average is the highest in the east with 195 points tallied in four contests, while Dartmouth, which swamped Harvard last Saturday, stands second with 231 in five battle. Syracuse has set up 153 points in five games.

Drexel, with such opponents as Georgetown, Lehigh, Susquehanna and John Hopkins, has gone scoreless.

There are sixteen undefeated teams, but five of them have been tied. The remaining eleven are Syracuse, Pennsylvania, N. Y. U., Penn Military, Holy Cross, Dartmouth, Cornell, Army, Boston College, Fordham and Washington & Jefferson. The "Big Three," Harvard, Yale and Princeton, appear to be definitely out of the championship running.

Games won, lost and tied, total points and opponents' points follow:

RICKARD CALLS OFF GREB-WALKER BOUT

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—Because of what he characterized as excessive financial demands on the part of Harry Greb, middleweight champion, Tex Rickard today announced that he had called off negotiations for a return match between Greb and Mickey Walker, welterweight titleholder.

The promoter had planned this bout as one of the features of his indoor program at the new Madison Square Garden on December 18. In place of the Walker-Greb match, Rickard's new matchmaker, Jess McMahon, plans to seek a return featherweight title go on that date between Kid Kaplan, the champion, and Babe Herman. This will be contingent, however, upon Herman winning a bout scheduled in Boston November 4 with "Honeyboy" Finnegan.

The first important match in the new garden arena will bring together Paul Berlenbach, light-heavyweight king, and Jack Delaney, who knocked out Berlenbach in their first match a year and a half ago.

McMahon is taking over the matchmaking reins at the Garden this week, replacing Frank Flournoy, who has booked Rickard's fights for the past two years. McMahon, who leaves a similar role at the Commonwealth Sporting club to take the Garden post, will apply for his change of license tomorrow before the State Athletic commission.

FOURTEEN TEAMS START IN SIX-DAY BIKE RACE

CHICAGO, Oct. 26. (AP)—Fourteen teams started tonight in the six-day bicycle race at the Coliseum, which will end at 11 o'clock next Saturday night after 146 hours.

The field included seventeen American riders, four Italians, two Frenchmen and one each from Belgium, Australia, Germany, Poland and Bohemia. Bobby Walthour and Freddie Spencer, winners of the last six-day race in New York, were again paired and were the favorites to win.

Yale and McGill Tie

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 26—(A. P.)—The Yale and McGill soccer teams fought to a 3 to 3 tie after two extra periods here this afternoon. In each of the first three regular periods, McGill was first to score but Yale returned with a tying point before the whistle blew. The fourth period and the two extra periods were scoreless.

Yale Freshman Captain

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26—(A. P.)—John A. Brandenburg, of Pineville, Ky., was elected captain of the Yale freshman football team today. Brandenburg, who prepared for Yale at Exeter, where he played on the team for three years, is a fullback.

LIEUT. DOOLITTLE SETS NEW RECORD IN WINNING SCHNEIDER CUP

BAY SHORE PARK, Baltimore, Oct. 26—(By the A. P.)—Lieutenant James H. Doolittle, United States army racing pilot, kept the Jacques Schneider trophy in America today in the world's premier seaplane classic.

Displaying marvelous skill on the turns of the fifty-kilometre triangular course and raging down the straightaway like a black bird of prey, Lieutenant Doolittle flung his little ship through the seven laps for a new Schneider time of 232.573 miles per hour for the 350 kilometres, and set up a claim for new world's records for 100 kilometres, 200 kilometres and maximum speed. The latter records will be presented to the Federation Aeronautique Internationale for recognition.

The army pilot's rechecked records, which will be presented for world honors, were announced officially tonight as 234.772 miles per hour for 100 kilometres, 234.352 miles per hour for 200 kilometres and 235.036 for his maximum speed, the latter made on his last, and fastest lap.

Records, which Lieutenant Doolittle bettered were made by Lieutenant Ralph A. Ofstie, United States navy, who flew 100 kilometres here last year at a speed of 174.35 miles per hour, and who also flew on the same day here, 200 kilometres at the same speed, by Captain Henry C. Biard, whose speed of 226.752 miles per hour made in a trial flight at Southampton of England's supermarine Napier S-4, was recognized by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale. The supermarine was entered in today's race, but was wrecked in a practice flight here.

Captain Hubert Broad of England took second place with a speed of 199.-169 miles per hour, when Lieutenants Ralph A. Ofstie and George T. Cuddihy, United States navy fliers who had been leading him by a comfortable margin, dropped out of the race in the fifth and sixth laps respectively with engine trouble. Captain Broad was England's only pilot in the race after Captain Biard had crashed with the supermarine Napier S-4 last Friday and reserve pilot Bert Hinkler had failed in his third attempt to qualify England's spare plane this morning. Hinkler crushed his pontoons in landing on the bay for navigability tests.

Captain Broad drove a Gloster-Napier III, biplane, "It was a fine race," he said after the finish. "I drove all the way with the throttle full open, and everything functioned perfectly."

Finishing as the last plane in the air, Lieutenant Giovanni De Briganair, Lieutenant Giovanni De Briganti's big Macchi flying boat took third place with an average speed of 168.443 for the race. The Macchi crossed the finish line after the two American planes which had been leading both it and Captain Broad dropped out. In the excitement of the failure of the navy pilots to reappear after their fifth and sixth laps without giving him his finish signal. The flying boat sped on and disappeared for the eighth time in the direction of the first pylon, to drop into the bay along with Cuddihy and Ofstie.

All three of the lost planes were located by scouts and towed back to the hangars by coast guard cutters and crash patrol boats later in the day. De Briganti's big plane was not brought in until seven o'clock tonight and anxiety had begun to be felt for him, as the bay momentarily was growing rougher. The Italian plane crew was unable to assign a definite cause for De Briganti's force-down.

Lieutenants Ofstie and Cuddihy went to the water with engine trouble and authorities announced after the naval authorities had been towed in. The exact trouble was not determined, and was not expected to be until after a thorough examination, which, the authorities said, might require a week or more.

TRIPLE TIE IN NATIONAL GREENS TOURNEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—A triple tie in the men's division of the national greens section tournament was announced today by the United States Golf association. The winners, each seven up on par, with the aid of their handicaps, were: Edmund H. Miller, Fort Wayne Country club; G. B. H. Macomber, Jr., Brae Burn Country club, West Newton, Mass., and D. R. Wheeler, Colonial Country club, Harrisburg, Pa.

The winner of the women's competition was Mrs. A. Hanslohner of Wyoming Valley Country club, Wilkesbarre, Pa., with a gross score of 97 and a handicapp of 33. The contestants in the tournaments this year numbered 2,884, representing 169 clubs.

KLINE AND CUTLER MAY BE OUT OF ARMY GAME

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26—(A. P.)—The present condition of the Yale football team makes it probable that Yale will face the army on Saturday with some of its star members missing. Both halfbacks, Kline and Cutler, are on the injured list. Kline hurt his knee against Brown Saturday and Cutler wrenched his shoulder. Webster, guard, also was disabled Saturday and will be lost to the eam for some time. To fill his place, Sturhahn, center this season, guard last year, has been shifted back to guard.

AGGIES PLAY MANHATTAN AT STORRS SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 26—Manhattan College from New York is the next opponent of the Connecticut Aggies, with the game scheduled for Storrs next Saturday.

Following the victory over Tufts last Saturday, Coach Dole allowed his squad the usual Monday's respite from practice, with first work in preparation for the Manhattan game slated to get under way tomorrow.

Next Saturday's contest at Storrs will be the third and final home contest of the Nutmeg Aggies, as the team will take to the road for its last three games. It will be another big day at Storrs, and in addition to the varsity game, the freshman eleven will play the Springfield yearlings, which will give a double bill for the afternoon's entertainment. In the evening, a dance will be held in Hawley Armory for the alumni and other guests present for the day.

Coach Dole has planned a week's practice for his eleven that should find the team ready and set to stop anything the New Yorkers may have to offer. Tomorrow afternoon the varsity seconds and the freshman seconds will scrimmage while the first team works on plays for the Manhattan game. The usual work on the dummy, kicking and passing, will also be carried out. On Wednesday the varsity will probably have a stiff scrimmage, which will be the only heavy workout of the week. Thursday and Friday will be devoted to a general polishing off workout for plays and signals, and also the forward passing attack.

The Manhattan team will come to Storrs with a record that is none too impressive, as the New Yorkers went out of their class in meeting teams like Holy Cross and Fordham, to lose by over-whelming scores. For all this, however, the Manhattan outfit is reputed to be a strong, scrappy organization, and at this stage of the game it cannot be said that Connecticut has any edge in doping the contest.

TURNING SECTION GIVES NICE ATHLETIC EXHIBITION

History was made at Maennerchor hall Saturday evening, when the turner section gave one of the most unique gymnastic exhibitions seen in this part of the state for some time.

The curtain was raised for the opening stunt, a falling pyramid in which both classes participated, before a huge crowd which packed the structure to capacity.

The class then proceeded to carry out the program with all the ease and efficiency which only proper training and diligent practice can produce. The program was carried out in the following order: horizontal bar work by the boys class; pyramid building, by both classes; German vaulting horse exhibition, both classes; wand drill, boys; Indian club drill, girls; parallel bar work, boys; parallel bar pyramids, both classes; lantern drill, girls; clowns; grand march, entire class; leap frog exhibition.

The lantern drill, given by the girls, with lights extinguished and each girl carrying a Chinese lantern, was the feature of the program and brought forth very much applause.

Holman, Boltrum and Foldenand, three clowns kept the crowd in an uproar for about 10 minutes until they were joined by "Bob" Pilling, a fourth clown who gave an exhibition of daredevil bycicle riding while suspended in mid-air.

Boltram the strongest clown in the world amazed the crowd by holding 5,000 lbs on his chest, but later forgot the presence of the audience and walked off with the 5,000 lbs under his arm.

The exhibition was followed by a dance and the music was furnished by the Crescent orchestra.

KUTSCH LEADS SCORERS IN WESTERN FOOTBALL

CHICAGO, Oct.) 26.—(AP)—Benny Friedman of Michigan was the only one of the leading big ten point winners to add to his string Saturday, but his field goal which defeated Illinois still leaves him far behind "Cowboy Nick" Kutsch of Iowa, who after failing to gain was kept out of the second half of play against Ohio by Coach Ingwersen.

Four of the big ten teams were blanked by their opponents Saturday and three of the teams are still behind the total points scored by Kutsch alone. Purdue and Minnesota each have eight touchdown scorers. While Illinois and Chicago have but one each and Ohio only two.

Conference players who have scored more than 20 points, including non-conference games are:

Name-College	T	FG	PAT	TT
Kutsch, Iowa	6	2	4	49
Friedman, Mich.	4	1	11	38
Oosterbaan, Mich	5	0	0	30
Gregory, Mich	4	0	0	24
Merkobrad, P'due	4	0	0	24
Wilcox, Purdue	3	2	0	24
Peplaw, Minn.	3	0	5	23

RITOLA WILL RUN IN VAN COURTLANDT RACE

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—Van Cortlandt Park's historic cross-country course will be the Mecca for college and club distance runners within the next few weeks with five title races, including the National A. A. U. and intercollegiate championships, scheduled there between Nov. 3 and 28.

The Metropolitan A. A. U. junior and senior championships, on Nov. 3 and 7, respectively, will pave the way for the more important hill and dale tests. The national junior title race is booked for Nov. 15 and the senior event on Nov. 21, followed two days later by the intercollegiate championships.

Individuals as well as team titles will be involved in all of these races with the sturdy distance runners of the Finnish-American Athletic club defending honors which they gained in both the metropolitan and national races a year ago.

Willie Ritola, ace of the Finnish-American pack of harriers, probably will be the strongest contender for individual honors. His victory in the national ten-mile championship yesterday showed him to be in good trim for another record-breaking season. Ritola did not compete in the national cross-country race last year, when Fred Wachtsmuth of the Millrose A. A. won the individual title.

The University of Pittsburgh's harriers, who won the I. C. A. A. A. title for the first time last season, will defend the college team's crown, while Mall Smith of Yale will seek the individual laurels for a second straight year.

The annual Berwick, Pa., marathon on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 26, will bring to a climax the outdoor distance racing season.

WAMBSGANSS MAY BE OUT OF MAJORS NEXT YEAR

CLEVELAND, Oct. 26.—Unconfirmed reports were in circulation here today that Bill Wambsganss, veteran second baseman and only player to make an unassisted triple play in a world's series has been waived out of the major leagues. Waivers were asked a month ago.

Lee Fohl, manager of the Red Sox, which uniform "Wamby" wore the past two seasons, said he knew nothing of waivers having been obtained.

SUB BASE ELEVEN WILL PLAY U. S. S. BUSHNELL TODAY

As part of the Navy day program at the Submarine Base today the Sub Base eleven will play the U. S. S. Bushnell team at 2 o'clock. The game is expected to furnish plenty of action as there is much rivalry between the two service teams.

McDOUGH DRIVES CRIPPLED CAR TO THRILLING FINISH AT BALTIMORE

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26. (AP)—Bob McDonogh, youthful protege of Tommy Milton today won his first major motor classic, the 250-mile race at the Baltimore-Laurel Speedway, and in doing so took sweet revenge on Peter De Paolo for the hairline decision the latter scored over him in the inaugural race in the huge wooden bowl here in July.

Nursing a limping motor through the last 25 miles of the grind, McDonogh was forced to see his two-lap lead, gained in the first fifty miles of the race, when De Paolo was forced into the pits for a tire change, fade into a bare 100 yards at the finish line. With but three laps to go, the terrific pace set by the leader caused his motor to ease almost to a dead stop. Back-firing and sputtering, the balky engine regained its power just in time to head the flying Italian to the checkered flag.

This thrilling climax of a spectacular race probably cost McDonogh a new world record for 250 miles on a wooden track. As it was, his time for the distance, 1 hour, 59 minutes 2.71 seconds, in which he averaged 126.30 miles an hour, was but a fraction behind the record of 126.86 miles an hour set by Tommy Milton at the Culver City track some time ago. McDonogh drove the distance today without a stop.

The remainder of the field of 16 entries, with the sole exception of McDonogh's teammate, Tommy Milton, were never serious contenders. Ten of the men failed to finish because of motor troubles. Milton took third place, several laps behind the leaders. For a time he reached in second position behind McDonogh, while the flying De Paolo was regaining the distance lost in the pits. Ralph Hepburn was a poor fourth, with Earl Cooper fifth and Phil Shafer the last of the finishers.

Victory over De Paolo was doubly sweet to McDonogh today declared the winner by the judges at the finish of the inaugural 250 mile race over the same track in July, the youthful speedster was obliged to take second money when a re-check revealed De Paolo the victor.

Leon Duray furnished the only near-accident of the day when his car touched wheels with another racer high up on the south bank and skidded sideways across the track. Duray regained control barely in time to avert crashing through the lower rail.

The winner today collected $9,000 as his share of the prize money. De Paolo received $5,500; Milton $3,000; Hepburn $2,000; Cooper $1,350; and Shafer $1,000. Those who failed to finish included Harry Hertz, Frank Elliott, Fred Comer, Bennett, Hill, Jerry Wonderlich, Leon Duray, Dr. William Shattuck, Jimmy Hill, Earl Devore and Peter Kreis, gained only appearance money.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week there were 14 building permits issued at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton which brings the total for the month up to 33 which is well up to the normal average for the month. The total valuation of the new building described in the permits of last week is placed at approximately $17,000 by the owners. Included in the permits granted by Fire Marshal Stanton there are two new dwelling houses and an addition and alteration to a building on West Main street. These three permits involve an outlay of approximately $13,000.

Work on various projects in and about the city was rushed along in an effort to get beyond the point where the operations will be held up by extreme cold weather. At the Norwich State hospital the work on the new ward building is well along, the brick walls having been completed and this week will see the building roofed in.

In other parts of the city equally as good progress has been made on buildings especially at the new Sheltering Arms building at the corner of Rockwell and McKinley avenue. Here the walls are nearly complete and the building is almost ready to be roofed in.

The building permits issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week are as follows:

To Zachae Bros., to alter and add to present building owned by Louis Rosenberg on West Main st. The alterations include putting in a new brick and plate glass store front. The present building will be moved back from the street 15 feet to allow for a driveway over which will be a steel canopy.

To Joseph Butula to erect a frame building at 37 Second street. The building will be 14x24 feet and will be used as a store.

To John Morton to add to present building on Marjorie street. The building will be 18x18 feet and will be used as a plumber's shop.

To James De Chinigo to build a frame garage 18x20 feet at 71 Division street.

To Boleslaw Zawayki to build an addition to the present house at No. 24 Avery street for Mrs. Julia Pietoyh. The addition will be 18x8 feet and used as a garage and wood shed.

To Mrs. Mary Dubois to build a frame garage on Shipping street, 12x16 feet.

To Homer Monty to erect a 2-story house on Washington street for Benjamin F. Kreiger. The house will be 24x28 feet with six rooms and bath. The foundation will be of stone and cement. The exterior will be finished in clapboards and cedar shingles. The interior will be finished in hardwood and plaster.

To Mrs. Mary L. Huntley to erect a frame garage at 115 Mt. Pleasant street. The garage will be 9x18 feet.

To The Peck, McWilliams Co. to add a sun porch to the home of Walter Turner at 172 Washington St. The porch will be on the rear of the house and will be 9x15 feet Three sides will be glass enclosed and the floor will be of tile.

To John Zdunczyki to build a frame garage on Carpenter street. The garage will be 20x22 feet for the accommodation of two cars.

To C. A. Rathbone to add one room to the present frame bungalow owned by himself. The addition will be 12x15 feet and of frame construction.

To Fred W. Fitch to add one room to the present frame building at 445 1-2 Main street. The addition will be 13x14 feet.

To Joseph Bousclair to extend present frame garage on Sherman street. The addition will be 6 1-2 x 8 1-2 feet.

To Joseph Zanwita to build a frame house on Mohegan Park road for himself, the house being 30x38 feet and containing five rooms and bath. The foundation will be of stone and the super-structure of frame construction. The exterior will be finished in shingles and clapboards. The interior finish will be in plaster and hard wood.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 10 sales of real estate in Norwich, an increase of six as compared over the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $43,850 and $39,375.

In New London during the past week the total number of real estate sales was 15 which was an increase of two sales over the same week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $50,500 and $14,140.

New London

J. D. Shefflott, Shaw street, has completed a concrete cooling cistern at the Southwest Ledge lighthouse. Mr. Shefflott has also completed the cellar for a five-room cottage to be erected by Edwin Cruise, 394 Vauxhall street.

Two foundations have been completed on Ocean avenue by M. Giri Smith street, for houses for Mr. Heffron. The exterior of both houses will be finished in stucco and interior changes will be made. Mr. Giri is building a chimney for a house in Waterford.

The foundation is in for a cottage to be erected on Daniels avenue, Riverside beach, Waterford for Alice M Bray. Walter I. Tibbals, Middle street, Riverside beach, has the contract for the carpentry work. The house will be arranged for five rooms.

Work has been started on the proposed two-family house which Sharaf's Furniture Co., Inc., 125 Bank street, are to build

WESTERLY

Saturday morning early, Dr. Donald C. Dove, Westerly dentist who resides at Charlestown beach, was surprised upon looking out of his bedroom window to find the neighborhood brightly lighted. One of the best built of the Charlestown Beach colony cottages was a mass of flames as well as an adjoining one. The Talcott and Greenhaigh cottages, were beyond the hope of saving. Senator Reitzel was notified and a number of others and by their efforts the grass fires were put out which threatened other buildings. The Talcott cottage, where the fire originated, had not been occupied for months and the electric light power had been turned off. It is stated by early arrivals that so far as it was possible to ascertain, the cottage had not been molested. Both were completely furnished and one was unusually well furnished and finished in hard wood floors with a large fireplace, the chimney of which alone remains.

John P. Hayworth of Pawcatuck, arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Vernon Burdick was presented on a charge of intoxication before Judge William A. Wilcox in the Stonington town court Monday morning. He was found guilty and fined $1 and costs, the total bill amounting to $17.71. He paid.

The Westerly Sanitary Corps, in accordance with its promise made during the financial drive of the Westerly hospital in the summer of 1923, has presented the hospital a new, handsomely equipped motor ambulance. The car was delivered Sunday and now is stationed in the garage recently erected on the hospital grounds. The Sanitary Corps still maintains its own ambulance and will continue its service to the community as in the past.

The Westerly High school football team, with three victories and no defeats to its credit, now holds undisputed first place in the Eastern Connecticut-Southern Rhode Island league standing. With but three more league games to play, two with Stonington and one with Chapman Tech of New London, prospects are bright for another championship here. Prior to Friday, when Westerly defeated Chapman, these two teams were tied for first place. In the three league games and two other contests played thus far, Westerly's goal line has not been crossed. The league standing: Westerly, won 3, lost 0; Chapman, won 1, lost 1; Stonington, won 0, lost 1; Norwich 0, lost 2.

Friday next in the Westerly Athletic field the Westerly High school football team will play the Plainfield High team, defeated by Norwich Saturday 25 to 0.

Charles B. Briggs, a former Ashaway resident, now living in Brookline, Mass., engaged in the automobile business, was the guests of relatives and friends in Ashaway and Westerly Monday, motoring home Monday night.

William S. Nichols, engaged in the civil engineering department of the New Haven railroad, and resident of East Providence, was the week end guest of Westerly relatives and friends returning home Sunday night.

John Neild, formerly of Pleasant View beach and Westerly, returned to his duties in Norwich Sunday night, after being the guest of Westerly and Pawcatuck relatives and friends over the week end.

D. W. Clarke of New Haven, after visiting Westerly and Pawcatuck business associates left Westerly Monday afternoon for Providence.

William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck, is engaged in building a new house at Wilcox Manor, on the West Side of Westerly.

Capt. Henry Langworthy of Hope valley, was a Westerly business caller Monday.

Continued interest was shown Monday night in the free gymnasium instruction class in the gym of Westerly Memorial and Library association, under Instructor Olsen when there were added more names to the list of eighteen secured at the first lesson night, a week ago Monday.

Frank F. Dodge of Stonington was a Westerly business visitor Monday.

Steamship Leonardo da Vinci, of the Italian line, sailing from Naples Oct. 10th on which John Gallo of Westerly is returning, reported by wireless that it would arrive at Common wealth pier, South Boston, late Monday afternoon. All the passengers of the steamship are to disembark at Boston and New York, passengers were to be sent through by rail.

High surf, which could be heard in the lower section of the compact part of the town, called many residents of Westerly and surrounding towns to the shore late Sunday afternoon to view the billows as they rolled upon the beach. About 3 o'clock the surf with the accompanying high tide crossed the peninsula leading to Napatree Point in several places when the breakers on the bathing beach washed across the low sandy places on that stretch of beach, and into the waters of Little Narragansett Bay.

As the wind veered from south to west the crests of the waves were blown off in white spray, which added to the picturesqueness of the wild marine picture. Out on the reef from Gangway Rock, right off Watch Hill Point, Watch Hill Reef, Sugar Reef and Catum Rocks, more to the westward and back on Napatree Point ledge the white spume resembled the escaping steam and smoke of a steam train in the distance as the surges raced across in shallow water. With subsiding tide, when the wind had shifted into the west, mammoth white caps became visible as far as the eye could reach. When the sun came out from clouds, which had poured down their rain of the night and morning before, a magnificient rainbow arched the sky in the north, with exceptionally wide bands of color.

The west wind carried the surf against the sea wall on the bathing beach side of Watch Hill Point with such force that tons of water were thrown across the driveway, leading to the Watch Hill Coast Guard Station and Lighthouse, rendering the passage in open automobiles a hazardous one. About noon, Capt. Amos F. Broadmeadow of the Watch Hill Coast Guard station had reported a heavy sea and the coast guard men were extra alert for indications of any disaster. On the east beach side of Watch Hill Point the churning waters carried to sea thousands of tons of sand and the bluff on the ocean side of Watch Hill was undermined in such an extent that gravel and stones of the embankment were exposed to view. At the extra high water mark seaweed, loose planks, old stumps and rubbish showed the height attained by the high water. The wind did not stay in the south a sufficiently long time to cause any great money damage to shore property at the water's edge.

Records on file in the office of the Westerly town clerk show the following transfer: Oct. 26, Tuxedo Houses, Inc., to Allen T. West and Rebekah S. West, land at Watch Hill on the west side of Wapan road, together with a garage and stone residence, known as "Stoneleigh."

Monday, the beginning of the last week during which 1925 taxes of the town of Westerly can be paid was the busiest day in point of number of individual payments since the collection of taxes began on the 16th of the month. The fact that the 1925 taxbooks have not been available or printed ready for taxpayers has been a considerable handicap, for added to many telephone calls to be answered as to the amounts due, many taxpayers have visited the town treasurer's office in the Westerly town hall and have gone away without making payments, when they found the books were not to be had. Some who have paid have asked that the books be mailed them when they are obtained and this mailing adds to the work of the treasurer's office.

Arthur D. Swan returned to his duties as messenger on the milk car of the morning train to Providence, Monday morning, after an 18-day absence during which George Corey was substitute.

Besides other damage in Westerly by the high winds Sunday afternoon was the uprooting of a large pine near the house of Charles R. Johnson, 177 West Broad street, in Pawcatuck. In falling the tree just missed the house. A plate glass window nearly six feet square on the second floor front of the Barrows block on the Pawcatuck river bridge over the store of Max Novogroski was blown in. In Thompson's cove on the Pawcatuck river, the boat of Capt. Charles Eugene Larkin, had its anchor tripped, when the boat swung around by the high wind and tide. The boat was left practically uninjured high and dry on the river bank. The boat of Capt. James Burrill Thompson in the same cove dragged anchor, but its shoreward course stopped when the channel edge was reached. At Watch Hill on Bay street the waves broke over the offset wall.

Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell, accompanied by her daughters, Kathryn and Mary Stuart Cottrell, arrived in Westerly Sunday by automobile from Hopkinton, N. H., where they have passed two weeks since their return from a summer trip to Europe. They were called to Westerly from the home of Mrs. Cottrell's sister, Mrs. Marshall Darrach, by the death of their brother, William Clark.

Monday morning workmen engaged in excavating for sewer mains began work on Railroad avenue at the intersection of Canal street to open up a trench up the middle of the avenue. As the work progressed the sides of the trench were shored up with wooden planking. The steam shovel was located about opposite the main entrance to the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad. Monday afternoon civil engineers of the sewer department were busy establishing lines on Dixon street from Railroad avenue through to High street.

Landscape gardners in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad last week end began the continuance of improvements near the west-bound train shelter at the Westerly station. In the oval center of the circular drive, recently constructed across the freight yard for the use of automobiles meeting westbound rains some 30 or 40 flowering shrubs and bushes have been set out in the plot recently seeded down. Along the west border of the driveway loom has been spread and more shrubs and bushes set out to form a hedge. Next spring and summer it is hoped the improvements will transform an otherwise unsightly spot into a place of beauty. The work of making a cement driveway between two of the freight yard track sidings along side of the freight house has progressed until now more than one-half of the roadway has been completed, it being the entire length for the south half of the pavement, and now the laying of the north half of the driveway continues.

The Westerly club circus is to be held in the Westerly town hall during November and will be preceded by a mammoth street parade of antiques and horribles, to the music of two bands made up of members of the club. Following the street parade the closed dens will be opened under the "big top" of the Town hall for the benefit of those seeking knowledge in natural history. The Westerly Cycle club is one of the oldest associations of Westerly young men for social purposes, and had its inception in the very earliest days of the bicycle, and has continued its activities uninterruptedly from that day to this. The committee on the circus consists of Joseph Law, chairman; Ernest Gully, secretary; Frank Friend, treasurer; Seth Mayne, John Law, Frank Collins, William Craig, Jean O'Neil, Charles Bowe, James Moore and George Chapman.

The first meeting of the season of the Westerly Young Women's Community association, Mrs. Grace Willard ,president, was held Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock at Christ Episcopal church.

At a nuptial high mass, Rev. Fr. Henry Bruno officiating at 9 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception church, Saturday morning, Nellie Rita Murano daughter of Luigi and Lucy Falor Murano of Westerly was united in marriage with Raffael Doddono, born in Italy now a resident of Westerly.

Westerly people who attended the Yale-Brown football game in Providence Saturday, were, Military Aide to Governor Pothier, John F. Datson, Attorneys Langworthy Burdick, M. Walter Flynn, Jr., Clarence E. Roche and Judge Herbert W. Rathbun. Arthur C Trotman, Mr. and Mrs. Dicken Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Buffum, Norman C. Church, Capt. Amos E. Broadmeadow ,and Thomas V. B. Clancy.

ALL RUN DOWN, NOW HEALTHY

"Honestly, in all my 15 years of experience as a nurse I have never known of a medicine that compares with Tanlac," is the glowing tribute of Nurse M. E. Chappelle.

"Time and again I have recommended Tanlac and always with surprising results. Some time ago my Mother complained of being generally run down and on the verge of a nervous breakdown. She had no appetite, her stomach was disordered, digestion weakened and her bowels were most irregular.

"Tanlac came to her aid at once, brought on a vigorous appetite so that she began to eat with the greatest relish, and made the digestive organs function properly once more. In a short time she was well, happy and strong, and although over 80 years of age she is now vigorous enough to look after her household duties and go out quite a little, too. This is why I praise Tanlac and consider it the best tonic and health builder ever discovered."

What Tanlac has done for others it can also do for you. Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation. Made and recommended by the manufacturers of Tanlac.

MYSTIC

Mystic Grange, No. 171, Patrons of Husbandry, attended the Methodist church in a body Sunday night. Owing to several in Old Mystic being members of the grange they omitted their service and the pastor attended the special service. After the opening hymn and responsive reading Rev. J. P. McLennan, of Old Mystic, offered prayer. Mrs. Mabel K. Larrabee sang "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say." Rev. J. G. Sallis, pastor, read the first chapter of Ruth and part of the 8th chapter of Luke. The offertory solo by Firefly Morris was sang very effectively. The subject of Mr. Sallis' address was "Sowing the Seed in Community Life." It was full of facts and full of inspiration, something applicable to each person said in a Christian spirit. The closing of the service was the prayer from the Grange book. The attendance was good and seven of the officers were present.

Allison Whipple, who has been employed at Well's, Old Mystic, is now working at Palmer's here.

Mrs. F. A. Coss had some of her cousins at dinner Sunday in honor of the birthday of one of her cousins.

At the meeting of W. C. T. U. Wednesday afternoon the three delegates to the state convention in Middletown will give a report.

Mrs. Addison Quintard of Stamford is the guest of Misses Emily and Clara Murphy.

J. C. Anderson moved his family Saturday from High street to the house at 40 Washington street which he recently purchased. He will be near the depot, of which he has charge.

Edward Roder of Bayonne, N. J., spent the week end at James W. Jackson's.

Several Hallowe'en socials are planned, among them will be one at St. Mark's parish house.

Warren Sebastian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sebastian, entertained several friends at Franklin Williams in Stonington. Music was furnished for dancing. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served. Guests were present from New London, Westerly, Old Mystic, Mystic and Stonington.

Herbert McWilliam has returned to Philadelphia after a visit here.

PLAINFIELD

Miss Mary Burke and Miss Marion Lee, left on the boat train Tuesday night, for New Haven, to attend the teachers' convention and Mrs. Buell attended the convention at Bridgeport.

The social, held at the Congregational church Thursday evening won many compliments for the committee in charge. The vestry was beautifully decorated with autumn colors with a touch of Hallowe'en added to advantage. There were several tables, filled with garden products which were auctioned at the close of the evening. The entertainment program included a musical farce by Hazel Dodge, dressed as a sweet old lady, assisted by 19 young children, which was well received. Mrs. Frink of Canterbury gave a clever monologue taking off two girls at a movie show. Miss Piper played a piano solo, and Rev. W. C. Prentiss gave a short talk on Vermont which was followed by refreshments. The vestry was well filled.

Supt. of Schools, John L. Chapman was exonerated of the charges of reckless driving, by Judge G. R. Torrey, in the town court, through lack of evidence in the accident in which Dr. McCormick was injured. Two local witnesses to the accident, testified in Mr. Chapman's favor. State Trooper Rice was the witness for the state. Dr. McCormick although able to be about, did not appear at the trial.

There will be a joint meeting next Wednesday at the community house, of the executive board of the association, and representatives of 33 local organizations to discuss and plan the details of a series of concerts and other entertainments to be held during the winter. The first of these entertainments will be held during the early part of November.

Three Hallowe'en parties have been arranged for next week. The first will be for the Junior girls of the Community club, to be held Tuesday evening, on Wednesday the Juniors boys, and on Thursday the Seniors will hold an old-fashioned celebration with games and stunts.

Arthur Holmes, Charles Seney and Mr. Belvele are planning to leave for Orlando, Fla., early in November and remain in the south for the winter.

Mrs. Westley Blanchard of Cape Cod has been visiting her mother Mrs. Lotta Dodge and her sister, Mrs. James Towne of Canterbury.

The Friendly Helpers and the Women's Guild met in the vestry of the Congregational church, Friday afternoon. Mrs. Thomas Cooper presided at the meeting of the Friendly Helpers. The following took part in the guild programme: Mrs. Fred Lyon, Mrs. Cecil Butler, Mrs. George Babcock, Miss Ruth Hall, and Mrs. Walter Lathrop. A solo was sung by Mrs. Raymond Lathrop, accompanied by Miss Helen Gallup at the piano. The next meeting of the guild will be held November 20th.

Monday evening, the Lincoln club plans to hold the October meeting. Supper will be served by the Friendly Helpers, in charge of Mrs. Thomas Cooper. The speaker of the evening will be Dr. Wilson of Hartford, who will show lantern slides to illustrate his talk. The musical program will be in charge of Ray Green, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Plainfield Woman's club held a regular meeting October 16 at the Comwilson hostesses. The club will hold the president presiding. There were 18 members present. Mrs. Lotta Dodge and Mrs. Lena Smith were hostesses and served doughnuts, cheese and a beverage which all enjoyed. Much business was attended too and work was taken up for the winter. The next gathering will be November 5th at the same place with Mrs. Danley and Mrs. teachers' convention and Mrs. Buell next week.

Mrs. Arthur Mathewson who went to Wallingford, Tuesday as a delegate from the Woman's club to the state meeting, si visiting friends in New Haven.

OLD MYSTIC

The Watchman-Examiner of October 22 devotes a page to the life and work of Rev. Joseph K. Wilson, D. D. His wife was Lucy Taylor, oldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs John A. Taylor of Old Mystic. Years ago he visited here during vacations He was graduated from Brown university and Croser Theological seminary and held pastorates at Nyack, N. Y., New London, Conn., Taunton, Mass. and Portland, Me. He became editor of Zion's Advocate in 1905 giving to the people of Maine a great service. He was ably assited by his wife. After her death he became associate editor of the Watchman-Examiner, Sept. 1, 1916 and remained a member of the staff until his death. He was a thoughtful and winsome preacher with a beautiful voice and a heart full of love for God and man. He rejoiced with those who rejoiced and wept with those that wept. Affectionate counsel, words of good cheer and faithful warning were ever on his lips. His people knew that he was their friend. He wrote many stories for papers and the Christian Endeavor World published a book of them. He was a writer with a fine appreciation of values and humor so quaint and pervasive. It was as a Christian gentleman that he will be remembered by those who came into contact with him. He leaves two sons and a daughter.

WOMAN VERY NERVOUS

Weak, Blue, Discouraged—Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I was nervous and could not sleep, had crying spells and the blues, and didn't care if I lived or died. My right side was very bad and I had backache and a weakness. I read about your medicines in the papers and wrote for further information. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Medicine and Liver Pills, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I have had good results in every way and am able to do my work again and can eat anything that comes along. My friends tell me how well I am looking."—Mrs. F. K. NORTH WINDHAM

Saturday evening at eight o'clock, Miss Gladys Mary Weeks of North Windham was united in marriage with Charles H. Rhenberg of New Britain at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Nathaniel Sherman, at Cedar Corners. The bride was gowned in white satin, wore a veil and carried an arm bouquet of white carnations and chrysanthemums. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John H. Knott, Congregationalist minister of Chaplin, the couple standing beneath an arch of oak leaves, ferns and roses. Mrs. Clifford Bowers of Abington played the wedding march. Master Bobby Sherman, nephew of the bride was ring bearer. Miss Ruth Sherman scattered rose petals before the bride. Following the ceremony a reception was held, about 150 guests being present from New York, Hartford, East Hartford, New Britain, Pomfret, Brooklyn, Hampton, Phoenixville, Willimantic, Chaplin and other places. A collation was served, following which a three-piece orchestra played for dancing. The bride received numerous gifts of silver, cut glass, linen, and money. Mr. and Mrs. Rhenberg will reside in New Britain where a newly furnished home awaits them, and where the groom is employed as mill inspector. They will be at home after Nov. 1.

Don't Believe

Your teeth are naturally "off color"

You can give them dazzling whiteness in a few days and firm your gums simply by removing the dingy film that clouds them this NEW way

HERE is a simple test that proves the truth of the recent dental statement that dull, "off-color" teeth can be lightened amazingly, even given dazzling whiteness.

In a few days you can work a great change in the color of your teeth. Can give them clear and charming gleam.

There is a new way in tooth and gum care. A way that removes the dingy film that clouds your teeth. A film that absorbs discolorations and keeps teeth dingy looking.

Just run your tongue across your teeth. And you will feel that film. It is the great enemy of pretty teeth and healthy gums.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It forms a breeding place for germs. It lays your gums open to bacterial attack, your teeth open to decay. Those germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Old-time methods failed in successfully fighting film. So ugly teeth were common. You must remove it. Ordinary brushing won't do it satisfactorily. Under it are the clear, whiter teeth you envy in others.

Now modern science has perfected an effective film combatant, called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film, then removes it. It firms and protects gums; beautifies teeth quickly and correctly.

FLARE IN CHINA WAS IGNITED BY STRIKE OF 300 COOLIES IN A JAPANESE MILL

(This is the second of a series of six articles by Drew Pearson, describing the causes, history and solutions of the chaos in China.—Ed. Note.)

By Drew Pearson

PEKING—China.—Like the Chicago fire which started when a cow kicked over a lantern in a cowbarn, the anti-foreignism which is sweeping China began with a strike in a Japanese cotton mill. The cow indirectly wiped out the city of Chicago. The Japanese indirectly caused a loss of ten million Chinese work days, the sacrifice of millions of dollars to British and Japanese business men, and started a conflagration which will not end until foreign privilege is driven out of China.

Of course the combustible materials which the Japanese touched off, have been piling up for years. Briefly they may be summarized as the unequal treaties, the high-handed manner in which white men have reminded the yellow men of their inferiority, and the insidious propaganda of the Bolsheviki which has been sprinkled lavishly into every nook and corner of Chinese life.

The strike started as far back as February and ragged in until May 15, before anything exciting happened. The cause of the strike is a little obscure. The Japanese Foreign Minister, Baron Shidehara told me that it was because the Japanese mills were the only ones which were making money, and therefore, the only ones in which the workers had a chance to win a wage increase. Certainly the strike could not have been caused by unfair treatment of employees, because I examined British Chinese, and Japanese mills in Shanghai some time before the strike and the Naval Wata Mill, where the trouble started was more humane than any of the others.

On May 15, some of the strikers endeavored to damage mill property and one of them was killed by a Japanese guard.

The Chinese are not yet well enough versed in the art of industrial warfare to know, what their American confreres have learned at Herrin, Mingo and Leadville; that the taking of human life is all part of the game. Chinese will put up with personal discomfort, loss of wages and starvation. But ——— will not stomach loss of life. It has been demonstrated in other strikes, that, once a life is taken, China seethes.

The Initial Spark

That was what happened in Shanghai. One laborer had been killed and the city seethed with demonstartions and parades. One of these demonstrations was scheduled for May 30th, which happened to be Saturday afternoon for the British and Decoration for the Americans. The police knew that the demonstration was scheduled four hours before it took place, but instead of having reserves on hand, it's surplus men were out at the races, or taking a day off. The parade stopped in front of one police station and refused to disperse. As to just exactly what happened next, rumors differ and the official report has not been allowed to be published. The police say that the crowd threatened to seize the station which contained firearms and that they were therefore forced to defend themselves. The students maintain that they made no advance, and that the police did not even close their gates. The important fact, however, is that forty-four shots were fired into the crowd, killing six and seriously wounding forty.

Those forty-four shots were heard in every corner of China. I have seen pictures of those slain students plastered in the public walls along the Mongolian border.

Word went round that the foreigners were killing Chinese children. The stories were grossly twisted and exaggerated. But it was true that most of the demonstrations had been made by young boys under twenty and girls of twelve to sixteen. The pictures told the story.

All China Aroused

When the first striker had been killed, two weeks before, Shanghai had seethed. Now all China seethed.

But in Shanghai the bitterness was intense. Martial law was declared. A censorship on the press was established. Armored cars patrolled the streets. As a result of the ensuing riots and demonstrations a total of 70 were killed and three hundred were wounded. Shanghai immediately entered a state of boycott which practically amounted to siege.

About this time, students in Canton staged a sympathetic demonstration. There had been considerable trouble in Canton previously and the foreigners had thrown up a barricade around their concession, which is called Shameen. As the parade went by Shameen, someone fired a shot. No one knows definitely to this day whether the shot came from the foreign or the Chinese side. The important thing, however, is that that shot touched off a bombardment that did not stop until one Frenchman and 20 Chinese were killed. Since then, Canton also has been in turmoil.

A delegation, representing the diplomatic body at Peking, came down to Shanghai and held an investigation. That investigation has been the cause of more bickering between the Chinese and the foreigners and among the foreigners themselves than was caused by the actual shooting.

Facts Suppressed

The report of the investigating committee was never made public, but the substance of it leaked out, and it seems that this committee censored the Shanghai police chief because his reserves were out at the races instead of on duty during a demonstration. They are said to have recommended his dismissal. Since the chief of police was British, this report was considered a serious blow to British prestige and the British consul general at Shanghai immediately wired to London directly over the head of the British Charge D'Affairs at Peking to suspend publication of the report and demanding a new judicial investigation.

But it doesn't matter now who fired the shots or who confesses to the guilt. The report has reverberated over China that the British fired the first shots at Canton and were to blame at Shanghai and even if that were proved to be absolutely false no amount of denial could undo the damage.

In this particular case, foreigners have very seriously failed to realize that China's chaos is due to a far more incurable disease than the surface wounds of industrial warfare or street shootings. China's disease is a malady which we call nationalism, coupled with a rebellious fever against the white overlord. It is the same disease that is stirring Morroco, Tunis and Syria against the French. It has kept India chafing against the British ever since the war. It finally resulted in British retirement from Egypt. It drove all Europeans with their extra-territorial courts out of Turkey.

Tax collector, Mrs. Eva A. Proulx and Selectman Raisa E. Horton attended the meeting held at the capitol in Hartford last Monday. The meeting was called by Commissioner Blodgett for the tax collectors and selectmen from towns of less than 4000 population.

The mercury stood at 32 degrees here Friday morning (Oct. 23) and a light snow was falling.

Nelson E. Horton who sustained cuts and bruises in an automobile accident recently, is making a good recovery.

A meeting of the Library directors was held last Monday evening (Oct. 19) and the following officers were elected for the year: Chairman, L. Morgan Reed; secretary and treasurer, Rev. H. A. Coolidge; committee on repairs, Raymond C. Barrows. The librarian, Mrs. Coolidge, has done excellent work, the library is very pleasant, with a homelike atmosphere, and the outlook for usefulness is very hopeful.

The Grange fair, held at the town hall Saturday, (Oct. 17) was a very pleasant affair and a real success. The children had a varied exhibition of vegetables fruits, flowers nuts, canned goods, embroidery, sewing and numerous other things. Mashapaug school had an exhibit of handwork done in school that was very interesting. The children as individuals, were the only exhibitors who competed for premiums, but adults carried articles to help the interest. Miss Annie Towne exhibited a beautiful braided rug. Mrs. George Thayer showed four pieces of her dainty embroidery. Mrs. Mary Horton had a nice rex cactus and a beautiful pearl plant of strawberry cactus. The latter plant she has preserved for many years, the root having been given her by Mrs. Benjamin Corbin when Mrs. Horton (then Miss Mary Crawford) was a schoolgirl in the east district. Rev. H. M. Lawson showed some nice apples and told the children how to raise fruit, especially apples and peaches.

The refreshment table was well patronized. Games and sports filled the afternoon.

PENDLETON HILL

Martin Wilyer is building a 120 foot dam for the purpose of forming an artificial lake on his property. He is planning to build an amusement casino later. Mr. Wilyer owns a very picturesque piece of property.

A walk through these beautiful woodlands is well worth while. Homer Kennedy who formerly owned this farm kept it in excellent condition.

Mrs. James M. Cook entertained a house party last week, consisting of her sons and their wives and children and Captain and Mrs. Dawley.

Burglars recently entered the home of John Carlson and among other things carried off a chest of valuable carpenters' tools.

The home of Joseph Byron Totten also has been entered, doors battered down and much damage done, aside from the removal of many valuable furnishings. This is the third burglary in less than a year.

Richard Ray Palmer is confined to his bed and his condition is reported unchanged.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Gray and four daughters of North Stonington were among the large number of visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Palmer Sunday the 18th.

Sleep Adds Years to Your Life

New Preparation Gives it to You

The most wearing-out process which could afflict a person is that which is caused by lack of sleep. Fitful, insufficient slumber tears the nervous system to pieces and causes much of the weakness, irritability and susceptibility to disease which is often blamed on other causes.

Lack of sleep ages one, destroys beauty and certainly shortens your life. And yet it is so easy to have the deep refreshing slumber of childhood.

A sleep that will make you feel like a new person and add five years to your life—a slumber that will banish the "blues" and give you the strong, healthy nerves which mean a sunshiny, cheerful outlook on life. And you can get all these benefits from a new, harmless, easy-to-take preparation called Neura.

Neura contains no opiates or habit-forming drugs. The results from the use of Neura have been so remarkable, however, that it is now dispensed by Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere with a guarantee to return the small cost if you are not amazed and delighted with the results from the use of the very first package. Get a good night's sleep tonight by taking Neura today.

Don't Neglect that COUGH

It never pays to neglect a cough. It does not pay, either, to try to stop it with a remedy which your doctor might not approve.

PERTUSSIN is a proven remedy that has been prescribed successfully for twenty years in the treatment of all harmful coughs, including whooping cough.

PERTUSSIN soothes the cough spasm, helps to clear the air passages of sticky, germ-laden mucus and reduces the inflammation. It is entirely free from injurious or habit-forming drugs.

Sold by all druggists in large and small bottles.

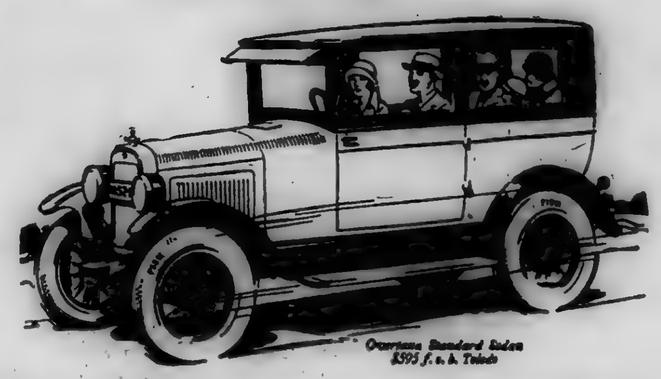
Now the public knows—

No other car will do what this car does, for $595"

In his message to the public, the President of one of the world's three biggest automobile manufacturers made that statement seven weeks ago. Seeing is believing. Today the public knows it to be just 100% true!



Overland Standard Sedan $595 f. o. b. Toledo

Here are only a few of this great light car's 91 big-car features:—

Perfect Comfort for Five

—a full-size, 5-passenger Sedan—very spacious—carries five grown-up people as comfortably as a limousine . . . a smartly designed car, clean-cut, rakish, low, extraordinarily good looking . . . body finished in polished lacquer, a rich deep blue with glistening jet black trimmings, as handsome a light automobile as man or woman ever looked at . . .

Extra big doors

. . . extra wide, easy entrance and exit to both front and rear seats. Like getting in and out of a limousine. No inconvenience to anybody, no discomfort. Each door has four extra heavy hinges—treat them as roughly as you like, these doors are built to stand punishment!

Wider seats

—the widest of any light car built! New single piece, unbranded front seat, 39 inches wide, 19 inches deep. All the elbow-room you want. You know what that means to your driving comfort-and-freedom. No more 100-mile fatigue! Wider back seat—45 inches wide, 18 inches deep. You know what such ample seating capacity means to the comfort and pleasure of your passengers. No match box effect. No crowding!

Very latest one-piece windshield —especially valuable in night-driving. Gives clear, unobstructed vision. No neck craning. Sit serenely back of the wheel and you can always see where you're going. More easily adjusted—you don't have to fuss with it. Adds greatly to the car's appearance. Easier to clean and to keep clean. One of those little things that mean so much. You need this new-day light-car feature and, in this extraordinary car-value, you get it!

Big, wide windows

—more than 20 square feet of window space—all the air and all broad, uninterrupted vision of a touring car with closed-car protection, closed-car snugness, closed-car warmth and comfort whenever you want it!

New cowl ventilator

—a comfort any late model big car gives, new in the light car. Keeps the driver's and front seat passenger's legs and feet always cool and comfortable, lets a pleasant flow of fresh air circulate continuously through the lower half of the car . . .

Rhythmical Riding

—a light car comfort unknown until introduced by Overland . . . TRIPLEX SPRINGS, a patented and exclusive Overland feature, give you 130-inches of spring-supported area on a 100-inch wheelbase. No jolts. No jars. No shock on even the roughest roads. That extra 30 inches of spring-support carries you and your passengers buoyantly, in cradle-comfort. Triplex Springs you ride rhythmically—you enjoy a doubly and trebly smoother riding-ease than is possible in any other light car. Exclusive with Overland, because patented. No other car, big or little, has or ever can have them.

Gasoline Tank in Rear as in practically all modern cars

. . . for your greater safety, and greater convenience, the Overland Standard Sedan is equipped with a 10 gallon gasoline tank. This is mounted at the rear of the chassis. Easily accessible for filling. You will recognize this as a strictly modern feature. With the gasoline tank at the rear all hazards of danger by fire are removed. Your safety is assured. You get the benefit of the lowest insurance rate on your car.

A 27-horsepower engine

. . . sturdy, fast, reliable, all the power you need to carry you 50 miles or 50,000. A noble hill-climber. A quieter engine because it has fewer working parts. Extraordinary economy on both gasoline and oil.

Sliding gear transmission

Three speed, selective, sliding gear transmission—at the lowest price ever available in a closed car. Borg and Beck disc type clutch—one of the finest clutches made and used in many of the highest priced cars in this country; Auto-Lite starting, lighting and ignition—again, standard big-car equipment; a rear axle system the equal in size and weight to that used in cars carrying double the weight of this one; Axle shafts of Nickel-chrome steel, the toughest steel known. In the entire three years in which Overland has used this axle system there is no case on record where an axle shaft has ever been broken!

A wonderful Chassis

—a strong, rigid frame with plenty of bracing; springs of Chrome Vanadium steel, the finest and strongest spring steel known to engineering—in this new-day car every leaf in each spring is genuine Chrome Vanadium, exactly the same material you will find in the world's finest automobiles!

Buy now—pay later—on our easy time-payment plan.

Easy terms. Only a small amount down—52 weeks and more for the balance. Your present car to apply as part payment.

CLAIMS NEW LONDON HAS PLENTY OF WATER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26—The city council this evening did not transact a great deal of business but it considered matters of vital importance and then referred them to committees or noted them in the records of the council. Councilor May made an exhaustive report that sought to spur the councillors to greater effort to secure manufacturing for the city, thus increasing the earning power of workers and securing employment for more people. Mr. May read his report which designated the buildings which were available for manufacturing purposes. He located them by numbers in the streets in which they are located and gave an idea of what they might be used for. He named a good many such. The mayor decided that the council was without authority to act officially in the matter, but said that the report should be forwarded to the chamber of commerce for earnest contemplation. There were several applications for permission to build and they disclosed the intention of petitioners to erect several dwellings.

City Manager Holt reported a matter that was referred to him at a previous meeting of the council which asked for a report on the receipts and expenses of the operation of the Groton ferry. It showed that the city is paying some $5,000 a year to maintain the line. There was a profit of some $519 but that was exclusive of the amount the city contributed to the ferry each year. It was announced that Groton was not in favor of operating a smaller boat on the line even at the desirable result of reducing the cost of operation, of which Groton pays its percentage. The purpose in asking for the report was to disclose whether it would be feasible to put a smaller and less expensive boat in operation on the line. It was disclosed that the chief expense for the ferry is the payment of wages and the cost of fuel, and these figures are to be given to the council that they may be available making up the budget for the ensuing year.

The city manager reported on the details of the city's water supply in submitting a statement in writing of the city's engineer. It was a most comprehensive document and assured the council that there was no danger of water famine in the event that we had no more rain for months. The report went in to figures that showed the capacity of the reservoirs and the ponds which supply the city with water and disclosed that there was stored an abundant supply. The matter came to the council at the suggestion of Councilor Streeter that the city should consider the advisability of purchasing Miller's pond. The engineer did not advise that procedure and pointed out that it would be an expensive undertaking and one that the city need not undertake now. Councilor Street took issue with the city manager and the city engineer and held that the city should be prepared for a time when it will need Miller's pond. He said the city must secure it sooner or later and he advised getting it now while it could be had on terms that might be more advantageous than the city will get when it absolutely needs to secure the pond.

The public utilities commission gave notice of a hearing at New London the 29th inst. to consider the application of the New England Transportation company for the establishment of a bus line from New London to the Rhode Island line at Westerly. Then Mayor Fox announced that the hearing had been postponed as had all the hearings assigned for that date.

The Lions' club petitioned the council to develop what is known as Bates' woods in the rear of the city's Hillside home for park purposes but the petition was not regarded with great seriousness and was referred to the committee on public works.

E. A. Armstrong and a score of others asked for the placing of Lockyard street and continuous highways in condition. The petition was referred to the city manager for report. Then came requests from the mayor, from Councilor Streeter and Woodruff for repairs to Town Hill, the walks in Williams park and Cottage street.

IMPRESSION PREVAILS THAT NEW ENGLANDERS SLOW

According to data on New England's marketing problem, that will be presented to the New England conference at Worcester, November 12-13, the geographical location of industries in this territory is not so big a barrier to increasing sales as is commonly supposed. A more serious problem is said to be the widespread impression that New England manufacturers are slow to recognize changing conditions, and to adapt their policies and products accordingly.

This criticism stands out strongly in material gathered by the Massachusetts chamber of commerce in connection with the session of the conference to be devoted to New England's marketing problem. Louis K. Liggett, president of the United Drug company, Boston, will preside over the marketing discussion.

ONE-WAY REGULATIONS ON BROADWAY AND UNION ST.

The one-way traffic ordinances on Broadway hill and Union street will go into effect this (Tuesday) morning, going now on Broadway from Union square to the head of the Little Plain will be one-way north and Union street from the head of the Little Plain will be one-way south. The macadamizing of Union street has been completed for several days and the street is now open to traffic.

Beginning today parking will be allowed on both sides of Broadway and Union street, but no longer will drivers be allowed to park their machines in the center of Union square around the arc lights. For some weeks now drivers have been parking machines in the center of the square, this being allowed while the Union street improvement was under way. Now that Union street is one way south traffic will require all the available space in Union square, therefore the center of the square will be kept free from machines from now on.

No Monday Business For Court

There was no business for the City court Monday morning, this being the first time in over a year that there has not been at least one case for the court daily. Over the week-end the police made but one arrest, which was on a non-support charge, but this case did not come before the court as the accused was discharged by the prosecuting attorney.

MISSING KENNETH WATROUS
WELL KNOWN NEW LONDON ENGINEER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26—As told on The Bulletin's telegraph page Monday, Kenneth Watrous, a New London man, employed by the federal government as a civil engineer, is missing and it is believed that his body rests somewhere at the bottom of the Connecticut river, near Middletown.

Watrous was attached to the Providence office of the government survey department and with other surveyors was engaged Sunday on work in connection with the dredging of the channel of the Connecticut river, between Glastonbury and Middletown where the dredging work is being performed by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott company. During the afternoon Watrous had complained of suffering from indigestion and went to one of the bunks aboard the dredging craft, presumably to lie down. That was the last seen of Watrous. It is believed that while attempting to reach the bunk he either fell overboard or was blown over the side of the craft. Watrous had been employed by several New London surveyors and was married recently, his wife being Miss Ella Nordfelt, of Groton.

Felix Tillett, United States Coast guard sailor attached to the patrol boat, 186, state pier, was in the police court this forenoon on charges of blocking traffic and operating a motor vehicle without having a license to do so and without having certificate of registration. Judge Victor Prince imposed a fine of $10 and costs on the second and third charges and on the first charge a nolle was entered. Tillett was arrested Saturday afternoon by Traffic Officer Frank Linehan. In court Tillette declared that he had arrived in New London but a few days ago from Norfolk, Va. and that he borrowed an automobile of a friend. He also stated that in Virginia a uniformed man is not required to take out an operator's license and registration in order to be allowed to drive a machine.

Walter Legere has been away from New London the past two years so he did not keep posted on the changes that had been made in ordinances regulating the parking of automobiles on the business streets of the city. He hauled up to the curbing on the east side of Bank street and left his machine there a couple of hours. He was notified to appear in the police court and explain. This he did and so satisfactorily that judgment was suspended.

John A. Heikel, a chief petty officer at the base was in court today and his case, alleging the avoidance of responsibility after he had run down a man in the street last August, was disposed of. Heikel was fined $50. That was the minimum penalty for his offense, and it came when he convinced the court that he did not wilfully leave the location of the accident. He declared that he did not know that his car had hit the man until he was told of the fact. Then he left his car and endeavored to ascertain the name of the man and the extent of the injuries he sustained. He was told there that the man was dead and that his body had been taken away. Heikel was almost in a condition of collapse, and drove away to the police station. The injured man was in court today and went back to the hospital, when he had passed through the endless ordeal of appearing in court.

Another batch of booze cases will be before the police court tomorrow morning over lot from last week. They are what have come to be known as the McCarthy cases and were brought to the court originally by John McCarthy whose testimony did not have great weight with Judge Prince last week. Tuesday, other cases will get in the court on contingance. These originated from McCarthy's activities also. The liquor prosecutions brought from this source have stirred up the people to considerable degree and there is intense interest in what the final result will be.

John O'Brien, 64, for many years employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad as engineer of the Thames river railroad bridge, died suddenly of heart disease this morning at his home, 17 Rogers street. Mr. O'Brien is survived by his wife, a son, John O'Brien Jr., of Mount Vernon, N. Y., and three daughters, Mrs. Cassie Dorsey, Cleveland, Ohio and Misses Jane and Margaret O'Brien, this city. He was a member of New London lodge of Elks and was well and favorably known. Mr. O'Brien suffered a severe cold about a week ago and because of this was compelled to quit work and go to his home, where he obtained medical treatment. Mr. O'Brien had also been a sufferer of asthma a long time, but this ailment did not appear to be any worse than heretofore had with an improvement from his cold. Mr. O'Brien had decided to return to work this morning. Late yesterday afternoon he suffered an asthmatic attack and lingered until about 1 o'clock this morning.

The continued case of Antone Ricci, of Denison avenue, Groton, was tried in the Groton town court this forenoon. Ricci was presented on three charges of violation of the liquor law, two of the charges being actual sale and the third charge of keeping with intent to sell. He was fined $100 and costs on one charge of actual sale and the other charge of sale resulted in the accused being found not guilty. On the charge of keeping with intent to sell, Ricci was found guilty and drew a second fine of $100 and costs, from Judge Cornelius C. Costello. Ricci was taken into custody several weeks ago when his home was raided and a quantity of liquor seized.

Mrs. Robert Keefe and infant son, of 32 Bellevue place; Mrs. Edward Pickett and infant son, 23 Summer street; Mrs. Francis Gadbois and infant son, 23 Hempstead street; Clarence Rowland, Blackhall street, and Edward Bryan, sailor, attached to the United States Coast guard destroyer Cummings, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital were dismissed today.

Funeral services for Sidney C. Keeney were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his father-in-law, Andrew Smith, Thames View, Waterford, Rev. G. W. Boardman officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The body of Mrs. Ida M. Fitzhugh, wife of Edward H. Fitzhugh, whose death occurred at the Fitzhugh residence, 11 River Bend avenue, Ocean Beach, Sunday morning, was forwarded to Mrs. Fitzhugh's former home in St. Louis today, for the funeral and burial the latter part of this week.

Mildred I. Golding today sold a house and lot on Niles Hill road to Enrico Musoovi.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of H. E. Guy, submarine base, Albert Skinko, 19 Tilley street; Dorsey Reeves, 458 Williams street, and B. D. Mazzacca, 25 Bank street, to be suspended.

Complaint was made to the police this forenoon that sometime between 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon and 8 o'clock this morning entrance was gained to the Winthrop school and that a small sum of money was stolen.

Ernest J. Goodrow, 35, of 19 Ramsdell street, Groton, died at Home Memorial hospital Sunday night, after having been under treatment at the institution but a few hours for a paralytic stroke, having been stricken Sunday morning. Mr. Goodrow, who had been in poor health for some time is survived by his wife and family. Mr. Goudrow was born in Norwich, the son of Alphonse and Mary Goodrow and had resided in Groton about a year.

Albert C. Woodruff, 51 Fremont street, and Clyde A. Williamson, 105 Ocean avenue, and general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., are spending a few days in Washington, D. C.

Fred Rieger, Pleasure Beach, has gone to Miami, Fla., where he will be employed during the remainder of the winter.

Misses Grace M. and Dorothy L. Little, 4 Pacific street, spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Hartford.

James Gormley, an aged resident of this city, is critically ill at his home, Huntington street, being ill with heart trouble.

Funeral services for William L. Douglass, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, 330 Squire street. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth officiated. Acquaintances of Mr. Douglass acted as bearers. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery, Mystic.

Frank Ficarra of 32 Truman street, and Mrs. Emilio Vellucci, Uncasville, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were able to return to their respective abodes today.

NEW LONDON CITIZENS FAVOR CITY ZONING PROJECT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26—The city council this evening felt the public pulse, so to speak, to determine whether there was a considerable sentiment in favor of zoning the city that the erection and character of building might be regulated. That sentiment was expressed and it was generally in the affirmative, though but less than half a dozen persons gave the council the benefit of their opinion. The expression came, not from individuals who expressed themselves, but through a rising vote in which all but a very small percentage of those present declared that they favored the scheme.

Former City Manager James E. Barlow spoke for the Chamber of Commerce in the absence of the chairman of a committee delegated to represent the chamber. He told of the adoption of the zoning in cities throughout the country and from statistics gathered from a publication forwarded from Washington showed that there was a tremendously large increase in the number of cities that had favored the plan and which had adopted it. James G. Hammond, in a few general remarks favored the plan and declared that the Chamber of Commerce favored the establishment of new industries in the city. He was inspired to this statement by the remarks of Councilor May who rather chided the city because it had not taken advantage of its opportunities and sought to secure the use of property that was available for manufacturing.

Councilor Whiton made it plain that the city, to adopt the zoning system, must decided upon a definite scheme—must divide the city into districts and proceed according to a plan that contemplated zoning every section. The undertaking could not be by piecemeal. He made that clear at the start and upon his statements the discussion began. He set the ball rolling and it gathered force as it proceeded.

Elmer Kennerson was opposed to the plan and told those who heard him that he was convinced that if he owned a parcel of land he could erect a one-story or a three-story dwelling upon it if he so desired, if by so doing he did not create a nuisance and did not damage the property of his neighbor.

That is not the plan contemplated by the zoning law, which restricts the building to be erected to a given number of feet according to the occupancy of the building by families. That is, it provides that a one-family house shall occupy only a named percentage of a lot, and that a two-family house shall be upon only a stated number of feet of area. Mr. Kennerson could not see the justice of that and was emphatic in the statement that no law could take from a man his rights as an individual in the erection of a building that should meet his financial ability so long as he safeguard the rights of others, and did not create a nuisance.

Mrs. Emily Spelra pointed out that the purpose of the zoning law was not to deprive any person of his or her rights, but to help the person and to add to the value of his or her property.

Mr. Nordenhold was positive that the law was unconstitutional and that it would not be approved by the courts. He said he was opposed to it unalterably, and said so more than once. Mrs. Annie Fenner favored the law and so did P. Leroy Harwood, who declared that property in residential sections had been damaged by the erection of small buildings at a cost of something like $1,000 while they depreciated the adjoining property to a greater amount than the cost of the building constructed. W. T. Jacques hit the council very effectually, when he declared that the council was not setting an example which citizens could follow. He declared that he favored the zoning plan, but pointed out that when the city acquired Green's Harbor beach it became most arbitrary and having erected a building there that was a nuisance told him and others that the land was the property of the city and refused to remove it though it was a nuisance. Every resident near the beach petitioned the council for the removal of the building but the petition was pigeon-holed and had not been heard of since. He said the treatment was not such as should have been accorded to the petitioners.

The meeting was a preliminary one and others like it will probably be held.

DEPTULA AIDS TREASURY. OF CITY BY $500 FINES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26—Rock Deptula, proprietor of a store, 633 Main street, was in the police court this morning charged on two counts of violation of the liquor law in selling whiskey to United States Coast Guard sailors. He pleaded guilty to both counts and was fined $200 and costs on each count. He paid and in doing so enriched the city treasury close to $500.

It is understood that the two coast guard sailors who made purchases of liquor represented to the state police, who had charge of the raid, which preceded Deptula's arrest, that the liquor was of the same brand as that which Felix Palma and Gurlimo Manalilla, Filipinos aboard the coast guard patrol boat, 137, had in their possession when arrested Saturday. They claimed that the liquor was given them by the master of the patrol boat after he had been given a case of liquor by the master of one of the rum-supply ships at anchor off Block Island. It is also understood that the coast guard "squealers" represented the purchase of the liquor as being of the same brand as held by the Filipinos, in an effort to make it appear that the Filipinos were engaged in the sale of liquor and that the story they related as having received their liquor from the patrol boat master was untrue. Deptula, when apprehended, declared that he had procured his liquor from members of the coast guard Saturday and that he had paid $4 per quart for it. Palma and Manillila were taken into custody early Saturday morning and were prisoners at the police station almost 24 hours, prior to the alleged purchase at Deptula's place being made.

It was revealed his afternoon that Ralph H. Whitehead, chief boatswain's mate, in charge of the patrol boat, and his crew of eight men, are under arrest at the state pier where they will be held until such time as the true and complete story of the existence of the liquor in possession of Palma and Manillila when they were arrested, has been determined. Commander F. H. Young, state pier, is inclined to doubt the story of the Filipinos, while Sergeant Clifford Gorgas, state police, Groton barracks, is of the opinion that Palma and Manillila have related a true story of the booze transaction.

BOOZE-MAKING OUTFIT FOUND AT THE PILAT HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 26.—The flying squadron of the New London police department was in action again this afternoon and displayed another bit of enterprise in an endeavor to round up the gang that is dispensing liquor throughout the city. As a result of the work of the squadron Mrs. Kiefren Pilat, 11 Tenth street, was taken into custody charged with violation of the liquor law. On the arrest of the woman a considerable quantity of evidence was seized. Mrs. Pilat furnished a surety on her bond of $1,000 for her appearance in the police court tomorrow morning, Mrs. Ellen Shea qualifying.

The police have been giving close attention to the Pilat residence for some time and late this afternoon Sergeant Nelson Smith obtained a search warrant from Judge S. Victor Prince. Sergeant Smith, together with Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolmen William Corcoran, William Graham and John Courtney went to the second floor of the Tenth street house where they made a thorough search after having been admitted by Mrs. Pilat. The search revealed a copper boiler and coil used for booze manufacture, a bottle of coloring, a quart of wine, and three quarts of alcohol, together with the containers of the booze.

TODAY'S EVENTS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

That thing called "value" can always be found at the Broadway theatre. The program which opened yesterday and continues through Wednesday will make new friends for that popular playhouse. It is one of those rare combinations of B. F. Keith vaudeville and splendid photoplays—rare everywhere else but the Broadway.

The opening attraction was a marvelous dog, "Tip," who is presented by Bob Lee. Bring the children along to see this almost human dog.

Lee Manning and Violet Hall in The Proposal offer real fun and lively entertainment.

The Three Bernard Girls in "Atta Girl Mom" is a combination of comedy, songs and steps, all of which clicks.

Harry Stanley and Dorothy Quinette in Books, are like a rare edition, hard to find and are almost priceless. Real shopmanship here.

Libby, Sparrow & Co., in Tickling Technique close with a fast combination of all that is liked in vaudeville.

Eugene O'Brien and Claire Windsor are featured in a perfect photoplay gem, "Souls for Sables."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Quinn Ins. & Real Estate Agency has sold for Masaud Bros., the three story building at 165 No. Main St. The purchaser, Lester Bendett, intends to move this building to enlarge his gasoline station.

Palace Theatre

Directing a stampede of one hundred horses in one scene was the accomplishment achieved by Victor Fleming while on location in southern Arizona directing Harold Bell Wright's "A Son of His Father" for Paramount.

The story of "A Son of His Father" is one of tremendous sweep and has for its basic theme the terrific battle of the ranchmen on the Mexican border against a band of smugglers.

To regain a herd of horses stolen from him by the band, Warner Baxter swoops down upon the rustlers' headquarters and single handed works the animals into a stampede so they will charge out of their enclosure.

Featured players in "A Son of His Father" are Bessie Love, Warner Baxter and Raymond Hatton. Other players prominent in the picture include Walter McGrail, James Farley, Valentina Zemina, Carl Stockdale, Billy Eugene and Charles Stevens.

Breed Theater

Blanche Sweet has just experienced a new screen thrill!

For the first time in her career before the camera, she has been herself portrayed on the screen in color. And she laughingly admits she likes herself.

The color sequence is the opening episode of the George Fitzmaurice production, His Supreme Moment, in which Miss Sweet is featured with Ronald Colman. The entire incident has been photographed in real color by the improved Technicolor Process.

"After seeing oneself in black and white on the screen, the first glimpse of your won face in color comes as a distinct but rather pleasant shock," Miss Sweet said as she left the projection room after viewing the color rushes. "The effect is exactly like having suddenly acquired a new face and features."

NORWICH IN ITINERARY OF RICHARD MANSFIELD PLAYERS

A repertoire theatre bearing the name of the greatest American actor since the day of Edwin Booth—a new contribution to the world of the theatre—this describes the Richard Mansfield Players of New London, which has recently been organized with the serious purpose of bringing the best of the drama to a dozen cities of the state. Norwich is included in this itinerary and will have an opportunity to see this unique company.

This organization is important and unique in the history of the theatre, since, for the first time, a company has been formed to appear in a repertory of plays, not only in its own city, but in other towns, in the state, thus bringing an opportunity to witness its fine performances to cities that would not otherwise have a chance to do so.

The Richard Mansfield Players aim to develop a company of artists who, by their versatility, will achieve a high standard of production. Each player must be trained to be able to depict a wide variety of emotional and comedy parts. No stars have been engaged, only highly capable players who have distinguished themselves in other companies and on Broadway.

The company's repertory for a season will include at least half a dozen plays, some of them recent Broadway successes given with new and highly individual mountings and others revivals by noted authors. No play will run longer than a month, in order that the Players' audiences may be able to see them in varied plays.

The Richard Mansfield Players are unique, if for no other reason, than because of the residence of the entire company at Mansfield Grange, the lovely home which the illustrious actor built in the smart Pequot section of New London. In this magnificent house the Richard Mansfield Players live and work every day. From here they are travelling to the other cities where they are booked to play, but they will continue always to return to the grange, which is the permanent headquarters of the players.

This unique arrangement has been made possible through the whole hearted cooperation and inspiring guidance of Mrs. Richard Mansfield, the widow of the great actor. Mrs. Mansfield is also taking active part in the company, both as an instructor and as an actress.

An executive commitee is actively engaged to determine the policy of the organization, headed by Mrs. Mansfield as president, with Edwin R. Wolfe as stage director, Ruth Putnam Mason as executive director, Jetta Geffen as managing director and Louis Bromberg as scenic director.

OSAGE INDIAN IS A LIVING GHOST AMONG OWN PEOPLE

PAWHUSKA, Okla., Oct. 26 (AP)—A living ghost among his own people in John Stink, hermit of the Osages. Buried as dead and resurrected from the grave, he lives today alone in a tepee, an outcast from his tribe, a spirit shunned.

John is 62. He is wealthy, oil royalties alone bringing him more than $1,000 a month. But he is shut off from almost all communication, because he cannot speak English and none of his people dare talk with him.

Twenty-one years ago Ho-tah-moie, which was John's Indian name, became ill of fever. He swooned and in falling was knocked unconscious. All the witchery of the Indian medicine man could not restore him to consciousness. So he was pronounced dead and a few hours later was buried with the tribal ritual.

The Osage custom was to bury the dead in a shallow grave, the corpse in a sitting posture, with the head above ground. Over the body they would build a small mound of rocks, sticks, and mud, leaving the head alone uncovered.

The cool earth and a few hours' time restored John. He worked his way out of the grave and crawled to his tepee. It was night. John's relatives mistook the figure at the tepee entrance for a ghost. And to them he has remained a wraith ever since.

For some years Ho-tah-moie eked out an existence in Pawhuska. His only companions were dogs. With them at least he could commune.

When oil came, a guardian was appointed and John was moved to his own land near here. There he lives, like an Indian of old, hunting, fishing and talking to his dogs.

Suit for $1,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been suffered on the Palace theatre stage, Bridgeport, Oct. 5 was brought in common pleas court yesterday by John McNally, Bridgeport, for his minor son, Edward, against the S. Z. Poli Realty company, New Haven, and George Brown and Sam Moss.

GIRL GAINED 7 POUNDS NINE YEARS AN INVALID

That's just what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for the Babcock Girl—and is doing as much for tens of thousands of thin, underweight, weak and discouraged people all over America.

These sugar coated, pleasant to take tablets should be given to children instead of the vile stomach upsetting oil itself—they surely do help the frail, delicate little ones and 60 tablets cost but 60 cents at Lee & Osgood Co., or any real druggist anywhere in America.

Read this letter if you have a child that needs to gain health and strength.

"My little girl was stricken with infantile paralysis when she was 5 months old and was an invalid for 9 years—when I saw an ad in the paper that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets would build up wasted tissues, I bought a box and she gained very slowly at first and after taking eight boxes, she gained seven pounds. Thanks to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, after trying almost everything else on the market. She is on the road to recovery and goes to school every day." Mrs. L. Babcock, Appleton, Wis.

Imitations of McCoy's may be offered but be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine and if after thirty days' treatment you are not delighted with results—why, get your money back.

PALACE THEATRE

In his sphere Harold Bell Wright is the most popular author in America. Next to the Bible, Harold Bell Wright is the best seller in America.

In filming his latest and greatest novel, "A SON OF HIS FATHER," Paramount has adhered to the same high standard that has made Zane Grey pictures THE outdoor pictures.

A book that has been read by over 56,000,000 people must have something more than a pretty cover.

A picture that Paramount produces is made as perfect as it is humanly possible to make a picture perfect.

Paramount produced "A SON OF HIS FATHER" and it's at the Palace today.

GALES FERRY

The Men's Class of the Methodist Episcopal church gave a Hallowe'en supper and social in the rectory Saturday evening. The vestibule and vestry were lighted with electric bulbs in violet, orange and yellow. A cafeteria supper was provided, with Rev. George Smith Brown chairman. The menu included baked beans, frankfurters and rolls, doughnuts, pumpkin pie and coffee. C. E. Colver was cashier. At the social following Hallowe'en games and stunts were under the direction of Nelson Parker and afforded much merriment. Red apples marshmallows and popcorn were the refreshments. The unfavorable weather did not prevent a large attendance.

In the Methodist church at the Sunday morning service Rev. George Smith Brown took as his sermon theme Martha—Luke 10:38-42. The solo "Heaven Is My Home" (Savage) was sung by Miss Grace A. Chapman. The announcements for the week included an invitation from the Long Cove auxiliary of the Ladies' Aid society of this district to the Wednesday afternoon meeting at the home of Mrs. Carl W. Lawson of Long Cove, members going by bus from here, to leave at 12:40.

The Village Improvement association has announced to give a public Hallowe'en frolic in the Country club house Monday evening.

At the Sunday school at noon the banner for attendance went to D. C. Perkins' class of boys, and the banner in offering to Miss Jennie G. Perkins' class.

Miss Myrtlee Coman was leader of the Epworth League evening service, with bthe topic "An Epworthian's Good Times in His Community." At the social hour following Mrs. Elmer Tubbs was the hostess and served sandwiches, cookies and cocoa.

Misses Dorothy and Lucy Chester, teachers in North Stonington, who attended the fall meeting of the Connecticut State Teachers' association, held in Slater hall, Norwich, Friday, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Solon F. Chapman of the Lester district.

Mrs. J. Frank Clark of Norwich was the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter M Buckingham, Thursday and Friday.

Miss Em Beth Bennett was the guest Sunday of Miss Gertrude Allen of Allendale, Long Cove.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham attended the wedding of Mr. Buckingham's brother, William Alfred Buckingham, and Mrs. Flora Dudley Spenard, in Norwich Saturday.

Friends and neighbors of County Agent Walter T. Clark of the New London County farm bureau at Gales Ferry where he resides are pleased to hear of his successful recovery from an operation performed last week at Backus hospital, Norwich, for appendicitis. It is hoped he can return to his home in a week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Harding and children of Middletown motored here and spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Parker.

Mrs. H. B. Knowles entertained recently informally at bridge for Mrs. E. B. Lewis of Allyn's Point: Mrs. C. H. Minchler, Mrs. P. B. Koonce, Mrs. F. O. Johnson, Mrs. C. F. Macklin, Mrs. R. M. Hewit Mrs. A. J. Wheaton and Mrs. A. J. McKee.

PHOENIXVILLE

Rev. F. H. Abbott of Pennsylvania, a former pastor of the local congregationalist church spent the week end here, the guest of friends.

Stanley Schumariski and party attended the aviation meet in Hartford Saturday.

Mrs. Lee Lyon is in Groton for a week's visit.

Mrs. Clemens, who teaches in Thompson spent the week end at her home here, meeting her classes at Eastford Saturday.

J. Carlton Tatem and Mrs. Tatem are in New York for two weeks.

Among those attending the Rhenberg-Weeks wedding Saturday evening were Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bennette Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Clemens and Mrs. H. C. Joslin

Red and White Rock pullets, farm horse, wagons, harnesses, farm implements of all kinds in good order, hay, potatoes, corn on the cob, vegetables, and a large variety of valuable household goods. If stormy next fair day. Caterer will attend. (The farm is next to the Harry Erdon place).

AUCTION NOTICE

By Witter Bros., Auctioneers, Office 42 Main St., Danielson, Conn.

We will sell for John Doyle, at the Dufresne farm, located 1-4 mile east from Plainfield St., Conn., on THURSDAY, OCT. 29, 1925,

at 1 o'clock p. m., rain or shine, his entire herd of valuable young Ayrshire and Holstein cattle in the various stages of milk, 2 best cows, 1 bull and a number of veal calves. A first class milk wagon will also be sold, as Mr. Doyle is retiring from the milk business. This is a sale of very high grade cattle.

Auction Notice

I shall have 75 head of cattle for my sale on this week Wednesday, at 1 o'clock p. m. instead of 40 head as previously advertised. 35 head of fancy two year old Holstein heifers all with calf and several fancy springers and new milkers have just arrived from Vermont. These cattle have been tested and retested.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE

Pursuant to the judgment entered in the matter of Progressive Finance & Realty Co., Inc., v. Morris W. Liebmann, et al by the Superior Court for New London County, on October 15, 1925, notice is hereby given that at two o'clock in the afternoon on the 9th day of November 1925, the undersigned will sell at public auction to the highest bidder three certain parcels of land situated in the Town of Lebanon, County of New London, bounded and described as follows, to wit:

First tract with buildings thereon standing is situated on the southerly side of the highway leading from Lebanon to Colchester and Bozrah, bounded northerly by said highway, easterly and southerly by land now or formerly of Edwin Caswell, westerly by land now or formerly of Willis Gardner, Elmer Caples and Van Lombard;

Containing sixty (60) acres more or less, and known as the Daniel Abell Place formerly owned by F. J. Brown.

Second tract commencing at the highway at corner of land formerly of F. J. Brown, thence running southerly by land last mentioned to the brook; thence turning and running westerly, thence southerly, thence again westerly to a corner; thence again southerly to a Pond by land of D. E Abell; thence the line runs still in a southerly direction across the Pond to the northeast corner of land formerly of Silas P. Abel; thence running in a westerly course by land last mentioned to land formerly of Samuel Wilcox; thence by said Wilcox land to land formerly of Ralph B. Crocker; thence still in a northwesterly course by land last mentioned to land formerly of D. E. Abell; thence easterly and northerly by land last mentioned to the high way; thence easterly by the highway to the place of beginning;

Containing thirty (30) acres more or less.

Third tract on which pump house is located) is bounded on the north by Klotic premises, so-called; on the east by said Klotic premises and the highway known as the Hebron Turnpike; south by said Turnpike, and west by Williams Pond, so-called.

Subject to all existing prior encumbrances of record.

The aforesaid sale will be for cash and will be conducted on the premises and will be subject to the approval of the Superior Court for New London County. The successful bidder will be required to deposit with the undersigned ten per centum (10 per cent) of the accepted bid at the time of the sale and the balance of said bid upon the delivery to the purchaser by the undersigned of a good and sufficient deed pursuant to the further order of said Court.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

PROFIT-TAKING IN MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(By the A. P.)—Heavy profit taking apparently inspired by stiffening call money rates the sharp break in cotton futures and commission house advices suggesting that a technical reaction was warranted, impeded, but failed to halt the upward sweep of prices in today's stock market. Total sales exceeded 2,000,000 shares for the eleventh consecutive full session.

Buying demonstrations started in the steel shares, presumably in further reflection of favorable trade reports. United States Steel common crossed 120 to the highest price since the war and Bethlehem moved up over two points to 49 1-2. American Metals, which is expected to increase its annual dividend from $3 to $4, jumped over four points to a new high record at 57 5-8. Gulf States and Sloss Sheffield each showed net gains of about 1 1-2 points.

Rails were galvanized into activity when a sudden inquiry developed for the Van Sweringen issues. "Nickel Plate" soared six points to 148 and was followed into new high ground by Pere Marquette and Erie common. Bangor and Aroostook advanced 3 points to a new high at 53 in anticipation of an increased dividend. Rock Island, Chicago, Great Western preferred, "Soo" preferred, Norfolk and Western and New Haven also recorded substantial gains.

Spectacular movements again took place in the motor group, which was featured by an advance of nearly 17 points to a new record top at 218 in Chrysler Motors. Jordan scored an extreme advance of 3 points at 55 and General Motors, Hudson, Mack Truck, Moon, Stromberg Carburetor and Fisher Body all closed a point or more higher. Packard crossed 45 to a new top.

Buoyancy also developed in a number of specialties. Loose-Wiles Biscuit was quickly run up 12 points to a new peak at 150 and then slipped back to 101 1-2; net gains of 7 to nearly 6 points were registered by American Radiator, American Zinc and Lead preferred, Byers company, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Federal Mining and Smelting common and preferred, R. C. Schulte, Sears-Roebuck, Standard Milling and United Cigar Stores.

There were a few soft spots. New York Canners broke nearly six points to 67 and then rallied to 69 3-4; Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies preferred Burroughs Adding Machine, Commercial Solvents B, Continental Insurance, Famous Players, General Electric, National Distillers Products, preferred, Remington Typewriter, Underwood Typewriter, United States Rubber and Yellow Cab preferred showed net losses of 2 or more points.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent., advanced to 4 3-4 and thence to 5, closing at the top. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A spectacular rally in French francs which advanced 20 points to around 4.36 cents on the announcement that the French government was taking energetic measures to stem the decline through the use of a Morgan credit, overshadowed all other developments in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling advanced 1-8 cent to a new high on the current movement at $4.84 5-8. Other European rates moved within rather narrow and irregular limits.

CLOUDY, COOLER TODAY; FAIR TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

1784 1925

NORWICH, CONN., TUESDAY, OCT. 27, 1925

12.

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Tuesday, Oct. 27, 1925

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The northeastern storm is now central north of New Foundland and the disturbance that was over Nebraska Sunday night has moved eastward to Lake Erie.

The disturbance over Lake Erie will move eastward and it will be attended by light local rains or snows Tuesday in the north Atlantic states. Otherwise mostly fair weather will prevail Tuesday and Wednesday east of the Mississippi river, although snow flurries will likely continue in the lower lake region through Wednesday.

The temperature will be lower in practically all sections east of the Mississippi river Tuesday and in the Atlantic states Tuesday night.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh westerly, possibly strong over south portion and mostly overcast weather Tuesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh west and northwest, and generally fair Tuesday.

Forecast

For Southern New England: Mostly cloudy and somewhat colder, possibly light local rains Tuesday; Wednesday generally fair.

Observations.

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature barometric changes Monday:

	Ther.	Bar.
7 a. m.	47	29.90
12 m.	55	29.90
6 p. m.	46	29.90

Highest 55; lowest 46.

Comparisons

Predictions for Monday: Fair and colder.

Monday's weather: Fair, not much change in temperature.

APPRAISERS MAKE $2,100 PRICE FOR FOOTE FARM

An appraisal of $2,100 in condemnation proceedings on the Frank J. Foote farm in Montville was handed down Monday by the commission of three, Andrew B. Davies of this city, P. Ambrose Sullivan and Dan D. Home of Montville, which was recently appointed by Judge Allyn L. Brown to set a value on the farm which is wanted by the state park and forest commission as an addition to the Fort Shantok park site, which has been bought by the state commission. The finding was filed Monday with the clerk of the superior court.

The Foote farm is a 20 acre tract which lies south of the Shantok park and is between the Massapeag road and the Thames river. The owner had been offered $1,000 by the state commission but his price was $4,000.

BACKUS HOSPITAL MEETS STANDARDIZATION TESTS

Announcement was made in Philadelphia Monday at the international congress of surgeons and hospital people that 1,564 hospitals out of 2,395 in the United States and Canada had met the requirements of hospital standarization and that in Connecticut 24 out of 29 hospitals had qualified.

Included among the Connecticut hospitals are the Backus hospital of this city, the Home Memorial and the Lawrence Memorial hospitals in New London.

The hospitals whose names appear on the approved list are those recognized as fulfilling the fundamental requirements for good service to the patient, as assured through five points, efficient staff organization, adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities, trained personnel, complete case records, periodic check-up or medical audit of the clinical work of the hospital.

NINANTIC CASE TRIED BEFORE JUDGE LIBBY IN COMMON PLEAS

Trial of a suit over disputed ownership of property at Niantic was heard Monday at New London in the common pleas court by Judge Arthur F. Libby of this city, who sat in place of Judge C. B. Waller who was disqualified from hearing this case. Judge Libby reserved decision upon conclusion of the trial in which Gustaf R. Ribbinette of Niantic is plaintiff against Edward T. Proctor and others of Niantic. The plaintiff seeks to evict the defendants from certain property which he claims to own.

The suit arose over the purchase of a strip of land near the draw bridge, which the plaintiff claims to have bought from Senator Fred A. Beckwith, and from which Proctor refused to move his fish market, saying that the land in question belonged to the state, according to testimony in court Monday morning.

Hibbinette stated that after he received a deed of the property, Proctor at first said he would vacate but never did. When the plaintiff moved certain things upon the land, a row ensued in which Hibbinette received a blow on the nose, the witness said. Later the plaintiff, according to his testimony, purchased from New London county another piece of the land, where the abutment to the old bridge stands, giving him title to the whole strip. The plaintiff has for some time been engaged in the seafood and lobster business near the bridge.

Among the witnesses in the case was George K. Crandall, architect who exhibited a blue print of the land in question. Senator Beckwith and the plaintiff both testified.

FORECLOSURE GRANTED ON PROPERTY IN NEW LONDON

Judge Arthur F. Libby of this city, disposed of a number of matters in the court of common pleas at New London taking the place of Judge C. B. Waller on the bench. Several cases were continued and a number went off the list.

Judgment by foreclosure for $1,227.20 with the limitation of time set for the first Monday in December was rendered in the case of the Mariners Savings bank of New London against Ida M. Anderson and others also of that city. The bank held a mortgage of $1,050 on the property owned by the defendants at 73 Hempstead street. There were taxes of $378.30 due besides interest on the mortgage amounting to $167.30. Insurance premium of $9.90 had also been paid by the bank. James R. May, local realtor, valued the property at $1,800.

Leave to amend the judgment was granted in the case of Ida Getzoff against Samuel Rosenfeld and wife.

One week in which to file a reply was given in the case of Joseph A. Mono, Jr. against Edward H. Suessmuth.

Disclosure of defense was ordered within one week in the case of Harry J. Schatz against Edna Schaler and others.

Disclosure of defense within 10 days of judgment was ordered in the case of Alexander H. Manes against Max Sternlieb.

Judgment upon the filing of a sworn bill of particulars was decided in the case of Cummings & Ring, Norwich undertakers, against William Clifford.

Disclosure of defense within one week or judgment was ordered in the case of Ernest J. Swanson against Daniel J. Lucy.

Judgment for $133.39 was rendered in the case of The Pepe-Maisano Co. against Joseph Fezzello.

The following cases were continued until next motion list:

Sam Pokutny and others against Andrew Gollas and others; permission to file amended complaint.

The Bankers Trust Co., against Eneva Barber; judgment for failure to plead.

John Siedel against Arthur Mericks; bonds for costs.

Leonard E. Dunn against Timothy Ahern; bond for costs.

The following cases went off:

Thomas W. Allyn against Edmund B. Lewis; default for failure to plead.

Max Snitkin against John E. Nelson; judgment by default hearing in damages.

Merchants Protective association against Fisher Florist Co.; disclosure of defense or judgment.

Waterman & Wolfe against Mary J. Rogers; argument of demurrer.

George Greenberger against Rosa DeLuca; disclosure of defense or judgment.

SUBMARINE BASE EXPECTS THOUSANDS OF VISITORS

The Navy day exercises at the Sub. Base, Groton today (Tues.) are expected to attract thousands of visitors, acto attract thousands of visitors, according to indications Monday as the base officials completed their plans for the day's observance. From o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, the base officers and men will be "at home" to all visitors, and boats will leave the municipal wharf at New London and the base wharf at half hour intervals during those hours for the purpose of accommodating visitors. Most of the submarines and other craft at the base have been ordered to other New England ports for participation in the Navy day programs at those places, but the submarine N-2 and the submarine mother ship Bushnell have been retained at the base and visitors will be allowed to make a thorough inspection of both.

Other features that the public is invited to attend are the diving exhibition, the sound school, the gyro department, and the machine shop. Experienced officers will be stationed in each department and will be pleased to answer as many questions as interested visitors care to ask.

Submarines S-10 and S-13, under command of Lieut. Commander F. P. Thomas, skipper of the 13, left the base on Saturday afternoon for New Bedford, where they will be open to public inspection on Navy Day. The S-18 and S-20 left Friday for Portland, Me.; the Cachalot and the submarine S-19 left the base Monday morning for Gloucester, Mass.; the S-1 and S-3 for Providence; the N-1 for New Haven, and the N-3 for Bridgeport. The Camden, flagship of Rear Admiral H. H Christy, head of the control force, will participate in Boston's observance of Navy Day. The S-50, sister ship of the ill-fated S-51, and the rescue ship Falcon, other ships stationed at the base, are prohibited from participation in Navy Day program, because of the fact that they are needed at the scene of the S-51 disaster where salvage operations are being carried on.

Pretty Hallowe'en Party

A Hallowe'en party was held Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Laycock in Occum for their two children, Elsie and Frank. About 15 of their young friends attended. The home was prettily decorated for the occasion and each of the guests received Hallowe'en favors. A lunch was served by Mrs. Laycock, assisted by Misses Lily Hargreaves and Myra Baldwin, the menu comprising sandwiches, cake, fruit, cocoa and ice cream, after which games were enjoyed by all the young folks. Among those present were Misses Elsie Laycock, Ruth Monte, Emma Chryzan, Catherine Topliff, Ruth Frohmander, Hilda Benker, Fannie Bianchette, Mabel Beausoleil, Clarise LeVallie, Sarah Oliver, Renee Bouchard and Frank Laycock, James Hood, Eugene Monty, Melvin Robinson.

DENIES DIVORCE ON GROUNDS OF DESERTION

No grounds for divorce for desertion are found by Judge Allyn L. Brown on the petition of Ethel Palmer Biesecker of New London for divorce from Milton D. Biesecker, who is janitor of the Y. M. C. A. in that city. She also asked for custody of the children, but Judge Brown denies the divorce. The couple were married June 30, 1916, and desertion was alleged since Sept. 19, 1921.

In his memorandum of decision, which has been filed with Clerk George F. Parsons of the superior court, Judge Brown says:

In this action wherein the plaintiff seeks a decree of divorce upon the grounds of desertion, even had she sustained the burden which is hers of proving that the defendant wilfully deserted her, she would not be entitled to a decree, for it is clear upon the evidence that at the time she claims her husband deserted her and for a long time prior thereto, she not only consented to his going, but was extremely anxious that he should go and never return. Under such circumstances her petition must be denied.

But the plaintiff has not sustained the burden proving that the defendant did desert her. I am satisfied upon the evidence that he not only did not desert her, but that further he at all times has desired to continue to maintain a home for his children with the plaintiff as his wife, as is indicated by this testimony in answer to the court's question: "Yes, I want my wife back now and I suppose I always will."

The plaintiff left the home which the defendant had provided for her, and though he repeatedly sought to have her return and waited there for several weeks in the hope that she would do so, she adhered to the determination which guided her in leaving him and refused to come back.

While apparently the defendant is a mild-mannered man, somewhat taciturn and of frugal habits, there is no credible evidence in the case to indicate that he ever was guilty of any misconduct of any kind towards either his wife or his children. The plaintiff's principal complaint seems to be that he wished to save a larger percentage of his earnings than she thought desirable. The fact that he had bought and paid for a home which was deeded to her, and that substantially all of his wages were turned over to her each week to pay the necessary family expenses, and to lay by the balance for the future, failed to obviate the difference of opinion which had arisen. Fortunately for the public weal, the existence of such a divergence of views between husband and wife has not been made a ground for divorce in Connecticut.

Counsel for the plaintiff in argument urged the court even though the divorce petition should be denied, to pass an order that the defendant pay a proper amount each week for the support of the two minor children. Assuring that the court has authority to pass such an order under such circumstances in my opinion no such order should be entered in this case.

No good reasons appear in evidence why the parties should not reestablish their home and take care of their children together and it would appear to be for the best interests of all concerned that they do so, but if the plaintiff persists in her refusal to adopt this cause, question as to who should have the custody of the children and who should provide for their support may better be determined in proceedings with relation thereto brought before the proper tribunal.

The petition is denied.

FORMER NORWICH MAN DIED IN SPRINGFIELD

William H. Trask, a former resident of Norwich, died very suddenly of a shock last Wednesday night in Springfield, Mass., where he resided. Mr. Trask was a gun maker by trade and at one time worked in the Marlin Rockwells shop. He formerly resided at 16 Cliff street, the home of the late Lowell H. Moffitt. He was a member of the Odd Fellows at Springfield, and worked in Smith and Wesson's gun shop. He was of a kind disposition and liked by everyone who knew him.

He is survived by a son and daughter, Donald and Bernice Trask, also two cousins, Mrs. Phillip Sachse of Rockville, Conn., and Mrs. A. Laubscha of Springfield, Mass. Funeral services were held Saturday at the undertakers in Springfield and the body was brought here for burial in Maplewood cemetery. Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church offered prayer at the grave. The floral pieces were numerous and beautiful.

PAID $114,000 IN LIFE INSURANCE CLAIMS

Life insurance payments in this city last year amounted to $114,000 according to a compilation made by the Insurance Press. The largest individual claim was for $10,870 on the death of Costello Lippitt. In New London the largest paid was $27,034 on the death of John R. Latham.

The largest payment in the state was paid on the death of Louis D. Stanton of Madison, it being $295,000.

In the United States and Canada there was paid for death claims, matured endowments, annuities, disability claims and additional accidental death benefits the sum of $832,098,775; for premium savings and for lapsed, surrendered and purchased policies, $649,845,269; United States Veterans' bureau, $36,842,706.

In 56 cities payments exceeded $1,000,000, Greater New York leading with $43,500,000, Chicago next with $23,500,000, and Philadelphia with $16,100,000. Boston had $6,902,000.

Apparently the largest payment in 1924 on a single life was the insurance of Henry M. Byllesby of Chicago, amounting to $1,442,732. Next came the insurance of Leopold Miller of Houston, Texas, which was $752,500. Samuel Marshall Evans of Essex Falls, N. J., carried $740,000. Olai B. Wilg of Mosinee, Wis., had $726,000; Julius C. Werner of New Orleans had $650,240; Julian B. Huff of Haverford, Penn., $600,000; Joseph E. Fletcher, Providence, R. I., $550,000; Louis Heilbroner, New York city, $505,000.

The $1,442,732 paid on the death of Mr. Byllesby was principally for the benefit of the company of which he was president.

Large policies were carried by women, $90,000 having been paid on the life of Katherine C. McBride of St. Louis.

NORWICH TOWN

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, the service was in charge of Rev. Charles E. Reeves, who preached from I Corinthians 13-13. The greatest of these is love. The theme was The Magnitude of Love.

The Young Peoples Christian Endeavor service in the evening under the auspices of the missionary committee, was in charge of Miss Jessie E. Hyde. Rev. (Miss) Lydia Hartig of Goshen, was the speaker. Her talk on Home Missions in the United States, was illustrated in an interesting way, the speaker relating experiences while on a trip in the interest of missions. Rev. Miss Hartig said: While your pastor is on a trip to Washington, I will take you in thought on a much longer trip the first stop to be Cleveland, Ohio. Here the local missionary in piloting me around the city, took me to the top of a building in one of the districts and pointed out various settlements of the different nationalities. In one direction was the Bohemian settlement of 10,000, population; in another, the Polish settlement of 3,000; while in still other directions were settlements which had large populations of Germans, Slavs, etc.

The speaker who travelled with several missionary secretaries, was the official photographer on the journey, having been assigned to take pictures of the different missions visited, as well as any thing of special interest.

Mention was made of the journey extending to the Detroit mission, South Dakota, North Dakota, the furthest objective westward, being Nebraska.

While en route to the last mentioned state from North Dakota, in crossing the prairie in company with Dr. Canfield, the speaker travelled through a sand storm for three hours. This was a most unpleasant experience, the result of severe wind.

When leaving on the trip which was during March, an ice storm was encountered in Cleveland. There was such a quantity of ice, even horses were unable to travel.

When reaching Missouri, the ice in the river was just breaking up. In order to get across it required four Indians and two rowboats, the Indians in the first boat clearing the way for the second boat. Upon reaching the other side, the speaker found she had learned one Indian word "Washta" meaning that is good, as told by the missionary who accompanied her, when hearing this exclamation by the Indians, because of having crossed the river safely in its perilous condition.

The return home was by the southern route, visiting at Virginia and several other places where there were missions, before reaching Connecticut.

In a certain town in this state a club of girls numbering about fifty, was organized by the speaker in the interests of sewing and cooking. Later, about the same number of boys enlisted and formed a separate club. At the end of five years both clubs are in existence and progressing.

The very interesting meeting was opened by a company of young men singing a hymn, and another hymn was sung at the conclusion of the address. Rev. Charles E. Reeves offered prayer and the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

"Our Work Through the Ministerial Boards" I Corinthians 9:1-15, is the topic assigned to the Congregational mid-week service for conference and prayer.

In the sermon at the First Methodist Episcopal church, at the Sunday morning worship, Rev. James B. Aldrich preached from John 4.23. But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in Spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship Him. The theme of the interesting sermon was Christ Talked With Individuals.

Mrs. James B. Aldrich was leader at the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening. The topic was Our New Americans: How They Help Us and How We Can Help Them. Deut. 10:12-22. Luke 7:1-5.

COUNCIL OF L. OF N. TO INVESTIGATE CAUSES OF GRECO-BULGAR CONFLICT

Action to Follow Compliance by Greece and Bulgaria With Demands Laid Down by the Council—Should Greece Defy the Mandate of the Council a Naval Blockade at Athens Might Precede the Severance of Economic and Financial Relations—The League's Executive Body Will Not Be Satiafied Until Its Military Agents Have Reported That All Warlike Measures Have Been Abandoned.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The council of the league of nations will send a commission to the Balkans to investigate the causes of the Greco-Bulgar conflict. This decision was reached at a secret session of the council tonight, but the program as outlined is contingent upon compliance by Greece and Bulgaria with the conditions of evacuation, and cessation of hostilities laid down by the council.

The duty of the commission will be, first, to determine the facts; second, determine the responsibility; third decide the question of idemnity, and, fourth, study means to prevent a recurrence of similar outbreaks in the future. A report of the findings will be submitted at the next session of the council at Geneva in December.

The time limit of twenty-four hours within which the Greek and Bulgarian governments must order the cessation of all fighting and return all troops to their respective frontiers expired at eight o'clock this evening, and the council will reconvene tomorrow morning to deliberate on the replies, which are confidently expected to embody compliance with the demand.

Nevertheless the league's executive body will not be satisfied until its military agents have duly reported that all troops have been in fact evacuated and all war-like measures abandoned. M. Briand, president of the council, again warned the representatives of the combatants today that reliable information had been received that the cannon were still thundering.

The indications are strong that France and Great Britain are acting as one in the present effort to increase the prestige and power of the league of nations and render it an effective instrument for peace. There are also signs that without directly blaming Greece, the members of the council are attaching the greatest importance to the fact that the Greek army invaded Bulgaria to a depth of eight kilometers (about five miles) while the Bulgarians, even on the say so of the Greeks themselves, encroached no more than 500 meters (about a third of a mile) upon Helenic territory.

As the severance of economic and financial relations, which the covenant authorizes against a warring nation, would require too long a time to put in operation, there is new insistence in league circles tonight that the council might order a naval blockade of Athens, should the Greek government defy the council's mandate.

Continuing today to blame the other country for starting the Balkan war, both Greek and Bulgarian representatives told the council that they wanted reparations. M. Carapanos, for Greece, insisted that the real reason why Bulgaria was having trouble with her neighbors was that she had been unable to comply with the disarmament clauses of the treaty of Neuilly, which made it possible for roving bands of irregulars to provoke conflicts.

He denied that Greece had committed hostile acts "likely to lead to a rupture" within the meaning of the covenant because the Greek troops had merely acted on the defensive.

The Bulgarian spokesman characterized the Greek advance as an unjustifiable aggression, particularly unfortunate and untimely at the moment the Locarno security negotiations had been crowned with victory, and Europe had entered upon an era of tranquility.

Evacuation of Damascus

BEIRUT, Syria, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The evacuation of women and children from Damascus under instructions from the French generas staff has begun and the situation continues precarious. Two regiments of cavalry from Morocco are expected here within the present week. Unrest was general throughout the country surrounding Damascus and Druse tribesmen are very active. The French authorities are understood to have asked Paris for additional reinforcements if the country is to be restored to law and order.

SURGEONS TO CURTAIL USE OF KNIFE IN OPERATIONS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A movement that may result in the abolition of the use of the knife in all minor and some major operations was started at today's session of the 15th annual congress of the American College of surgeons.

The board of regents of the college decided to inaugurate at the centennial of the birth of Lord Lister, originator of antiseptic and germicidal surgery, next April, a campaign of research and propaganda for the development and more universal use of those germicides which attack diseased cells in the body without destroying healthy tissues. The board resolved that the use of such germicides instead of the knife had already been amply justified, and also that the profession should know more about the new technique

If a man today has an internal abscess, speakers said, the only treatment is the knife. It was pointed out that a germicide had been discovered which would destroy the abscess cells and leave the living tissue unhurt.

Dr. J. Ralston Wells of the Philadelphia general hospital, led the discussion at the hospital standardization conference and spoke on the administration of anesthetics in ear, nose and throat operations. He urged that great care be exercised in the administration of the newer forms of anesthesia, because they were vastly more dangerous than ether and should never be administered by an inexperienced anesthetist.

Dr. Floyd T. Romberger, of Lafayette, Ind., speaking at a joint session of the Eastern society and the Mid-Western society of Anesthetists said that patients who object to administration of an anesthetic are moved by an unfounded fear.

"The proportion of deaths among persons taking ether," he said, "is one to every 7,700."

NEW OPPORTUNITY FOR GRAMMAR SCHOOL BOYS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—A plan involving a $250,000 scholarship loan fund was announced today by the Curtis Publishing company "for the purpose of developing leaders from grammar school boys."

The money will be loaned to boy, who, in their sales and the publishers and delivery work for the publishing company, prove that they have the requisite qualities for leadership. Individual loans up to $1500 will be made to these boys in order that they may complete their education by attending colleges and universities. The money is to be returned when the boys begin to earn their own way after graduation.

Approximately 40,000 boys in all parts of the country come under the plan.

SCORE OF DEATHS CAUSED BY DEFECT IN STEEL RAIL

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 27.—(AP)—An invisible defect in a 96 pound steel rail tonight was held responsible for the loss of a score of lives and injury to more than 50 other persons when the Sunny Land, St. Louis and San Francisco passenger train—one of the fastest and best equipped trains operating in the south—was derailed early today near Victoria, Miss., 53 miles south of Memphis, and smashed down a 25-foot embankment.

Four Pullman sleepers, a chair car a combination negro coach and smoker with the baggage, express and mail cars hurtled down the embankment and into a ravine, telescoped and pounded by the impact of a mass of tangled wreckage.

Tonight wrecking crews were still clearing away the debris.

WOMAN ATTEMPTED SUICIDE BY HANGING

DANBURY, Oct. 27—(A. P.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Ford, of Danbury, attempted to commit suicide by hanging in the Danbury jail here this afternoon after she had been sentenced to the state farm for women in Norwich.

Deputy Jailer Baker instead of locking the woman in a cell, allowed her the freedom of the corridor. Shortly before the special session of the superior court had convened, a woman visitor at the jail discovered the woman's unconscious form dangling from the railing of the steps leading to the second floor. She had secured a piece of cord and after tying one end about her neck and the other about the railing, rolled off the steps.

MAMMOTH MOOSE KILLED BY HUNTER FROM PUTNAM

FREDERICTON, New Brunswick, Oct. 27.—(AP)—E. C. Rogers, of Putnam, Conn., has secured the largest moose head taken out of New Brunswick forests during the 1925 hunting season. The antlers had a spread of 64 inches.

Mr. Rogers obtained his trophy in the Bald mountain district on the Miramichi, where he was hunting with J. W. Thompson of Terre Haute, Ind. Mr. Thompson also shot a fine bull moose and a bear.

EMBELEM AS BIRTHMARK HAS TURKISH NATIONAL

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 27—(A. P.)—Devout and patriotic Turks are making pilgrimages to the home on the Bosphorus of the poor peasant couple to whom has been born a son with a birthmark on his right leg said to resemble Turkey's national emblem, the star and crescent. Believers say this is a certain sign of future greatness. The phenomena has also excited interest in the Turkish medical world.

TESTIMONY BY THIRD MATE OF STEAMER CITY OF ROME

BOSTON, Oct. 27. (AP)—The sudden flashing of a red light was the first intimation given the officers on the bridge of the steamer City of Rome that she was in imminent danger of colliding with the Submarine S-51 on the night of Sept. 25, last, Timothy L. Dreyer of Savannah, Ga., third officer of the steamer, told the naval board of inquiry here today. The board, which is investigating the collision which led to the sinking of the submarine off Block Island with the loss of 33 lives, at the resumed hearing today heard stories of the events leading to, and following the collision from the steamer's first engineer, first officer, third engineer, second officer and third officer.

Captain John H. Diehl of the City of Rome and three members of the crew, are to be called to testify before the board tomorrow. The board has already heard the testimony of the steamer's radio operator, the three surviving members of the submarine's crew, and others.

Third Mate Dryer was standing his watch on the bridge of the steamer when the disaster occurred.

He said that for about 20 minutes or more a single white light, which he took to be a light on a Coast Guard patrol boat or other small craft, was visible "about four points" on the starboard of the City of Rome. The bearing of the light had apparently held steady, he said, but the type of craft and its course could not be determined although Captain Diehl was in the pilot house with binoculars. Dreyer had estimated the distance of the light at three miles.

Dreyer explained that at the time he was at the helm, replacing the quarter-master, who had left the wheel temporarily. At length, he said, Captain Diehl told him to pull over to starboard. He swung the wheel one revolution, he said, when the Captain suddenly ordered:

"Port, hard aport. The fellow is showing a red light."

The third mate said that he saw the red light at the same instant, that the captain rung the engineroom telegraph for full speed astern and blew a series of blasts on the whistle. The collision followed just afterward, he said.

CHILDREN BENEFICIARIES OF A WEALTHY NEGRO

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Oct. 27. (AP)—The school children whose pennies spent in candy store had formed the basis of his fortune were the beneficiaries of the estate of more than $100,000 left by John W. Underhill, aged negro, by his will filed for probate today.

Underhill, who made a fortune in real estate, lived in a two-room shack until his death. His money was left to the local school board with the instruction, "Spend it so that the children will enjoy the fruits of my labor."

IMPORTING GERMAN COAL TO RELIEVE SHORTAGE IN MAINE

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 27. (AP)—A cargo of 4,000 tons of German coal, said to be the first to be imported into this country since the war, is due to arrive here in about five weeks, it was announced today by local dealers, who are seeking to relieve the fuel shortage in Maine. The coal will come in three sizes, stove, egg and nut, and will be priced about the same as Welsh coal.

RAILROADS TO PREVENT THE SHIPMENT OF BEER

CHICAGO, Oct. 27. (AP)—Co-operation of the railroads in preventing shipments of beer and liquor into Chicago—has been promised dry enforcement authorities, Edwin Olson, federal district attorney, announced today. The prohibition officials have shown the railroads that certain employes were involved in illegal shipments and that now the purpose of the beer investigation had been accomplished, he added. No high railroad officials would be involved.

The district attorney has spent two days questioning railroad employes, city officials and policemen preliminary to a federal grand jury investigation.

Chief of Police Collins is co-operating with the federal government in its attempt to break up the $9,000,000-a-year beer business one syndicate is reported to be doing.

"If any evidence against a policeman is revealed, he will be suspended immediately."

E. C. Yellowley, chief prohibition director, announced that permits for liquor transportation would be revoked wherever it could be shown that the railroads had violated provisions of the permits.

Captain Patrick Harding of the Chicago police was questioned today after railroad employes had implicated several police officials. Captain Harding was understood to have denied being involved as there are no railroad stations or yards in the district he commands.

Harding was the first of ten Captains to be called.

BANDITS WERE FOILED BY A WOMAN'S SCREAMS

NEW YORK, Oct. 27. (AP)—For the second time within 24 hours a woman's screams today proved to be a weapon potent enough to rout payroll bandits and prevent the addition of a robbery to a day's crime record which included two violent deaths, a shooting and the arrest of seven alleged criminals.

Martha Wendt, bookkeeper and cashier of the Boal's Rolls company, leaving her office with a $1,009 payroll, was confronted by two men, one armed. Her screams brought 35 employes from the office and sent the robbers in full flight to the roof of the building. With the danger over, Miss Wendt promptly fainted.

Her feat was duplicated yesterday when a girl cashier thrust a payroll in a safe, screamed an fainted when three gunmen entered the office where she was employed.

SOLD GERMAN WAR BONDS FOR $22.80 THAT COST $22,500

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 27—(A. P.)—In 1916, when the war between Germany and the allies was being waged, Dr Frank J. Erbe, prominent Waterbury dentist, bought German war bonds for $22,500. After the war they sold for precisely $22.80, or $160 for one million marks

The Z. and F. Assets Realization corporation, New York city, represented by Attorney Raymond Hackett, Stamford, brought suit against Dr. Erbe on a note he gave for part of the purchase price of the bonds, which he put up for collateral.

Judge Edwin Thomas, in the United State district court, New Haven, this week directed a jury to return a verdict for $16,701 in favor of the Z. and F. corporation to be paid by Dr. Erbe for the $22,500 German war bonds which dwindled in value to $22.80.

Failure of Motors Forced Plane Down

Miss Essex, Commercial Plane, Badly Damaged at Sekonk, Mass. Six Occupants Considerably Shaken Up.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 27. —(AP)—The large commercial airplane, Miss Essex, conveying an automobile to Boston, was considerably damaged and its six occupants including the occupants, including the pilot, Lieut. George R. Pond, shaken up when it was forced to land in a field in Sekonk, Mass., near here late this afternoon. The plane left Hartford at 3:45 o'clock and all went well until it was flying over Sekonk when both motors failed to function. A wing and a landing wheel on the plane were broken.

A broken gas or air line was later said to have caused the forced landing. Both engines had recently been overhauled in New York, and were said to be working well. The altitude of the plane at the time the engines stopped was 2250 or 2500 feet, according to Pilot Pond, who despite the fact that he has flown almost daily during the past ten years, has not had to make a similar forced landing since 1919. Pond, a few years ago, astonished the aviation world with a Boston-New York flight of one hour, twenty minutes.

The Miss Essex weighs eight tons, and her cabin is 14 feet wide. When she started to Boston from Brainard field, Hartford, this afternoon, the Miss Essex narrowly escaped a crash in diving under two high tension wires across the river. An effort will be made to reconstruct the plane on the field where it fell.

CENTER OF ATTRACTION AT HARTFORD AIR MEET

HARTFORD, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Miss Essex, huge Remington-Burnelli plane, was the center of attraction at the Hartford air meet last Saturday, immediately after the end of the meet when more than 5,000 people walked through the ship viewing its spacious cabin and "flying automobile sales room."

The plane arrived here Saturday morning shortly before noon and was staked at the north end of the field near the government hangars. It did not make a flight when the other ships took off for the aerial parade at the opening of the meet. The watchman in charge of the ship said at the time that he did not expect to make any flights until the plane left Boston.

Rain prevented the ship from leaving here Sunday. Monday, after a trial flight over the city with four Hartford people as passengers, the plane took off for Boston, but after reaching the Massachusetts state line returned to Brainard field.

A leak in the water pump of one of the motors was given by Lieutenant Pond as the reason for the ship's return. He said Monday night that he did not want to start on the trip, as the pump had caused considerable trouble on the way here from Mitchell field Saturday, but others in the party thought it best to reach Boston on schedule time.

NAVY DAY WAS OBSERVED THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—(A. P.)—The 150th anniversary of the navy was observed throughout the country today with special exercises at which appeals were made for public support of the service and its spirit and traditions were extolled by numerous speakers.

Falling upon the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, vigorous exponent of an efficient navy, the service celebrated Navy day by being "at home" to the public, with its ships at a score of ports on all coasts in full dress and its yards and other establishments thrown open to inspection.

At civic meetings and over the radio, addresses were made by Secretary Wilbur, high navy officers and prominent civilians outlining the achievements of the service and beseeching the nation's continued support. The aircraft controversy also occupied a prominent place in some of the speeches, Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired, president of the navy general board, at Philadelphia, and Rear Admiral William A. Moffettbn chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, at Des Moines, Iowa, especially contending for retention of aviation as a branch of the navy and opposing a separate air force as advocated by Col. William M. Mitchell.

Navy heroes of the past were not forgotten, the statues of John Paul Jones and Commodore John Barry of revolutionary fame, together with those of Admirals Farragut and Dupont in Washington being decorated with wreaths. At Oyster Bay, L. I., a wreath was placed on the grave of Theodore Roosevelt by Captain Adolphus Andrews, senior naval aide to President Coolidge and commander of the president's yacht Mayflower.

The army observed the day as a compliment to the navy all of its officers appearing in uniform instead of the civilian clothing.

The principal ceremony in Washington was an assembly in front of the navy department at noon addressed by Admiral E. W. Eberle chief of naval operations, and an aircraft demonstration took place later at the Anacostia air station.

When he entered the woods Sunday Newsome was clad only in ordinary attire and since that time snow, rain and cold weather have made conditions unfavorable.

New Plan to Wipe Out Liquor Traffic

Whether It Involves Sacramental or Sacrilegious Liquors — Declaration by Brigadier General Andrews.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Announcing that his purpose is to wipe out all traffic in liquor, Brigadier-General Lincoln C. Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, today asserted that the people and congress, by permitting the sale for profit of sacramental wine and medicinal whiskey, "placed upon government agencies an almost impossible enforcement task."

His statement was made druing an address at the closing session of the New York Pharmaceutical conference, after Dr. Jacob Diner, president of the conference, asked him what stand he would probably take with regard to a resolution presented at the meeting calling upon congress to relieve druggists of responsibility for liquor distribution.

Questioned directly by reporters as to whether he intends to abolish sacramental wines, he answered, "well, it may come to that. It is one of the chief sources of bootlegging. I will devote special attention to sacramental wines, and to the manufacture of industrial alcohol."

WHY $100 BILLS RAINED DOWN ON BOY IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Fleeting wealth rained down on 16 year old Louis de Lucca today. As he hugged close to the wall of a building on State street to dodge the drops of a lively shower a hundred dollar bill floated down and landed at his feet. Scarcely able to believe his eyes, he picked it up and as he did so he saw other bills lying on the pavement.

Louis had just picked them all up and counted them, finding the total to be $1500, when two men climbed down the fire escape of the building, ran up to him and demanded the money. Not daring to do otherwise, the boy gave up the treasure. The men asked for his name and address and told him that "there may be a reward."

The men climbed back up the fire escape, and Louis went sadly on his way. When he told his friends about it, they suggested that perhaps the men weren't the real owners of the money and that he ought to tell the police about it.

Louis followed their advice. At the police station, he learned that while a police squad was raiding a gambling establishment in the building one of the gamblers had thrown the $1,500 out of the window. The men who recovered it from Louis were police officers. The police also confiscated $7900 found on the tables and arrested four men.

LAMONT WAS ARRESTED IN A REMOTE HUNTING CAMP

BOSTON, Oct. 27—James S. Lamont, president of the defunct brokerage firm of George F. Redmond and Company, Inc., who was arrested Saturday in a remote hunting camp in New Hampshire as a fugitive from justice, was arraigned in federal district court late today on an indictment charging conspiracy to conceal $200,000 assets from trustees in bankruptcy. He was committed to jail in default of $25,000 bail.

Lamont was transferred from New Hampshire today on an order granted by United States District Judge Lowell, sitting at Portsmouth, N. H. G. F. Redmond, treasurer of the bankrupt company Mrs. Redmond and Mrs. Lamont are awaiting trial on the conspiracy charge. Redmond is in East Cambridge jail in default of $25,000 bail but the two women are at liberty on bonds.

Both Redmond and Lamont have been convicted of using the mails to defraud in connection with their plan for selling stocks on the partial payment plan.

JUDGES TO GO TO PORTO RICO TO HEAR ARGUMENTS

BOSTON, Oct. 27—A new precedent in the judicial history of the United States will be established when the federal circuit court of appeals for this circuit, consisting of three judges, will visit Porto Rico early in January for the purpose of hearing arguments in appealed cases which have accumulated during the recent months. It will be the first time a United States court has journeyed to one of the insular possessions in its official capacity federal officers said.

Porto Rico is in the first judicial district which includes as well all the New England states with the exception of Connecticut, that state being in the second or New York district. In the past cases appealed from the United States district court of Porto Rico have been heard in Boston, but owing to increasing volume of litigation, the court will now sit in San Juan. Authority for the trip was given by congress some months ago.

MAY ASK PAINLEVE TO FORM THE NEW FRENCH CABINET

A Political Crisis Resulting in Fall of the Herriot Cabinet Was Due to the M. Caillaux's Resistance to a Capital Levy—Painleve Would Have the Support of Herriot—Probable That M. Briand Will Be Asked to Remain as Minister of Foreign Affairs—President Doumergue is Hurrying the Formalities Incident to the Formation of the New Government.

PARIS, Oct. 27—(A. P.)—M. Painleve's ministry, which was constituted April 16 last, and took up the administration of France's complicated affairs to succeed the Herriot cabinet, ended its carer today, when the premier submitted his resignation and that of his colleagues to President Doumergue.

The fall of the ministry was due to M. Caillaux's financial policy, his resistance to a capital levy, to which M. Painleve rallied after the radical convention at Nice had adopted a resolution favoring it, and one of the most difficult political crises in its history now faces the third republic.

President Doumergue has the task of picking a man to form a new government without a reliable majority to support it. The president hurried formalities incident to the formation of the new cabinet, conferring this afternoon with most of the persons usually consulted in a cabinet crisis and dwelling chiefly on the financial situation in his talks.

M. Caillaux was the first to be received by M. Doumergue after the cabinet resigned—a most unusual procedure. The minister of finance, however, was not summoned for the purpose of consulting with him regarding the new ministry, he was received at his own request taking with him a voluminous file of documents.

The presidents of the senate and chamber, M. DeSelves and M. Herriot, and the chairmen of the financial commissions of the senate and chamber were later called before the president and questioned by him regarding financial situations, and all expressed hope that the situation would be quickly cleared.

The president will see M. Cazals, president of the radical group, tomorrow morning, after which it is expected he will summon the man chosen to form the new government. The general impression tonight is that it will be M. Painleve.

The premier, in the new combination, will likely have the collaboration or active support of M. Herriot, and M. Briand will probably be asked to remain as minister of foreign affairs.

When inquiries were made this evening about his health, M. Briand responded, "there is nothing the matter with me but a nosebleed, which was insignificant, but it might be regarded as an invitation to rest."

The meetings held by the different political groups of the chamber this afternoon developed a wide divergency of views as to the solution of the crisis and showing that the new cabinet, however constituted, will have to manoeuvre delicately to find a majority. There was much talk of a political stalemate, which would require dissolution of the chamber and new elections in order to bring out a majority to support a stable government. The socialists are charged by other groups with manoeuvering to force new elections under the present portional representation system, in the hope of gaining enough seats in the chamber to make them the predominant group and enable them to take power. They are now numerically the second party in the lower house with 105 seats, as compared with 146 for the radicals and 104 for the national bloc. They count upon electing 180 members if new elections occur under the present system.

WHITE STAR LINER CELTIC FELT EFFECTS OF STORM

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The effects of heavy storms on her Atlantic passage were felt by the White Star liner Celtic today when she lost a propeller blade as she backed out of her pier here to continue the voyage to New York. Several hundred passengers for New York were sent forward tonight by special train.

The Celtic put in here 36 hours late to discharge passengers after rough passage from Liverpool and Queenstown which left the vessel apparently undamaged. Another overdue arrival was the Italian liner Leonardo da Vinci from Mediterranean ports, due three days ago. The Conard liner Scythia, due Sunday, will dock here tomorrow.

After landing 700 passengers at Boston, the Celtic left for New York, but within a few feet of the wharf and about to make the turn to head down the harbor, dropped the starboard propeller. She was brought back to the pier with the aid of tugs and a diver later located the missing propeller which will be raised tomorrow. The steamship will go into drydock at the navy yard for the necessary repairs which, it was said, would require several days. A special train left for New York tonight with the 450 passengers destined for that city.

THREE MEMBERS OF CREW OF SCHOONER MISSING

ROCKLAND Me., Oct. 27—With three members of her crew missing the schoner J. O. Webster, St. Johns, N. B. for Miami, Fla. was towed into harbor here tonight by the coast guard cutter Red Wing which found the vessel today disabled about 100 miles northeast of Peaked Hill bar. The missing men are Stanley Bradford, son of the captain of the schooner, and Fred Murray and Clarence Jesterson, seamen both of Penfield, N. B.

Captain Beryn Bradford reported that his son was washed overboard during a storm while attempting to tie up a loose sail. The two seamen went to his aid in a lifeboat and never were seen again. The skipper expressed belief that the men were dashed ashore on the Cape Cod coast. The cutter Red Wing and a coast guard seaplane searched for them in vain today.

The schoner ran into the storm at midnight Saturday and was driven before the gale 48 hours, losing practically all her sails and part of its deckload of laths. The Red Wing found her drifting about helpless while searching off shore for other craft reported missing. The Webster is owned in Boston.

Members of the crew who survived are Captain Bradford, Mate Vincent Kendrick, St. John, N. B. and Peter Franklin New York, seaman.

WOMAN SENTENCED TO 15 YEARS FOR MANSLAUGHTER

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 27—(A. P.)—Mrs. Ruth A. Janisse, convicted of manslaughter in connection with the shooting to death last August of Clayton McMullin, Windsor motor car mechanic, today was sentenced to 15 years in Portsmouth penitentiary. She fainted when sentenced was imposed.

Mrs. Janisse, who, according to evidence in the trial, had been infatuated with McMullin, shot him in front of his house after he told her he was "through" with her. Her husband, who was present at the shooting, was at first charged with murder, but the charge was dismissed.

BOY BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN KIDNAPPED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—Police today failed in their search in the "Hell's Kitchen" district for the five-year-old Frank Mackin, who disappeared Sunday, and the belief grew that the boy has been kidnapped.

Two persons described a man whom they said they saw with the boy Monday. One was a small girl playmate of the boy. The descriptions tallied.

The mother has been prostrated since the disappearance, and her four-months-old child has been taken to a hospital suffering from malnutrition.

THRILLING RESCUE AT SEA OF 28 MEN AND A CAT

HOBOKEN, N. J., Oct. 27—(A. P.)—The United States liner President Harding poked her wave-scarred nose through the narrows today, four days late but hero of a thrilling sea rescue.

The ship bore safely to port 28 men and a cat, survivors of the foundered Italian freighter Ignazio Florio who were saved from the fury of the sea by the intrepid captain and crew of the American vessel.

A tugboat saw the President Harding first as she entered the harbor and whistled a hoarse salute. The ships of all lands in the harbor took up the chorus of congratulations and the liner's whistle, answering their blasts, was not stilled until she had docked.

Telling of an hour's lull in the storm which crippled the Ignazio Florio, Captain Grening of the President Harding said that only his miraculous calming of the seas made the rescue possible. For hours the liner had stood by the freighter, but until the abrupt subsiding of the storm Captain Grening was helpless in the face of the elements.

"It was a miracle," Captain Lauro of the Italian vessel agreed. But he also gave his rescuer his meed of praise. "Captain Grening is a real American hero. He did it for humanity."

For 24 hours the President Harding fought the waves to reach the distressed vessel which had broken its rudder and which was partly submerged and listing 30 degrees from its shifted cargo of grain which it was carrying from Montreal.

Althot h the Harding stood by the vessel, 50 foot waves long prevented a rescue.

"Nightfall overtook us and the lights on the Italian freighter were extinguished by the inrushing water. We played the searchlight on the vessel during the night and circled around her until dawn. All the time a terrific storm raged, and it was difficult to keep headway with the President Harding, and avoid a crash.

"Through a miracle the following morning the 85 mile gale subsided for about an hour, and our boats were manned and succeeded in reaching the virtually submerged vessel. A line was thrown from the freighter to the life boat, but the members of the crew were unable to slide down the line and were forced to drop into the water. We fished them out quickly as possible and took them aboard the President Harding."

The rescue was effected without loss of life. Even a cat, the pet of a German seaman tucked in his master's shirt, was saved.

The Italian vessel lost its second officer before the arrival of the Harding. He was washed overboard from the ship's bridge.

FOUR PERSONS HELD FOR IMPLICATION IN MURDER

JASPER, Ala., Oct. 27—William Dockery, his sister Eunice Dockery, Gilbert Emerson and Lee Couper, all of Payne's Bend, Walker county, were held in the Walker County jail today charged with the murder of Mrs. William Dockery, 23, and Lois Dockery, 3, wife and child of William Dockery.

Sheriff Kilgore said Eunice Dockery had confessed that her brother William struck his wife and child in the head with a pistol and threw them into the Warrior river Sunday midnight.

The girl said that the group had been boating and that the day ended in a "wild party". After a quarrel between William Dockery and Mrs. Dockery, Eunice Dockery told the sheriff, that her brother attacked his wife with a pistol and later threw her into the stream. He then threw his daughter overboard.

The bodies have not been recovered.

CLAIM POMFRET SCHOOL LOST—FEE $1,350 FOR 122 BOYS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 27—The opening day of the superior court session in this city, Tuesday was taken up entirely in hearing the case of Pomfret school vs. the Town of Pomfret, appeal from board of relief. Judge Edwin C. Dickenson of Hartford was on the bench. The attorneys were John F. Carpenter of Putnam and Arthur Howard of Hartford for the school and for the town, Attorney William A. King of this city assisted by his son, Attorney John H. King.

The school was assessed on the tax list for $134,000 and from this assessment the Pomfret school appealed to the superior court on the grounds that it is an academy and should therefor be exempt from taxation. The school further alleges that it is not a paying proposition.

The town of Pomfret claims that the Pomfret school is not in the status of an academy. The fee charged is $1,350 per year for each pupil and the allegations made by the town are that no pupil is admitted unless that amount is paid; yet the subjects taught are identical with those taught in any common school or academy. There are at present 122 students at the school, ranging in age from 12 years up and of this number only 17 are from Connecticut. The cost of the tuition and the selection of pupils by virtue of this cost, according to the town, causes the school to specialize to class and makes it distinctly a rich man's school. The town of Pomfret has no pupils attending that school, all being registered in the Putnam High school. The course at the Pomfret school is one of six years. According to the assessors of the town, if the school is granted an exception the taxpayers will have to bear an increase of 14 per cent in their annual taxes.

The case is of much importance as its outcome will establish whether or not a school charging a comparatively excessive fee is lawfully exempt from taxation in the town where it is located.

As against the valuation of the school placed by the assessors on October 31, 1923, the return of a sworn statement of the headmaster of the school, William Bench Olmsted, fixed the valuation at $15,655. His report as filed with the assessors listed three houses $2,000; a barn $500; garage, $1,000; other buildings $1,500; seventy acres of land, $2,800; four automobiles, $3,102; furniture, ect.

Headmaster Olmsted was the first witness called by Attorney Howard and he remained on the stand for some time. The school catalog was studied. The school was established in 1899 and Mr. Olmsted has been in charge since that time. In explaining the resources of the school, it was brought out that practically all of the buildings were gifts. Headmaster Olmsted stated that the school resources had met expenses up to the World war, or in 1914, when there had been a loss. The deficit for the last two years has been ten or twelve thousand dollars each year.

Headmaster Olmsted testified that in order to fully prepare a student for college a six year course was necessary, he claiming that the four year course in Connecticut high schools was insufficient. The teaching of some of the elementary studies of grammar school was one of the objections made by the board of relief and others, he said.

James P. Sharpe chairman of the board of assessors the next witness, explained that the school is a private one and that in placing valuation on the property the board believed that the action was a just one.

Several well known educators of this section of the state were called to the stand on behalf of the defense. These included Regional School Supervisor Leon T. Garrison, School Supervisor A. Wilson Greer and Egbert A. Case, principal of Windham High school and superintendent of the schools of the town of Windham.

They explained to the court that, in their opinion, a four year course in a secondary school is sufficient for a student to enter college. The method of preparing a student for advanced work after graduation from a grammar institution was reviewed.

Supervisor Garrison stated that his territory as regional supervisor includes many schools in Eastern Connecticut, including those of the town of Pomfret. Attorney John H. King inquired to some extent relative to the lists of subjects taught at the Pomfret school, including history, geography, arithmetic and spelling.

Supervisor Garrison stated that these studies were the same as taught in the common grammar schools of his territory from the fourth to the eighth grades.

Court adjourned at four o'clock. The attorneys in the case were ordered by Judge Dickenson to present arguments in writing at the session of court Thursday morning.

Snowdrift is such a rich creamy shortening that it makes biscuits so good that the supply always runs low. It doesn't make any difference whether you use Snowdrift in your own biscuit recipe or in this one.

SOUTHERN BISCUITS

6 Tablespoonfuls Snowdrift
3 Cupfuls Flour
6 Teaspoonfuls Baking Powder
¾ Teaspoonful Salt
1 Cupful Liquid, Milk or Water

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut Snowdrift into the flour with a knife. Add liquid to make a soft dough. Roll out on a slightly floured board to ⅜-inch thickness. Cut with a biscuit cutter. Put on a greased pan or baking sheet and bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. If sour milk is desired, add 1 teaspoonful soda and leave out 3 teaspoonfuls baking powder for above proportions.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Upwards of a score of the members of the Telephone Employes' association, representing the Danielson, Putnam and Moosup exchanges, made up a party that assembled in G. A. R. hall in the Keystone block Tuesday evening. The event was arranged that Miss Elizabeth Dunn of the business department of the Danielson exchange might be presented a chest of silver—and various other gifts. Refreshments were served and there were various diversions to make a very pleasant evening. Miss Dunn is leaving the employ of the Southern New England Telephone company at the end of the present month.

For the second time within a few weeks in this territory, a report has come to the police of an automobile being shot at, while traveling along a state highway. This time the report comes from Laird E. Winchell. He was driving his machine along the state highway between Wauregan and Danielson Monday afternoon when a bullet pinged against the windshield of his touring car and left its mark. Mr. Winchell stepped on the gas and drove rapidly into town to report the occurrence to the police.

Whether someone deliberately shot at Mr. Winchell's car or whether a spent bullet hit it may be only a matter of conjecture. This is the hunting season—and some hunters are notoriously careless with firearms—thoughtless of where the missles they fire may go and of the damage they may do. Yet, on the other hand, few hunters are out with other than shotguns as weapons. Few rifles are in use, though some are carried.

Nelson Marrotte reported a few weeks ago that his car had been fired at twice on a Sunday night while he was traveling along the state highway between Brooklyn and Wauregan, and showed bullet holes in his car to substantiate what he said.

While the Marrotte affair occurred at night the Winchell one was an afternoon occurrence. The average motorist will admit that it is not pleasant to have someone making a target of one's car, for any reason.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, of Brooklyn, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange has sent out notices pertaining to the special meeting of the organization to be held next Saturday at Grange hall in Canterbury.

A large class is expected for the fifth degree session, to be held in the forenoon for conferring the degree of Pomona. At the afternoon session the lecturer's program promises much entertainment. This session will be open to fourth degre members.

C. Palmer Chapman, master of the Rhode Island State grange, is to be the speaker of the afternoon. His subject will be The Value of Grange Influence. State Secretary Andrew Welton of Plymouth will be present to inspect the meeting.

Another feature of the afternoon session will be an illustrated travelogue presented by Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield.

Something was being done by the Connecticut company, at a point in Elmville Tuesday toward re-locating tracks that are, or have been in the way of the new layout for the concrete roadway under construction by the state.

The trolley people had a sizeable working force on hand, digging out a bank near the N. A. Jordan property, that the tracks may be moved over to the east, eliminating the prospect of one grade crossing.

While this was going on the road builders were putting down cement, working southward on the westerly side of the highway opposite what has been known as the Clayton Wright property.

It is anticipated that all of the cement will be down in three or four weeks. The road will be open to travel in all probability some time during December, though some detail work with the shoulders and such may remain to be done.

Rotary is assured for Danielson! Rotary, it may be said, is off to a splendid start here. The personnel of the baby of eastern Connecticut's Rotary clubs is such as to assure that it will be well worth while. The men who have gone into Rotary, that its ideals and ambitions may be introduced to Danielson, are good men. They are representative of various activities in life—and death, there being an undertaker among them. Which makes it unanimous!

At Monday evening's meeting of those who form the nucleus of the Danielson Rotary club the tentative board of officers and directors was approved and made official. There is a list of 26 men in the charter organization. The charter has been formally applied for and, without doubt, will be issued within a month.

In the meantime the prospective Rotarians here are enthusiastic and ready for action. A bit unofficially, they will meet Thursday and have a lunch together. Time will be found for discussing Rotary plans for Danielson and the organization meeting, at which the Putnam Rotary organization, as the parent club, will preside.

The Rotarians will go far and do much for Danielson. This is a healthy and safe prediction. Manufacturers, merchants, clerks, town officials, other officials, representatives of numerous activities are listed in the initial membership. While Rotary restricts its membership, it is anything but snobbish and gloriously free from pettiness and narrowness. Rotary will grow in Danielson. Any may its fold increase. It's international record is such as to make membership in it well worth while, something to be aspired to, something that promises good to the community, and that means good for all.

PUTNAM

The general citizens' committee for the memorial bridge dedication is to hold a meeting this (Wednesday) evening, in the chamber of commerce rooms. Thomas H. de Coudres is chairman of the committee.

A concert was given in the assembly hall of the new school house at Windham Center on Monday evening by the following Putnam artists: Mrs. Katherine Lown, piano; Miss Esther Rouse, violin and Wallace Smith, bass. The proceeds of the concert were for renovating the kitchen of the Congregational church at that place.

Jack Cronin, of Putnam seems to have been the outstanding luminary in the Boston college team in Saturday's game against Allegheny College, which resulted in a 14-7 score in favor of Boston. Jack is always sure of one enthusiastic rooter, Mrs. Jack, who makes her home in Putnam. There is also a younger rooter, who isn't old enough to understand the game yet, but is learning rapidly.

Mrs. Edith Cornell of Brooklyn, N. Y., has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ernest C. Morse of Seward street.

Mrs. Mary eKnyon of Grove street, widow of Marshall Kenyon a civil war veteran, is critically ill with pneumonia at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William A. Vaughn at Greenville, South Carolina. Her other daughter, Miss Sarah Kenyon, who is in charge of the infirmary at Pomfret school, has gone to the south to be with her mother.

The Putnam Checker Club has accepted an invitation of the Rhode Island Chess and Checker club and will send a team of twelve men to Providence, Saturday, November 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bixby, Miss Hazel Shay and Miss Ruth Perry motored from Bridgewater, Mass., and spent the week end with Miss Perry's parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Perry, of Grove street.

Leon T. Wilson, Jr., a student at Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., writes that he was not rooming in the dormitory destroyed by the recent fire so suffered no loss.

Automobiles driven by Silvio Le Francois of Danielson and Leo J. Dusseault of Fitchburg, Mass., met in a collision late Monday afternoon at the corner of South Meadow and Pomfret streets. None of the passengers of the cars were seriously injured, but a small child in the Fitchburg car was somewhat bruised. The cars were not badly damaged.

Lionel Lebeau, son of Adelard Lebeau, of Lee street, has finished his training at a school in North Carolina and is now a member of the U. S. Marine Band, station at at Paris Island, South Carolina.

Mrs. George F. Payne of South Main street has returned from a visit to her daughter, Miss Ella Payne at Phoenix, R. I.

Mrs. Mary Hurlburt and Miss Rachel Hurlburt have been the guests of relatives at Providence.

Frederick W. Heinriche has returned from New York and will spend the winter with Mr. and Mrs. William Gallup at Woodstock. Mr. and Mrs. Milward Crosby came with him for a visit of a few days.

Luis DeFlores of New York has been visiting his family in Pomfret.

There is to be a meeting of Pomfret Parent-Teachers' association in the A. O. H. hall Thursday evening of next week. Following the meeting there will be whist and dancing.

Miss Katherine Noyes of Pomfret is in Stamford, Conn., with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Noyes, who sails for England on October 31. Miss Katherine Noyes of Stamford, will accompany her aunt on the trip abroad; they expect to spend at least six months.

Daniel Williams and George Lajuenesse have been recent visitors in Providence.

Mrs. Joseph Rivard of Green street is serious ill with pneumonia at her home.

L. Berthiaume of this city is at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. He is resting comfortably.

John Pierson, an aged resident of Woodstock, died at the town farm on Friday from shock and general debility. He was buried from the Swedish church in Woodstock Monday afternoon and burial was in the Swedish cemetery, where his wife was buried some years ago. Mr. Pierson was born in Sweden, January 27, 1847 and came to this country many years ago. He was in the employ of the late Dr. G. A. Bowen of Woodstock for a long time. Several years ago he fell from an apple tree and received injuries from which he never fully recoverd.

Garde St. Therese and Garde Martial, of North Grosvenordale, have accepted an invitation to compete in a prize drilling contest at Webster, Mass., October 31.

Mrs. Joseph Cardinal of North Grosvenordale has been taken to a hospital at Worcester, where she will undergo a major operation.

Miss Ruth E. Maynard, who was called home by the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. Henry Maynard, has returned to her duties as a teacher at Goshen Hill, Leonard Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Cordier and Mr. and Mrs. Alferic Cordier have returned from a motor trip to Montreal and other points in Canada.

Miss Lovan Dixon, who has been spending the summer with Miss Elizabeth of Grove street, has returned to her home at Sturbridge, Mass.

Mrs. Richard Gibney and her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Monahan of Farrow street have returned from a visit with friends and relatives in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Larned of Providence were recent guests of Mr. Larned's mother, Mrs. John H. Larned.

Mrs. Thomas Willett of Willimantic has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ainley of Walnut street.

Fisher vice president, and L. H. Meilor, Jr., secretary and treasurer. The club will meet twice a month on the second and fourth Monday of each month. Right Rev. C. B. Brewster, bishop of the diocese; Right Rev. A. C. Acheson, suffragan and Rev. J. Eldred Brown of Norwich, archdeacon, were made honorary members.

DEATH OF JOHN OTIS FOX, A PROMINENT DEMOCRAT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 27—John Otis Fox, 63, whose critical illness was mentioned in yesterday's Bulletin, died at the Massachusetts General hospital, Boston, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. He had been ill about six weeks. Wednesday of last week he was taken to Boston and an operation was performed the next day, as the last hope held out by physicians of saving his life. He did not regain full consciousness after the operation and his death had been regarded as inevitable for the past three days.

Mr. Fox, was head of the Fox Lumber corporation of this city. It was established in 1840 by his father, John Otis Fox, and is now to be carried on by his son, who bears the same name.

Mr. Fox has long been prominent as one of the leading business men of the city. For years he was a director of the First National bank, was a trustee of the Day Kimball hospital and interested in various business activities.

As the leading democrat of this section he served two terms in the general assembly and in 1913 was appointed sheriff of Windham county by Governor Baldwin, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Preston B. Sibley, of Danielson. He was the democratic candidate at the election following and came within a few votes of defeating Charles A. Gates of Willimantic, the present sheriff. He was a member for six years of the state park commission. Mr. Fox was born in Woodstock, Dec 22, 1862. He married Jan. 23, 1882, Addie Isabel White, who survives him. There are also four children, Mrs. Gladys Packard, J. Otis Fox Jr., Edith and Hazel, all living here. They were with him at the time of his death.

Croup Relieved Without Dosing

Too much dosing is harmful to a child's delicate stomach. Often it lays the foundation for ill health in later life.

The next time a child seems croupy in the evening apply Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the arising vapors may be freely inhaled. This usually prevents a night attack.

If croup comes on without warning an application of Vicks usually brings relief in 15 minutes.

Vicks can be applied freely and often, even on the youngest child with perfect safety.

Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters held a Hallowe'en party Monday evening at the home of Miss S. K. Adams. Thirty-six thoroughly enjoyed the consummation of the plans so carefully made by Miss Grace Olin, assisted by Mrs. J. H. Tracy and Miss Mabel Wilcox. The room where the guests were seated was spooky enough, with witches, black cats, bats and half-moons peering out at every corner, and three real live ghosts, two awful witches and a gypsy cutting up screaming capers. Black and yellow festoons and yellow shaded lights provided a weird setting. Most of the guests at in the squawker chair on their arrival. Hallowe'en games made great fun. A crazy black cat had several more than nine tails pinned all over the wall, but Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst came the nearest to the cat, and Sadie Thompson was farthest away. A pin tray and Felix cat were the rewards. In guessing the seeds in a pumpkin, Sadie Thompson won first prize, a table mirror, and Mrs. G. Keene Gray carried the pumpkin home. In the Lucky Pup game, Mrs. Robert Robertson won the game and Beatrice Read received the consolation lantern. A wise owl contained one fortune, which was captured by Beatrice Read. Mrs. Ella Geer read two ghost stories, after which the ghosts presented her a ghost head containing a handkerchief. Miss M. A. Burdick, the leader, then opened the Lavender Band Box and Miss Mabel Wilcox read an original poem written by Miss Olin, which everyone applauded. The bank in the Band Box was found to contain nearly thirty dollars, the amount accumulated by the sale of the articles as it traveled among the members during the summer. The guests were invited into the next room, and found the ghosts behind a real picket fence, on which sat pumpkin moonshines, along with enormous black cats. Cornstalks loomed in the background, making an unique refreshment stand. The ghosts handed the pumpkins to the guests, and they were found to contain sandwiches, doughnuts, cheese and salted peanuts. Coffee was also served. The date was the leader's birthday, and she found a pair of silk stockings and a birthday book attached to her Jack O'Lantern favor.

The World Wide Guild girls held a Hallowe'en social in the Baptist vestry Monday evening, eighteen attending. Several games were played, Emma Dearnley winning the prize in the peanut hunt and Freda Sholes the consolation award. There was a boxing match, and a new-fashioned game of post-office. A ghost led the party through the Chamber to Horrors, where unaccountable spirits grabbed them. Bobbing for apples was a very messy performance. Sandwiches, pickles, doughnuts and cocoa were the refreshments. Florence Quimby was in charge. The decorations of pumpkins, cats, bats witches and crepe paper festoons was done by Kathleen Dearnley and Ellen Prior. Priscilla Scates and Verna Tarbox arranged the program. The girls were assisted by the councillor, Mrs. E. E. Scates.

In Judge Barry's town court Monday morning Joseph Ralli, of Plainfield was tried for driving while under the influence of liquor. Near Tadpole bridge he ran into a New Haven physician's automobile Sunday afternoon. He was fined $125 and costs, and Deputy Sheriff Dolan took him to Norwich jail.

Tuure Hannu was tried for driving without his registration. He paid the actual costs, $4.52. Both arrests were made by the deputy sheriff.

William Rogers of Moosup was arrested by Officer Verdard for driving to the left of the dummy on Main street. He was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $16.37.

Mr. and Mrs. John MaKaut enjoyed a family reunion with their children Monday. They were W. Leslie MaKaut, North Attleboro; J. Earle MaKaut, Detroit, Mich. and Mrs. James L. Jenks, Jr., of Medford Hillside, Mass., also Mr. and Mrs. George F. Perkins of Providence.

Mrs. Annie L. Frost of Poquetonuck is at the home of Raymond F. Cheney for a while.

Miss Mable Wilcox is visiting Mrs. Earl Frink in New London.

Radio fans will listen in on New Haven Thursday evening, from 8 to 9 o'clock and hear James Olson of this place broadcast in a Steinway concert. He will play on a 12-foot Steinway grand piano.

Mrs. Mose Lorunger has entered St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, to undergo another operation.

Borough Tax Collector Lionel Boucher was operated upon for appendicitis Tuesday at Backus hospital. He was resting as comfortably late Tuesday night as could be expected.

WARNING AGAINST REPEAL OF THE CAPITAL STOCK TAX

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—repeated appeals for repeal of the capital stock tax and permission for corporations to file returns as partners to file as corporations, which have been made to the house ways and means committee, during the public hearings it is conducting preparatory to the drafting of a new revenue bill, brought a warning today from under Secretary Winston, who pointed out that such changes would result in a considerable loss of revenue not provided for in the reduction program suggested by the treasury.

Neither Mr. Winston, nor A. W. Gregg, solicitor of the Internal Revenue Bureau, who also appeared before the committee today, voiced outright opposition to the proposals, but they expressed concern lest too great freedom be exercised in slashing rates and eliminating revenue sources.

Before taking up the administrative features of the law, the committee listened to another assault upon the special taxes by various interests. Pleas were entered for repeal of the levies on capital stocks boats, grain exchange brokers and bowling alley and billiard room proprietors. Repeal of the capital stock levy, which amounts to $1 on each $1,000, was urged by the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, their representatives holding, among other contentions, that it is a tax on property.

Joseph J. Klein, certified public accountant of New York, urged the committee to allow credits in refunds for losses sustained in 1920. The revenue laws of 1919 and 1921 allowed credit for losses, he pointed out, but in the 1921 act no provision was made to cover those sustained in 1920, when the major effect of post-war deflation was felt. He also recommended continuance of the earned income credit provision and elimination of the restriction on members of the board of appeals which prevents them from practicing before the board for two years after resignation.

MRS. LEIDY HAS FILED A SUIT FOR DIVORCE

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Josephine Pancoast Wedener Leidy, who startled her friends and relatives five years ago by eloping to Knoxville, Tenn., has filed a suit for divorce against her husband, Carter Randolph Leidy, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Leidy, is the daughter of Joseph E. Widener, multi-millionaire of Philadelphia.

The cause for the action was not made public.

LOWDEN JESSUP DENIED A DECREE OF DIVORCE

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 27—(A. P.)—Lowden Jessup, 51, of Norwalk, associated with the Consolidated Stock exchange, New York city, is denied a decree of divorce by decision of Judge John R. Booth filed in superior court this afternoon.

Married thirty years ago, Jessup asked for a divorce on the ground that Charline Skinner Jessup deserted him in November of 1920. Judge Booth says the "necessary elements of desertion do not exist," and dismisses his petition.

"The immediate cause of her leaving," says Judge Booth, "was his immoderate use of liquor and statements that he had no longer any fondness for her, but did care for other women." The court discussed Mrs. Jessup's willingness to return to her husband, and Jessup's declaration that he would provide her with a shelter but not live with her under the same roof.

The football team of the College of the City of New York went through the entire season of 1922 without a regular captain, an acting captain being appointed for each game.

$505 Less for a Richer 4-Door Sedan

Twentieth Century Sedan

Quality now talks Price

Motorcar buyers are coming to Chandler.

For Chandler has done the unusual. Chandler has further advanced the standards and ideals of modern body-building, and has simultaneously reduced prices.

This new price move follows closely upon the news of the record-breaking performance of Chandler's marvelous Pikes Peak Motor on the mountain after which it is named—the world's highest automobile climb.

In the annual Labor Day automobile race up the dizzy heights of Pikes Peak, 14,109 feet above the sea, Chandler won the event in the record time of 17 minutes, 48 2/5 seconds. The best previous record was 18 minutes, 15 seconds.

Winner of so many performance records, Chandler is now winning new hosts of friends with a phenomenal closed car.

It is the new Chandler Twentieth Century Sedan—a better, richer, 4-door Sedan priced less than a 2-door coach—a reduction of $505.

It is every inch and every pound an automobile of quality—a finer Chandler in all ways—beautified and enriched in body, refined and perfected in chassis—and marvelously powered by Chandler's great Pikes Peak Motor.

You'll like the new Chandler the moment you set eyes on it. Everybody does.

You'll like it still more when you recline in its cushions. Everybody does.

And when you drive it ten miles you'll want to drive it forever. Everybody does!

The same things hold true with all other Chandler models. With them all, quality now talks price. See them.

CUTTING THE TAXES

From the recommendations which are being made to the house ways and means committee at Washington, it is evident that there would be few, if any, federal taxes left if all the recommendations should be carried out.

There are those who are interested a the elimination of certain tax features. There is a personal interest involved in many of the suggestions, and while the removal of the taxes might mean the lifting of the tax burden, it is apparent that the country is not in a position at this time for the removal of all taxation.

There is an opportunity for the reduction of taxation and it is the purpose of the government to see that the taxpayer gets the benefit of this. It is to be realized that there is danger of going too far, since it would not be desirable to make such a huge cut that there would be a deficit forced in the treasury. That is of course where the matter would end if all the suggestions were adopted.

It is therefore a case where the committee must lend an ear to the suggestions as they are made and then exercise its judgment in regard to what it is advisable for the best interests of the country to do. The garment must be cut according to the cloth. It would most certainly be inadvisable to attempt to make such cuts at this time as would result in the boosting of taxes another year. What is desired is a steady reduction of taxes in keeping with the conditions that prevail. That means a businesslike revision of the revenue laws.

There are some reductions which are to be regarded as more justified than others at this time. Reductions must be made with full regard for the effects that will follow and as long as the country requires revenue from federal taxes both the committee and congress must weigh carefully the needs and direct their efforts to meeting them in the best manner possible. The country wants all the situation will stand but it doesn't want any reckless plunging for political purposes.

THE LEAGUE SCORES

When Paul Hymans of Belgium, and others, at the conference of the league of nations concerning the difficulty between Greece and Bulgaria, frankly intimated that the league's future was at stake, and declared that if the covenant was to mean anything in the future the pacification of Europe must be enforced now on any member of the league who seemed to be evading obligations, he properly sensed the situation.

It is a case where the league is looked to to do what is necessary to prevent war and the clash between the Balkan nations is just the kind that the league is expected to deal with. It was therefore a case where the league must act, act promptly and effectively. The results indicate that there was full appreciation of the warning which Paul Hymans gave, for if the league was powerless to deal with such a matter between two such small nations it certainly could not be expected to handle even more important ones where larger nations are concerned. It was just such a test case as the league might well have desired for showing what it could do.

Either the league is worth something or it is not. If it is, then it is expected to do its duty. That is what it must be given credit for setting out to do when it issued its ultimatum calling for the ceasing of hostilities within 24 hours and withdraw all troops within 60 hours, with no shooting even after the borders have been crossed.

That Bulgaria and Greece are to abide by the order will mean the dissipation of that hovering war cloud and the stopping of a serious clash which neither country could afford. The league has spoken and the Balkan nations must abide by the decision. Whether they have the disposition or not to obey can expect to successfully combat it for they must realize that it would only be weakening their cause by any such endeavor, and a more crushing and humiliating defeat in the end.

PLUNGING INTO DANGER

When a boy dashes into the street it may be that he looks to see what is coming in the highway, but the chances are that in most cases he does not. On the impulse of the moment he starts without thought of what may be encountered and before he is able to get control of himself he has run into serious danger and invited death.

Such, according to the report, appears to have been the case of the twelve year old lad at Pittsfield who ran in front of a standing auto only to hit his head against the fender of a car which was passing and received such injuries that he lived but a short time. Although the woman driving the car in second was arrested it appears at a distance to have been a case where the driver had no chance to avert the sad affair.

There are the fast and reckless drivers as well as the heedless youngsters. There are plenty of instances which go to show that if more care should be exercised on the part of both that greater safety would prevail. But with the present day condition of street traffic, moving rapidly and quietly, there exists the necessity of stopping, looking and listening before attempting to cross any street, but particularly so when such an attempt is made either in front or in back of a standing vehicle.

Children are not the only ones who are inclined to overlook this hazard. However much it may have been the case, once, that vehicles were expected to lookout for the pedestrians it no longer prevails. The individual must watch his step, and none understands better than he the folly of walking into danger when a glance or a second's delay will overcome all possibility of danger.

The dangers of the highway cannot be too strongly impressed upon the children of school age. They get away with many narrow escapes but there are too many of them whose lives are snuffed out needlessly. With more care being used by drivers who are inclined to take chances and with children refraining from playing or running into the streets there can be an appreciable decrease in such deplorable accidents.

FRENCH CABINET CHANGES

When Finance Minister Caillaux was about to leave for this country on the debt commission he gave expression to the belief that if he did not succeed he would get out of the cabinet. He failed to make an adjustment, but carried back a plan suggested by this country for payments during the next five years, and thus leaving open the matter of agreeing upon a complete settlement plan.

M. Caillaux did not accomplish what he set out to do, and it is possible to maintain that he did not completely fail. The temporary arrangement has not met with favor in France and if we are to judge from results neither has the plan which the finance minister has been working on. He didn't resign and he refused to resign, but when the whole cabinet stepped down and out M. Caillaux went with it.

This will permit of a reorganization of the French cabinet which apparently could not have been accomplished in any other way. The former finance minister has staked much on his ability to adjust the debt. The failure to do so has resulted in a depletion of the value of the franc. The credit of France has not been advanced as the result of the unwillingness of France to meet its obligations and its financial position has not been improved by the disclosure that further loans in this country cannot be expected until there is a debt agreement.

Inasmuch as the finance minister was asked to resign he can hardly expect to figure in any reorganization of the cabinet. There must be a new deal and if that much interest is bound to be taken inasmuch as it can be expected to have its bearing upon the matter of debt settlement.

MEXICO'S DEBTS

Mexico has repeatedly said that it would pay its debts. Endeavors have been made to keep its word but there have been serious lapses. Mexico has been subject to too many revolutions to carry out all its promises but it is to be hoped for the good of all concerned, including Mexico itself, that the latest arrangement will not fall of fruition.

The debts of Mexico are many and scattered. It owes to other countries something like three quarters of a billion, including the unpaid interest. It knows that these obligations are bound to be a serious handicap for further borrowing until it shows to its creditors and others that it can and intends to pay them.

Under President Obregon arrangements were made for funding the debts. It worked until there was another revolution when Mexico had other use for its money. But peaceful conditions are being looked upon in Mexico as necessary if that country is going to get ahead and take its place along with other nations. It cannot expect to get ahead if it is going to be constantly engaged in internal dissention. President Calles bids fair to keep his foot on the neck of revolution in Mexico quite as effectively as Obregon did. It is certainly significant when the financial representative of his government comes here to arrange for the settlement of long overdue financial obligations .The fact that it is possible to come to an understanding about such matters also indicates that there is confidence on the part of the creditors that Mexico is serious in its effort and headed for the present at least in the right direction.

FROM LUCILLE'S DIARY

Betty, my Uncle Bob's wife, has appeared to be quite "off" me for several weeks; indeed ever since I induced her dressmaker to give me the time she had promised to Betty. As I deplore any inharmony in our clan, I went out to Betty's yesterday when I heard that Miss Barker was there, and I asked whether I could help her in any way.

"I cannot think of anything you could do, Lucile," she said coldly. "You scarcely shine with a needle."

"No," I replied with perfect good nature, "sewing isn't my forte, but I really can make good buttonholes. Aunt Rachel taught me when I was a little girl. Are you going to have this white flannel frock button all the way down the front?"

"I intended to use snaps, and just sew on buttons for a camouflage. Perhaps it would be smarter really buttoned."

"It certainly would, Betty," I said emphatically, "and I'll be delighted to do them for you."

"The dress isn't ready for them yet," remarked Miss Barker.

"Well, you get it all done except the buttonholes and I'll take it home with me tonight. I'd love to make them."

Betty looked questioningly at Miss Barker, and she said she thought that would be very nice for then they could go on the next day with another frock. I then inquired if there was something I could do around the place and Betty shook her head.

"I can water the grass," I insisted. "Your grass looks awfully dry."

"Bob is out of town," she conceded, "and it has been neglected."

"Then I'll be doing something for him as well as you. How jolly. I'll go right at it," I said.

After I had given the lawn a good sprinkling it occurred to me that it would be nice to wash the windows, so I turned the hose on the sun parlor, where I noticed that all the windows were closed. After I had given them a thorough rinsing I devoted my efforts to the living room, and in about a second Molly, the cook, came screaming around the corner to the house.

"Gracious, you're flooding the whole place, Miss Lucille. Can't you see those windows are open? I've been yelling and yelling and yelling at you, and I couldn't get near enough the windows to shut 'em. I guess you've about soaked everything already."

It is really sad the way in which Betty has spoiled Molly. I was shocked at her rudeness, and I answered with dignity that as I had been turning the hose toward the living room for only a moment I felt sure there could be no harm done. But I was astonished myself to see how much water had penetrated into the place in such a little minute as the French say.

I gave Molly a dollar, asking her to right things, and begged her not to agitate Betty about it, as it would be too bad to upset her.

"Betty," I said, joining her in the sewing room after I had washed my hands "please let me take your dress now. I should be getting home. I see it's all ready except the hem. Cousin Fannie can do that beautifully, and you people can give your attention to your other gown. I'll do the buttonholes tomorrow morning."

"It's good of you, Lucile," There was more cordiality in Betty's tone than there had been for a long time.

Tonight when I came in about 10 o'clock from a garden supper party at Peggy Chamberlayne's mother greeted me with one of her most exasperating-ly reproachful glances. She remarked in a doomsday voice that Betty had been to get her white flannel frock.

"I couldn't find it anywhere. No wonder, when you have it on," she said bitterly. "Mercy on us, you have it all grass stained! Why in the world did you wear it?"

"I didn't think she would care, after all I had done for her. I made all those—"

"Well, she will care and she cares a whole lot, too, about the inundation you gave her living room. She says that several books were ruined and the colors all ran in the curtains, and all the rugs and sofa pillows will have to go to the cleaner's for all the dirt from a basket of ferns washed down on them. Oh, Lucile, how can you be so frightfully heedless?"

I did not answer. I long ago learned that it is useless to try to explain anything to mother when she is nervous and excited. I do think it was not at all sporting of Betty to report my unfortunate little accident to mother, but Betty was always a poor sport.—Chicago News.

NEW BOOKS

Old Youth.—By Coningsby Dawson Illustrations by C. D. Mitchell. Cloth, 365 pages. Published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation. New York, Price $2.

"A canal under moonlight, a girl at the window, an eager heart—" that is the lost romance Eva Greensleeve tries to recapture in Coningsby Dawson's latest novel, "Old Youth."

Her first season of love was 18 years before. There followed a not-unhappy marriage—but with another man. His death followed a long period of invalidism and at 36 Eve finds herself with empty arms and heart. Then the lover of that far-off season in Venice reappears and the romance of their youth stirs their hearts.

Can it be recaptured after time had laid a heavy, intimidating hand upon their spirits? When so many memories belong to her and to him, which are not shared? That is the story Old Youth sets out to tell and it tells it well.

Dick demonstrates that youth is not a mater of years. And the story closes with Eve's declaration that she doesn't a bit mind being 40, for she has found that "youth is not a past blessedness but a new eagerness into which middle age may develop."

The book's vivid background, its shifting scenes from the Jersey town to New York and then to a Cape Cod summer colony is aflutter with lively figures and more than one love story.

No recapitulation can be given an idea of the quiet power, the deftness and sympathetic gaiety with which the author presents this unusual story of hearts resurgent.

The Daughter of the House.—By Carolyn Wells. Cloth, 317 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

This is a new Fleming Stone detective story. An hour before her wedding Rosemary Lang disappears apparently into thin air. She had gone into her room asking not to be disturbed until it was time for her wedding. When the nurse goes to call her there is no sign of the bride to be seen. Peculiarly enough all of her clothes are in her room; not a single dress is missing. No one has seen her leave. To add to the disturbance the best man arrives, repurting a similar disappearance on the part of the bridegroom. Eloping, kidnapping, and even murder are thought of in turn but one after another these theories are discarded because sufficient motives are lacking. Billy Budd the best man takes charge of the search. Never having seen the bride he is somewhat handicapped. Horror is added to the mystery by the murder of Mr. Lang in a very peculiar manner. As evidence is collected everything points to the brother of the deceased. The local police are getting nowhere and Fleming Stone is called into the case. Working with incredible brilliance he solves the mystery, which proves far more difficult than anyone had suspected. Suspense is maintained to the very last and when finally relieved the story ends with a crashing speed that only a Fleming Stone mystery can have.

It is a typical Carolyn Wells book that holds the keen interest of the reader.

Osman Pasha, a Drama of the New Turkey.—By William Jourdan Rapp. Cloth, 12 mo., 145 pages. Published by the Century Co., New York. Price $1.25.

William Jourdan Rapp, a journalist, has lived for years among Turks of the modern type. He not only believes in good Turks but also writes of them in very strong faith that some of them, at least are on the way to be very much better Turks thanks largely to the influence of American philanthropic and educational work of the past few years.

Mr. Rapp's play gives a new picture of the new Turkey. Has Americanmissionary and relief work in Turkey been worth while? Has it had a permanent influence on the Turk? Mr. Rapp considers it in no sense absurd to hope for a time when Turkey will turn from isolated Mosiem bigotry to ideals of world brotherhood essentially western, and will count for a strong ally with all the powers of civilization that are willing to work honestly for universal peace and inter-racial justice.

The author doesn't say these things but he leaves them to be taken by inference from his fine piece of dramatic work which brings all sides of the Turk into this love story.

Francesca at Hinterwald.—By Johanna Spyri. Cloth, 134 pages, illustrated in colors by Margaret J. Marshall. Published by J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia. Price 75 cents.

Nothing could be more delightful to the American child to troop into Francesca's tiny wooden schoolhouse perched like a toy on a white peak in the Alps. Or after school wander with the Swiss boys and girls among the golden ranunculas and sky-blue gentians of the sunny upland meadows. Strange and merry playmates these Alpine children make, running wild and ragged down the mountain slopes, more used to tending the goats and bringing in the hay than to mending their jagged tears and reciting lessons. But Francesca knows a charm that acts like a spell on the motley little group. She soon has defiant Lisi and truant Chel won to her views and contributing to the benefit of home and community.

It is a simple lovable little tale to give children and it has been packed full of quaint customs and the lingering beauty of the mountains by the author.

Stories That Recall Others

Her Order

More than 20 years ago a well known resident was clerk in an up to date grocery. There was a customer of this store, a Mrs. X, whose three-times-a-week delivery order was invariably the same. Clerks in the store came to know whose order it was, not by the name on the order slip, but by the order itself. The items were: Pork steak, two cans of corn, one can tomatoes, one half pound cheese, two loaves bread, can of kerosene.

One day the delivery boy was sick and this clerk took his place. At Mrs. X's house Mrs. X informed him that she would give no order that day as she intended to go to market. The clerk turned to go and as he did so heard one of Mrs. X's children remind her mother about her visit to school that day. "Oh, that's so," exclaimed Mrs. X and recalling the clerk said: "Say, have you anything different down at your store? Seems to me," she added, "that it's always the same."

Now the proprietor of this store had a boast that he had the best stock and the greatest variety of goods in his part of the town, so the clerk smiled and named over everything he knew the store carried in the line of edibles.

After he had finished Mrs. X gave her order. It was: Pork steak, two cans corn, one can tomatoes, one half pound cheese, two loaves bread, can of kerosene.

Changed Whistles on Her

This is the complaint registered in a police station in a nearby city: "I am a stenographer and I am here to make a complaint against one of your policemen."

The official at the desk looked at the woman and wondered which one of the men had been flirting with the middle aged spinster.

"I am very sorry, madam, if you have been offended," he began.

"I should say I was offended," she said. "What does he mean by changing whistles?"

"Changing whistles?"

"Yes, changing whistles. The other whistle that he used was all right, but since he got that new one it bothers me so I can't work. He knows it bothers me and he just gives it something extra all the time for no other purpose than to irritate me."

The woman was ushered out and the traffic man was instructed to use his old whistle if it hadn't been broken.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Felix Weingartner, who has been elected a chairman of the newly founded League of Nations Commission for Intellectual Collaboration, has long held rank as one of the most distinguished orchestral conductors in Europe. He was born in Dalmatia in 1863 and received his musical education at Graz and at Leipsic. After some years spent as a conductor of opera in Dantsic, Prague, Hamburg and other German cities, he was appointed court conductor in Berlin in 1891 and director of the symphony concerts of the royal orchestra of that city. Mr. Weingartner is a composer as well as a conductor and several of his operas have been performed with success. He has paid several visits to America and for three seasons was a conductor of the Philharmonic society in New York. He was married to the American singer, Lucille Marcel, who died in 1921.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mr. Garter Snake's Winter Home

To me it always has been clear
It is the other one that's queer.
—Peter Rabbit.

When Peter Rabbit asked little Mr. Garter Snake where he was in the habit of spending the winter, Mr. Garter Snake didn't reply at once. He looked at Peter in that staring way of his. You know he always stares for the simple reason that he cannot close his eyes, having no eyelids. Finally he spoke. "Are people in the habit of telling you where they spend their winters?" he asked.

"No-o, I can't say they are," Peter replied. "You know I don't want to know just the exact place. Mr. Garter Snake, but I would like to know the kind of a place where you sleep all winter. Do you make a nice, soft, warm bed."

"I should say not," replied little Mr. Garter Snake. "Did you ever see me making any kind of a bed? When I go to sleep I don't care what kind of a bed I have. You see I sleep so soundly it really doesn't make any difference. We snakes are not so fussy that we must have soft beds in order to sleep well."

"I suppose," said Peter, "that is because you cannot very well get into an uncomfortable position if you try. Now some of us other folks get stiff if we sleep too long in one position. But I don't suppose anything like that bothers you."

"No," replied little Mr. Garter Snake, beginning to run around over himself. "No. That is, we never get stiff so as to feel stiff. I suppose when we are sound asleep in the middle of winter we are stiff, but if we are we don't know it."

"I suppose," said Peter, "that you spend the winter down in the ground."

"Keep right on supposing so," replied little Mr. Garter Snake, "for that is just exactly what we do. Sometimes we are in cracks in the rocks. Either place suits us if it is deep enough We always try to get to deep enough so that there will be no danger of freezing to death. A lot of us usually make our winter home in the same place. I have a little burrow not far from where we are right now. I don't mind telling you that, Peter, because I know you will keep it a secret."

Peter nodded his head vigorously and declared that he would keep it a secret.

"A lot of my family are around here now. This bank here is a very good winter home for Garter Snakes. I and my family have used it for several years," said little Mr. Garter Snake.

"But I never have seen you or any other Garter Snakes over here in the summer," cried Peter.

"I want to know!" said Mr. Garter Snake. "Well, I don't think you ever will see us over here in the summer. In summer we have to eat. In winter we don't. Then we have to sleep. This is a very poor feeding ground, but it is a most excellent sleeping ground. So we spend the winter here, and then when we come out in the spring we move off to better feeding grounds. I suppose you know, Peter, that I am the last of the Snake family to go to sleep for winter."

"Are you really?" asked Peter. "That's queer."

"Why is it queer" inquired little Mr. Garter Snake.

"Because you are so much smaller than some of your relatives," replied Peter. "I should think a big Snake would stay awake longer than a little Snake. Do you mean to say that Mr. Black Snake and Buzztail the Rattlesnake and Bluffer the Adder are already asleep for the winter?"

"That's just what I mean to say," replied little Mr. Garter Snake, reversing himself.

"I wish you wouldn't run around over yourself so," complained Peter. "It makes me nervous."

"I'm just trying all my points," explained little Mr. Garter Snake. "It is the only way I can do it without running away, and I don't want to do that while I'm talking." He looped himself into a figure eight and then reversed it in the most fascinating way. "Yes, sir, I am the last of the Snake family to go to bed for the winter. I suspect it may happen any day now. You may see me again and you may not. It all depends on the weather. In case I don't see you again, good by, Peter Rabbit, until next spring."

Little Mr. Garter Snake stopped running around over himself and glided away so suddenly that Peter didn't see just where he went. And so it was that Peter didn't find little Mr. Garter Snake's bedroom.

From Small Beginnings

John Ireland, the Butcher's Son, Dean of Westminster

Westminster Abbey, in London, is noted as the burial place of kings and queens and of people born to rank and wealth. In that old burial place of the great of the British empire, lies buried John Ireland, who was a butcher's boy but who lifted himself, even in conservative England, until he became one of the leading church authorities dean of Westminster, and an earnest promoter of religion and of culture.

In the rugged hill section of Devonshire, where he was born, John Ireland, future dean of Westminster watched his father, the village butcher go about his bloody work. Something he helped his father but his tastes did not lead him to wish to carry on such work. Some work, however, he must carry on, for the family needed money. A shoemaker had need of a boy to help him, and John Ireland took the job. He learned how to work in leather, how to stitch and sew and peg, and how to make shoes. Meanwhile, having a studious mind and obtaining books, he studied. He was able to prepare himself for the great university at Oxford. He was earnest and scholarly, devoted himself to his studies, made important friendships and entered the ministry of the Church of England.

In his mature life he continued to show the same earnest zeal that he had shown at the shoemaker's bench and in his studies at Oxford. He continued, too, to make many friends who were able to help him. At 41 he was made a prebendary of Westminster abbey. Once again he carried on his studies with kindliness and faithfulness, and, 12 years later was promoted to be dean of Westminster, one of the highest positions in the English church.

Remembering his own earnestness in gaining an education, he gave over $20,000 to the university of Oxford to be used as a fund for scholarships to help those who were really eager to learn. In other ways also he encouraged learning as well as religion. When he died he was buried in the ancient abbey where he had worked so well.

Matches 100 Years Old

Matches as a household and vest-pocket commodity are just 100 years old. John Walker of London, made the first box of matches early in 1825, placing 84 matches in a box, for which he charged a shilling. The price was comparatively high, but the matches were so much handier than the tinder box that he prospered quickly. The safety match was developed in 1855, although it was not introduced into the United States until some years later. The match industry long interested the state of Maine, though today not a match is made on a commercial basis in that state.

Irish Finger Print Babies

At Pellstown, Ireland, it has become necessary to fingerprint babies under 3 months of age when they are discharged from the maternity hospital there. Such a scheme is designed to help the police to discover the mother or foster mother of the deserted child. The idea was suggested by a woman barrister, who became interested in the great number of deserted babies receiving public attention.

Political Ban on Japanese Priests

Religious workers of Japan are complaining against what they term "unjust discrimination" shown them in the field of politics. While they are given a vote under the new manhood suffrage law, an existing police regulation prohibits all religious workers, including Buddhist, Christian and Shinto priests, from joining any political party. There are said to be more than 20,000 religious workers in Japan.

TEAMS HARD AT WORK FOR ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL

Preliminary reports were made Tuesday night by a number of the teams in the drive for $25,000 for St. Joseph's school, but a number of other captains sent word to headquarters in the Sellas building that they wanted the evening hours to work Tuesday night so that they could not get in to make a report. For this reason it was not possible to give out any figures on the results of the first day canvass, but the team captains were encouraged by Adelard Morin, general chairman, and Rev. I. C. Iciek, pastor of the church, to keep their volunteers at work.

The reports coming in to the headquarters, on the second floor of the Sellas Spa building were very encouraging. Many contributions of $5, $10, $25, $50 and $100 were reported by individual workers. Everybody seems to be favorably disposed towards the drive and the workers are receiving very cordial receptions and generous donations.

The management of the Palace theater is planning to give a Sunday afternoon performance, the proceeds of which are to be turned over towards the drive. Mr. Sellas gave the use of a large office on the second floor of his building free of charge. Both the Yellow Cab and the Luxor are giving generous contributions towards the school drive.

A few people met by the workers were under the impression that St. Joseph was a Polish school and that the children were taught everything in the Polish language. That is not so. The program of studies in the St. Joseph school is the same as in any other city school. All the subjects are taught in the English language by competent and well trained American teachers. The children are trained to become good, honest and loyal American citizens. After graduating from the eighth grade many of the children continue their studies at the Norwich Free academy or some other school.

Some of the graduates of St. Joseph's school are now in the different universities studying law, medicine, engineering to prepare themselves to fulfill their duties in life. Two young men, graduates of St. Joseph school, left for Switzerland to attend the University of Fribourg. Many of the graduates served in the American army during the war, a few made the supreme sacrifice on the field of battle.

The study of Polish and Christian doctrine takes up about a half an hour a day and surely the knowledge of ones mother tongue or one's religion is no disadvantage. The St. Joseph school is just like any other school in the city, except that it does not cost the average taxpayer anything for building and maintenance. You are helping a good thing declared leaders in the drive when you are contributing towards the drive for the new St. Joseph school and the people of Norwich know it and are gladly doing their share.

WEDDINGS

Mahoney—Moriarty

Miss Mary Lillian Moriarty, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Francis Moriarty of Hollister street, and Cain L. Mahoney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cain Mahoney of Walnut street, both of Manchester, this state, were married Monday morning at nine o'clock at St. Bridget's church, Manchester, in the presence of an assembly of relatives and friends that filled the auditorium. The floral decorations were unusually beautiful and consisted of orchid and yellow chrysanthemums, ferns, palms and oak leaves.

Nuptial high mass was celebrated by the rector, Rev. C. T. McCann assisted by Rev. W. P. Reidy of St. James' church. At the offertory Miss May D'Arcy of Hazardville, an intimate friend of the bride, sang "O, Salutaris," by Holden.

The attendants were Miss Irene Moriarty, younger sister of the bride and Raymond Mahoney, brother of the groom.

The ushers were Dr. John Barry and John F. Shea.

The bride wore a gown of crepe back bridal satin with pearl ornaments fastening the side draping and pearl necklace. Her veil of tulle fell from a cap of lace and orange blossoms, the laces being used in the trimming of her mother's wedding gown. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore a bouffant dress of changeable peach taffeta trimmed with gold lace and blue and peach floral trimmings. Her large black hat of panne velvet was faced with peach, and long streamers of blue and peach malline fell over her gown. She carried an arm bouquet of Gold Mine roses and blue ageratum.

Following the ceremony at the church a wedding reception and breakfast attended by more than fifty relatives and intimate friends was held at the home of the bride.

Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney left on an unannounced wedding trip, the bride wearing a brown, fur-trimmed ensemble suit with hat to match. On their return they will live in their newly furnished flat at 115 Main street, Manchester, and will be at home to their friends after November 1.

The bride, though born in Manchester, spent her early girlhood in Norwich. She was graduated from the Norwich Free Academy and the Norwich Commercial school. When the family lived there they attended the church in Norwich Town of which Rev. C. T. McCann was pastor, and he personally supervised the decorations at the church for the wedding ceremony. Mrs. Mahoney has not only been active in church work, but in lodge circles and is president of Gibbons Assembly C. L. of C. She has been the guest of honor at six different gift showers given by her associates in the office of the Oxford soap company, where she was a bookkeeper, those in the manufacturing office of Cheney brothers, where she was formerly employed, and other friends.

The groom has also been honored with several bachelor affairs. He is a painter and decorator in the employ of J. F. Tynan.

A man is always different from that which women think he is.

TREE WARDEN DAVIS DIES FROM INJURIES IN FALL ON SUNDAY

Injuries received Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock, from a fall from a tree on North Main Street near Second street, Greeneville, proved fatal to City Forester Henry Ellsworth Davis, death occurring Tuesday evening at 6.15 o'clock at the Backus hospital. Mr. Davis suffered nine broken ribs, a broken collar bone and concussion of the brain and although everything was done to save him there was slight hope from the first. Monday he rallied so much that an attending physician predicted his recovery, but this hope was deceptive and he failed rapidly on Tuesday.

Born in Preston, April 30, 1863 the son of Oliver and Emily Jane Crary Davis, Mr. Davis had spent all of his life in Preston and in Norwich, having resided at No. 138 Palmer street from nearly 30 years. His early education was received in public schools in Preston and while a young man he was elected representative on the democratic ticket, serving one term in the state legislature.

On February 3, 1886 he was united in marriage with Miss Adna B. Ellis by Rev. E. S. Holloway, pastor of the Greeneville Baptist church, Mrs. Davis passing away in Norwich on November 14, 1922.

Soon after moving to Norwich Mr. Davis was appointed city forester and served in this capacity until his death, having been called out Sunday in line of duty to clear away a tree which had fallen across wires on North Main street. For many years Mr. Davis was a callman with Chemical Company No. 1, located at No. 67 Main street, recently discarded by the fire department. During recent years Mr. Davis had been assisted in his work by his son George H. Davis who was injured on April 4, 1925 in a fall from a tree opposite his home on Palmer street, but who is gradually recovering from injuries to his legs, which rendered him a cripple.

Mr. Davis was a member of the Preston City Baptist church and took an interest in church affairs during his residence in that town. He was also affiliated with the Loyal Order of Moose, being a member of Norwich Lodge, No. 950.

Surviving him are two children, Mrs. Joseph A. Higgins and George H. Davis of Palmer street; five grand children and four brothers, John B. Davis of Norwich, Elisha Davis of Mystic, Charles Davis of Stonington and Belfield Davis of Preston.

He was warm hearted and generous in his family relations, and skilled and faithful workman, and a loyal friend whose death will bring sorrow to many acquaintances.

FORECLOSURE SUIT ON PROPERTY IN LEBANON

A foreclosure suit of an $1,800 mortgage on property on the Hebron road in Lebanon has been brought in the superior court by Louis Roth, of Bayport, L. I., against Max Levitt of New York, Herman R. Levitt of Lebanon and H. Ragovin of Norwich.

On Oct. 19, 1922, Max and Herman R. Levitt owed the plaintiff $1,800 by a note payable three years after date with interest at six per cent and mortgaged property in Lebanon. The note still remains unpaid.

The Federal Land bank of Springfield has a mortgage of $4,000 which is prior to the plaintiff's mortgage. H Ragovin of Norwich claims to have an attachment for $175 and costs of suit dated March 21, 1923, accruing after this mortgage.

FAMILY GATHERING FOR 50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

A quiet family gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Wilson of 56 Elizabeth street celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Monday. They were married in Moosup, Oct. 26, 1875, by Rev. W. W. Ellis of the Methodist Episcopal church, the maiden name of Mrs. Wilson being Georgietta Fairman. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson have resided in this city for about 45 years.

Attending the anniversary Monday evening were their three children, L. Luella Wilson, a teacher at Broadway school; Frank Ralph Wilson, Central Vermont freight agent; and Claude R. Wilson, ticket agent and operator at the Central Vermont station.

WILLIAM DONOHUE IS RECOVERING IN NEW YORK

William Donohue of New York, formerly of Norwich, who has been seriously ill with lobar pneumonia for the past two weeks at the Rockefeller institute hospital in New York, is reported to be improving. Dr. John J. Donohue of Uncasville, who has been in New York with his son during the past two weeks, states there is every indication of his recovery.

The young man was struck by an automobile while crossing the street during a heavy storm, receiving a punctured lung from a broken rib.

Evening Hours By Assessors

Tax lists are coming in to the Norwich board of assessors in good volume, but in order to give the citizens of the town the fullest opportunity to get their lists in on time and avoid additions, the assessors propose to hold evening hours for three nights. These will be on Thursday and Saturday of this week and Monday of next week from 7 to 9 o'clock.

The committee in charge comprised George Blum, chairman, Samuel Abelman, Morris Segal, Harry Mandell and Israel Budnik. Dr. S. M. Goldberg is president of the Y. M. H. A.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH IS CONDUCTING ROLLCALL

The Central Baptist church is featuring a rollcall of its resident members at the family gathering of the church on Thursday evenings. The roll-call began two weeks ago and has proved one of the most popular features ever introduced. Before the end of the six weeks it is anticipated that the regular room will not hold the crowd. Tomorrow evening the names will be called of those whose surname begins with F, G, H, I, J, K and L. Different organizations and individuals have been giving flowers so that these might be sent to those who are permanently shut-away from the blessing of the church services.

Preceding the service this week there will be a meeting of those who are assisting in the notification of the members regarding the roll-call. Supper for them will be served at 6.15 when plans for the remaining weeks will be discussed.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Walter W. Lewis

Mrs. Mary Graham Lewis, 43, formerly Miss Mary McCarthy of Norwich, died Monday at her home 41 Houston street, New Haven. She was the wife of Walter W. Lewis. She leaves, besides her husband, two daughters, Miss Helen M. Graham and Mrs. Elsie Graham Platt of New Haven.

After a lengthy illness Phoebe N. Snow widow of Francis H. Thompson, passed peacefully away Tuesday afternoon at 2 at her home in Yantic.

Since the death of her husband eight years ago Mrs. Thomson has resided at the home of her daughter Mrs. E. C. Wheeler. She was born in Marlboro, Oct. 19, 1850. In Willimantic, Jan. 18, 1866 she was united in marriage with Francis H. Thompson of Hebron. To this union eleven children were born, nine of whom are still living; Mrs. Mabel Wheeler of Yantic, Mrs. Carrie Kelly, Warren and Eugene Thompson of Fitchville, Walter and Charles Thompson of Willimantic, Lyman Thompson of Greenfield, Mass., Mrs. Florence Chapman and Clinton W. Thompson of Norwich.

She is survived by one sister Candace D. Main of Willimantic, also three brothers, George and Samuel Snow of Willimantic and J. W. Snow of Pitman, N. J. There are 16 grand children and six great grand children besides several nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Thompson was a kind and loving mother much devoted to her family and home. She was a kind and sympathetic neighbor always manifesting a cheerful disposition. She was beloved by a host of friends who are deeply grieved to learn of her death.

Amos D. Allen

Word was received here Tuesday evening of the death at his home in Napa, California, of Amos D. Allen, formerly of this city. Mr. Allen was in his 83rd year. He had been in failing health for some time and his death occurred Tuesday morning.

Mr. Allen was the son of Henry and Sarah Tracy Allen and was born in this city, Nov. 12, 1842, his father being a native of South Windham and the founder of the well known Norwich undertaking firm of Henry Allen & Son, with which Amos D. Allen was connected from 1870 to 1895 when he moved with his family to California. During his residence here Mr. Allen was a active member of the Second Congregational church.

Mr. Allen saw service with the Union forces during the Civil war, being appointed paymasters' clerk, Nov. 9, 1863, commissioner acting paymaster Oct 21, 1864, and ordered to join the steamer "Western World" of the North Atlantic squadron. He was honorably discharged Sept. 5, 1865. He was a member of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R. of this city.

Mr. Allen is survived by his wife, who was Mattie Larkin of Westerly; three children, Mrs. Sarah Louise Larkin of Spokane, Wash., who is now abroad; Mrs. Bessie P. Macrae of San Francisco, and Miss Ruth R. Allen who lived with her parents. He also leaves a sister and a brother, Miss Susan C. Allen and William H. Allen, both of this city.

John H. Avery

The Bulletin's Chestnut Hill correspondent writes: Word has been received by relatives here of the sudden death of John H. Avery, 84, Monday afternoon at the home of his niece, Mrs. Allen R. Lathrop in Vernon, Conn., where he had been staying for over a year. Mr. Avery had been a resident of the town of Lebanon practically all his life. Burial is to be in the family plot in Lebanon.

All scout masters and scout leaders are to attend a round table meeting, which will be held in Shannon building, room 28, at 7:30 this (Wednesday) evening.

IRREGULARITIES CHARGED AT MAINE STATE PRISON

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 27. (AP)—Charges of maladministration of the Maine state prison at Thomaston, were made in affidavits filed with Governor Brewster and presented to the executive council today for consideration.

The affidavits alleged that discipline at the prison is worse than for many years. Other charges made were that prisoners are in possession of cell keys; that prisoners have assaulted other prisoners and inflicted grave injury in some instances; that serious discrimination is practiced among the prisoners as a result of a system of government in vogue at the prison, causing serious unrest; that gambling among prisoners had been reported without action being taken; that liquor and narcotics have been brought in in large quantities, resulting in a federal investigation.

The statement presented by Governor Brewster to the council said the affidavits were made by old and trusted officers of the state, comprising a majority of those at present associated with the prison, after repeated reports to officials in authority had failed of results.

The state prison commissioners were in conference with the executive council today regarding the affidavits, which were considered at a special meeting of the governor and council tonight. No action was taken.

AT LEAST 1,000 KILLED IN RIOTING AT DAMASCUS

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—French representatives who have arrived at Jerusalem from Damascus, a despatch to the Daily Express says, are inclined to believe that at least 1,000 were killed in the rioting at Damascus, but were unable to give a definite estimate. They, however, appeared only mildly surprised when shown Arab reports putting the losses at 25,000.

The semi-official French newspaper without comment an Arab contemporary which estimates 8,000 casualties in Syrie, published at Beirut, quotes French travelers from the scene of the fighting confirm that the French used machine guns, artillery, airplanes and tanks in quelling the rising, but assert that the greater part of the damage to Damascus was due to the vandalism by the rebels, not the troops.

The French soldiers confined their attention to shelling the rebels for 48 hours and localizing the fighting by barricades and barbed wire from Mezdan to the Shargour quarter in the southern parts of the city.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE WORLD COURT CONFERENCE

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27 (AP)—Harvard, Yale, Vassar, Bryn Mawr and Michigan will be represented at the dinner in New York tomorrow evening called by Princeton university as a preliminary step toward a national collegiate world court conference authorized by the Princeton senior council to be held at Princeton the second week in December.

Undergraduate delegates from all parts of the United States will attend the conference, from which will be selected a delegation to meet with President Coolidge before the United States Senate discussion on the world court problem scheduled to begin December 17.

MILD SPANKING GOOD FOR WILFUL CHILDREN

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The ritual of spanking was welcomed back into the world of approved procedure today when Dr. William H. Kilpatrick, professor of philosophy of education at the teachers college, gave it the seal of his approval before the modern parenthood conference at the Waldorf Astoria.

"There are times when physical punishment may be used advantageously with young children," he said. "By this I do not mean a severe spanking. A small amount of physical pain invariably applied will teach a small child not to do a specific thing. Beyond that, and in the case of older children, it may do more harm than good."

Fifteen hundred delegates to the conference heard this pronouncement from one who is standard bearer for the new educational methods with considerable surprise, as many of them belong to the school which brands spanking as a "confession of one's own failure as a parent."

"Obedience is a very handy thing to have around the house," said Dr. Kilpatric. "But we must remember that it has very little moral quality. It is chiefly desirable as a convenience for us. The wise parent will not demand unquestioning obedience in most matters, but will allow the child to ask questions and talk the matter over before doing it.

Then from the troubled depths of the modern parents' own experiences came questions from the audience.

"Yes, but suppose you do talk the matter over and demand obedience solemnly, and you don't get it," asked one worried mother.

The exponent of moral suasion looked grieved, but he faced the world of fact.

"If the child refuses to obey he must be stopped—physically if necessary," he answered.

As a further possible means of obtaining obedience he suggested the withdrawal of personal relationship between the mother and child for the day.

THIRD MEMBER OF NEW STATE WATER COMMISSION

HARTFORD, Oct. 27. (AP)—Dr. Walter R. Steiner, of this city, consulting pathologist and bacteriologist of the Hartford hospital, was appointed third member of the new state water commission today by Governor Trumbull. He will serve with Senator Frederick Walcott, of Norfolk, president of the state board of fisheries and game, and George T. Kimball, of New Britain, vice president of the American Hardware corporation, who were appointed previously.

The new commission, which is to have charge of the attempt to be made to prify Connecticut streams, by eliminating or reducing factory wastes and sewage, will get under way without delay. Its first duty, under the law creating it adopted at the 1925 session of the legislature, is to meet and organize, choosing one of its members to be chairman.

ENGINEER BURNED BY INHALING STEAM

HARTFORD, Oct. 27. (AP)—Engineer Edgar Ryan, of 942 Main street, was admitted to the St. Francis hospital shortly before 7 o'clock tonight suffering from first degree burns received when he inhaled steam escaping from a broken flue in the locomotive of which he was engineer.

The accident occurred in Higganum when a flue broke in the engine of a Valley train which was due in Hartford from Saybrook at 6.25 p. m. Ryan was overcome with gas and steam and was relieved from his post immediately after the accident. His condition is not considered serious at the hospital. The train was delayed more than an hour.

GERMANS ARE ENDORSING THE LOCARNO AGREEMENT

BERLIN, Oct. 27. (AP)—The governing board and Reichstag members of the German people's party adopted a resolution today endorsing the Locarno agreement. The resolution declares that the agreement tallies with all important points of the party's fundamental ideas and the German note of July 20 and in nowise sacrifices any of Germany's vital necessities.

MAKING EFFORT TO SECURE PARDON OF ANITA WHITNEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27. (AP)—Announcement was made here today of the formation of a state-wide "Anita Whitney committee" to make a concerted effort to secure the pardon of Miss Whitney, social worker, sentenced to San Quentin prison to a term of one to fourteen years for violation of the California criminal syndicalism law.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Navy day was celebrated with various ceremonies.

Thursday, November 26, was proclaimed Thanksgiving day.

The house ways and means committee heard another long list of tax pleas.

The Federal Trade commission was authorized to go ahead with its investigation of the milling and bread industry.

Women dislike a womanly man as much as men hate a manly woman.

Help For Nervous Women

It has often been said that only a woman can understand what nervous women endure. Most cases of nervousness, sleeplessness, mental depression, headaches, backache, fretting and worrying have their origin in some feminine ailment that will readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, which for over forty years has been restoring women of America to health and strength. Merit alone could have stood such a test.

NAP. LIBERTY IS CHOSEN AS MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Nap Liberty of Jewett City, who played with the St. Joseph team in the Norwich Twilight league during the past season, was awarded the gold watch donated by John H. Wilson, emblematical of being the most valuable man in the league. The committee that made the award was Earle E. Brigham, baseball coach of the Norwich Free Academy, Earl Mathewson, former president of the Norwich Twilight league, John H. Wilson, proprietor of Jack's Sport Shop and Myles E. Standish, sports editor of The Bulletin.

In selecting the most valuable player many things were taken into consideration and each quality carefully weighed. There were several who were considered for the award by virtue of their outstanding playing during the year but when all things were considered it was the unanimous opinion that Nap Liberty ranked far in front. Liberty batted for .588 leading the league. He fielded for 1.000 and was a player that could perform creditably at any position on the infield. He also caught two games and pitched in one. He was fast on the bases, stealing 4 times. In considering his worth to a team his sportsmanship and leadership played a large part. Nap made a good leader instilling confidence and spirit into his teammates and it was largely through Nap's leadership that his team won the most games in the second half of the league.

His conduct on the diamond was always gentlemanly and it was very seldom that he protested a decision. His sportsmanship stood out as an example of a real ball player. Nap fought hard for the games and was always playing his best no matter whether his team was behind or out in front. No matter how many errors his team made behind him he never had a cross or sarcastic word for his teammates. He was always encouraging them rather than criticising, which tended to make him popular with fans and players alike. These characteristics played a prominent part in the selection of Liberty as the most valuable player.

Liberty also wins the league batting prize as he batted for .588 being 17 times at bat scoring 5 runs and getting 7 doubles, for a total of 17 bases in all. He was a dangerous man at the bat and the pitchers would generally pass him if it was possible. Liberty goes to the Hartford Eastern league club next spring.

To Guillette of the Nugget team goes the prize of being the best fielding player of the league. Guillette played shortstop and his work was clean and sure. He covered a large amount of territory and although he did not field for 1.000 as did some of the players his work was a bright spot in the league. He accepted 5 chances with only one error. The catchers and first baseman had more put outs but their work was not as difficult as Guillette's.

The crown for base stealing goes to Sullivan of the Hallville team. Sullivan was fast and it was very few times that he was caught on the bags.

EAST LEADS IN INTERSECTIONAL VICTORIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—(By the A. P.)—The seed of intersectional football rivalry, well cultivated for some time, will bear its most prolific fruit of the season Saturday with no less than seven gridirons witnessing combats between opponents of different sections.

Topping the list, as well as sharing the main spot light of the day with the Army-Yale struggle, are the Michigan-Navy and Pennsylvania-Illinois battles, bringing into conflict two unbeaten eastern outfits with star arrays of the western conference.

So far, the east, sweeping nearly all before it in intersectional play with rivals from the middle west and south, holds a lead of two to one in games involving top-notch outfits of the Atlantic seaboard with members of the "big ten."

Columbia tasted defeat at the hands of Ohio State but this setback was more than offset by Syracuse's victory over Indiana and Pennsylvania's triumph over Chicago, 1924 western conference champion.

Penn, on the strength of her successive victories over Brown, Yale and Chicago, will be a favorite to stop Red Grange and add Illinois to the list of eastern victims but Michigan, driving toward the "big ten" title, is expected to take the measure of Jack Owsley's Annapolis eleven, although the Middies have a veteran and formidable outfit.

The east also will be favored to add to its triumphant intersectional string in at least three other games in which Colgate will invade the stronghold of the Michigan Aggies, while Georgetown will entertain Kings College from Kentucky and Harvard will be host to William & Mary. East and west also meet in a minor engagement, involving Oberlin and Rochester at Oberlin, O.

The middle west's gridiron ramblers, Notre Dame, will go south in search of conquest against Georgia Tech in another intersectional high spot with the rivals seemingly closely matched. Notre Dame snowed under the Golden Tornado last year to the tune of 34-2 but the Hoosiers, already decisively beaten by the Army, are as formidable as they were in 1924. Georgia Tech beat Penn State here some weeks ago but met defeat at the hands of Alabama last Saturday.

The log of intersectional encounter thus far shows as follows:

	East	Midwest	South	Total
East	x	14	3	17
Midwest	2	x	1	3
South	2	1	x	3
Total lost	4	15	4

GRANTHAM PAYS DAMAGES FOR HITTING SHEEP

TRINIDAD, Colo., Oct. 27.—(AP)—The overland motor trip of three members of the world's champion Pittsburgh Pirates was halted here for several hours today while George Grantham paid over some of his series money to the owner of a flock of sheep into which the first baseman drove his automobile last night. The car killed four sheep and maimed seven others.

Included in the party are Carson C. Bigbee and Ray Kremer, pitcher and their families, who are en route to California.

CHAMPIONSHIP BOUTS ARE SHELVED FOR PRESENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Three championship bouts tentatively arranged last week by Promoter Tex Rickard for initial shows in the new Madison Square Garden had been temporarily shelved today as a result of unexpected obstacles.

Following close on the breaking off of negotiations for a Harry Greb-Mickey Walker middleweight title fight, announcement was made today that a proposed featherweight bout between the champion, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, and Babe Herman, California product, as well as a light-heavyweight contest between Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., were in doubt.

The Kaplan-Herman fight, expected to be staged by Rickard on Dec. 18 in place of the Walker-Greb match must await the outcome of Herman's fight with Honeyboy Finnegan in Boston, Nov. 4. If the Pacific coast fighter fails to win the bout, Rickard has indicated that he will abandon plans for a return battle between the pair who not long ago fought a draw at Waterbury, Conn.

The Berlenbach-Delaney bout scheduled for Dec. 11 hinges on the condition of Delaney, who recently underwent an operation for infection of the throat.

Word was received by Rickard today that recovery of the Bridgeport pugilist has not been as speedy as was expected and that he may not be able to get in condition for the fight on that date. Mike McTigue, the former champion, consequently was asked by the promoter to hold himself in readiness to substitute.

NEW BANTAMWEIGHT CHAMP IS CROWNED IN PARIS

PARIS, Oct. 27—Andre Routis, bantam champion of France, lost his title this evening in a 15 round fight with "Kid" Francis, a Marseilles boy, who learned boxing in Argentina.

Francis outclassed Routis and won on points at the end of the contest, despite the champion's advantage in weight.

Routis tipped the scale at 55 kilos, the bantam limit being 53 (116.6 pounds).

LOUISVILLE CREEPS UP ON SEALS IN SERIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27—Louisville, champions of the American association defeated San Francisco, champions of the Pacific Coast baseball league in a free hitting contest today by a score of 11 to 9.

The series now stands San Francisco 4, Louisville 2.

Kinsey Beats Borolla

MEXICO City, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Robert Kinsey of San Francisco today eliminated Ignacio de la Borbolla, considered Mexico's best player, from the Mexican national championships in the men's singles. The score was 6-2, 4-2, 6-1.

LIEUT. DOOLITTLE AGAIN LOWERS RECORD FOR SEAPLANES AT BALTIMORE MEET

BAYSHORE PARK, Baltimore, Md., Oct. 27—(By the A. P.)—Another laurel rests tonight on the brow of Lieutenant James H. Doolittle of the United States army.

Lieutenant Doolittle late today catapulted his black Curtiss racer across a three kilometre course in the fastest time ever made by a [illegible]—245.713 miles per hour. The mark will become the official world's record for maximum seaplane speed when recognized by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale. It was made in a special speed test which Lieutenant Doolittle entered alone.

The dashing army pilot made his premier mark under conditions that were by no winds ideal, with a quartering wind raking the course. He drove the same Curtiss racer in which he yesterday won the 350 kilometre Jacques Scneider trophy race in 56:06.36—an average speed of 232.593 miles per hour—and in which he turned in a speed of 235.936 miles per hour for his last and fastest lap.

Lieutenant Doolittle, under the Federation Aeronautique Internationale regulations, took the three-kilometre course with a 1300 foot diving start. His official record was computed as the average of four consecutive flights across the distance, two in each direction, to eliminate wind advantage or disadvantage. His statistics follows:

Flight Time for 3 Kilo Miles Hour
1st out—27.45 seconds 244.473
1st in—27.41 seconds 244.830
2nd out—27.38 seconds 245.095
2nd in—27.01 seconds 248.455

The supermarine Panier S-4, British racing seaplane wrecked here in a trial flight, piloted by Captain Henry C. Biard, set a recognized record of 226.752 miles per hour at Southampton shortly before its shipment to this country. Lieutenant Doolittle's time betters by nearly 19 miles an hour the speed record of the British plane.

The Curtiss flown by Doolittle today and yesterday, also was the winning plane in the Pulitzer trophy race at Mitchell field, where fitted as a land plane, and flown by Lieutenant Cyrus K. Bettis, it crossed the finish with an average speed of 248.975 miles per hour. The timers estimated that pontoons on the ship should cut its speed between 20 and 25 miles an hour and his feat of coaxing it to a speed only slightly more than three miles per hour under its land plane record was hailed as remarkable.

Lieutenant Doolittle now is the holder of four seaplane records—232.573 miles per hour for the Schneider distance of 350 kilometres, 234.772 for 100 kilometres, 234.352 for 200 kilometres and 245.713 for maximum speed, all made yesterday and today. The latter three await only Federation Aeronautique Internationale sanction to become official world's records. The federation does not recognize a 350 kilometre record, which is peculiar to the Schneider trophy.

FIELD HOCKEY TEAM ORGANIZED AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 27—Hockey has been officially recognized as an intercollegiate sport for women students at the Connecticut Agricultural college, and under the direction of Prof. R. J. Guyer, head of the department of physical education at the state college, a team is being organized. Practice has been under way for the last three weeks and much progress has been made in developing a team that bids fair to give a good account of itself in intercollegiate competition.

University of Maine will be met at Orono, Me., next Saturday in the first contest of the season for the Connecticut girls. Competition for positions has been keen since the first practice was held, and Coach Guyer will not announce his starting lineup until the team leaves for Maine the latter part of the week.

LIGHT WORK FOR AGGIES IN PREPARING FOR MANHATTAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 27.—Scrimmage for second teams of both the varsity and freshmen was in order in the camp of the Connecticut Aggies today, while the first teams engaged in comparatively light work.

Coach Dole's second team has been developing rapidly this season, and in its work today displayed a good attack on offense, and a defense that prevented the yearlings from gaining with any degree of consistency.

The first team went through a long signal practice this afternoon, working on the plays that will be used against Manhattan when the New Yorkers come to Storrs next Saturday. The usual work on the tackling dummy, passing and kicking was also taken care of in today's session.

Four games remain on the slate of the Connecticut Aggies for this season, and not one of them can be considered an easy contest for the Storrs eleven. Following the Manhattan game next Saturday, Coach Dole's team plays New Hampshire at Manchester, N. H., a team which to date is undefeated, and one that shapes up as a strong contender for New England Conference honors. If Dole's team can trip the Granite staters, they will go a long way towards regaining the prestige which was theirs as a result of the 1924 record.

After the New Hampshire game the Aggies will journey to Kingston, R. I., for their annual classic with Rhode Island State. It will be the big game of the year for both elevens, and the contest is certain to be close. Connecticut will close with Rensellaer at Troy, N. Y., Nov. 21, this game being one that was added after the present season got under way.

To date the Aggies have played five games, losing three and winning two, Wesleyan and Tufts have been defeated, while games have been lost to New York university, Maine, and Massachusetts Aggies.

ACADEMY TO PLAY CHAPMAN TECH SATURDAY

Monday afternoon Coach Whitney started the week's work in preparation for Saturday's game against Chapman Tech with a long signal drill. The entire squad was put through a hard practice and showed up well after the Plainfield game. Yesterday afternoon the varsity was sent against the scrubs for a scrimmage that lasted nearly the entire afternoon. Tuesday's scrimmage was a slow affair and was marked by many fumbles. However, the team is expected to be in nearly perfect form by the end of the week when they meet Chapman Technical school, New London, and the local boys are confident that they will bring home the bacon.

Chapman Tech's record for this season is far from impressive and the Academy team should not have much trouble in turning them back by a large score. The Norwich team will go to New London feeling confident that they will win and a team playing in that spirit is a hard one to beat. Whitney has taught the team more football to date than any other team of late years. Combined with this the team has a great deal more weight than any N. E. A. eleven has had in a long time. From the first part of the season all the team needed was plenty of practice and so far it has got it. It is hoped that Saturday's game against Plainfield saw the team hit its winning stride.

POPER DRILLS HIS TIGERS IN LINE PLAYS

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 27—Coach Bill Roper put his football warriors through a long signal drill this afternoon in which not one forward pass formation was called. It was said following the practice that while there might be some passing Saturday against Swarthmore, that the play against Harvard and Yale in November would center largely around the rush line.

RIDES WRONG HORSE IN STEEPLECHASE

PARIS, Oct. 27—Piloting the favorite when the barrier was sprung, but astride an outsider near the finish was the hitherto unheard of turn experience of Jockey Herve at Enghien track today.

Fourteen horses were bunched at the Liverpool jump in the October steeplechase, the feature of the card, when Meissonier, the 4 to 1 public choice, and three other horses fell. The four riders were thrown heavily and more or less stunned by Herve, who had the mount on Meissonier, extricated himself, leaped upon the nearest horse and went after the leaders.

The shouts of the crowd eventually brought home to him the fact that he had mounted the wrong horse and was now riding Souvenir, a 15 to 1 chance, while the favorite, riderless, was trailing the field. Herve finally pulled up and rode dejectedly into the paddock.

SUB BASE TEAM HAS EASY TIME WITH U. S. S. BUSHNELL

A fierce aerial attack launched by the Sub Base team, coupled with a great kicking game completely routed the U. S. S. Bushnell aggregation in the annual Navy Day game at the Submarine Base gridiron, Tuesday afternoon, the Base winning by a 27 to nothing score. The Base also showed a nice running attack that its opponents were unable to stop. The Bushnell were never in striking distance of the goal except once in the early part of the game.

BASEBALL PLAYERS OPPOSE PLAYER-WRITER CUSTOM

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Baseball writers here meeting today, went on record as being opposed to the major league stars lending their names to articles on the world's series. They urged President Heydler, of the National league, Ban Johnson, president of the American league, and Commissioner Landis to prohibit the practice.

Greeneville Tigers vs. Speedboys

This Sunday, Nov. 1, at Ashland park, Jewett City, the Greeneville Tigers will attempt to repeat their early-season victory over the powerful Speedboys. Since their defeat the Speedboys have improved to such a great extent that Greeneville's chances, unless they play better than they did before, are pretty slim. Competent, unbiased officials have been secured and the field is marked off at ten yards, spaces and new goal posts have been erected. With both teams at a razor edge a furious battle is sure to result. The kick-off will be at 2:45 p. m.

B. U. Swimming Schedule

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A swimming schedule of five meets was announced at Boston university today. The dates are:

January 9, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; 15, Syracuse; 16, Wesleyan at Middletown; 22, Williams at Williamstown; 23, Rensselaer at Troy.

Meets were said to be pending with Brown, Springfield and Lowell Textile.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Twenty-two cities in Ohio have boxing commissions.

Some of the toboggan slides at Swiss winter resorts are nearly a mile long.

A team of Irish women hockey players is planning for an early visit to America.

Another new record in connection with the recent world series—Jim Corbett pitched the winner.

Notre Dame has lost as many football games this season as it did in all the preceding five years.

Napoleon Lajoie, in his day one of the greatest of baseball players, is now a member of the boxing commission in Cleveland.

The record high score for football games in the Western intercollegiates conferences was the 107 to 0 victory won by the University of Michigan over the University of Iowa in 1902.

Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska lightweight, who is a great favorite among the fight fans in the far west, is scheduled to meet Sid Terris of New York before one of the Los Angeles clubs in November.

The first big event of the professional billiard season will be a match for the world's 18.2 balkline championship between Jacob Schaefer, the title-holder, and the Belgian cue expert, Edouard Horemans. The contest will be at 1500 points in three blocks of 500 each and is scheduled to begin November 30 in Orchestra hall, Chicago.

An excellent program has been prepared by the Maryland Jockey club for the short autumn meeting opening at Pimlico on November 2. The customary daily steeplechase will be a popular feature. Pimlico was the first track in the country to hold a race over the jumps every day and consequently its meetings never fail to attract nearly all the leading cross-country stables.

One of America's most noted golfers has calculated that on an average round on a championship course with two long holes and others that call for fairly long second shots he uses his clubs as follows: Driver 14 times, brassie 2 times, driving iron 2 times, mashie iron 10 times, mashie niblick 6 times, mashie 6 times, niblick 2 times, midiron 2 times and putter 36 times. This gives a total of 74 strokes for the round.

STAGED JOLLY PARADE AS CAB HORSE LEFT HAMBURG STREETS

HAMBURG, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—When the horse cab left Hamburg, most of the former drivers of which have procured licenses as taxi chauffeurs, staged an impressive farewell parade, in which every type of cabin existence was represented.

A herald on horseback at the head of the parade was dressed in an old-fashioned jerkin trimmed with fur and carried the banner of the coach drivers' guild. Each of the vehicles was decorated and the drivers were bedecked with white, brown, gray or black top hats. On a [illegible] organgrinder... top hats. On a large hay wagon throned a miniature "pub" to symbolize the cab-drivers' proverbial thirst.

Lacquered Furniture Popular

LONDON, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—Lacquered furniture has become very popular amongst society people. A suite of this kind of furniture for the bedroom has just been completed for the Queen of Spain, in a superb shade of blue. Princess Mary's needles have been the ex-soldiers at Lord Roberts' Workshops turn out a bedroom suite for her new home, race-top, Suffolk, at Newmarket. The ground tone is of old ivory with colorings in reds, blues and greens harmonized.

Suffers Rare Disease He Sues

WINCHESTER, Va., Oct. 27—(A. P.)—Claiming his health has been permanently injured by the gaseous fumes from a fire, considered one of the rarest of those afflictions, Garrett H. Mann of Shenandoah county, has entered suit against his former employers, a manganese mining company, for $25,000 damages. In his petition he said international specialists had treated Mr. He accuses the mining company of not complying with state health laws.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drug-store. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

ANNOUNCING New Agency for De Laval Cream Separators and Milkers

We are glad to announce to our farmer friends that we now have the agency for both De Laval Cream Separators and Milkers.

The new De Laval Separator is recognized everywhere as the world's best separator. It has all the good features of the old machine, plus a self-centering bowl, light running qualities, all-around superiority and greater convenience. A new De Laval Separator will soon pay for itself in savings made.

The De Laval is the only milker which milks with absolute uniformity—the way cows like to be milked. It can't become tired; can't become cross or irritable; can't get out of adjustment. It is "The Better Way of Milking" in every respect—faster, cheaper and cleaner. It is proving so everywhere.

De Lavals are easy to buy—for cash, on easy terms or on the installment plan. Call and let us show you the separator and milker, or better still, let us demonstrate them on your own farm. Catalogs on request.

PROMOTERS MUST GIVE HALF OF RECEIPTS AWAY IN ALL BOUTS FOR CHARITY

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—The New York state athletic commission fired a broadside at charity boxing exhibitions today when it ruled that in the future fifty per cent. of the gross receipts, minus the state tax, of all charity bouts, must be filed with the commission for distribution to the organization or interest for which the benefit is held.

This legislation was enacted following many charity bouts this year in which the organizations to be benefitted received little or no money as their share of the receipts.

The commission also voted unanimously to raise the fees of referees, judges and doctors employed by the commission. Heretofore the referees received a minimum of $25 for a match and the judges $15 while in many cases doctors who examined the boxers received no compensation.

The new scale of fees raises the referees' compensation from $25 to $50 and the judges' from $15 to $25 as a minimum.

Doctors will hereafter receive $25 for their work of examining all of the boxers on a card. For bouts of which the gate is in excess of $20,000 the referees will receive $100 and the judges $50 and for all title matches referees will receive $200 an judges $100.

Johnny Dundee, former world's featherweight and junior lightweight champion, was called before the commission to show cause why he should not go to Paris and fulfill a contract to meet Fred Bretonnel, French lightweight. Dundee agreed to go if the commission ruled but requested the board to investigate Bretonnel's weight. Dundee contended that he has information from France that Bretonnel has outgrown the lightweight division and is now a welterweight. The commission promised to investigate before forcing Dundee to go through with the match.

The commission also reinstated Irish Johnny Mahoney, Boston boxer, following similar action by the Massachusetts commission. Corporal Izzy Schwartz of Brooklyn, was suspended for 30 days for protesting a decision he lost to Black Bill at the Commonwealth A. C. Saturday night.

"A GRAND AWAKENING"

WESTERLY

Mr. and Mrs. C. Rossi, parents of Councilman Louis J. Rossi, who will accompany them to New York will sail Saturday, Oct. 31, on the Lloyd Sabaudo line steamer Conte Rosso for Naples and Genoa, Italy. In Italy Mr. and Mrs. Rossi will make a visit to their native town of Arciste.

Navy day was observed in Westerly Tuesday by a general display of flags. On the state armory, Dixon street, the state flag was displayed over the entrance, while the stars and stripes were flown from the masthead on the front lawn. Westerly postoffice, town hall and school buildings and many business blocks were flying the national flag. Navy day recalled the fact that Commodore Perry once resided in Westerly, and the site of his abode generally pointed out is the residence of Court B. Bliven on Main street, near the site of the Bliven Opera House burned by fire the first of the year. A story is also told of the naval officer sailing up the Pawcatuck river and leaving his ship of war near Margin street, to attend the wedding of relative in town near by.

For the Armistice day celebration, Wednesday, Nov. 11, plans will be continued this (Wednesday) evening at the second committee meeting under Chairman George Kemp, when representatives from Harold W. Merrill post, America Legion; Harley P. Chase post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and British-Canadian Veterans gather at 7.30 in the American Legion post rooms on Broad street. At this meeting it will be learned who will be the speaker of the day. The time for holding the street parade together with the ceremony of the presentation by Merrill post, American Legion, of two United States flags and flag-pole to the Westerly hospital will be determined. At the meeting of the committee of 30 last Wednesday progress was made regarding the formation of the parades and it is expected that the marshal will be announced this evening.

Max Lahn of Westerly is progressing toward recovery following an operation in which some of the bone has been removed from his nose.

Only four more days remain in which Westerly taxpayers can make their contribution for the running expenses of the town, to gain advantage of the discount interval which exists from the 15th of October to Nov. 1st, and after which time an interest is added. Monday continued the banner day for collections in point of number of individual payers, there being 280 town debtors who had their accounts balanced.

Tuesday morning the delayed tax books in printed form made their appearance for the previous ten days in which tax payments have been made were without the books. So popular did the printed tax books prove that the supply was exhausted before Tuesday night but more were promised Wednesday.

The extra passenger train with passengers from the sound steamer Commonwealth, which broke some buckets on her paddle wheel shortly after rounding Point Judith in the high seas which prevailed Sunday night when the steamboat was bound from Fall River to New York city, slowed up as it passed the Westerly station of the New Haven road about 7.10 Monday night, but did not stop. The passengers completing the New York trip by rail filled the train.

Richard Slaughter, a resident of Lower Pawcatuck reported that as long as he had lived there he had never seen the day, until Sunday, when at some time during the day the water had not gone down in the river with the outgoing tide. On that day he reported high water over the dock plates and that it had stayed high the entire day in the Pawcatuck.

Records in the town clerk's office show that on Oct. 23, Elizabeth R. Chester sold to Max Lahn and son David Lahn, of Pawcatuck, a certain lot of land with building and improvement on the north side of Park avenue, including a twelve foot right of way across lands of John Champlin to Newton avenue. Genevieve W. Canfield of Brookline, Mass., through her attorney, Louis W. Dunn of Providence gave a general release on lot No. 1, Melrose Heights, developement off Cross street to the Maynard Land company of Providence.

George Emery Chapman of Westerly has a copper pocket piece about the size of the large old fashioned penny about which he would like to know more. The coin was given him by Capt. Emory Babcock, who with his brother Ezra at one time owned the old Leonard hotel on Main street. Capt. Babcock was a Westerly man, who went to California during the gold rush and on his return brought the coin home with him and gave it to Mr. Chapman. The latter was born in Peckham Hollow, town of Charlestown and moved to Westerly with his parents when he was two years old. The gift was made as Mr. Chapman's middle name was given him from Capt. Babcock's first name. In the center of the coin in a depression about a half inch in diameter appears the figure "40", while about it appears a wreath and just above the center on the reverse is a group of thirteen stars in rainbow formation. The remainder of the coin is worn so that further marks could not be distinguished.

Miss Elizabeth D. Pendleton of Westerly and Stonington will make a vacation visit this week to New York.

Miss Thirza Dock of Narragansett, R. I., was the guest of James Young of Westerly when en route to take up her school duties in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. D. C. Babcock of Avondale, R. I., is critically ill at the Peter Brant Brigham hospital in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Pickering of Jamestown, Va., who have been visiting relatives in Avondale left Westerly Sunday for Boston.

Westerly local, No. 516, Electrical Workers, was instituted Monday night in Caledonian hall, when Organized Cavanaugh of Boston was present. John Sullivan was elected president. Other officers chosen were Joseph Terranova, vice president; Adrian R. Pierce, secretary; Daniel Ashworth, treasurer; and Albert Hall, foreman. The new electrical union will be affiliated with the Central Labor union.

The senior prom is to be held this (Wednesday) night in the high school hall. Sylvia Rinne is chairman of the social committee, which includes Grace Brindle, Agnes Bisset, Eleanor Mitchell, Olga Gervasini and Ida Suprika. Libero Prestini heads the committee on decorations. His assistants are Harold Ribner, Louis Juliano, Theodore Markoff and Nathaniel Capalbo.

The engagement of Miss Jessie S. Ahern of this town to Bernhardt Anderson of Pawtucket, was announced Saturday evening at a bridge party given at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ahern.

How to Make Up Menus, under the subject of "Menus," was explained by Miss Alice Bradley, principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, and editor of the cooking department of the Woman's Home Companion, to the more than two hundred members of the Young Women's Community association of Westerly in the church school room of Christ Episcopal church Monday evening. This was the first meeting of the present season and Grace Willard presided with Mrs. Thelma Smith secretary. The assembled members were seated at long tables decorated with Hallowe'en favors, where tangible matter of Miss Bradley's subject were enjoyed consisting of meat loaf, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, relish, rolls, coffee, apple pie and ice cream.

Mrs. Farquhar Smith Mrs. Hobart Saunders, Mrs. Loren McLaren and Mrs. Mark Pierson, all of Westerly, were automobile visitors in Hartford Tuesday.

M. J. Hatton of Providence called on business associates in Pawcatuck and Westerly Tuesday.

Arthur Dubrelle, who visited Boston Monday, returned Tuesday, to accompany John Galin, a passenger from Naples, Italy on the steamer Leonardo da Vinci, which was held up at quarantine on his return to Westerly, after an absence of several months visiting in France and Italy.

Charles E. Dewey, who has returned from a two weeks' hunting trip in Maine and Canada to his home in New London, visited business friends in Westerly and Pawcatuck Tuesday.

Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., Fred N. Robinson, worshipful master, held a stated communication Tuesday evening in the Masonic rooms on High street.

Supernumerary Patrolman LeRoy Norman was on duty Monday and Tuesday on Canal street where sewer main installation at the junction of Railroad avenue and Canal street required one-way street traffic.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kane a passenger in the New York to Boston Colonial bus, who was injured, having her ribs cracked, in a collision between the bus and a truck of Peter Priore, at the junction of High and Pierce streets on the afternoon of Oct. 14th has recovered so that she has left the Westerly hospital and Tuesday afternoon returned to her Brooklyn home by train.

Westerly members of Ancient Ac-cepted Scottish Rite of Free Masonry, sitting in the Valley of Providence, will attend a meeting of the order this (Wednesday) evening in Providence, when the eighteenth degree, sovereign prince of Rose Croix, will be worked on a class of candidates.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

GARDEN ACCUMULATIONS SHOULD BE DESTROYED

With the recent foretaste of winter, most people having vegetable gardens have harvested all root crops remaining in the ground, but this should not be the end of the garden season.

Potato tops and weeds and all the other trash which accumulates during the last end of the season should be raked up and destroyed. This is not only true in the vegetable garden, but should apply in a certain measure to the flower garden and shrubs. Bulbs, such as dahlias, cannas, etc., should be dug and prepared for storage, and the tops of such plants collected and burned. If any shrubs or flowers have shown signs of disease during the growing season, this destruction is all the more necessary, and the sooner it is accomplished the better the chance to prevent similar troubles next year. Leaves which may be blown or dropped from such diseased plants should also be raked and destroyed. Ordinarily dry leaves make a good mulch, and it is a common practice to rake them up and use them for a protection for the roots of perennials and shrubs.

When the leaves have gone from shrubs they may be safely transplanted, if this is desired, without waiting until spring.

Vegetable gardens when cleaned free from debris should be plowed or spaded over this fall. This will kill many of the insects which winter in the ground as grubs, and ordinarily appear in greater numbers the following spring. If you have planned to lime the vegetable garden, this may be done in the fall, and the lime will have a longer period in which to become effective.

CLEAN ORCHARDS TO PREVENT APPLE MAGGOTS

It has been many years since apple maggots have caused so much damage to fruit as they have this season. The apple maggot, or commonly called railroad worm, is usually found in abundance in uncared-for orchards. Its particular favorite fruits are apples of sweet varieties. Baldwins and McIntoshs are not usually affected by this pest, but this year many orchards have reported considerable damage to the McIntosh by railroad worms.

These apple-maggot flies are usually seen in the orchards early in July, and after three or four weeks from their emergence begin to deposit eggs under the skin of the fruit. These eggs hatch in from two to six days, and the maggots begin to burrow though the fruit. Apples so infested are rendered useless except for cider.

The maggot flies worked quite late this year. They were found in orchards still working as late as the middle of September.

The principal method of control remains always the same—cleaning up windfalls and droppings. An arsenate of lead spray, applied about July 1, will usually kill off many of the flies, and in ordinary years in well-sprayed orchards apple maggots causes little injury. With their greater prevalence this year, however, it becomes very important that the fruit growers of this county make every effort to remove all droppings from the orchard, for badly infested apples generally drop and many are left on the ground, not even worth the expense of handling for cider. The maggot in such fruit will escape from the fruit where it has fallen and then, as a railroad worm, burrows into the soil where it hibernates in pupal stage until the fly emerges next year.

METHODS OF CONTROLLING DISEASE OF STRAWBERRIES

The more important diseases of strawberries are described in a recent bulletin issued by the United States department of agriculture as farmers' bulletin 1458 together with an account of such control methods as are of proved values. The great variety of conditions under which the strawberry is grown necessitates different methods of culture and handling. Methods of control of strawberry diseases must be adapted to local conditions.

Severe attacks of leaf diseases—leaf-spot, scorch, and mildew—may be controlled by spraying or dusting. Often, however, frequent renewal of strawberry patches or the use of resistant varieties will serve to keep these diseases in check.

The diseases caused by nematodes may be avoided by planting strawberries in soil which is free from these pests. Infected land may be freed from nematodes by a three-year rotation with immune crops.

Fruit rots may be reduced by proper mulching. Careful handling and adequate refrigeration will greatly lessen the losses from rots which occur after picking.

THE FAMILY LIVING FROM THE FARM

Above their cash income from the farm, farmers have other income in the form of food products which they set aside for consumption by their families, use of houses for their shelter, and some fuel for use in their homes. These items in the aggregate represent an appreciable part of the cost of living of farm families on the one hand and of the returns from the farm business on the other.

Data collected by the department of agriculture from several thousand farms show that the value of the family living at farm prices approximates one-third the cost of living of farm families, and two-thirds the cost of food, fuel and house rent. It is one-ninth the farm receipts, and one-third the farm income.

Variations with localities, with annual production, with years of prosperity and depression, and with different families, accompany these approximations, the department points out. In 1918 and 1919, years of agricultural prosperity, the value of the family living from the farm was only about one-fifth as much as the farm income; but in 1921 and 1922 years of agricultural depression, it was fully one-third as much.

The family living from the farm lends safety and stability to the farm business and to farm life, the department says. It enables the farmer to reduce materially the cash cost of living and to tide over lean years and hard times that would be ruinous if he had to buy all the living for himself and family on the market.

It would not be inferred, however, the department points out, that this living is obtained entirely free of cost to the farmer. The direct money cost for some of the items may be little, but the production of the several items represents labor, capital, and sometimes cash outlay for materials. Much of the labor, however, is performed as an insignificant part of the main labor of the farm business at times when the work of the main business is not urgent, and often by the wife and children.

Much of the capital employed in the production of the food items of the family living from the farm is necessary for the farm business, the survey shows, and is at hand, and the materials used in their production are sometimes by-products or wastes from the business. Frequently some of the family living from the farm has little or no market value, and some of it is not of the better market grades.

Farm families often utilize small potatoes, overripe or undersized fruit, eggs with soiled shells, and other low grade produce. Many of the garden vegetables grown on the farms in some localities can not be sold. On the other hand, the hogs, better, poultry, and similar products, which go to make up part of the family living from the farm, usually have a ready market. The value of the house rent includes interest and depreciation on the house, and the cash costs of insurance, taxes and repairs.

CONTROL OF BROOD-REARING FOR MAXIMUM HONEY CROP

The quantity of nectar gathered by a colony of honeybees does not depend merely on the number of bees in the colony during the honey flow, says the United States department of agriculture. It depends, rather, upon the number of bees that are the proper age to serve as nectar gatherers when the honey flow opens.

Since normally a worker bee, before going to the field, spends the first two or three weeks of its life in duties within the hive, most of the bees should emerge from the brood cells about three weeks in advance of the main honey flow, in order to have the largest possible number of field bees ready at the proper moment. In other words, the queen should reach her maximum egg-laying rate during the period six weeks prior to the honey flow.

Since a colony left to itself does not usually bring forth the new worker bees at the most advantageous time, a correct understanding of the principles governing brood rearing throughout the year becomes of prime importance to the beekeeper, if he is to handle his colonies in such a way as to secure a maximum honey crop. The principles are discussed in department bulletin No. 1,349, prepared by the United States department of agriculture after an intensive study of the brood-rearing cycle of the honeybee.

Lack of knowledge of the principles governing brood rearing may cause a reduction in the honey crop by bringing about in a colony any or all of the three following possibilities:

1.—The population of the colony may not become large enough to provide sufficient field bees during nectar flows to gather surplus adequate to give the beekeeper a fair return for the time spent and capital invested.

2.—Surplus honey may be consumed in regions of early nectar flows by bees which have emerged too late to serve as nectar gatherers, and too early to winter over or even assist in building up the colony for the winter.

3.—Swarming may be stimulated if the ratio between hive bees and field bees does not remain such as will avoid causing a congestion within the hive whenever one of these classes is relatively idle while the other is extremely busy.

The prevention of any or all of these states involves such questions as wintering, stores for spring, requeening, population of the colony at the beginning of brood rearing, swarm control, requeening, removal of brood and other related factors.

Among some of the important factors which are within the power of the bee keeper to provide are a prolific queen, sufficient bees wintered over to meet all brood-rearing requirements in the spring, sufficient worker brood cells, sufficient stores of good honey and proper insulation. All of these are factors which must and can be provided in the manipulations in the latter part of the previous season if the beekeeper wishes to take advantage of the natural tendency toward intense brood-rearing activity at the beginning of spring.

Conditions within the hive making for brood rearing during the period of initial expansion may be likened to a charge of explosives set to go off at a certain moment in the spring, the time depending on weather conditions; in the one case the force of the resulting explosion is definitely predetermined by the quantity of the charge; in the other case the amount of brood reared is definitely predetermined by the provisions made in the preceding season to give the colony the conditions most favorable for the purpose.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM CLARK HELD TUESDAY AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 27—Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock funeral services were held for William Clark, former agent of the William Clark Mills of the American Thread company, Pawcatuck at his home, 42 Elm street. Rev. Fred A. McDonald, pastor of the Old South Congregational church of Worcester, Mass., formerly pastor of Pawcatuck Congregational church, Westerly, of which Mr. Clark was at one time a trustee, conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of Calvary Baptist church of Westerly, a neighbor. The bearers were J. B. Kerr of Fall River, ass., R. C. Kerr of New York City; A. H. MacGregor of Newark, N. J., and J. M. Pendleton, Harry R. Milner and Arthur M. Cottrell all of Westerly. Burial was in the family burial plot in River Bend cemetery.

Mr. Clark in active life was a well-known golfer, a senior U. S. amateur champion, and member of the Misquamicut Golf club of Watch Hill, also of the Arawam Hunt Club of Providence and of other social organizations, including the Colonial club of Westerly, the flag of which club was half-masted during the funeral.

Local residents saved some of the furniture. A. J. MacLeod rang the church bell, arriving later to assist at the fire.

LYNCH SAYS "TRAMP PRINTER" STILL HERE BUT NEW TYPE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 27—The "tramp printer," that colorful character of great wanderlust, has not disappeared, in the opinion of James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union, and he offers records to prove it.

"The type has changed but the 'boomer' is still with us," said Mr. Lynch. "The difference is that the traveling type who once rode the brake-rods and the blind baggage now spins blithely along in his own automobile and is seldom financially embarrassed.

"Scarcely a day passes that a newspaper somewhere in America does not solemnly record the passing of the 'last of the old-time tramp printers.' Some one is always trying to rob the present of the picturesque in order to reflect glamor on the past. The fact is that more traveling cards are being issued to union printers today than were issued at any time in the past.

"The 'tramp printer' of the old days was highly useful as well as romantic. He carried the printed word into the dark places of the earth. He came into contact with the best minds of the age and travel broadened his outlook. Unfortunately his mode of life tended to enlarge his imagination and his travelogues sometimes extended to free-handed fiction, but he was a genial lovable type and practically never vicious.

"The traveling printer of today manages things much better. He is seldom without money and he usually studies conditions of business before motoring into new and untried fields. His union card establishes his competency and he is assured of work as a 'sub' when he arrives in a union town."

Mr. Lynch was asked if he believed the traveling propensity of printers was good for them.

"No, not as a continuous performance. Thrift and steadiness are virtues that outweigh all others a craftsman may possess, but the exchange of ideas on craft methods is undoubtedly good for the trade."

FORMER BREWERS NOW SERVE AS U. S. PROHIBITION AGENTS

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 27—A number of former brew masters in the recent role of prohibition agents, now are on duty at cereal beverage plants in this district, to prevent the making and distribution of beer containing more than the legal alcoholic content.

Frederick C. Baird, prohibition administrator, hit upon the plan of utilizing the expert knowledge of former brew masters in spotting the flow of illegal beer into the Pittsburgh district.

The brewmaster-dry agent is stationed at near-beer plants suspected of violating the law with instructions to test each barrel of product that is hauled to the loading platform.

CHESTNUT FACES EXTINCTION AS AN AMERICAN DELICACY

ITHACA, Oct. 27—The chestnut as an American delicacy is facing extinction. Plant pathologists and foresters at Cornell University say the reason is a serious blight communicated from tree to tree by the wind, a contamination which has been unhampered during the last 20 years.

The disease, which these pathologists describe as incurable, makes the situation more serious. The blight was first discovered in a Brooklyn park in 1904, but it was not until two years ago that it was discovered in other parts of the country.

BOYCOTT AGAINST FOREIGN BUSINESS
A SERIOUS RESULT OF CHAOS IN CHINA

(This is the third of a series of articles by Drew Pearson, describing the sentiment of the yellow man for the white man in China.)

By Drew Pearson

PEKING, China.—The Chinese boycotts have caused such heavy losses to British and Japanese merchants that some of them are on the verge of bankruptcy. Outside of the threat of a future color war, this boycott against foreign business is the most serious result of the chaos in China.

British interests have suffered most, and although they will not admit the seriousness of their loss, one figure alone illustrates the staggering blow which the Chinese have dealt. Shipments from Lancashire cotton mills dropped in one month from a normal average of L1,000,000 to the paltry sum of L527.

British shipping is suffering an even more serious loss. Since the strike an average of only 4 ships a day have entered or cleared the port of Hongkong, whereas before the strike the number was 2,094 daily. The tonnage of Hongkong has dropped from an average of 4,700,000 per month, to the insignificance of 55,819 tons since the strike.

The Canadian Pacific liners, whose Chinese crew went on strike, recruited substitute Japanese crews and as a result experienced one murder, several brawls and minor mutinies. Canadian businessmen have telegraphed to Premier MacKenzie King protesting against the 'very serious effect on Canadian export trade to the Far East' and pointed out that they are required to erase the labels and marks of identification from their goods in order to make the Chinese believe they are American.

How, you may well wonder, are the Chinese able to organize and maintain so effective a boycott? The answer requires a glimpse behind the scenes of the Chinese student movement.

Organizing the Boycott

In the first place the students had learned how to organize boycotts and strikes against foreigners. The student boycott against the Japanese had proved more powerful than any diplomatic negotiations in restoring the stolen province of Shantung and the general strike in Hongkong, instigated by the Chinese seamen, had won for them their demands against British shop owners.

In the present anti-British boycott, therefore, they simply oiled up and improved upon the old machinery. First of all, they tied up the shipping by inducing the wharf coolies to go on strike. An Oriental shipping port is absolutely dependent upon coolie labor. All of the work, part of which is performed by machinery in western cities, is done by the hands and backs of coolies. They even take the place of motor trucks and haul the freight on great pushcarts from steamer to warehouse. Without coolie labor, a Chinese commercial port might as well shut up and take a holiday.

Therefore, when the coolies of Shanghai, Canton and Hankow went on strike there was nothing to do except bank fires in the engine rooms and settle down to a good long wait.

After tying up the steamers, the students visited the compradors, or "middle men," and secured pledges from them to sell no British goods to retail merchants. Then, through the chambers of commerce, they secured pledges from the retailers that they would sell no British goods to consumers. An inventory was taken of the British goods already on hand, which the merchant was allowed to dispose of, and if the merchant could produce a bill of lading to show that he had additional British goods on hand, he was given a certificate of permission to sell these. The bills of lading were stamped in order that there might be no duplication.

In Hankow, for instance, the students organized an "institute for the inspection of British and Japanese goods" whose members are among the leading citizens of Hankow and whose duty it is to inspect the goods being sold all over their city, thus insuring an effective boycott.

Planting Hatred in School Books

The Hankow students are improvising flags to be carried by boats and rickshaws, bearing the inscription, "Boycott the British to the End" and "We Shall Never Carry Enemy Goods." They are also trying to get stories of the Shanghai, Hankow and Canton shootings inserted in the school books in order that the next generation may be raised on a diet of color prejudice.

Finally, and perhaps most important, the boycott has been backed by an intense spirit of nationalism such as China has never before known. Without this, the boycott would have been nothing. And without understanding this spirit, you cannot understand China today. In order to complete the story of the boycott, it is necessary to conclude, therefore, a conversation I had with a Chinese seaman who spoke pidgin English. I was deliberately pumping him to get his point of view and I asked him why he disliked the British.

"English make too much squeeze," he replied. "Make big squeeze, in China. Make much business. Send all money home. No good for China. England keep China very poor. Keep India very poor. Indian man live in very poor house. Sometimes sleep in street. Eat very small. Many times sick.

"English country make plenty squeeze. One time very small country. No got potatoes. Bimeby take Ireland. Bimeby take Scotland. Now all same country. Bimeby take India. Take Egypt. Take Singapore. Take Australia. One hundred fifty places all over world England take.

"One day British come along. Tell China 'We want small piece ground. Build nice street. Build big house. Make nice place.' Chinese say 'Can do.' Bimeby English bring big ship. Got big guns. Send Chinese away. Say: This now English place.' Put up sign on park 'Dogs keep out. Chinamen keep out.' Chinaman keep out dog. English tell Chinaman keep out his own country.

"England small island. No got nothing. No got bread. No got potatoes. Only ships. Got many ships. Ships bring goods back to England. No ships, no trade. England starve. Chinese strike. Englishman no got business. Got no trade. Bimeby English leave China.

"China got no guns. No got ships. No got money to buy ships. No can fight. Must strike. Strike more better. Strike no cost much. No kill people. Maybe win.

"Two time have strike in Hongkong. Every time more savvy (understand.) Have trouble, no savvy. English, more trouble, more savvy. This time get plenty big strike. Hongkong no can get cargoes, no can get coolies, no can get amah (servant) English missee) (Mrs.) be own amah. No can get cooks, no can get vegetables, no can get potatoes. Plenty big strike. Chinese policemen, Chinese government, Chinese businessmen, Chinese army, all pull same way. British no can eat. Not got potatoes. Maybe we win.

"Maybe we win. Maybe no win. All same. Maybe I get killed. All same. My daughter no get killed. My daughter nine years old. She live. She see China free."

This man was not giving me mere idle rhetoric. I am convinced that there are millions like him in China. The Chinese question really comes down to one statesmanship. The friendliest salesman gets the most business, which is true not only in selling cigars, but also in the national and international game, as Japan can testify after the Shantung boycott.

British business men apparently believe themselves an exception to that rule, for as I write, Hongkong merchants are holding "mass meetings" and practically demanding that London declare war upon the Canton government in order to force the Chinese to trade with them.

ETON BOYS HAVE AS MANY LAWS TO OBSERVE AS LESSONS

ETON, England, Oct. 27—New boys entering Eton college are confronted with as many rules and regulations as lessons. They find they may only walk in certain places; they are forbidden to go to any race course in the neighborhood or walk on the river bank during the Windsor races, and they are forbidden to go into any wine merchants, tobacconists or pawnshops.

No hotel, public house, private house, house boat, or launch may be entered by boys without the express leave of their house tutor. All shops are "out of bounds" on Sundays.

"laundry and dishpan hands"

Women who do their own work find this method keeps the skin soft and white

How often have you asked yourself this question:

"Oh, isn't there some way I can do my washing and dishes, and yet keep my hands looking nice?"

Millions of other women have answered "Yes." Let them tell you how they do it:

One of them says:

"I never use anything but Ivory either in the laundry or for kitchen work and for a very good reason. People have often said to me, 'Why do you always use Ivory Soap—do you not think it extravagant?' And my answer is, 'I find it most beneficial for my skin.'"

"All these years," says another letter, "I've been using Ivory, not having it used, and my hands are a constant source of envy from my friends. They've said to me, 'How on earth do you keep your hands so white and so soft?' My answer is, 'Ivory.'"

Is it safe for my skin?

Is it safe for my fabrics?

Does it make rich suds?

A grateful son says, "This winter has been the first in many years that my mother's hands have not become painfully chapped from housework, and she attributes her good fortune to the fact that she used Ivory Soap for everything—even for scrubbing."

If you are a little surprised at the suggestion to use for heavier tasks the soap which you may have thought of only as suitable for toilet, bath and fine laundry, consider this fact: Ivory is pure, a thorough cleanser, yet costs so little more than harsher soaps and powders that it quickly pays this extra cost in terms of protection for hands and clothes.

Try it and see for yourself.

Here is a fine, simple treatment for your complexion

WASH your face once or twice daily with warm water and Ivory Soap. Rinse in warm water and follow with a dash of cold. Dry thoroughly by patting with a soft towel. NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

In Norwich three quarters of a century ago there was very little that attracted newspaper interest locally but much space was devoted to the happenings in the outside world. There were rumors of a revolution in Panama and the slave question in California was under discussion.

Extracts from the files of The Courier of 1850 follow:

Tuesday, Oct. 1850—A report has been circulated that President Sparks of Harvard college was about to resign in consequence of ill health. We have reason to know that the rumor is unfounded. His illness is only temporary and he has expressed no intention of resigning.

A counterfeit gold dollar, the first we have ever heard of, was shown us last evening. Its appearance was good and calculated to deceive, but it was found on trial to weigh much less than the genuine.

The number of pianos manufactured annually in the United States is computed at 100,000. There are scarcely any pianos imported.

Allens who have been three years resident in this country, who did not arrive here until they were after 18 years of age, by making a declaration of their intention of becoming citizens previous to Nov. 7, 1850, may vote at the next presidential election.

In this vicinity and, we believe throughout the country, the potato crop has suffered much more severely from the blight this year than in any other former season. Many farmers in this town who anticipated a crop of from three to four hundred bushells have not enough to supply their own tables.

Thursday, Oct. 24, 1850—The Auxiliary Foreign Missionary society of Norwich and vicinity and also of New London held a meeting in this city yesterday. The report of contributions from several towns and of nothing from others satisfies us that the churches are extremely regardless of their duty. The amount contributed would average less than one Dollar per head for the members of the churches.

Gen. Riley and Com. Jones both declare in the Washington papers that they never received any instructions from Gen. Taylor or his cabinet, to influence the people of California on the subject of slavery.

By the Ohio, files of the Panama Star have been received. Considerable excitement has been created in consequence of the discovery of a scheme the object of which is to overthrow the existing government of that province, for the nominal purpose of declaring it independent of the Republic of New Grenada of which it is an integral part. Owing to the vigilance of the governor it seems the plot was discovered in time enough to defeat it.

The Russian language will be introduced as the official language into Poland the first of next January. It would be impossible to make a more would be impossible to make a more melancholly announcement.

Accounts from the Sandwich Islands, received by way of San Francisco, give a glowing description of the celebration of the anniversary of the restoration of the islands by Vice Admiral Thomas on the 1st of July 1843.

A. W. Snow, cashier of the Mechanic's and Manufacturers' Bank has been committed to jail in Providence in default of $2,500 bail. His trial comes in December.

Saturday, Oct. 26, 1850—Counterfeit three dollar bills on the East Haddam bank are again in circulation. Two of these bills were "showed up" yesterday in this city. It is said they bear the impression of the same counterfeit plate that was used some two or three years ago.

Major Hobbie, long first assistant postmaster general, has, we learn, resigned that office to accept the presidency of the Ocean Steam Navigation Co. of New York.

It has been supposed by many that young Ritter who fell from East Rock in New Haven several days ago was the great ledges of East Rock since the settlement of the town. But we are informed that some fifty years ago, a man named Hotchkiss fell from the same height to the same distance below, over 150 feet. It was supposed of course that he was dead but when approached the contrary was seen. A person who came to his assistance said to him, "You are dreadfully hurt, Mr Hotchkiss." "Well, it hasn't done me any good," replied the injured man. That was cool, decidedly. Hotchkiss recovered his health soon after and was to the day of his death, called "East Rock Hotchkiss."

The Greenfield, Mass., Courier announces that David Damon, depot agent on the Connecticut river railroad at Holyoke is a defaulter to the amount of six or seven thousand dollars. The company is nearly, if no, entirely, secured by his bonds and some property in his possession.

INDIANS TRADE FARE WITH MEADOW MICE

The golden rule is extended so far as to cover dealings between men and mice by the Indians of the Dakotas according to Melvin R. Gilmore, anthropologist of the State Historical society of North Dakota.

The Indians of the region, Mr. Gilmore states, are very fond of the underground fruits of the ground bean, which are very rich and nutritious But the only creature that can successfully gather these beans is a species of meadow mouse, which hoards them in storage pits in the ground.

The Indians rob these pits as white men would. But they do something that it is doubtful would be imitated by white men, for they always leave part of the beans for the mice, and when they are about to make a raid they always speak politely to the "mouse people" about it. But what is even more alien to white men's ways, the Indians always give the mouse a fair equivalent in exchange, filling up the cache with corn, suet or other food. This, the redskin explains to the mouse, enables both parties to enjoy a variety in diet.

Patience Pays

"There are only a few investors," says John Moody in the Forbes Magazine "whom seem to have the patience and the courage to resist the temptation of investing their money at the wrong time. They appear to think that if one waits before investing worthwhile opportunities will surely slip by and that they will have lost their chance to get the best out of their capital.

"The investment market will always be with us, and new opportunities for wise investment come along just as fast as old opportunities disappear."

Irish to Change School System

Alteration of the entire education system of the Irish Free state, in order that Irish eventually would become the spoken language of the country is a plan which Prof. John Macneill, minister of education, has in mind. He referred to this intention recently while addressing teachers attending Irish classes at Kilkee Clare, saying the proposed changes would affect all education institutions from primary schools to universities.

LONDON FINDS OTHER THAN BEAUTY IN U. S. FILM STAR

POETRY

When Icy Winds Are Blowing

Hold me closer, mother dear,
Winter days are drawing near,
And icy winds are blowing.

Days are short and nights are drear,
The frosty breezes chill with fear
And soon it will be snowing.

Towards the south the birds have flown,
The leafless trees in anguish moan,
And flowers have stopped growing.

There's nothing summer calls her own,
The world is like a dog-picked bone,
And life itself is going.

Winter days and death are one,
With no more warmth left in the sun,
When icy winds are blowing.
—Ralph R. Larsen in Boston Transcript.

The Goldseekers

I saw these dreamers of dreams go by,
I trod in their footsteps a space;
Each marched with his eyes on the sky,
Each passed with a light on his face.

They came from the hopeless and sad,
They faced the future and gold;
Some the tooth of want's wolf had made mad,
And some at the forge had grown old.

Behind them these serfs of the tool
The rags of their service had flung;
No longer of fortune the fool,
This word from each bearded lip rung.

"Once more I'm a man, I am free!
No man is my master, I say;
Tomorrow I fall, it may be,—
No matter, I'm freeman today."

They go to a toil that is sure,
To despair and hunger and cold;
Their sickness no warning can cure,
They are mad with a longing for gold.

The light will fade from each eye,
The smile from each face;
The will curse the impassable sky,
And the earth when the snow torrents race.

Some will sink by the way and be laid
In the frost of the desolate earth;
And some will return to a maid,
Empty at hand as at birth.

But this out of all will remain,
They have lived and have tossed;
So much in the game will be gain,
Though the gold of the dice has been lost.

—HAMLIN GARLAND.

When anthracite miners quit their mines, the cats went in and are fattening, a dispatch from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., says. Rats that ordinarily lived well from the remnants of food left by miners were compelled to seek food above ground in stores and homes in the vicinity of the collieries. It was a challenge to the neighborhood cats. They are not only waging war on the rats that venture from the shafts but they trace them to their source. At first, the cats were inclined to wait at the mine entrance for their prey. Competition grew too keen and finally many of them ventured in for the first time. Cats prowl the workings now.

CALLING LIFE UNCERTAIN, JAS. FRASER, N. LONDON, DROPS DEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 27—James Fraser, about 65, of 32 Sixteenth street, died suddenly of apoplexy this morning. Mr. Frazer succumbing to the heart attack while he discussed death with his sister. Mr. Fraser was formerly employed as locomotive engineer by the Central Vermont railroad, having retired from active duty about 15 years ago. He was the son of the late Daniel Fraser and inherited property from his father in The Point section of Winthrop's Neck, East New London where Mr. Fraser had always resided. He was a member of Nameaug Engine company.

Mr. Fraser was apparently in sound health this morning and at 11:30 o'clock, while seated at a table he was discussing topics of the day with his sister. Finally he arose and as he did so she commented on the sudden death yesterday of John O'Brien, an acquaintance of Mr. Fraser for many years. Mr. Fraser remarked, "you can never tell when your time will come." Hardly had the words left his lips than he was stricken, collapsing and falling to the floor. A hurry call was sent for a physician and Dr. Walter Douglass responded, but Mr. Fraser was dead when the physician reached his side.

Mrs. Keifrin Pilat, residing in East New London at 11 Tenth street, was fined in the police court this morning. She pleaded guilty when accused and when she was fined $400 she settled as calmly as if she were settling a bill for trifles.

She handed out $419, and the police said the effort was not one that enervated her, for they credited her with a bank account of $7,000. The woman was caught at her unlawful practice through the complaint of two children of a man named Morgele. The children are a boy of about seventeen and his sister a few wyears older. They asked the police to put a stop to the visits of their father to the Pilat woman's home, where he is alleged to have spent his money for liquor and where he passed time that should have been made use of in work. The inquiry of the Moracle children was whether in place like the Pilat woman kept and where liquor was sold was to be allowed to exist in New London." The complaint was made to Police Sergeant Smith, and he got busy at once. He gave $2 to the youth who complained, and told him to go to the Pilat place and buy a bottle of liquor if it could be purchased there The liquor was obtained, and brought to the police officer, who then asked for a search warrant. That paper requires in a half dozen bottles of liquor and coloring matter being found, also a capital outfit of a still. These were consequented. Mrs. Pilat cannot speak English, but that does not seem to be necessary for her to accumulate money. She was given to understand that her first appearance in court should be her last one, and the warning was given her that she would go to jail if she came back within a year.

Michael Sullivan, a laborer, was up for intoxication. He has work, so judgment was suspended that he might go back to it.

Two women, Alexandrina Gosko and Mary Potlyi, became involved in a dispute over the boundary line between their property, with the result that they hurled stones at each other and were arrested for breach of the peace. They are on the verge of a civil suit, so they were allowed to pursue that course if they so desired.

Liquor cases that were started by John McCarthy, a spy for the state police, and by State Policeman Albright when the latter overtook a couple of Filipino sailors conveying a dress suit case through the streets that was so heavy in appearance that the sailors were suspected of having booze, did not reach a satisfactory termination in either McCarthy or the state policeman. The cases were those against Benjamin Pumeranz, a clothier, who maintains a locker hall for sailors in Green street, and Felix Palma and Gurline Manilla, from CG-187, a coast guard patrol steamer. The cases were all quashed, that of Pumeranz because the state had no evidence to convict, as McCarthy had changed his statements regarding who sold him liquor, and in the cases of the sailors because there was doubt as to where they obtained their liquor—eight quarts of it. They told the police officer who arrested them that the commander of the 187 obtained it from a rum-running vessel in Rum Row, and later they declared that they got the liquor from members of the crew of the patrol boat. The sailors were turned over to the commander at the state pier and they will, it is said, be punished with others who are responsible for the theft of the liquor.

An automobile owned by George Sistare Jr., Station 13 1-2, Waterford, was stolen last night from its place of parking on Golden street, while the owner was at an amusement place nearby. The theft of the car was discovered about 11 o'clock and a report made to the police by Sistare. About 1 o'clock this morning the machine was found by Patrolman William Riordan on Lincoln avenue, where it had been abandoned when the machine became disabled. The car was towed to the police station where it was recovered today by the owner.

Mrs. Earl Parks, 26 Raymond street complained to the police this afternoon that the driver of automobile bearing Connecticut license N-5825 had collided with her automobile on Broad street, and had evaded responsibility by driving away without stopping to determine the extent of the damage occasioned. The police found that the car that collided with Mrs. Parks' machine is registered in the name of William Welsh, Eastern Point Road, Groton. A telephone message to the Welsh residence revealed the fact that Mr. Welsh is absent from Groton and when he will return Mrs. Welsh was unable to state. Mrs. Welsh stated that she supposed the automobile was in the garage and that if Mrs. Parks is correct in having obtained the registration of the colliding car, the latter machine was taken and used without the permission of the owner.

Sergeant John Cavanaugh late this afternoon arrested two youths, neither of whom is 14, for breaking into the Winthrop school last Sunday afternoon and besides committing petty thefts, they are guilty of doing much mischief in the building. The boys were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and will be presented in the juvenile court the latter part of the week.

Funeral services for Olin F. Miller, formerly of Groton, whose death occurred in New Rochelle, N. Y., on Sunday, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Union lodge rooms. Rev. Chester H. Howe pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated. Members of Union lodge acted as bearers. Burial was in Groton cemetery, where the ritual was conducted by members of Union lodge.

James M. Daniels, 53, of Waterford, died at the residence of his brother, Joseph Daniels, Hallouf Hill Waterford late yesterday morning. He is survived by four brothers Joseph Daniels, with whom he resided; William Daniels, Putnam; John Daniels, Niantic and Allen Daniels, Flanders. Mr. Daniels was employed by mills in Flanders and Jordan the greater part of his life. He was born in Chesterfield, the son of the late Washburn and Martha Daniels.

Master Henry Hall of Oakdale, who was kicked in the face by a horse several days ago; Mrs. John Johnson of Waterford and Dana Engerton, Old Mystic, were patients admitted at Home Memorial hospital today.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Rogers, 303 Williams street, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Hazel Lee Rogers, to Archibald Allison of Ipswich, Mass. The wedding will take place at the residence of Miss Rogers' parents next month.

No trace has been found of Kenneth Watrous, former local civil engineer, who mysteriously disappeared from one of the boats engaged in the work of dredging the channel of the Connecticut river at Glastonbury Sunday. The belief is general now that the young man was accidentally drowned.

An automobile, owned and driven by Dr. Emanuel A. Henkle, 51 Federal street, and a car owned and operated by Guido S. Molcarue, Essex, were in collision on State street, near the corner of Union street this evening. Both cars especially the physician's were damaged. Dr. Henkle's car was a Stutz sedan.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bread Theatre

The stage play from which "Welcome Stranger" is adapted has a remarkably successful run in both New York and Chicago. In its screen translation it registers as excellent comedy drama, cleverly acted, well directed and possessing a general audience appeal.

Human nature at its worst and best is sharply outlined in this story of a small town and intolerant inhabitants who display such animosity to the Hebrew stranger in their midst. Little Isadore Solomon, patient and persistent in the face of malignant persecution, plays bravely appealing figure, as is the heroine, Mary Clark, whose mysterious past makes her the target for the suspicions and insults of the scandalmongers.

Director James Young has done an excellent job in handling his material. With unerring skill and good judgment he mingles pathos and comedy. Tears and laughter are alternately provoked by situations which move with refreshing smoothness of detail, the melodramatic sequences are immensely effective and the action never drags.

The plot pivots upon the attempt of Isadore and Clem Beemis, a fair-seeing inventor, to light the town with electricity. Solomon furnishes the capital to buy the water-power, in Mary's name, but from the start they meet with steady opposition, the mayor being one of their bitterest enemies. Isadore cannot rent a store to market his goods on account of the hatred the townsfolk have for him. Ned Tyler, banker's son, comes to his aid and lends him a house in which to keep his stock.

They light the house with electricity and the mayor throws a switch which blows up the building and incidentally destroys Isadore's goods. This is a well staged episode and provides one of the best thrills in the picture. A scheme to discredit Mary fails, Ned marries her, the faithful quartette find financial backing, erect a big power-house, and are finally recognized and honored by their former foes.

Dore Davidson covers himself with artistic glory by giving a wonderfully realistic portrayal of Isadore Solomon. Florence Vidor adds fresh lustre to her screen laurels in a thoroughly appealing performance as heroine. "Welcome" Stranger will be shown at the Breed today and Thursday.

There are loves between men and women; there is the love between a mother and her daughter, there is the love of the mother for her son; but some way when father has a deep sensitive love for "his boy," a different element has come into life.

It is a love one cannot know very well because men hide this feeling. They become shy, and because of this shyness it is apt to put a barrier between them and the ones they love the most.

"New Brooms," my new picture," says William de Mille, "is the story of such a love, of that of a father for his boy. I was very interested in making this into motion picture. It has that element which Barrie calls 'That dammed charm.'"

Bessie Love, Neil Hamilton and Phyllis Haver are the featured players in the picture due on Thursday at the Palace theatre.

Clara Beranger did the continuity for "New Brooms" from Frank Craven's stage play of the same name.

Airplane service between Camp Harold Bell Wright and Tuscon, Arizona, 50 miles away, was one of the time saving devises inaugurated by Director Victor Fleming while on location in Arizona directing "A Son of His Father."

Because of the tremendous distance to the nearest supply source a special airplane, piloted by an ex-army aviator, was engaged to be at the location camp night and day to carry supplies and mail to and from the location and Tuscon, Arizona.

Due to the rough trail the only other means of transportation was by pack-train. By this method the trip required several days. Via the airplane route only one hour was required.

Motion picture film made on the location during the day was put upon the west-bound train in Tuscon the same evening. In this way it is estimated the airplane transportation saved thousands of dollars in time to the company.

Featured players in "A Son of His Father" are Bessie Love, Warner Baxter and Raymond Hatton. The picture is shown at the Palace theatre.

Broadway Theatre

Today is the last showing of the month's finest program at the Broadway. Don't fail to see the five splendid B. F. Keith acts vaudeville and a truly remarkable photoplay "Souls for Sables" with Eugene O'Brien and Claire Windsor.

In addition to a complete change of Keith vaudeville and pictures, that ever popular prize night will be given tomorrow night. Lila Lee will be seen in the photoplay "The Midnight Girl."

Friday night will be Quilt Night again.

Sunday nights are proving very popular at the Broadway with a double feature program, all for twenty five cents.

FAT PEOPLE!

HERE IS SOMETHING REAL

A New Discovery!

A Pleasant Reducing Chewing Gum

which safely takes off fat at the rate of several pounds a week. Nothing to take; Internally—No Diets—Dangerous Drugs—Exercises.

"Sliph" gives lasting relief from excess FAT—brings back your figure to youthful slenderness.

Through a most marvelous recent discovery scientists have been able to incorporate the extract of sea plants known for years as wonderful reducers into a delicious, refreshing chewing gum called "Sliph".—Doctors—medical authorities, and thousands, who had been burdened with obesity for years, are amazed at the quick and sure reducing results produced by "Sliph" in most obstinate cases where everything else has failed to help.

Above picture of Mrs. N. of Brooklyn shows you what Sliph Reducing Gum has done for a woman who had been overburdened with fat for years and years. Today she is normal in weight. All she did was to chew Sliph Reducing Gum for a few weeks and was amazed at the result. You can do the same—already hundreds are reducing with Sliph.

The moment you start chewing Sliph you feel a wonderful change in your system—stomach and intestinal troubles vanish—no more pains or aches—through the flow of saliva mixed with the gastric juices and the extract of sea plants, Sliph eliminates from your system certain elements which causes FAT and you will be amazed how easily and quickly you can lose all excess weight.

Sliph is not a cure, nor a laxative, but a pleasant reducer in candy form. What could be more pleasant than to chew two or three pieces of gum a day and know that your excess fat is gradually and surely going for good.

Sliph not only appeals to people already overburdened with excess fat but to those who have a tendency to obesity. It is a wonderful way to prevent FAT to accumulate on the figure—it is harmless and recognized as a wonderful tonic—recommended to gentlemen and children, not only for reducing, but to do away with all worn out, tired feeling—Sliph sells for 50 cents a box, enough for one week at all drug stores.

In case your druggist is out of Sliph you can get it from the Sliph Medical Co., 9 W. 60th St., N. Y. City. Sliph sells for 50c. per box or two full weeks' supply, $1.00.

"CHEW SILPH AND BE SYLPH-LIKE."

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

Sliph is the name of the original and genuine reducing gum. THE ONLY ONE WE PERSONALLY GUARANTEE TO BE SAFE AND HARMLESS.

SUPT. E. E. REGAN SPEAKER BEFORE EXCHANGE-ROTARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 27—Exchange and Rotary, Willimantic's two service clubs, met at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night with Rotary as the host. The members joined forces in merrymaking, speech-making and listened to a talk on Transportation, a subject of mutual interest, by President E. E. Regan, of the New London Rotary club.

President John S. Ahern of Rotary extended a hearty welcome to the visitors, as did also Presidence Dr. Clarence G. Simonds of the Exchange. The latter as a matter of comedy, flannyed two samples of the clubs, Harry Branche, a 5 foot, 1 inch Rotarian, and Edwin J. Donnelly, a massive Exchangelite, stretching 6 feet 2 3-4 inches in his stocking feet. President Simonds then pointed out great opportunities for community service awaiting both clubs, when acting in combination. Among the recommendations made at the Rotary club meeting last week he believed that those concerning a playground and a new and larger hospital were of special importance. Arthur Roy, well known local baritone soloist, was a guest of Dr. R. Bullock Jones and sang several beautiful selections. With Dr. Jones at the piano, Harry W. Standish was made songleader. Upon receiving that office he issued a challenge to Charles Caswell, Exchange songleader, to a quartet contest. The Rotary singers consisted of Harry Branche, Pete Laramee, Jerry Sullivan and Charles Pomeroy. They raised their voices and upon inquiries stated that their recent rendition was entitled School Days. The Exchange quartet consisting of Dr. F. E. Guild, George S. Elliott, Edwin J. Donnelley and Allen B. Lincoln, pinch-hitting for Samuel Chesebro, victimized the same song. H. Clinton Lathrop had just been appointed judge. After deliberation he stated that he had failed to locate harmony, pure or synthetic but of the two the Exchange chords were the most discordant. Orchestral music was provided by Ralph H. Gibson, violinist, Gilbert Mathewson, saxophone, and Clifford Donnelley, pianist.

An excellent supper including roast young turkey and pumpkin pie, was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. The hall was made festive with harvest decorations and candles. As Secretary G. E. Loisel called the roll, the Rotarians arose and individually introduced the guests. Others present in addition to Exchangeites included: Charles F. Curran and Charles Larrabee. The silver tongue of Edwin J. Donnelley well known local orator was heard in a plea for the support of Windham High school's undefeated football team, which outplayed Hartford High school last Saturday in a scoreless game and will meet the formidable Waterbury High team here next Saturday. "You business and professional men" he continued, "as the leaders of your community, should be instilled with the courage, ambition and aggressiveness of these youthful players. Turn your thoughts from the setting sun of morbidness, inquisitive business and distrust and set them in tune to the rising sun of hope, the better day and the joy of accomplishment in unison, as exemplified by these gridiron fighters."

General Superintendent Regan of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was presented by Harry W. Standish, chairman of the committee of arrangements. Superintendent Regan's topic was "Transportation." Statistics which he introduced served to show the growth of industrial New England and its exacting output over other parts of the country in practically all finished products. This leadership, he declared, was greatly due to transportation facilities and an intensive development of fine products. The railroad has very recently spent $60,000,000 in expansion, improvements and the purchase of additional equipment, including over 100 massive locomotives of the Sante Fe and mountain type, capable of hauling loads of 55,000 tons. Figures show that the New Haven road is recuperating financially since having been returned to private management by the government and is gaining so rapidly that for September its economical operation was excelled only by one of country. The operating ratio for that month was $71.23 as compared with $1.04 in 1923. Speedy and regular freight service is now available on all parts of the line. He told of the relief offered the western gateways of Harlem river and Maybrook by the establishment of a new freight yard at Cedar hill, near New Haven.

The passenger service has suffered enormous losses in the past few years with the advent of private automobiles and bus lines, but this business is rapidly being recovered by the establishment of a net work of bus lines under the responsible management of the railroad, through the subsidiary concern known as the New England Transportation company. Forty large ready to go on service when entire ready to go on service when entire state petitions are granted. Several of the proposed bus lines are via Willimantic or with Willimantic as a terminal. Among them are the lines from New Haven to Willimantic, Hartford to Providence via Willimantic and Putnam, Hartford to Providence via Willimantic and Danielson, and Hartford to Sterling via Willimantic.

Regarding the removal of the State of Maine express from New York to Boston from the line through Willimantic, Superintendent Regan stated that the express had but very little patronage either from Hartford or Willimantic, whereas there was a consistent demand for it in Norwich and New London. Another factor was the fact that the route through Willimantic necessitated the use of a second engine practically the year round. This expense is eliminated by passing over the more level route now taken.

The speaker was accorded a rising vote of thanks. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

HELD AS WITNESS IN THE $683,000 JEWEL THEFT CASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Noel Scaffa, private detective under indictment for compounding a felony in recovering $683,000 worth of jewelry stolen from Mrs. James P. Donahue, today turned over to police a man described as Frank Adams, who was later committed to the tombs as a material witness.

Officials refused to divulge the statements Adams made to them. A story gained circulation during the day, although it could not be confirmed from any official source, that Adams previous to the thefts of the gems met an English crook who attempted to persuade Adams to join him in the theft.

The Englishman, the story had it told Adams that he had followed the Donahues from Europe and while on their liner obtained information about the jewelry. Adams, it was said, refused to help commit the crime and later tried unsuccessfully to interest under the inuence of liquor was given police in the story.

Adams is known to police as "Pock Marked Dillon," a safe-blower, who late served several prison terms. He first became acquainted with the English crook he named as the Donahue thief while they were both serving terms in Sing Sing. It was said.

Recently Scaffa received a n anonymous letter said to have been written by Adams in which he said he knew the thief and named him. Later Adams telephoned Scaffa and was persuaded by the private detective to visit him and later tell his story to the police.

FORMER TAX COLLECTOR FOUND GUILTY OF LARCENY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 27. (AP)—Lester E. Gerald, former tax collector of the town of Wayland, was found guilty by a jury tonight in Middlesex superior court on a charge of larceny of $60,000 of the town's money. The jury was out 25 minutes. Gerald, who had been at liberty under $25,000 bail, was sent to jail when court required $75,000 bonds. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

Gerald, who is chairman of the board of selectmen for Wayland, denied he had received the missing money.

GREAT ENGLISH BEAUTY SECRET "HOWARD'S BUTTERMILK CREAM"

Druggists told not to take anyone's money unless this delightful new vanishing Cream quickly shows a decided improvement.

BIG DEMAND, SAYS LEE & OSGOOD CO.

Buttermilk Cream creates beauty almost like magic. The most wonderful thing about it is the fact that while it turns the dullest, most lifeless complexion to radiant beauty and makes red or rough hands or arms snowy white yet there is not the slightest sign of its use after application. It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmosphere will not produce the least shininess or greasiness of the skin.

No matter whether you are troubled with a poor complexion, wrinkles, puffiness around the eyes, freckles, crows' feet or lines around the mouth, ugly finger nails, or just a simple roughness of the face, hands or arms caused by wind or sun, you will find that any or all of these troubles will quickly disappear with the use of Howard's Buttermilk Cream.

To prove this to your complete satisfaction, get a small quantity today at your favorite toilet goods counter with the understanding that they will freely return the purchase money should you be dissatisfied.

Beautiful actresses say, "A short massage with Howard's Buttermilk Cream at night before retiring is all that is necessary."

POULTRY
PAN-A-CE-A
Starts pullets and moulted hens to laying

Nothing like Pan-a-ce-a to bring back the good feeling to a moulted, run-down flock.

Just add one pound of Pan-a-ce-a to every fifty pounds of mash, or one tablespoonful for 20 hens once a day. Then see the combs and wattles begin to turn red. Listen to the song, scratch and cackle.

Pan-a-ce-a tones up the dormant egg organs, starts the feed the egg way.

There is nothing you can buy for your flock on the same terms on which you can buy Pan-a-ce-a.

Just tell your dealer how many hens you have; he will supply you with the right size packages to suit your flock.

Feed it, all of it; if you don't get eggs, more eggs, enough eggs that you want to feed it regularly, then return the empty container to your dealer and get your money back.

Mr. Poultryman, Dr. Hess & Clark are paying for this advertisement just to get this message to you and they mean business.

Get your package of Pan-a-ce-a from The Yantic Grain & Products Co., 3 Cove St.; Norwich Grain Co., 41 Commerce; The Yantic Grain & Products Co., Yantic; Baltic Grain & Coal Co., Baltic.

POULTRY
PAN-A-CE-A
Starts pullets and moulted hens to laying

Nothing like Pan-a-ce-a to bring back the good feeling to a moulted, run-down flock.

Just add one pound of Pan-a-ce-a to every fifty pounds of mash, or one tablespoonful for 20 hens once a day.

Then see the combs and wattles begin to turn red. Listen to the song, scratch and cackle.

Pan-a-ce-a tones up the dormant egg organs, starts the feed the egg way.

There is nothing you can buy for your flock on the same terms on which you can buy Pan-a-ce-a.

Just tell your dealer how many hens you have; he will supply you with the right size packages to suit your flock.

Feed it, all of it; if you don't get eggs, more eggs, enough eggs that you want to feed it regularly, then return the empty container to your dealer and get your money back.

Mr. Poultryman, Dr. Hess & Clark are paying for this advertisement just to get this message to you and they mean business.

Get your package of Pan-a-ce-a from The Yantic Grain & Products Co., 3 Cove St.; Norwich Grain Co., 41 Commerce; The Yantic Grain & Products Co., Yantic; Baltic Grain & Coal Co., Baltic.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCEE
New York

Stocks irregular; General motors reaches new high at 138.

Bonds, easy; French issues again under pressure.

Foreign exchanges; mixed; French francs fall as cabinet resigns.

Cotton barely steady; southern hedge selling.

Sugar featureless.

Coffee, higher; firm Brazilian markets.

Chicago

Wheat, strong; bullish domestic situation.

Corn, firm; better cash demand.

Cattle steady.

Hogs, higher.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(By the Associated Press)—Reactionary tendencies became more pronounced in today's stock market, net losses of one to nearly 5 points being spread over a rather broad list. The decline was by no means general, however, as most of the motors and a number of specialties recovered substantial gains. Trading continued at a brisk pace, total sales again crossing two million shares.

Except for the continuance of relatively stiff call money rates, there was nothing in the day's news to bring about the reaction which was generally accepted as a natural correction of a weakened technical position. The quarterly statement of the United States Steel corporation, which was issued after the market closed, was unusually favorable, net earnings of $43,409,412 for the three months ended September 30, compared with $40,624,121 in the preceding quarter and $30,713,415 in the third quarter of 1924. United States steel common which sold yesterday at 130 1-8, the highest price since the war, sold down to 128 7-8 today for a net loss of more than a point.

Motors gave another impressive demonstration of strength, the rapidity of the advance in some issues suggesting the f urther retreat of an overcrowded short interest. Chrysler showing an extreme gain of over 8 points at 223 7-8, a new record top, and then reacting to 219 3-4. Hudson was run up over six points to 104 1-8 and then dropped back to 101 3-4. General Motors touched a new top at 138, but slipped back later to 136 3-4. Dodge Brothers A, White, Motormeter, Stromberg carburetor and Yellow truck preferred showed net gains of 1 to 2 points. Mack trucks and Chandler were heavy.

Standard Industrials lost ground on profit taking. American can broke over four points to 251, Baldwin closed more than 2 points lower at 122 1-8, and American smelting and refining Du Pont, General Electric, Pan American B Sears Roebuck, and United States industrial alcohol were among the many issues to show net losses of a point or two.

United States cast iron pipe was hammered down 6 1-2 points to 212 1-2. Continental Insurance broke six points to 126 3-4, and then rallied slightly, while Commercial solvents A, Cuyamel fruit, Famous Players, Mavati sugar, United Fruit and United States realty showed net losses of 2 to 4 1-2 points.

Rails fell back in sympathy with the industrials, such popular issues as New York Central, Rock Island, Reading, Southern Railway and Delaware and Hudson yielding a point or more. Baltor and Aroostook touched another new top at 54 1-2, on buying influenced by reports that the annual dividend probably would be increased to $5.

Specialties to which public attention has been attracted by reports of large current earnings were bid up in spirited fashion. Woolworth soared nearly 10 points to 203; United Drug moved up 7 to 153 1-2, Foundation company was run nearly 6 to 162 3-4, extreme gain of four points at 107 and United Cigar stores showed an 3-4, all new high records.

Renewed activity in international business machines, which closed over 3 points higher at 169 was associated with reports that a twenty per cent. stock dividend would be declared at the next meeting, and that thereafter the stock would be split up on a 5 to 1 basis, with a dividend of $3 paid on the new stock.

Other outstanding strong spots were American woolen common, and preferred Byers, Cuba cane preferred, Fox films, International combustion engineering, Loose Wiles biscuit and McCrory stores, B, all up 2 points or more.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent, and then advanced to 5. Time money rates hardened slightly, sixty to ninety day maturities being quoted at 4 3-4 to 5 instead of on a at 4 3-4 per cent. basis, and the longer rates ranged slightly between 4 7-8 and 5 instead of between 4 3-4 and 5.

Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary.

Demand sterling held fairly firm above $4.84 1-2, french francs were firm at the opening, but later broke about 10 points to around 4.20 cents the resignation of the Painleve cabinet. Other European rates moved within rather narrow and irregular limits.

CLOUDY TODAY, PROBABLY FOLLOWED BY RAIN

Norwich Bulletin

1796 1925

NORWICH, CONN., WEDNESDAY, OCT. 28, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

12

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Wednesday, Oct. 28, 1925

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over Manitoba Monday night has moved eastward to Ontario. Pressure remains low over the Canadian maritime provinces. The great area of high pressure and abnormally cold weather from Alaska has overspread the Rocky Mountain region, the plains states and the Missouri and the upper Mississippi Valleys. An area of high pressure, is over the middle states, and moving eastward.

The indications are for rains within the next 24 hours in the eastern stations and the rain will probably change to snow in the interior of the North Atlantic states. The northwestern area of high pressure and cold weather will overspread practically all sections east of the Rocky Mountains within the next 36 hours. The change to colder weather will set in Wednesday as far east as the Appalachian region and Wednesday night in the Atlantic States. The temperature will remain considerably below normal east of the Mississippi river through Thursday and Friday.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: shifting, becoming moderate to fresh south and southwest and generally fair weather Wednesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate to fresh shifting and increasing cloudiness, probably followed by rain Wednesday.

Forecast

For Southern New England: Increasing cloudiness folowed by rain Wednesday afternoon or night; Thursday fair and cooler.

Observations.

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric readings Tuesday:

	Ther	Bar
7 a. m.	47	30.00
12 m.	55	30.10
6 p. m.	46	30.20

Highest 55; lowest 46.

Comparisons

Predictions for Tuesday: Mostly cloudy and somewhat cooler.

Tuesday's weather: Partly cloudy westerly wind, not much change in temperature.

GREENEVILLE

A hallowe'en social for the children and their parents of the Greeneville Congregational Sunday school is to be given this (Wednesday) evening in the Sunday school room. Hallowe'en costumes are to be in order.

TAFTVILLE

The regular monthly business meeting of the Taftville Mens' association was held Monday evening in the fire company hall on Merchants avenue, with President Frank Beique presiding. Seven new members were voted upon favorably, and arrangements were made to have the annual meeting and election of officers of the association take place in January. Nine directors are to be chosen at the next meeting and they in turn will elect the officers from among their own number. A nominating committee to bring in names for the directors was appointed, this committee being Joseph C. Marsan, Amable Deslanders and George H. Young. It is planned to have a social evening connected with the annual meeting, and a prize offered by Napoleon T. Parent to be awarded at this meeting was accepted with thanks. It was also voted to thank the Property Holders association for the use of the fire company hall for the meetings of the Business Mens' association.

The first fall meeting of the Thimble club was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Albert J. Aberg of North A street. It being a Hallowe'en affair, the members came in costume and masked. After the sewing hour refreshments were served and Hallowe'en favors distributed by the hostess.

The Ponemah Wheel club has sent out invitations to the members for the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the club, to be held at the German Shooting Club in Lisbon on Thursday evening. The committee in charge has made up a very entertaining program of vaudeville acts and stunts.

The monthly meeting of the standing committee of the Taftville Congregational church was not held this month because of the absence of the pastor Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowell, who is in Washington, attending the sessions of the National council of Congregational churches.

The gymnastic exhibition and dance given by the Maennerchor gym class at the Maennerchor club Saturday evening was largely attended.

Mrs. Wilbur Dodge of Block Island, is the guest of her father William Pollard and family of South avenue.

Mrs. Walter C. Drew of Lisbon, who underwent an operation Tuesday morning for appendicitis is resting as comfortably as can be expected.

BOY KILLED BY TRUCK IN NORTH WESTCHESTER

Robert Lanphier, Jr., 9, on his way to school started across the road on Car Hill, in North Westchester Tuesday morning and was struck and killed by a milk truck driven by Chris Christianson, Dr. C. E. Pendleton of Colchester called in a medical examiner thought death was due to unavoidable accident but referred the case to the coroner.

The child had been adopted by Robert Lanphier of Colchester.

Attending Poster Convention

H. H. Vignot, of The New London-Norwich Poster Adv. Co., is in Kansas City attending the 35th annual convention of the Poster Advertising association, one of the most important advertising conventions of the year at which are assembled artists, manufacturers, advertising men and lithographers from all over the United States and Canada. Mr. Vignot said before leaving that important conferences were expected to take place involving the improvement and advancement of organized outdoor advertising, particularly in connection with promoting worthwhile civic activities, and that much study will be given to the co-operation work which had been done by newspapers and posters in other cities and towns in this respect.

DELEGATES FROM Y. AUXILIARIES HELD STATE CONVENTION HERE

With 78 delegates, representing nine auxiliaries present, the 31st annual conference of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliaries of Connecticut was held Tuesday afternoon and evening at the Community House. The conference opened at 11 o'clock with a devotional period led by Edwin Hill, secretary of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. The state chairman, Mrs. C. K. Hale of Portland, presided at both morning and afternoon sessions. Following the devotional period, there was an exchange of greetings. Miss Marion Bishop, president of the Norwich Auxiliary, extended a hearty welcome to the visiting delegates and the response was given by Mrs. Hale, the state chairmen. This was followed by a pleasing vocal solo by Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard after which County Secretary H. Earle Sweet of Haddam, was heard in an address on county work. He emphasized the great need of county work and spoke of the wonderful potentiality of leadership in the country boy. Mr. Sweet spoke of several great men, prominent figures in our national life who were country boys.

Contrasting the county and city work, Mr. Sweet said the city has its association building while the county has none. Mr. Sweet's address made a deep impression on the delegates.

It was voted that the state auxiliaries hold their annual conventions at the same place and time as the Y. M. C. A. About one o'clock luncheon was served the delegates in the Community House dining hall, the luncheon being served by Charitable Circle of Kings Daughters for the local auxiliary.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session convened about 2 o'clock with Mrs. Hale presiding and a service of prayer and praise was led by Mrs. F. H. Smith of Middletown. Then followed a questionnaire with a discussion led by Mrs. Ralph O. Wells, Hartford, Mrs. William Crowe was heard in a delightfully rendered vocal selection, following which William E. Abbott, boys work secretary of the Bridgeport Y. BM. C. A. gave a splendid and inspiring talk on boys' work. In his talk, which was of an informal nature, Mr. Abbott said the auxiliary, co-operating with mothers, can be of real service to boys. A boy reflects his home, he said. In a great many cases it is evident that the parents are passing their responsibility to others. Keep before the mothers the importance of home influence on the boy, said Mr. Abbott.

The speaker went on to tell of some of the things the Y. M. C. A. is trying to do for the boy. Are we an amusement center, he asked. We have pool tables and games, it is true, but we are not an amusement center. Are we a physical training association? We are in a sense a physical organization. We have books and magazines in reading rooms, but we are not a public library. Just what are we trying to do for the boy? We are building Christian character. It is only through this that we have a right to exist.

Mr. Abbott spoke of the new membership plan inaugurated in a number of associations. He said that by this plan boys are made to feel that the $6 or $7 they pay to the association annually is not a membership fee but a subscription. The boy is asked as to his reason for joining the Y. M. C. A. Then it is carefully explained to him that it costs money to run the association and he is given an opportunity to make a subscription. This plan is now in effect in some cities in the state.

Speaking of what is called city work, Mr. Abbott said this includes activities among boys who don't go to the association building. These boys need character building just as well as the boys who go to the association building. They need the leadership which the Y. M. C. A. can provide. It is necessary to develop a group of men to serve as volunteer leaders for boys Co-operation of the finest men in the community is needed for this work, Mr. Abbott said.

The credentials committee reported 78 delegates representing nine auxiliaries in the state. Resolutions were adopted expressing appreciation of the conference of the hospitality shown by the Norwich auxiliary, and thanking the speakers, vocalists and all others who helped make the conference a success.

Election of Officers

The following officers for the ensuing year were then elected:

Chairman, Mrs. C. B. Lund, Groton; vice chairman, Mrs. O. A. Phelps, Wethersfield; recording secretary, Mrs. W. F. Mayiott, Derby; corresponding secretary, Miss Ella Philips of New London (appointed by Mrs. Lund); treasurer, Mrs. F. H. Shepard, West Haven; executive committee, Mrs Chapel S. Carter, Ansonia; Mrs. Irving Manchester, Winsted; Mrs. Henry Koch, Middletown; Mrs. Edward Gagel West Haven; Mrs. Charles F. Davis, Waterbury.

Announcement was made that E. T Bates of New Haven, who was to have conducted the closing service, was unable to be present, owing to illness and regret was expressed that Mr. Bates could not be present at the conference. Following the singing of the hymn, Blest Be The Tie That Binds, adjournment was taken, Edwin Hill, secretary of the local association, pronouncing the benediction.

ASSIGNMENTS ARE MADE FOR BUS HEARING

HARTFORD, Oct. 27. (AP)—For the first time in its history, the public utilities commission today held a short calendar session for assignment of hearings on applications for bus routes. Ten or twelve attorneys were present, representing different interests.

Attorney Barnett, for the New England Transportation company, an auxiliary of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, questioned the right of Arthur L. Shipman of Hartford to appear as attorney of the Associated Buses Corporation of the state, saying there was no application from that corporation before the commission. Mr. Shipman replied that he appeared for individual members of the corporation as well as for the corporation itself. Mr. Barnett's position was not sustained by the commission.

The following assignments of hearings were made: November 2, in Hartford, at 10.30 a. m., New England Transportation company, application for a bus route from Hartford to Massachusetts state line at Granby; Brown, Sullivan and Raynor, for a route from Waterbury to Hartford via Plainfield; Milldale Tramway company for a route from Milldale to Hartford.

COMMON PLEAS CRIMINAL TERM IS TO CONVENE

The criminal term of the court of common pleas will convene in New London, Thursday, Nov. 5, at 10 a. m. with a jury, according to notices sent out by Clerk Lewis B. Crandall. Conferences on the various cases to come up will take place Friday at Norwich following the short calendar session of the superior court here.

Three Fined in Court

In the city court Tuesday morning, Joseph Ruggie, 28, Crompton, R. I., Joseph Gerard, also of Crompton, and Thomas Sweeney of Plainfield were each fined $5 and costs on intoxication charges. They were arrested Monday afternoon on Franklin square where they were creating a disturbance. A free for all fight was about to start when the trio were gathered in by Officers John Donovan, Bernard Keenan and William Sharvan.

SOCIAL GATHERING BY YOUNG LADIES' SODALITY

The Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Mary's Memorial church opened their social season for the winter at their assembly rooms on Tuesday evening with a whist and bridge tournament and at intermission a musical entertainment was presented.

At the whist and bridge contests 40 tables were played and the prize winners were found to be: Whist, first, ladies, Miss Helen Mahoney, 33, photograph of the Rev. William A. Keefe; consolation, Ruth Bundy, 2, a rattle box. gentlemen, E. Cote, 43, photograph of Rev. William A. Keefe; consolation, Daniel Sullivan, 12, a toy dog. The committees in charge were Miss Margaret C. Counihan, chairman; music, Mary M. Brennan, Eleanor I. Donovan; finance, Margaret Condon, Mollie V. Driscoll; cards and prizes, Hannah O'Donnell, Marguerite Driscoll; box office, Miss Josephine A. Hartie, Joseph A. Donnelly.

The handsome proceeds realized will be placed in the society treasury for their wants from time to time.

READY TO PRESENT BERRY IN CITY COURT

The time for presenting Eugene J. Berry in the Norwich city court to answer to the charge of chloroforming his two small sons on the morning home at 324 Boswell avenue will ry home at 24 Boswell avenue will be just as soon as city attorney Lee Roy Robbins receives word from the Backus hospital that the man is ready to leave that institution. Berry attempted suicide by cutting his throat and drinking turpentine, and was taken to the hospital where the cut in his throat, which was superficial, was sewed up. It is probable that within a few days the stitches can be removed Berry can be presented in court.

City Attorney Robbins has drawn up the warrant charging first degree murder and the police have been keeping a 24 hour watch at Berry's bedside at the hospital while he has been there. Supernumerary Crary is on duty during the day and Supernumerary Coburn at night, the expense to the city being over $15 a day.

Berry's family has secured Attorney Edward F. McKay to handle his case in court.

Birthday Party

A Hallowe'en birthday party was held Tuesday afternoon for Leonora Wunderlich at her home on Norwich avenue, Taftville. Those attended were: Isabella Murphy, Roy Lee Hill, Walter Erlbeck and Harold Eckkert, refreshments were served, and games were played. The room was prettily decorated in orange and black.

THOUSANDS VISIT BASE OBSERVING NAVY DAY

The submarine base at Groton had several thousand visitors on Tuesday, it was estimated. Streams of visitors flowed through the grounds and buildings all day, taking advantage of the invitation to inspect the base from one end to the other.

While most persons manifested interest in the submarine N-2, which was open to inspection, the other features also came in for their share of attention. The diving exhibition, the submarine mother ship, the Bushnell, the sound school, and the machine and gyro shops all interested many of the visitors. The knot-tying exhibition in which old tars demonstrated the manner in which strands of rope may be fashioned into a thousand and one intricate knots when placed in experienced hands, also attracted many. The principal afternoon attraction was a football game between the base team, and the team from the Bushnell.

In accordance with orders issued by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, the base was in full dress ship array, as were the Bushnell and the N-2. Officers were in uniform, and army officers visiting the base, as a compliment to the navy, also appeared in uniform.

Submarines S-1 and S-3 from the base arrived in Providence Monday night from the base and were the principal points of interest in the Navy day exercises there. The N-5 and the N-3 which left the base early Monday for New Haven and Bridgeport their respective destinations, arrived Monday night after a rough passage down the sound, head winds lashing the waves to a great pitch and washing the vessels from stem to stern.

Sub Biggest Attraction

Due, no doubt, to the prominence devoted to submarines, in connection with the sinking of the S-51, the submarine N-2, open to public inspection, proved to be the biggest attraction of the base, and throughout most of the day there was a line of curious and interested spectators waiting for the chance to view the interior of the type of craft in which lives were lost a month ago when the S-51 plunged to the bottom of the Atlantic, fatally wounded by the stabbing steel prow of the steamer, City of Rome.

With the memory of the disaster only too fresh in mind, the visitors at the base thrilled with a sense of hazard and romance as they descended through the conning tower to the steel lined bowels of the N-2, and breathed more quickly at the thought of actually submerging in that compact little structure.

Courteous officers and men explained the operation of the delicate mechanism of the craft, showed the manner in which compartment doors may be closed, making the chambers water tight when submerging in case of accident and brought out many interesting points that enabled their interested listeners to better understand the terrible disaster of a month ago.

About the base, the Plattsburgh of the submarine service, the training station for all those who literally go down to the sea in ships, for those who are not only riders of the sea, but riders under the sea as well, visitors saw officers and men who time and again have been trapped under the seas go philosophically about their duties undeterred by the S-51 tragedy. To them the thrills and hazards are but incidents of their lives while yesterday was an event, the base was at home to visitors and it was up to them to see that the guests enjoyed their call.

Executives at the base explained to their visitors the fact — one that is not generally known—that the men in the submarine service are all picked men, not only physically suited to undersea duty but temperamentally fitted also. All officers and men, it was pointed out, come to "school" at the base for a six months' course. The course includes a period of intensive training for some weeks—from four to 16, according to the trade—followed by practice work.

The physical examination is very rigid for the men are first examined for regular navy service and after being sent to the base undergo another special examination as to their fitness for submarine duty. The examination is the third that they undergo, the first being that taken before they are accepted for enlistment.

In addition to this officers have to undergo a psychology test. A man, it was explained, may be eminently qualified in every other way and yet be unfitted by temperament for undersea command, and it would never do to have an officer who was too temperamental and liable to become confused or excited when submerged or in time of danger.

On completion of their training the men are sent on sea duty for six months at the end of which time they are eligible to take the qualification test. This is a very rigid, practical, written examination as to their knowledge of submarines and in the case of officers, the ability to handle a submerged craft. The officer or man who passes this final test is entered on the record as qualified, and the officer is entitled to wear the submarine service badge on his breast and the men on their arms.

The Navy day program concluded in the evening with a radio program in which many of the navy's high officials participated.

Connecticut College

(Special to The Bulletin)

Patriac Colum, the versatile Irish author, whose genius has placed him in the front ranks of modern writers, spoke at Connecticut college on Saturday evening in the college gymnasium, rendering a pleasing literary program. The senior class presented this well-known author under the auspices of the Sykes Memorial fund.

Mr. Colum presented a varied program. He began with an Irish fairy story, "Princess Brightbow and the Henwife's Son," a charming tale charmingly told. The next part of the program was reading from various modern poets. Mr. Colum commented upon the new quality found in poets of today; namely, ability to discover the local life of places. He read for his first selection "The Listeners," by Walter De La Mare. He then read one of Robert Frost's poems and followed this by two of William Butler Yeats,' the creator of the modern Irish poetry movement. The last of the modern poets from whom Mr. Colum selected his varied program was George Russell.

As a dramatist, Mr. Colum ranks among the highest in depicting the Irish peasant as he really is. In recent years he has met with pronounced success as a lecturer in this country, and has delighted many large audiences by his charm as a speaker, his versatility and the charm that he imparts to every subject that he discusses. In presenting the chronicals of America, photoplay, "Columbus," at college Monday evening, students in the American history courses explained some of the newer views and uncertainties regarding the discovery of America.

Harrisse, Winsor, Vignaud, Markham, and more recently, Wiener, have made the older views about the discovery of America seem highly improbable, or at least uncertain, though without lessening the fame of Columbus. Quite possibly it is not the discovery of America but rather the advertising of that discovery as previously made which is Columbus' true title to fame.

Some of the newer probabilities regarding the discovery seem to be:

1. That the Irish probably preceded the Norse in reaching Newfoundland.

2. That the Icelandic Norsemen certainly discovered America the year 1000.

3. That a Breton (French) expedition was thought to have reached a point on or near the coast of America before 1376.

4. That some navigator from the Iberian Peninsular (Spain or Portugal)- almost certainly coasted along Cuba not latter than 1455.

5. That some other navigator perhaps made the crossing from Cape Verde to South America as early as 1443.

6. That Columbus was probably not seeking a new route to, India, but rather was seeking the new lands which he actually found.

NEW GREEK LETTER FRATERNITY AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 27—The Shakespearean club of Connecticut Agricultural college has adopted the Greek letters Theta Sigma Chi, and a new fraternity, Pi Alpha Pi, has been organized, according to the recent announcement of the Mediator, inter-fraternity governing body at the college.

Formed in 1892 as a small literary society, the College Shakespearean club has enjoyed a steady growth to date, and it now has a total membership of over three hundred. It is one of the two oldest fraternities at college.

Pi Alpha Pi was organized by a group of fifteen students who felt there was a need for another fraternity at Storrs. Fraternity rooms are maintained in Storrs hall for the present.

Honorary members of Pi Alpha Pi are Charles Lewis Beach president of the college; Charles Burt Gentry, professor of agricultural education, and David Edmond Warner Jr., assistant professor of poultry husbandry.

Charter members of the newly formed Pi Alpha Pi, all of them Connecticut men, are as follows: Amos G. Avery '25, Norwich; Marshall A. Coe '25, Goshen; Charles T. Baker '25, Thompson; Charles C. Smith '26, Brookfield; William B. Thebaut Jr. '26, Mansfield Center; Vincent M. Doolittle '27, New Britain; Chester Woodford '27, Avon; Claude C. Gillette '28, Colchester; Marshall A. Kendrick '28, Windsor; Richard C. Newton '29, Middletown; Maurice M. Nixon '28, Colebrook; Charles C. Plummer '28, Devon William R. Weed '28, Danbury; Donald B. Humphrey '25, Washington Lawrence W. Smith '28, New Preston.

DENIES DIVORCE SOUGHT BY GROTON WOMAN

Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court at New London Tuesday denied the petition for divorce of Esther Crandall Steele of Groton against George H. Steele of Long Island. The petitioner charged intolerable cruelty and habitual intemperance, but the court in denying the petition said that in his opinion, the evidence presented did not substantiate the allegations.

The case was slated for contest an Attorney Charles H. Hull appeared for the plaintiff while Attorney Clayton B. Smith represented the defendant who was in court. The case, however, by agreement of counsel, was uncontested and the defendant sat in the court room and listened as his wife and sister-in-law testified. It was brought out that the couple were married on Aug. 31, 1917, the ceremony being a civil one and that sometime later, another ceremony was performed by a priest. Mrs. Steele related a number of incidents where her husband had taken hold of her and other occasions when she testified that he had treated her roughly while he was under the influence of liquor.

Hair Secrets

Gleamy, Thick, Wavy Hair in a Moment

A delightful surprise awaits those who try this. When combing and dress your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! Your hair will appear twice as thick and heavy—sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance, and just delicately perfumed.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, heavy and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a 35-cent bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful refreshing dressing.

RESIDENT PHYSICIAN ON UNCAS-ON-THAMES STAFF

Uncas-on-Thames has been fortunate in securing a resident physician for the hospital staff, Dr. R. Glenn Urquhart, a graduate of McGill University, Montreal. Dr. Urquhart formerly was in charge of the women's ward at Seaview tuberculosis hospital, Staten Island, N. Y., previous to which he was chief interne at the Montreal general hospital.

Dr. Urquhart is skilled in surgery and was clinical lecturer to nurses when at Seaview. As soon as the necessary renovations are completed Dr and Mrs. Urquhart will occupy the cottage at the entrance to the sanatorium grounds.

MAY REGULATE ALL LOCAL CONFLICTS IN THE BALKANS

Establishment of a Neutral Demilitarized Zone is Being Considered by the Council of the League of Nations—Both Greece and Bulgaria Have Accepted Inquiry Proposed by the Council—Greece Has Been Informed That Defensive Warfare in Another Country's Territory is a Dangerous and Impossible Procedure.

PARIS, Oct. 28—A neutral demilitarized zone between Greece and Bulgaria, with commissions of conciliation for the regulation of all local conflicts in the Balkans, may be one of the fruits of the settlement of the Balkan crisis by the council of the league of nations.

Giving a spur to the Balkan states' ambition to elaborate the security pact, the council will probably undertake to establish principles to guard the Balkan statesmen in handling any future difficulties, and will exert all its influence to have the Locarno security agreement with Germany supplemented not only by a Balkan arrangement, but also by a security pact between other sections of Europe.

Thus will it hasten the convocation of a disarmament conference, which the Locarno protocol hailed as one of the hoped for results of the achievement of security.

The Balkan crisis, which came at the psychological moment in the new peace impulse given to European politics, has taken on the international significance which entirely overshadows the conflict between Greece and Bulgaria. Four great powers, France, Great Britain, Italy and Japan, and six lesser powers, representing both the European and American continents, which together make up the membership of the council, solemly registered today their conviction and determination that henceforth conciliation and arbitration, and not the thunder of cannon must be resorted to when disputes arise between states.

Greece's plea that she had invaded Bulgaria for reasons of defense clearly grated on the council, every member of which backed up M. Briand in his declaration that it was indeed a dangerous doctrine to pursue a policy of invasion, even in the case of alleged provocation, when all machinery was at the disposal of nations for the regulations of quarrels by conciliation and arbitration.

What the council of the league of nations informed Greece and the entire world today was that defensive warfare in another country's territory is both a dangerous and impossible procedure.

It is apparent that by today's unanimous condemnation of the employment of force, the council wished to lay down a policy which will be applied to both small and big nations, and this remains as the fact of outstanding significance in the developments.

The limit of sixty hours fixed by the council for withdrawal of all the troops from the respective frontiers expires at 3 o'clock tomorrow morning, Paris time, and it is then that the council's military agents must telegraph to Paris whether in fact evacuation has been carried out.

The council will meet tomorrow morning, or in the afternoon in accordance as word is flashed whether its edict has been obeyed. After that comes the designation of the special commission which will proceed to the zone of conflict, and later report its finding on "the profound causes of the outbreak."

Both Greece and Bulgaria have accepted this proposed inquiry which is expected materially to help the league in its furtherance of the creation fo a Balkan security pact.

HELD WITHOUT BAIL FOR SLAYING HER BETRAYER

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28—Seventeen year old Helen Schultz, who last night shot and killed Edward Lister, Jr., alleged father of her 7 months old baby, because he refused to marry her and give a name to the child, will be tried as speedily as possible. She is being held without bail for the coroner. The inquest will be held on Monday.

"Everyone has sympathy for her," said District Attorney Rotan today, 'but we cannot admit her to bail. We will rush the trial as fast as possible."

Sobbing, the girl today recounted her story in the police captain's office.

"I dont' know why I did it," she cried. "I meant to kill myself, not him. But when he told me last night he would rather serve ten years in jail than marry me and laughed at me, I saw red."

The girl told how she had made the acquaintance of Lister while she was working as a hosiery knitter. She was only sixteen years old at the time, she said. After the child was born, Lister promised to marry her and she had made preparations for the event and was saving $2 weekly towards her wedding dress when she was informed that he was already married. He still gave her hope, however, she declared, by saying he was being divorced.

Lister, 33, was divorced from his former wife this week, but kept that fact from Miss Schultz, it was brought out. He was an electrician and was slain while talking with the girl in his automobile which he had parked temporarily on a side street near the girl's home. She surrendered soon after to the police.

NEW MYSTERIOUS THEFT OF JEWELS AND THEIR RETURN

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—Having solved the "mysterious disappearance" of the jewels of Mrs. Julius Lichtenstein which were found in another drawer of her dressing table from which she reported them missing last night, the police tonight continued to puzzle over the theft and return of the jewels of Mrs. Lichtenstein's friends, Mrs. James P. Donahue.

The Lichtenstein mystery was soon solved by the discovery that Mrs. Litchenstein had misplaced the jewelry, valued at $85,000, although in the interim the police questioned the servant closely and investigated the apartment on the supposition that a sneak thief imitated the Donahue robber in appearing seemingly from nowhere, hastily ransacking the drawer and escaping.

Convinced that there was no connection between the Lichtenstein episode and the theft of the $682,000 jewels from the Woolworth heiress and their subsequent return for a ransom of $65,000, the police continued a search for "English Jimmy" Berkley.

According to the story told the police by "Pockmarked Dillon" a friend Sing Sing convict, "English Jimmy," flapper sneak thief specializing in hotel robberies, approached him prior to the Donahue theft with an offer to work together in securing the jewels from the Hotel Plaza. Dillon said he refused.

ANOTHER SUIT AGAINST SCULPTOR BORGLUM

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 28—David C. Stephenson, Indianapolis, who has been mentioned in newspaper dispatches as a high leader of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, brought suit in superior court here this afternoon against Gutson Borglum, Stamford, famous sculptor, who is now in Texas.

Stephenson asks for damages of $30,000, declaring he holds notes signed by Borglum.

SCHOONER EDNA HOYT WAS BLOWN OFF SHORE

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 28. (AP)—The five-masted schooner Edna Hoyt, reported today as believed by relatives of the members of the crew to have been lost in the gale of Oct. 10 is safe.

Word was received at Milbridge today from Captain Millard Griffin, the master, that the schooner was blown off shore, but had reached Nova Scotia. She will proceed to Calais with her cargo of coal, shipped at Norfolk.

GILPATRIC'S TRANSACTIONS MADE SUMNER NERVOUS

HARTFORD, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—It was disclosed today that former Deputy State Treasurer Charles F. Sumner became so nervous about some of G. Harold Gilpatric's bond transactions as state treasurer in the early part of 1921 that he consulted the then Governor Everett J. Lake about it.

Ex-Governor Lake sent for Gilpatric and requested him to deliver to the state treasury without further delay certain Liberty bonds which had been ordered through the First National Bank of Putnam, of which Gilpatric was cashier. The bonds were received at the state treasury within 48 hours.

Ex-Governor Lake confirmed the information when seen today at his office at the Hartford Lumber company. He said he was uncertain about the exact amount involved in the incident. It is possible that the bonds produced by Gilpatric under the circumstances were those of $185,000 par value claimed by certain creditors of the First National Bank of Putnam to have been paid for with money Gilpatric stole from trust funds at his disposal and delivered to the state treasury February 14, 1921.

NOTICES SENT OUT BY TAX COMMISSIONER BLODGETT

HARTFORD, Oct. 28—State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett today sent to the treasurer of each of the 169 municipalities of the state notices setting forth the amount of state tax and the amount of military tax which each town is required to pay to the state treasurer on or before November 10. The total amount of state tax imposed upon municipalities by the enactment of chapter 218 of the public acts of 1923 is $1,500,000. The military tax amounts to $303,810.25.

Hartford leads the towns of the state in the amount of taxes due with a state tax of $211,134.82 and a military tax of $42,763.42. Bridgeport's state tax is $201,042.03 and its military tax is $40,719.22. New Haven's taxes are $181,497.63 and $36,742.46. Marlborough will pay the smallest taxes in the state. Its state tax is $112.63 and its military tax is $22.81.

The state tax is apportioned to the towns in the proportion of the total revenue, received yearly from direct taxation in each town, including that from all taxing districts and that which would have been received from all property exempt from taxation under the provisions of any special act or by town vote, as averaged for the three fiscal years next preceding, to the total revenue so determined for such time as averaged in all the towns in the state.

JAIL SENTENCES GIVEN IN CRIMINAL SUPERIOR COURT

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 28—Frank W. Jackson, driver of the automobile which on July 29, last struck and killed City Probation Officer George L. Hills, at Goffe and Norton streets, was sentenced to jail for one year by Judge C. L. Avery in criminal superior court here today.

Counsel for Jackson in their arguments sought to prove that their client was not guilty of gross negligence and carelessness in operating the machine that killed Mr. Hills. It was admitted that there was a civil negligence, but not gross negligence. Judge Avery held that there was no excuse for Jackson not seeing a truck approaching the intersection at the time of the accident. It was to avoid hitting this truck that Jackson swung his car towards the curb, striking Mr. Hills who was waiting for a bus.

Ernest Eich, 24, was sent to state's prison for from seven to ten years and Egbert Thrall, Jr., 26, for from three to six years for the theft of an automobile which on July 28, last, Samuel I. Halper left standing in Crown street here. The prosecutor said that the Bridgeport authorities had lodged at the county jail a warrant for Eich for the theft of an automobile and that he had served sentences in other penal institutions for thefts of automobiles.

Five men were arrested in Seymour in a raid on alleged liquor-law violations.

M. Painleve to Form New French Cabinet

New Ministry Will Be Selected With a View to Imposing a Capital Levy.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—(AP)—M. Painleve after conferring with M. Herriot and M. Briand, accepted the mission to form a new government tendered him by President Doumergue this afternoon. The new cabinet, according to present indications, will have M. Briand as minister of foreign affairs, and M. Loucheur as minister of finance, with the premier remaining at the war office.

The new ministry will be composed so as to conform to the resolution adopted by the radical convention at Nice in favor of a capital levy and to a resolution adopted by the groups of the left today, demanding the return to power of several members of former Premier Herriot's cabinet.

Camille Chautemps, former minister of the interior, and Edouard Daladier, former minister of colonies, are regarded as certain to come back.

In view of M. Painleve's concessions to the groups of the left, his success in forming a new combination, is regarded as assured, though the life of such a cabinet, formed to put through a capital levy is considered precarious. Socialist support of the new government depends upon the early introduction of such a measure.

PAINLEVE IS STUDYING THE SYRIAN SITUATION

PARIS, Oct. 28. (AP)—Premier Painleve, though burdened with a political crises at home, gave some attention today to the Syrian situation. He conferred with the president of the Republic on the subject, but had little to say for public consumption.

"Annoying events have taken place in Syria, and the government is taking necessary steps to remedy the situation," was all M. Painleve would say concerning reports that, Damascus was in a state of open warfare against the French mandatories. He added, however, "Dispatches from foreign sources have been exaggerated."

"We hear nothing from General Sarrail" (the French high commissioner in Syria), remarked an official of the ministry of war in reproachful tone, when asked whether the report was true that the foreign colonies in Damascus had been requested by the French military authorities to leave the city.

General Sarrail's silence, while events qualified by the premier as "annoying," and which, according to the premier's own admission before the chamber committee of finance last week, resulted in casualties of more than 6,000, is causing open criticism in official circles formerly well disposed toward the high commissioner.

A request for reinforcements is not denied, and it is understood that steps have been taken to send additional troops. But, owing to the dissatisfaction concerning the manner in which Sarrail had handled the situation, strong pressure is being brought to bear on the government to compel his recall. The premier's talk with the president this afternoon dealt with the advisability of bringing the commander-in-chief back.

The French papers now admit that the destruction was very heavy and the loss of life great in the revolt at Damascus on Oct. 19, and they are clamoring for Sarrail's removal.

ACTION OF NATIONAL COUNCIL OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28. (AP)—Recognition was given to the women of the denomination in a realignment of officers at the concluding sessions today of the national council of Congregational churches, which also adopted resolutions placing the convention on record, among other things, as holding no conflict can exist between science and religion.

In the realignment of officials, the Rev. Dan F. Bradley of Cleveland, who was elected first assistant moderator on the opening day of the convention after he had been defeated for moderator by Frank I. Harwood of Appleton, Wis., a layman, was made associate moderator, a new office.

Mrs. E. A. Osborson of Oakpark, Illinois, defeated for second assistant moderator in the opening election by the Rev. William L. Cash of New Orleans, a Negro, was then made first assistant moderator. Her defeat for the post of second assistant on the first day came about because of the tradition giving that place to a representative of the Negro members of the church.

The council's position on the question of science and religion was declared in a resolution unanimously adopted, which deplored "any attempt of the state or federal governments to interfere with the widely accepted scientific theories."

FASCISTI AND ANTIS WERE RIOTOUS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—Police reserves tonight repelled an attack by a mob of 400 persons said to be members of the anti-fascist alliance of North America, upon the Hotel Pennsylvania where 600 members of the Italian Fascist League of North America were holding a dinner.

The mob had marched from an indignation meeting held in Bryant hall on Sixth avenue, and gathering outside the hotel began shouting threats to break up the meeting of the fascist league.

The attackers were driven back from the hotel area by 250 policemen and detectives using night sticks. A heavy guard of armed police reserves was detailed to the hotel for the remainder of the night.

TEACHERS POOREST PAID IN RICHEST TOWN IN STATE

GREENWICH, Oct. 28—That the principals and teachers of the Greenwich high school rank among the lowest paid in the state in spite of the fact that the town is regarded as one of the richest per capita, was the charge made by Judge James F. Walsh before the board of estimate and taxation tonight. He was speaking at a hearing on the town budget.

The judge favored an increase in salary from $5,000 to $6,000 for the superintendent of schools, and an increase from $4,000 to $5,000 for the principal of the high school. He recommended that department heads be raised from $2,700 to $3,000 and teachers from $2,300 to $2,500 as the maximum.

Courtmartial of Col. Mitchell is Underway

Three Members Were Ousted by Plans of the Defendant and His Counsel

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—An army general court martial assembled today in an old building near the capitol to try Colonel William Mitchell on charges drawn up by the war department, specifying violation of the 96th article of war on eight counts based on language he used in public statements criticizing administration of the army and navy air services.

When the court filed into the hastily prepared quarters assigned it, there were thirteen members present, all selected by Secretary Dwight Davis. Within the hour, three had been ousted, one by request, and two by decision of their colleagues. Behind the retirement of the three and responsible for the upset, were carefully laid plans of the defendant and his counsel.

In the case of Major General Charles P. Summerall, who asked the court to excuse him, the strategy of the defence achieved its victory. The record of the army veteran; one of the most outstanding in point of service and merit as well as seniority of rank, was attacked.

He was described as an officer who "knew practically nothing about aviation" and was hostile to Colonel Mitchell. The blow obviously hurt deep, and caused the general to declare his inability to sit as a member of a court in trial of an officer who had attacked him personally.

"If the court had not seen fit to accept my request," he said later, "I would have adjourned the court and appealed to the president to be relieved from that duty."

The general was empowered to take such action if it had been necessary, since, at the time he was challenged, he was presiding as president of that tribunal by virtue of his status as senior officer on the active list of the army.

The first court member to be unseated was Brigadier General Albert J. Bowley, commanding officer of Fort Bragg, N. C. Colonel Mitchell, through his counsel, Representative Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, challenged General Bowley's right to serve and gave, in support of his statement that the general was prejudiced, biased and hostile, quotations from a speech he delivered at Greeneville, N. C., several hours after his appointment to the court had been announced at Washington.

While General Bowley admitted he had spoken in opposition to the separate air department advocated by Colonel Mitchell, he declared he was not hostile, prejudiced or otherwise antagonistic to the air officer and believed himself fit for court duty. His retirement was voted by the court, however, after brief discussion behind closed doors.

Major General Fred W. Sladen was the target for the one peremtory challenge the court martial laws allow a defendant to file, to which no argument is permitted. No reason was cited for the challenge of the West Point commandant and friends of the defendant explained there was no personal reflection intended. The belief prvailed that the action was taken because General Sladen being responsible for the disciplinary instruction of all officers entering the army through West Point, he naturally is a firm disciplinarian and would not condone any statements by the cadets in his charge such as Colonel Mitchell admits he made at San Antonio, Texas, upon which his trial now is founded.

GEN. HINES INSPECTED HOSPITAL AT ALLINGTOWN

HARTFORD, Oct. 28—General Frank T. Hines, director of the veterans' bureau, visiting Connecticut for the first time since his appointment, inspected the government hospital at Allingtown today and later the regional bureau in Hartford where he declared in an interview that he had reached no decision as to whether the government should purchase the hospital or build a new one in its place.

"The problem before the veterans bureau," explained the general, "is whether the government should build additions to the hospitals at Chelsea, Mass., and Tupper Lake, N. Y., to carry the additional load of tubercular patients, or lease, or purchase the Allingtown hospital, or build a new one in its place. That problem I shall lay before the federal board, which in turn will make its recommendation to the president, who has the authority to order the purchase of hospitals. I shall make no recommendation. That's up to the board. All I do is lay the problem before it."

MANY CONFUSED WHEN TRINITY CLOCK STOPPED

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—"Old Faithful," the massive clock on the tower of Trinity church at the head of Wall street, which has ticked off millions of minutes for several generations of New Yorkers, stood still today for the first time in many years, and the machinery of the financial district was thrown into mild confusion.

The great hands of the timepiece, visible at the farthest end of one of the world's most noted thoroughfares, crept slowly to the hour of noon today and a minute later came to a sudden halt. Countless clerks and stenographers, accustomed to rely on its accuracy, slackened their midday rush and took an extra hour for lunch. Workers, homebound, at five o'clock, laughingly remarked that they were getting an extra half-holiday.

Investigation revealed that the famous old clock recently had been remiss in its duty, and for several weeks had failed to strike the hours. Trinity caretakers decided it was time for a thorough overhauling and promised that within a few weeks the clock would again be chiming the hours, this time with the latest electrical equipment.

HOLDS THAT S-51 VIOLATED THE "RULES OF THE ROAD"

Captain Diehl, Master of the City of Rome, Testified That if the Submarine Had Shown a Red Light There Would Have Been No Collision—Diehl Maintained That He Had Done Everything Possible to Save Life and That He Would Act Simarly if So Placed Again.

BOSTON, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—Vigorous denial that he had disobeyed any of the laws of the road was made today by Captain John H. Diehl, of Everett, Mass., master of the steamer City of Rome, testifying before the naval board of inquiry investigating the collision on September 25, in which the Submarine S-51 was sunk. Captain Diehl told of seeing a white light for some time before the collision and suddenly a red one which caused him to reverse his engines, blow his whistle and swing to port, just before the crash. Thirty three men went down with the submarine when she sank off Block Island.

After having been directed to read the laws of the road which provided the right of way for an overtaken vessel or one crossing a steamer's bows from the starboard, and which provide for slackening the speed of the approaching steamer, if necessary, Captain Diehl was asked:

"Who was at fault for the collision?"

"The submarine," he answered. "If he had shown a red light all time there would not have been any collision and I wouldn't have been here to testify."

Members of the board of inquiry developed in re-direct examination of Captain Diehl that he passed 16 or 17 minutes on the port side of the pilot house, where he did not see the white light on his starboard and returned to the starboard only a few minutes before the collision.

Captain Diehl maintained throughout that in rescue work and in the maneuvering of the steamer before and after the accident, he had done everything possible to save life and that he would act similarly if so placed again.

Earlier in the day Erling Knudsen, Norwegian sailor, had testified along lines previously developed. Two other members of the City of Rome's crew, William A. Adamson of Newport, R. I., who was on look-out at the time of the collision, and Carl Hanson, quartermaster, were called. Hanson also repeated much of the testimony previously given. Adamson told of seeing the white light, of failing to see the submarine's hull, of the flashing of the red light, and the steamer's whistles just before the collision. Lieut. Edward P. Sauer of the U. S. S. Vestal, engaged in salvage work on the submarine gave testimony on its present location.

Tomorrow one navy diver, one or possibly two, civilian divers, and a witness whose identity counsel for the Ocean Steamship company, owners of the City of Rome, refused to disclose, will be called. It was announced tonight. The hearing tomorrow may end the inquiry.

Captain Diehl, who has traveled 72 - 000 miles a year for the past twenty years as a master, said that only twice before had he been in collisions. He was questioned regarding his failure to send a prompt radio message telling of the collision and his failure to stand by longer than approximately two hours after the collision which occurred, at 10:25 p. m. He said that his first message to the line operating the City of Rome went forward at 12:10 after some delay and that he did not know that an S O S call would have cleared the air. He said that he sent the message to the Submarine Base at New London as soon as he learned the home port of the submarine.

One of the rescued navy men, whom he identified as Dewey Kyle, told him he said, that "rookies" or "student officers" were operating the submarine at the time of the disaster and that there was "no chance of any more men coming up." He said that he moved on when there was no vessel to stand by, because he felt he could be of no further aid on the scene, and because he wanted to get the three survivors into port where they could receive medical treatment. He said that a large oil spot on the water marked the spot of the sinking.

Captain Diehl insisted that he felt no apprehension of danger before he saw the red light and that he had ordered the helmsman a moment earlier to starboard his ship to give more clearance.

WOULD CONVERT BOARD OF TAX APPEALS INTO A COURT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Conversion of the board of tax appeals into a court was proposed today to the house ways and means committee by W. A. Gregg, solicitor of internal revenue bureau.

The importance and value of the board, created in the 1924 revenue act, were emphasized by representatives of the treasury, the American Bar association, and accountants' organizations, by Chairman J. Gilmer Korner, Jr., of the board, told the committee it would be unable to function after next February unless it receives a larger appropriation than contemplated in the program of Director Lord of the budget.

Mr. Korner said the budget bureau had disapproved requests for $190,000 of the estimated appropriations necessary for next year, and this brought announcements from both republican and democratic members of the committee that they would fight to upset the budget recommendation on this point.

Solicitor Gregg asserted that the board was very important to the treasury and expressed the opinion that the department would support a move for a larger appropriation. Secretary Mellon has recommended that the membership of the board be kept to at least sixteen members.

MONUMENT TO SOUTH AMERICAN HERO ACCEPTED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The monument to Jose De San Martin, the South American hero, presented by the people of Argentina to the United States in return for the gift of the statue of Washington which stands in Buenos Aires, was accepted today by President Coolidge in simple but colorful ceremony, in Judiciary Square, between the capitol and the White House.

Official and diplomatic circles were fully represented at the ceremony, in which the Argentine ambassador, Honorio Puerytredon, made the presentation address and President Coolidge, in his acceptance, pointed to the place Latin America holds in maintaining the peace and stability of the world.

The statue to San Martin is the only official monument to any foreign hero unconnected with American history which stands in Washington today, the South American hero, whose career was outlined by the Argentina ambassador, being represented on a rearing charger.

CHINESE PRESS IS SKEPTIC ABOUT CUSTOMS CONFERENCE

PEKING, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—While Chinese opinion, as expressed through the press, showed an unfriendly reaction to the opening speeches at the Chinese customs conference and skepticism regarding the powers' intentions toward China's request for tariff autonomy, the conference committees today settled to work on the various problems assigned to them.

No date has been set for the next general meeting of the delegates, and it is understood that the gathering will adopt the methods of the Washington conference, with the committees reporting to plenary sessions only when their work is practically completed.

The Chinese press today generally stresses the demand for the restoration of unrestricted tariff autonomy, and comment which bears directly on the conference ranges between hostile and merely deprecatory.

The Chen Pao, organ of the Chihli party, which, with Wu Pei-Fu at its head, was ousted from power a year ago, is the most outspoken. It sees in the speech made by Sir Ronald McLeay, the British minister, on the opening day a clear indication of the British intention to shelve the Chinese demands, and advises the Chinese delegates to withdraw rather than to discuss the surtax of 2 1-2 per cent authorized by the Washington treaty. The British minister said Monday that Great Britain was willing "to discuss" tariff autonomy at this conference or at some future time.

The Peking Leader, which is American-owned, cites the failure of the Agenda to refer specifically to the creation of a board of reference or to the disposition to be made of the authorized surtaxes, while the Washington treaties stipulated that both these points should be dealt with, this paper suggests that the ground actually to be covered in the conference will differ from that outlined in advance, as was the case at Washington.

Inquiry among the delegations by the Associated Press correspondent elicited the explanation that the commission of these points from the preliminary discussion was out of consideration for the sensitiveness of Chinese opinion, on account of which it was considered wise to stick to generalizations.

DR. STINNES IS HERE MERELY AS A TOURIST

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—Dr. Edmund Stinnes, eldest son of the late Hugo Stinnes, German super-industrialist, today characterized as "pure invention" the reports from Berlin that he contemplated seeking permanent commercial connections outside the fatherland. His present visit to the United States will be brief, he said, and at its conclusion he expected to return to Berlin.

"Reports emanating from the Berlin press regarding the alleged reasons for my trip to America are pure invention and devoid of all substance," Dr. Stinnes declared in a formal statement. "I intend, as I have told the New York press, to remain here only a few weeks."

On his arrival last Saturday on the Berengaria, the Stinnes heir told reporters he had come "merely as a tourist," but added that, as an engineer, he was interested in outstanding developments here and hoped to inspect some of them before he departed.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Arrangements are practically completed for making such alterations and repairs at the state armory as was provided for in an appropriation by the last legislature. The work will be undertaken about December 1, and about $5,000 to $6,000 will be expended.

Changes to be made will involve relocation of the lockers in the basement of the building, installation of additional toilets and showers and the shoring of the roof, which is sagging a bit.

The changes will make available three rooms for the use of Major E. L. Darbie, commanding officer of the special troops of the 43rd division. Major Darbie is to enlist a detachment of eight men, to be stationed at the Danielson armory. This detail will include two privates, two first class privates, a corporal, a sergeant, and two staff sergeants. Their duties will be largely clerical and they will be especially trained for this work. They will have payrolls to make out and other such work today, rating about the same as a regimental headquarters detachment.

Since Major Darbie's appointment last spring, the detachment assigned to him has been located at Hartford and were enlisted men of a military company located in that city. With the recruiting here of the new detachment, the Hartford men will return to their regular command.

In connection with the alterations and repairs to be made at the armory, it is stated that a new roadway likely will be built to the structure from main street, along Railroad street in the rear of the freight station of the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Railroad company.

There is a plan afoot that has for one important consideration the elimination of the grade crossing at Hutchins street and St. James' cemetery, near the plant of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company. This is a dangerous crossing and is approached from the east through a cut that shuts off a view along the tracks.

It is held that the crossing can be closed by improving Railroad street its entire length, giving a good street all the way of Main street to St. James' cemetery or even to the Myers property, the most northerly house on the street.

The matter is now receiving consideration and may be worked out during the next few months.

The crossing that it is proposed shall be eliminated is not used a great deal excepting by funerals, though there is some traffic over it to neighborhood houses. It is held that no great inconvenience to anyone would result from the closing of the crossing, although there would be some. With the crossing eliminated there would be but one entrance to Railroad street—from Main.

The Windham County National bank is offering a constantly increasing protection to deposits, whether in the commercial or savings department.—adv.

Extensions of lighting lines planned by the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company include a line from Attawaugan across to the north shore of Alexander's lake for the accomodation of the constantly increasing number of cottagers in that section. Another line is to be extended from Plainfield along the route to Canterbury, probably as far as the Exley place. There is also the possibility of extending lines to Hampton. Service already is provided in the town of Brooklyn. Another new line is to be built through Day street as far north as the John Weaver farm.

A new traffic guide was put in place at the intersection of Reynolds and Broad street Wednesday. This guide sets in the street surface and has a heavy red glass reflector. It is intended to slow down traffic at this dangerous street intersection, where the trunk line highway between Danielson and Providence crosses Broad street. There have been accidents at this point and scores of escapes from smashes between motor vehicles.

About 60 men of the Service battery will make the trip to Putnam for the Armistice day parade. It was stated Wednesday afternoon, by Captain F. O. Armington. The officers and men will make the trip in their own cars or in the trucks that are part of the Service battery eqipment. Captain Armington will be in command of the battery.

Supt. George B. Guild of the Crystal Water company and employes of the concern were engaged Wednesday testing out fire hydrants at different points in the borough. A hydrant at the corner of Main and Academy Sts., showed a pressure of 51 pounds.

Cooking by electricity is becoming increasingly popular in Danielson and other territory hereabouts, where electric service is available. There is a special low rate on electricity used for cooking—a minimum charge of $36 a year, or at the rate of three dollars a month. Numbers who have used electricity exclusively for cooking say the cost averages about $4 a month, which is as cheap, or cheaper, than gas in the local territory.

A wedding at St. James' church on Monday was that of Miss Pearl Ducat of East Killingly and Wilfred Bernier of New Bedford. Following the wedding a breakfast was served at the bride's home. The attending couple were Miss Katherine Soucise of Keene, N. H., and Walter Ducharme of Webster. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bernier have been employed in Plainfield.

Wednesday morning the funeral of Valenty LePac was held from his home in Moosup with services at All Hallows' church, Revs. Joseph E. McCarthy being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in All Hallows' cemetery. The bearers were Andrew LePac, Victor LePac, Peter LePac and Nicholas Lanover. Louis E. Kennady was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

R. H. Gray, Harry Chalmers and FrankMcGorty, of New London, and Henry O'Brien and William Barcolm of Norwich, representing the commercial conference board of the S. N. E. Telephone company, came to Danielson for a telephone employes' meeting and presented Miss Elizabeth Dunn of the Danielson division business office an electric toaster.

Moses Choquette, 67, long a resident of this town, died at his home in the Mashentuck district Wednesday. While Mr. Choquette had been in poor health for some time, the announcement of his death came as a surprise to many in Danielson.

Mr. Choquette, a native of Canada, had been in this country since he was a young man. For years he was engaged as a painter and in later years gave about all of his attention to his farm, one of the finest kept in the Mashentuck section.

Mr. Choquette leaves his wife and seven children—Arthur, Royal, Alderic, Ulysses, Philip, Leonie and Emeline.

Mr. and Mrs Amadee Lussier are on a motor trip to Canada, where they will visit relatives.

Henri L. Baer, with a large shipment of police dog puppies, left here Wednesday night for Miami.

Boxing fans from many sections of eastern Connecticut will come here this evening to witness the series of amateur bouts at the Casino arena.

Postmaster and Mrs. E. H. Keach have returned from a motor trip through New England and into Canada.

The men's club of the Baptist church held its first meeting Wednesday evening.

The Masonic orders of Danielson are to form a corporation to hold the Westfield Congregational parsonage property, which they have purchased by agreement, and are to develop to meet the need of the lodges.

His many friends here, where he formerly lived, were interested in a Fredericktown, N. B., despatch Wednesday telling that Landlord E. C. Rogers of the Putnam inn had shot the largest moose in New Brunswick during the 1925 season. Mr. Rogers has a splendid collection of moosheads, but the one just taken, with an antler spread of 64 inches, will dominate them all.

The new walks at the central fire station in Academy street are now in use.

The Roundabout club is to meet with Mrs. Orray E. Potter this (Thursday) afternoon.

John O. Fox, whose death occurred at the Massachusetts General hopital in Boston Tuesday, was undoubtedly the most popular man as well as one of the most respected citizens of Putnam. He was probably without an enemy, though possessed of a strong personality. His popularity was attested by his vote when he ran for sheriff against Charles A. Gates of Willimantic and carried Putnam by more than 700 votes, something that no democrat had ever done before or since.

Mr. Fox was born in Putnam December 22, 1862. His parents were John Otis Fox and Eliza Phillips Fox. He had a sister, Miss Hattie Fox. He married January 23rd, 1892 Miss Addie Isabel White, daughter of Ezekial W. and Ellen Olney White. To them were born five children, one, Harold, died in infancy. The four children surviving are Miss Edith Fox, John Otis Fox, Jr., Mrs. Gladys L. Packard and Miss Hazel Fox.

For a number of years Mr. Fox has had his home in the Sawyer district and made daily trips to and from his office.

Says — Now Stiff Joints Must Go!

New Discovery Limbers 'Em Up and Even the Creaking Ceases.

Yes; it's true—the world progresses. All you have to do nowadays to limber up that old stiff, creaky knee joint is to squeeze a half inch of miracle-working substance from a tube.

Then rub it on the offending part for about a quarter of a minute or until it soaks through the skin and disappears on its errand of mercy.

Then read the evening newspaper and go to bed.

The chances are that your misbehaving knee joint will lose its creak while you are dreaming about the high fences you used to leap when you were a youngster.

"And in the morning," says one who has tried the new discovery "you'll feel so happy that you'll want to jump into your sportiest clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint-Ease: They call this wonder-working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, stainless prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint-Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, elbow, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale, at 60 cents a tube, is immense.

Lee & Osgood Co. sells dozens of tubes of it every week and druggists everywhere report a big demand.

Always remember, when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—quick.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION

Attention will of course be attracted by the news that the big commercial airplane, Miss Essex, on flight from Hartford to Boston, was forced down in Seekonk, Mass., causing considerable damage and the shaking up of the six persons aboard.

Such accidents may be considered part of the development that can be expected in connection with the establishment of commercial aviation. In every new endeavor it seems to be inevitable that losses of one kind or another be suffered. But that will not stand in the way of meeting the requirements of air transportation.

It was only a few days ago that Governor Trumbull urged in this city the importance of establishing a landing place for flying machines. It is something that may well get attention in view of the steady increase that is being made in the number of fliers and the coming of commercial air lines.

The importance of giving more attention to commercial aviation and striving for the highest efficiency and safety cannot be overlooked. We may well stop and inquire if commercial aviation in this country has reached the mark attained across the water. There's no reason why it should not, but we can hardly show the same accomplishments.

Concerning aviation the French bureau of information has this to say: Aerial transportation is now no less secure, and just as regular, as any other. The percentage of punctuality for the whole year is as high as 98 per cent. Accidents are less and less frequent. In 1923, 20 accidents causing loss of human life occurred while the distance covered was 3,500,000 kilometres. In 1923 there were 12 accidents for a distance of 3,900,000 kilometres, which represents one person killed for a flight eight times around the world."

French aviation has undergone great progress, and at the beginning of this year there were 37 commercial lines running on regular schedules. Of the commercial lines five are subsidized by the government and are planning to extend their connections to the main capitals of the world.

Certainly we have reasons to look to our laurels if we are to equal other countries in aviation.

DEPLETE THE FIRE HAZARDS

Much is said about the importance of giving adequate protection to valuable records and papers, and it is a matter which cannot be kept too clearly in mind, especially when they involve those which cannot be replaced. If they are of such a character they should be provided with a place of deposit where they will be safeguarded against fire.

If they are worth saving they are worth protecting, and yet the instances are many where slight attempt is made to do this. There is a disposition to bask under a sense of false security rather than take the necessary steps to prevent the undesirable from happening.

Recently the state house at Boston was considerably damaged as the result of a fire originating from an unknown cause in a storeroom. It was not long ago that the lockers room in the same building was also visited by fire. It doesn't appear that there was any irreparable damage done in either of these instances but they serve to emphasize the danger that exists in such buildings and it is not an unheard of thing for such buildings to be seriously damaged and destroyed. It is for the purpose of guarding against such a possibility that the building of fire proof structures, when new buildings are being constructed, is urged, and the provision of fireproof vaults for records in buildings which are not fireproof but which are fit for a long period of use yet.

Probably there isn't a state but what has great numbers of valuable records which are subject to fire hazards. In Massachusetts the agitation is underway for the elimination of the wooden lockers in the locker room of the state house as a means of decreasing the menace. It is one of those steps which can be made without great cost and it is known to be one step at least in the direction of fire prevention. In every instance where the lesson of such fires could be employed to better the conditions there would be valuable progress toward a greater protection. The goal of fire prevention as well as fire proofing can well be kept constantly in mind.

CANADIAN VISITORS

No one will be surprised at the estimate that there were two million motor cars owned in this country which crossed the border into Canada during 1925. Every locality has contributed to it quite the same as every locality has contributed to the rush that has been made for Florida. And when it is again estimated that those who have gone to Canada have spent $150,000,000 it is no more than what summer visitors do who flock to any part of the country in search of entertainment and pleasure.

Canada is a logical goal for the motoring public. It has its appeal for those for a considerable distance from the border, and this is perhaps greater than the inclination of Canadians to drive down into the United States during the summer time, though there is no question but what large numbers of them come south for legitimate purposes.

This interchange of summer visitors represents those who are going to former homes for visits, those who are visiting relatives and that great army of vacation sight seers. Canada has its attractions even as New England does. That there should be so much crossing of the border is not only a healthy indication of the good relationship of the nations but it displays a full recognition of the many attractions. There is the call which comes to the owners of automobiles which can be answered only by just such excursions across the border. There's a fascination about making such a trip aside from the beauties of the country, and if there were two million who sought Canadian attractions this year it can be expected that there will be more who will do so next year. There may be a sort of fad about visiting particular places from season to season, but Canada will continue to be a drawing card whether the prohibition situation remains what it is or not. Canada would certainly not attribute all its visitors to the dry law in this country.

RESORTING TO SUBSTITUTES

Opinions differ in regard to the end of the coal strike. Some seem to think it is not far away. Others take a less optimistic view. From the head of the coal operators comes the statement that there is no chance of a settlement until an agreement is reached which will mean the prevention of future tieups. That will mean that instead of stopping production while demands are being considered or differences adjusted coal will continue to be mined and the public will not suffer from a lack of fuel. There were years when arbitration prevailed and there were no tieups. But that has not existed now for nearly ten years and nearly every two years there is a strike and a coal shortage.

Coal administrators in the several states have been much concerned over the apparent inadequate supply of anthracite for the entire winter and Commissioner Berry began an investigation as a part of which he hoped to make a survey of the coal fields. When he encountered the firmness of the operators' leader he abandoned the trip and returned to New York, where confronted with the intention of the coal dealers to put in a supply of 250,000 tons of bituminous coal he feels confident that the situation can be handled without hardships.

It is in the use of the substitutes that Boston will prevent a shortage of fuel, and it is through the adoption of just such a course that there is a widespread determination on the part of the public to help bring relief from this biennial holdup by those who control or whose labor controls the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania. Whatever we may think of the operators or miners the desirability of ending coal shortages has its appeal.

"THANK YOU" LEAGUE

New organizations are being perfected all the time. One of the latest is the American Thank You league which has set out with the determination to find out "whether America is the most impolite of all lands; whether European attacks are justified; * * * * and give impetus to a wider use of the words 'Thank You'."

There is no getting away from the fact that there is plenty of opportunity for increasing the number of "Thank you's." Courtesy always pays and that is one of the bits of good manners that is capable of paying large dividends.

The idea of this league was obtained from the endeavor of a business man to get the solution of the question: "How can my business be most speedily and most surely improved?" He offered a prize of $5,000 for the best answer and it was awarded to the man who wrote on a postal, "Tell your clerks to say 'Thank you'."

Certain the two little words cost nothing. Many a time it requires the right disposition to use them, but it is a channel in which more should be trained if the trait is not to be generally encountered these days. But it nevertheless pays in the results obtained.

The advice which was given to the business man is only what others have already adopted. "Thank you" is not only voiced by employed but it is written by them in acknowledging orders or in receipting bills. It may not be actually necessary but there's good reason for getting away from the cold blooded and shivery way of dealing with others even if it is only in business. "Thank you" creates a better feeling and never alienates. Let the league go forward.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is apparently going to be a great winter for preventing the waste of coal.

Those who are looking ahead see nothing but prosperity. That is the desirable thing.

The calm period in the shipping board may mean that it is getting ready to fire the president.

The million which has been gotten from Chicago bootleggers by blackmailers would be a serious loss for most people.

Only a matter of four weeks now to Thanksgiving, and after that it will be only a matter of about 24 weeks to the strawhat season.

When treasury officials say that the life of a dollar bill is only about seven months it doesn't hold good that a $100 bill will last 700 months.

A Detroit prisoner has disappeared and now the authorities are trying to find out if his $25,000 bail bond is good for anything. This seems like going ahead backward.

Holding out for anthracite is all right if it can be obtained, but insisting on it regardless of price simply means helping to tighten the grip which the miners and operators now have on the consumers.

GETTING RESULTS

Where other eccentric guests upset their hostesses by packing along pet monkeys or special diet lists Norene Comstock did her bit by always taking along her diamonds. The mixture of pleasure and consternation which invariably greeted her arrival afforded a subtle kick to Norene which she did not pause to define.

The diamonds were immensely becoming to her type and very lovely in themselves, so she wore them, and whenever she went visiting her hosts sighed in relief when she departed with her jewelry intact.

But Esther was angry. "Norene!" she cried unbelievingly when she was watching her old school friend unpack in the cretonned guestroom at the informal lodge up in the woods miles from anything but scenery. "you never brought those silly diamonds up here! With nothing to wear them to. And no policeman within 40 miles! I've a mind to send you back home!"

Norene set the leather jewel case on her dresser silently. She was absorbed in the discovery that Esther's brother Larry was not present as she had expected; everything had gone suddenly flat—and she was bewildered. She had known Larry so long that she had not realized how indispensable he was.

"I never thought," she apologized, "I'm so used to carting them around. It doesn't matter; they're safe enough. Isn't Larry coming back?"

Esther regarded her friend for a moment. "I wish Larry weren't such a gentleman," she said, inconsequentially. "He—he's crazy about you, Norene, as, of course, you know. But you've got too much of this world's goods for him now, so—"

"I should call him plain idiot," Norene said tartly, her face flushing, as she bent over her work. "Not that I—"

Esther watched her shrewdly. "He thinks you don't care for him except in the old friendly way," she explained. Norene shrugged.

That night Esther explained her curious labors by the fact that both her husband and brother were away. She was strewing kitchen tin and aluminum up and down the rustic stairway in tiptilted attitudes. Anybody who tried to scale their second floor fortress was bound to set up a clanging and rattling commotion that would waken the seven sleepers. A hidden cord to stumble over would spill a dishpanful of tins.

They went to sleep peacefully. Norene contrite at realizing at last the sincere worry her sparkling possessions were to the homes where she was a guest. It was time they went into a vault. She seldom wore them anyhow. It was Larry she was thinking of when she fell asleep and not diamonds. He was an idiot and he would never ask her. Two tears trickled down on to the embroidered guest pillow.

It was 2 o'clock when all the tinware in the world rolled, rattled, clashed and banged down the staircase, with an extra special crash when the dishpan tipped over. There was a scramble and a heavy fall and then groans.

"He's killed himself!" Esther chattered grabbing her guest in the hall. "But he isn't dead—hear him? What'll we do?"

Norene listened and gave her head a said with cheerful cynicism, as she reckless shake.

"We'll go down and bind up his life's blood and then throw him in jail," she started downstairs.

Two flashlights opened a path to the man on the floor below. One leg was twisted beneath him in an odd fashion and an iron skillet rested in his bleeding head. Cooky cutters all around shone in the light twinklingly. Norene bent over him cautiously and then, with a mothering swoop, was on the floor gathering the now unconscious man into her arms.

"Larry," she cried with an accent that made him open his eyes. At what he saw in hers he forgot the sickening pain of his broken leg. "The—car broke down and I just got in," he whispered as he reached an arm up about her shoulders, drawing her down to him.

"I'll telephone a doctor and then I guess I'll make some coffee," said Esther fluttering. Anyhow, she wasn't needed right there at that moment!—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

"It is by no means sufficient for a woman to be beautiful these days. She must be useful, too, and interesting." Such is the view expressed by Marie Alexandra, the beautiful queen of Roumania, who celebrates her 50th birthday anniversary. Queen Marie herself is famous for her versatility as well as her beauty. Apart from being a domesticated woman, she is a poet, and also a clever writer. Her practical house decorator and dress designer. She is an artist of great talents were recognized in her election as the first woman member of the French Academy of fine arts. Queen Marie is of English birth, being a daughter of the late Duke of Edinburgh and a first cousin of King George. Up to the age of 17 she lived a quiet, secluded life in England. Then, in 1893, she was married to the handsome young prince who is now King Ferdinand of Roumania.

Stories That Recall Others

All in a Name

Margurite dispenses coffee, sandwiches and other delectables at one of the lunch counters. Busy straightening things preparatory to the noon rush, she called to one of the men. "Here, sheik, take this can off the counter."

"Don't you know his name, yet, Margurite?" asked one of her co-workers. "It's George."

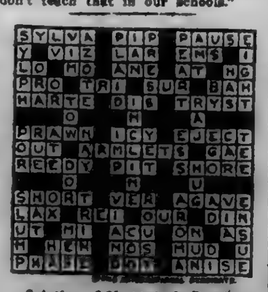
"Oh, I can't take time to remember," replied Margurite, "and besides all you have to do is yell, 'good looking,' or 'shiek,' and they all turn their heads and you can pick out the man you want."

Now One for Him

Frederick, age seven, came downstairs with the statement one morning: "I'm not going to school this morning, I'll tell the world I ain't."

His aunt who was visiting there chided him, saying: "Why, Frederick, if you don't go to school you will never learn to be president."

Little Fred thought for a moment, then quickly answered, "well, they don't teach that in our schools."



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Suggests Mails and Notary Fees

Mr. Editor:—The Bulletin editorial this morning is hardly fair to our motor vehicle commissioner, whose management has been so just and efficient. It is not usual that your readers are forced to defend you.

No one need "stand for hours;" no one need "go elsewhere."

Fill out the blank, pay 50 cents to a notary (it is presumed all auto owners can afford that, and that most of them have check books; if not a money order is within reach of all,) send it to Hartford and receive the registration certificate within two days and the markers a day or two later and no ten cents to be paid for postage on the markers this year.

Why add to the machinery and expense of the department by opening branch offices?

The directions sent out with the notices are so explicit that no one can fail to know the amount of his registration.

The whole blame for the trouble of auto owners in this matter lies at their own doors.

Mine was mailed last week and the markers were received within a few days.

FAIR PLAY

Norwich, Oct. 27, 1925.

(There are now branch offices in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, New London and Stamford and in those offices additional clerks are to be placed this year. Why should the motor vehicle department extend these special privileges to part of the citizens of the state and not the rest? Why should the auto owners in other cities and their neighboring towns be obliged to pay a notary fee or go many miles to one of these branch offices? Why this discrimination against a large number of the auto owners of the state in the cities of Middletown, Norwich, Meriden, New Britain, Danbury, Rockville, Ansonia, Derby, Norwalk, Willimantic, Putnam, Bristol, Shelton, Winsted and Torrington and the towns adjacent thereto? If we are to have "fair play" all should be treated alike.—Ed.)

Shutting up the House for the Winter
It sometimes seems as if one's eyes
See less the more one really tries.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit continued his search for people who were preparing for winter, and the very day after his chat with little Mr. Garter Snake he discovered another old friend making ready for winter. It was over in the Green Forest not far from the edge of a place where the ground was quite soft. Peter was hopping along, lippety-lippety-lip, in a careless way. He stopped by a hiss that made all his back hair stand on end. He jumped sidewise before he saw who it was that hissed. For a moment he was so provoked that he lost his temper. You know no one really enjoys being scared, and Peter was scared. That hiss had been so sharp and sudden, that although he knew all the members of the Snake family, unless perhaps little Mr. Garter Snake, had retired for the winter, his first thought was that only a Snake and a big one could have hissed like that. And when he saw who it was he was a little upset to think that he had shown himself afraid. "What's the matter with you, Slowpoke?" he demanded. "Don't you know any better than to hiss in a fellow's face like that?"

"Don't you know any better than to come hopping along without looking where you're going?" demanded Slowpoke the Box Turtle. "If I hadn't hissed you would have jumped right on me, and I don't know of any one who likes being jumped on. Certainly I don't. Mother nature gave you a pair of eyes, so why don't you use them, Peter Rabbit?"

Slowpoke hissed this so sharply and angrily that Peter quite forgot his own anger in his surprise in seeing Slowpoke actually provoked. "Excuse me, Slowpoke," said he. "I didn't want to jump on you any more than you wanted me to. If I scared you, you scared me, so I guess we are square. You are the last person in the world I expected to see. How comes it that you have not retired for the winter? It seems to me that every one I meet these days is getting ready for winter. It's a relief to find some one who isn't."

"Who is it who isn't?" demanded Slowpoke.

"Why, you aren't doing like that, are you?" demanded Peter.

"I certainly am," declared Slowpoke. "I'm getting ready this very minute to close my house up for the winter."

"What did I understand you to say?" he cried.

Peter blinked several times. "What did I understand you to say?" he cried.

"I said that I'm getting ready to close my house up for the winter," replied Slowpoke. "That's what I'm over here for."

Peter looked puzzled. He scratched a long ear with a long hindfoot and then he wobbled his nose in a puzzled way. "What do you mean by closing your house?" said he.

Slowpoke said nothing. His head disappeared. His legs disappeared. His tail disappeared. He had withdrawn them entirely inside his shell and then the halves of the lower shell closed tight, shutting him in entirely. There was nothing whatever to be seen of him except that shell. Peter waited. In a moment Slowpoke's head appeared. "That's the way I shut my house up. It's very handy to carry your house wherever you go and to be able to close it whenever you feel like it."

"But," cried Peter, "I should think you would be afraid of freezing to death even if you do have the doors closed. Do you just close the doors whenever you happen to get ready, wherever you may happen to be?"

"Not exactly, Peter Rabbit, not exactly. I prepare for the winter just as any sensible person will. As I said before, that's what I'm here for," explained Slowpoke.

From Small Beginnings

Victorien Sardou, the Great French Dramatist

To be so poor that one is unable to pay for the education he desires; to find it impossible to buy the very necessities of life; to have all of one's efforts turned into apparent failures, and then to rise to the highest honors and to be known all over the world—that in the series of dramatic changes experienced by Victorien Sardou, the great French dramatist, who was honored by membership in the French Academy.

The Sardous had been possessed of competence, but suddenly a trick of fate swept the family into poverty. The father was obliged to carry on whatever work he could find in order to gain the means of existence. Among other work he did was that of acting as bookkeeper. He was an earnest and intelligent man, and had a degree of scholarly education that led his son to wish to imitate him and to gain classical training. The lad studied intelligently, and soon became master of considerable learning. Unable to continue his studies as he would have liked, he made use of his knowledge to good advantage and became a tutor.

From his earliest days he had a desire to write, and so from time to time he did various kinds of literary hack work that brought him the reward of money if not of fame. All this was valuable training that helped him in his mature work. Victorien Sardou was always attracted by the theatre, had attended many plays and had read and studied many more. He began very early to write dramatic scenes, and then to write plays. No matter how earnestly he wrote, and how promising his work seemed, a series of mischances befell play after play, and it seemed impossible for him to become a success as a dramatist. His poverty and wretchedness, united with his sense of failure, discouraged him completely. Then through the kindly help of a woman whom he afterwards married, and who was well acquainted with theatrical people, he regained his health, made the acquaintance of a prominent actress, and in a short time gained recognition as one of the greatest dramatists in France. In the United States his play "Madame Sans Gene," became very popular. Sir Henry Irving acted in his "Robespierre," and the famous opera "La Tosca" is based upon his play of the same title. Victorien Sardou lived to be 77, to have great wealth and to receive great public honors. His plays are known and loved everywhere. His life story shows what a man can attain through effort and persistence.

HOLDUP MAN WORKED IN GUISE OF A POLICEMAN

WESTWOOD, Mass., Oct. 28—A hold up man masquerading as a policeman and two masked and armed confederates today robbed Ohon Abadjian of Westwood of $1400, the proceeds of a mortgage which he had just transferred. While Abadjian was returning in his automobile from the registry of deeds at Dedham accompanied by his father and mother, a man in uniform ordered him to stop the car as he drove through a wooded street. Two others came out of the woods with levelled revolvers and demanded the money.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

WEDDINGS

Lewis-Myers

Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Myers, 318 Laurel Hill avenue, their daughter, Ethel Catherine, became the bride of Emri Sholes Lewis, son of Dr. N. B. Lewis of this city. The house was beautifully decorated with autumn foliage and the ceremony took place in candlelight under an arch of laurel and evergreen. The bride was given away by her father and the nuptial ceremony was performed by Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown of Trinity Episcopal church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Mae Myers, and the best man was Earl Calkins.

The bride was charmingly gowned in crushed rose embossed georgette and carried chrysanthemums, while the bridesmaid wore cuckoo satin and georgette and carried chrysanthemums.

A wedding dinner was served for the twenty five guests, the bride's table being decorated with a beautiful wedding cake. Mrs. Berkoff catered. The newly married couple left during the evening for their honeymoon trip by automobile and upon their return will reside in a new bungalow on Laurel Hill that is being built for them. The bride, who formerly resided in Batavia, N. Y., but has lived here for the last five years, graduated from the Norwich Free academy in 1922. She received a large number of beautiful presents that included gold, silver, china and linen. The groom has always resided in this city and is employed as a clerk by James M. Young & Sons.

Sweet-Schultz

At Lebanon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Sweet last Thursday evening at seven o'clock their only son, Charles Sweet was united in marriage with Miss Martha Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Schultz of Gardner Lake. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Stanley Sellick, pastor Lebanon First Congregational church. Only relatives and a few intimate friends of the bride and groom were present. Mr. and Mrs. Sweet will reside for the present at the home of the former's parents. Mr. Sweet is employed as clerk in his father's general store at Lebanon.

Kennerson-Newton

In the presence of a large gathering of relatives Miss Annabel Newton of Montville was united in marriage with Robert Kennerson, also of Montville, by the Rev. Charles Smith, pastor of the Methodist church at that place, at the home of the bride's parents at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The double ring service was used.

The bride was charming in a gown of white satin back crepe, with pearl trimmings. Her veil of old lace was caught with pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. Her maid of honor, Miss Arzella Newton, a sister, was attired in Nile green crepe de chine with rhinestone trimmings and carried shower bouquet of Maryland roses. The best man was Alfred E. Ward of Noank.

Just before the ceremony Miss Ruth Kennerson, sister of the bridegroom sang O Promise Me! Promptly at 2 o'clock Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Miss Kennerson and the bride entered the living room with her father, Louis G. Newton, who gave her in marriage.

The home was elaborately decorated with autumn leaves, laurel and red berries, the bridal couple standing in an arch of oak leaves and laurel.

The ushers were Harvey Newton and Morton Newton, brothers of the bride.

After the ceremony a buffet lunch was served. The couple left late in the afternoon for an extended honeymoon to New York, Atlantic City and Niagara Falls.

The bride received a wealth of beautiful presents, consisting of silver, cut glass, linen and money. The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a sterling silver bracelet set with emeralds. Her gift to the pianist was a string of real mother of pearl beads. The gift of the bridegroom to his best man was a set of cuff links.

The mother of the bride wore black silk with white satin trimmings.

The bridegroom's mother wore black satin. The bride's grandmother wore beaded black chiffon. A huge wedding cake weighing over 25 pounds was made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Annie B. Newton.

Mrs. Kennerson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Newton, and is one of the most popular members of the younger social set in Montville. Mr. Kennerson, while not a native of the town, has made many friends in the years he has resided there.

They will take up their residence in a newly furnished home in Montville.

Miss Doris Elizabeth Waters, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Milo R. Waters, of Laurel Hill avenue, noted her sixteenth birthday by entertaining twelve friends Monday evening. The decorations of the table and rooms were in orange and black, the favors, place cards, etc., being Hallowe'en emblems. Mrs. Waters was assisted in the dining room by Mrs. William S. Murray.

PROTECTION NOW PROVIDED FOR ALL GRADE CROSSINGS IN THIS SECTION

E. Irvine Rudd, chief engineer of the Public Utilities commission has advised Herbert R. Branche, executive secretary of Norwich council, No. 300, U. T. C., that all the recommendations made by the United Commercial Travelers in regard to better protection at grade crossings in eastern Connecticut have been carried out. There are few who can fully realize just what the meaning of these modern protective devises really mean in the safeguarding of the traveling public. It is wholly through the efforts of the commercial travelers that this splendid piece of highway protection was brought about.

Below is the letter received by Mr. Branche from Chief Engineer Rudd:

Dear Sir:

Re.erring to the matter of additional protection at certain grade crossings of highway and railroad in eastern Connecticut, and recommendations made subsequent to our trip of March 24th.

I take pleasure in advising you that all the recommendations have been carried out by the railroad company as follows:

Main street, Jewett City, gates operated 24 hours, beginning April 8, 1925.

West road, Plainfield, eastbound trains stop, beginning April 11, 1925.

French's road, Plainfield, electric flashing signals installed August 12, 1925.

Devil's Den, Sterling, double electric flashing signals installed August 19, 1925.

Glena Falls road, Moosup, electric flashing signals installed September 5, 1925.

Main St., Moosup, flagman 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., beginning September 11, 1925.

The proper illumination of the highway at Main street, Jewett City, has not been carried out by the municipal authorities. Probably you may interest yourself in this matter to the end that the electric light will be installed at an early date by the municipal authorities.

Yours very truly,
E. IRVINE RUDD,
Chief Engineer

Mr. Branche, in reply, has written Mr. Rudd the following letter:

Replying to your letter of October 26th, I am greatly obliged to you and to the members of the Public Utilities commission for the splendid cooperation given the United Commercial Travelers and the Eastern Connecticut Civic association in carrying out the recommendations of these organizations concerning better protection for grade crossings as mentioned in your letter.

The matter of having a flood light installed at the Main street crossing in Jewett City, by the borough authorities, in accordance with your recommendations; The Jewett City chamber of commerce, I am informed will have this proposition brought before them at their next meeting and it is fair to presume the borough officials will see that the Main street crossing is properly protected with the necessary lighting system.

Again thanking you for the promptness in which this serious situation was handled and assuring you of our support in any way that will promote safety on our highways, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
H. R. BRANCHE,
Chairman

OBITUARY

Nathan Johnson

SACHEM CHAPTER HOLDS BIG ANNIVERSARY OBSERVANCE

Suchem Chapter, No. 57, O. E. S. observed its 22nd anniversary Wednesday evening at the Masonic temple, the program including a supper served in the banquet hall at 6 o'clock, degree work and an entertainment at the conclusion of the work.

Fully 400 members and guests from New London, Colchester, Uncasville and surrounding chapters were present to celebrate the anniversary and the affair proved to be one of the greatest ever held by the chapter. Over 300 covers were laid for the supper which preceded the meeting and the menu served consisted of cold roast fresh ham, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, gravy, cranberries, celery, rolls, squash pie, cheese, coffee, assorted nuts with Hallowe'en favors. The table decorations were also in keeping with the Hallowe'en season.

Following the degree work adjournment was again taken to the banquet hall and a delightful entertainment program was provided Mrs. Maude Crowe favoring with a group of vocal numbers and Mrs. Frances A. Geer gave a most comprehensive report of the general grand chapter session held in Toronto, Canada, in August. Following her report, Mrs. Geer delighted her audience with a stereopticon lecture in which scenes at Niagara Falls, Watkin's Glen, the Lincoln highway, and Bear mountain bridge were shown.

The general chairman of the anniversary program was Worthy Matron Mrs. Ella Barber, the supper committee comprising Mrs. Emma Dolbeare chairman, Mrs. Minnie Amburn, Mrs. Emma Breed, Mrs. Eunice Bernard Mrs. Jennie Gee, Mrs. Rosebelle Lindberson, Mrs. Jennie Kramer and Mrs. Lois Drurie. Mrs. Mary Carpenter was in charge of the waitresses.

NORWICH FIRM GIVEN BIG SCHOOL CONTRACT

One of the largest public school contracts to be awarded in many months was made Wednesday by the New Britain school department, the contract calling for the construction of a school on Steel street, at a cost of approximately $325,000 being awarded to the firm of Peck-McWilliams company of Norwich. Final arrangements are to be made on Saturday of this week. The bidding was brisk for the school contract which called for the construction of a 16-room school building, having a large auditorium and many special rooms, to be located in one of the best residential sections of New Britain. Companies bidding on the work included the Crowe Construction company and the Hayes Construction company of New Britain, H. Wales-Lines company of Meriden, W. F. Muirhead of New Haven, Lawrence & Goe'ot Hartford, the Torrington Building company of Torrington, the Clark Construction company of Waterbury and Peck-McWilliams company of Norwich.

The school building, 120 feet by 240 feet, two stories in height, with basement, is to be of red brick with a red joint, backed up with hollow tile. It will have limestone trim throughout the exterior and the beautiful front entrance is to be of limestone. The construction is fireproof throughout with a basement containing the boiler room, janitors' work and storage room, girls' and boys' bicycle rooms, playrooms and lockers and the toilet rooms are of tile construction with marble partitions. A spacious gymnasium is also to be located in the basement, measuring 40 by 90 feet, height to permit all manner of indoor games.

The foundation is to be of rubble stone laid in cement mortar, wood laid over cement cinder filled, in the gymnasium, the remainder of the basement to be of cement. Battleship linoleum will be cemented to all floors in all classrooms and corridors and floors on the corridors, stairhall, class rooms and auditorium and to be composition floors. Interior work will include shower baths and dressing alcoves for use in the gymnasium.

On the main floor will be an auditorium 40 by 90 feet with gallery, to seat over 800 people, the height to extend through the main and second floors, and to have a motion picture booth of hollow tile construction, also a stage, 39 by 15 feet for entertainments. A kindergarten room is also located on this floor, complete in itself with coat rooms, closets and having a fireplace of tile face and tile hearth.

Seven class rooms are on the main floor each about 22 by 34 feet with built-in coat rooms, closets and bulletin boards. On the main floor there will also be located the waiting room, physical director's room, teachers' rooms, doctors' and nurses' rooms and the principal's room.

On the second floor are nine class rooms of similar size and construction to those on the main floor, also a library equipped with built-in book cases and shelves for larger volumes and periodicals, this is to be a room 32 by 41 feet.

The roof is of five-ply tar and gravel construction, Barrett specification completing the fireproof construction.

All rooms are to be plastered and much ornamental cornice work is planned, for the vestibule halls and corridors, also for the ceilings and library, while pilasters built up with plaster with fluted work, are called for in the stage construction.

Work on the new school is to be started Monday of next week with a view to completing the construction by September, 1926, providing weather conditions allow work throughout the winter. Over 100 men will be employed at times in the construction work and the foundation work will be underway within ten days.

This award makes the second large contract given the Norwich company in recent months, the administration building for Manchester having been secured earlier in the year, now rapidly nearing completion.

VANINNI ENSEMBLE GAVE RARE CONCERT PERFORMANCE

Under the auspices of the Rotary club, with the proceeds for the John S. Blackmar boys' work fund, a concert of unusual excellence was given Wednesday evening at Slater hall by the Vaninni Symphony Ensemble of Boston, a group of artists whose work gave a rarely delightful evening for the audience of about 400.

Delicacy, grace and charm, with a nice appreciation of musical values and the skill of real artists in expressing them, marked every selection by the ensemble. The audience rewarded the players with spontaneous and well deserved applause and they in turn responded generously with encores rendering one after the other after the final number of the programme. The stage was attractively decorated with autumn leaves and palms by Ernst.

The programme was given as follows:

Overture, "Coriolanus", Beethoven; Symphony in B-minor (Unfinished), Schubert, a. Allegro moderato, b. Andante con moto. Intermission. Finale, "Scheherezade", Rimsky-Korsakoff, Festival at Bagdad. The Sea. The ship goes to pieces on a rock surmounted by a bronze warrior. Conclusion; Isolde's Love Death from "Tristan", Wagner; Rhapsodia Espagnole, The personnel of the ensemble comprises Augusto Vannini, director; M. Gundersen, concertmaster; H. Sauvlet, first violin; H. Werner, second violin; C. Wynbergen, viola; J. Langendoen, cello; O. Ludwig, bass; F. Amerena, flute; H. Stanislaus, oboe; P. Mimart, clarinet; G. Wendler, horn; G. Mager, trumpet; A. DeVoto, piano.

BACKUS HOSPITAL

Nurses' Home Opening

The new Nurses' Home of The William W. Backus Hospital will be open to the public on Wednesday, November 4th, from 3 to 5 and from 8 to 10 p. m.

The Executive Committee take this opportunity to express their appreciation of the gifts, over seven thousand in number, which have made this building possible. It is hoped that a large number of the donors will be interested to visit the new Home on the opening day. Any general Hospital is practically a public institution and the quality and extent of its service is determined largely by the community which it undertakes to serve.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE of The William W. Backus Hospital.

LATE DR. RICHARD P. DWYER MARRIED NORWICH GIRL

Dr. Richard P. Dwyer, 46, whose funeral took place in Hartford Monday married Miss Mary Ahern, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ahern, of Broad street, Norwich. Mrs. Dwyer was a relative of the Misses Lyons, of McKinley avenue, who attended the funeral.

Referring to Dr. Dwyer's death from pneumonia, attributable in a measure to his too constant devotion to his patients when he himself was ill, a Hartford paper said:

He insisted upon calling on his patients and visited some of them Friday morning. He came home at about 11 o'clock Friday morning very ill, and went to bed. Friday afternoon he developed a serious case of pneumonia, and little hope was at any time held out for his recovery.

Dr. Dwyer was well known in Hartford and is said to have had the largest practice in obstetrics of any physician in the city. Relatives said that it was his unswerving service to his patients and the tremendous amount of work that he did day and night, which had indirectly caused his death.

Dr. Dwyer was born in Hartford. He atended St. Peter's Parochial school and afterwards was graduated from the Hartford public high school. Before studying medicine at Jefferson Medical college from which he was graduated in 1908, he spent some time at New York university. Returning to Hartford he entered St. Francis hospital where he served a year as an interne. He started to practice in 1909 and had become one of Hartford's best known physicians. He was assistant attending physician at St. Francis hospital, a fellow of the American Medical association, a member of the city, county and state medical societies and a member of the Knights of Columbus.

During the war Dr. Dwyer served as a captain in the medical corps and was head of the hospital at Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga. He was born in St. Peter's Parish and from boyhood attended St. Peter's church. He leaves his wife, Mary A. Ahern and two sisters, Misses Mary M. and Ellen C. Dwyer.

The Hartford Medical society met this afternon at 4:30 o'clock at the Hunt Memorial to take action on the death of Dr. Dwyer.

FUNERAL

Ernest Goodrow

The funeral of Ernest Goodrow of Groton was held Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock from the parlors of Hourigan Bros., Main street, this city and at 9 o'clock there was a requiem mass at St. Mary's Memorial church. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. William J. Fox of Groton. At the offertory Henry J. LaFontaine sang Pie Jesu and as the waiting hymn Mr. LaFontaine sang Lead, Kindly Light. The bearers were A. B. Allen, Carl Allen and Clifford Lathrop of Groton and Joseph Goodrow of this city and burial took place in St. Joseph's cemetery. Relatives and friends were present and there were many beautiful floral tributes of esteem.

Wrinkles Vanish Before Your Very Eyes!

Just think! In your mirror, before your very eyes, you see the wrinkles, age lines and sagginess vanish from your face! And it's such a simple and harmless treatment. Just mix a spoonful of powdered tarkroot with a spoonful of lemon juice. Apply to your face and watch the most marvelous change take place—in less than 15 minutes. See the horrid wrinkles, worry lines, creases and sagginess quickly disappear. It is a wonderful, startling sensation! Only the actual experience could make you believe it.

The application is easily washed off. The result is far better than the most expensive and expert face massage could ever give—and the treatment costs less than three cents! Procure an original package of powdered tarkroot from your druggist, try it, and you will have the surprise of your life.

How to Easily Lose Fat

Prominent American Specialists, Doctors and Former Health Commissioner Exclusively Recommends French Discovery to FAT PEOPLE

Without injuring your health or having to diet or exercise, you can to-day easily take off 5 to 6 pounds a week with a French prescription conveniently put up in a small tablet called SAN-GRI-NA. Since SAN-GRI-NA has been introduced in America, it has met with such tremendous success that Doctors, Specialists, Nurses, and Dr. Radolph, former Health Commissioner, have thoroughly investigated it, and now exclusively recommend it to fat people as absolutely harmless and most effective. If you have been fat for years; if your case is most obstinate; if you have tried everything advertised without success; if you suffer from puffing, high blood pressure, tired feeling—simply do this: Get a package of SAN-GRI-NA, take two small tablets before each meal, and watch your weight gradually go down and your health improve. Not only will SAN-GRI-NA do away with fat, but almost from the minute you start taking it you will feel a wonderful change in your entire system. Thousands of people already have been benefited by SAN-GRI-NA, and are sending in most gratifying reports. These cases vary in reducing from 10 to 70 pounds in a remarkably short time, and many say that "almost immediately after taking SAN-GRI-NA they felt 100 per cent. better."

Mrs. Koster, of Brooklyn, writes: "With SAN-GRI-NA, in six weeks I lost 30 pounds of ugly fat, and after years of suffering I was relieved from heart trouble. I now can climb the stairs without puffing, and I have found wonderful relief. You can use my letter, as well as my name, as I am grateful, and wish to help as many of my sisters as I can."

"When I first sent for SAN-GRI-NA I had been under the Doctor's care for heart trouble and high blood pressure. After I used SAN-GRI-NA for two weeks I was much better."—Mrs. Fonquerney.

If your druggist does not carry SAN-GRI-NA in stock, he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 B'way, New York City, and one full-sized box SAN-GRI-NA will be mailed you prepaid.

On sale at any good drug or department store. If your druggist does not carry San-Gri-Na in stock he can get it from his wholesaler or you can send a money order or check for $1.50 direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, N. Y. City.

NEW JERSEY BOXING COMMISSION BARS JOHNSON FROM FURTHER BOUTS

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 28. (AP)—The New Jersey state boxing commission today definitely barred Floyd Johnson from ever fighting in New Jersey again as a result of his unsatisfactory showing against Harry Wills in Newark Monday night.

This action was taken by Newton A. K. Bugbee, state boxing commissioner, following an investigation into the affair which he conducted privately. The ban fell late today despite a previous decision by Platt Adams, deputy commissioner, that no action would be taken against Johnson.

In a formal statement Commissioner Bugbee apologized to the patrons of boxing for the disappointing bout, disbarred Johnson in this state and suspended Homer Robinson for six months as a result of an unsatisfactory showing in the preliminaries.

The statement follows:

"The boxing commission of New Jersey was very much humiliated and disappointed at the outcome of the Wills-Johnson fight and feels that an explanation is due the patrons of boxing.

"The commissioner and the chief inspector had seen Floyd Johnson in action less than two years ago and thought he would be a reasonable trial horse for Harry Wills. Permission to hold the contest was granted only after careful deliberation and apparently the judgment of the commission was wrong, as the results show.

"Floyd Johnson will be disbarred from future contests in this state.

"The Homer Robinson-Frank Moody bout was most unsatisfactory and the commission will suspend Robinson from fighting in this state for six months.

"In the future it will be the policy of the commission to avoid contests of this character. It has been our constant policy to encourage the smaller boxing clubs throughout the state in order to provide suitable entertainment for the large numbers of citizens who wish to see good boxing, and this policy will be continued more markedly than heretofore."

JIM THORPE IS NOW HONEYMOONING IN WEST

NEW YORK, Oct. 28. (AP)—Released by the New York Professional Football club because of his failure to get into proper playing condition, Jim Thorpe, famous Indian athlete, has signed another contract—in matrimony—and is now honeymooning on his way West.

The announcement today that the former Carlisle star had been cut adrift by the "Pro" team was coupled with the disclosure that he had married Miss Freeda Kirkpatrick of Enfiedtt, W. Va. It is his second venture in matrimony. He was divorced last year in Oklahoma on grounds of desertion. Thorpe came to the New York team from Rock Island, Ill., which holds a franchise in the new National league, with the understanding that he must get into condition to obtain an engagement here. Two weeks ago he played against a Philadelphia team but failed to show anything like his old-time form and was withdrawn. He has been handicapped by an injured knee, which failed to respond to treatment.

Officials of the New York team said Thorpe's contract would revert to Rock Island but it is considered doubtful that he will play again this season.

Thorpe is 39 years old and in his failure to gain a regular position on the local team, athletic observers see the end of his spectacular athletic career, so far as any outstanding accomplishment is concerned. The big Indian has had a checkered career but also one of the most marvelous all-around records in competitive history. He first gained nation-wide fame as a gridiron star at the Carlisle school, Pennsylvania, winning a place on Walter Camp's All-American teams of 1911 and 1912. As a member of the Olympic team the latter year, Thorpe romped away with the all-around track and field championship events but later was deprived of his medals and athletic glory by the discovery that he had previously lost his amateur standing by playing in a professional baseball game.

Thorpe later turned to the diamond for a living and was signed by the New York Giants, but failed to measure up to big league calibre. In the past few years he has played both professional baseball and football, shifting from one place to another but still flashing at times the brilliancy that came of his natural athletic ability.

ACADEMY SQUAD SHOWS MARKED IMPROVEMENT

Preparations for the Chapman Tech game at New London, Saturday are being rushed along at a rapid rate. Wednesday afternoon's practice saw the team on its toes and working hard all of the time. The entire squad seemed filled with a sort of "go get him" spirit that made the signal drill well worth witnessing. The entire afternoon was given over to signal drilling.

Coach Whitney during the past few days has taken considerable time in rectifying the blunders and mistakes that the local boys made in the Plainfield game. In spite of the Academy's decisive victory there were numerous misplays that occurred at bad times. The entire N. F. A. squad feels confident of a victory over Chapman Tech by a large score. Alumni who have followed the ups and downs of this season's eleven are beginning to believe that Coue was right after all—"Every day in every way they are getting better and better."

N. E. CONFERENCE TEAMS HAVE STIFF GAMES AHEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 28—Football teams in the New England conference, which includes all New England state colleges with the exception of Vermont, will have their work cut out for them Saturday when they meet opponents who will provide stiff opposition.

Massachusetts Aggies will meet Amherst at Amherst. New Hampshire plays Tufts at Durham. Connecticut Aggies engage Manhattan at Storrs. Maine tackles Colby at Waterville, and Rhode Island pairs off with Worcester Tech at Worcester.

The Massachusetts Aggie-Amherst clash is without doubt the most attractive contest scheduled for a conference team Saturday. Undefeated to date, and a strong contender for conference honors, the Bay State Farmers will receive a severe test in their game with the Sabrinas. It will be the thirty-first annual clash between Amherst and M. A. C., with Amherst favored to win, largely because of its overwhelming defeat of Wesleyan last week.

New Hampshire, which is crowding Massachusetts Aggies for conference honors, will face a greatly improved Tufts team at Durham, but for all that the powerful Granite Staters are favored to win. Coach Cowell has developed another strong team at New Hampshire this year, and to date it has been undefeated.

Maine will meet Colby at Waterville in a game that will help to decide which is the best team in the Pine Tree state, while the Connecticut Aggies will meet their second metropolitan team of the year in playing Manhattan at Storrs. These two games, like the Rhode Island-Worcester Tech clash at Worcester, brings together teams that are apparently fairly evenly matched.

SCANDINAVIA HURLS THREAT AT AMERICAN ATHLETES

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—The combined track and field forces of the four Scandinavian countries—Finland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark—are likely to challenge those of the United States to a separate test before or after the 1928 Olympics games at Amsterdam.

Advices received here from Stockholm indicate that prominent athletic officials there are already to put the plan into concrete form. It is likely the challenge would take the form of an invitation to send the American team to Stockholm for the meet.

In connection with the last Olympics, the United States sent most of its stars to London after the Paris games to meet the British empire representatives and Scandinavian leaders are optimistic that they can arrange a similar test of skill.

So far as American athletic men are concerned, the plan likely would be regarded favorably especially since athletic relations with the Scandinavian nations have been fostered in the last few years.

Finland, with her star array of distance men led by Paavo Nurmi and Willie Ritola, beside strength in the field events would be the main bulwark of the Scandinavian team. Sweden has Elvin Wide, another distance star, besides Sten Pettersson, a rapidly improving builder, and Gunnar Lindstrom, who set a new world's javelin throwing record recently. Norway has the world's pole vault champion in Charles Hoff, who also is a star all-round performer.

PENN COACHES FEAR SPEED OF GRANGE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28. (AP)—University of Pennsylvania football scouts, who saw Captain "Red" Grange of Illinois in action against Michigan last Saturday, said today upon their return from the West, that he was one of the greatest backs of all time. Charles Keinath, Frank Sommer and Dr. J. K. (Possi) Miller, all of whom saw the Illinois-Michigan contest, were a unit in their praise of Grange's ability.

"On a wet field," said Keinath, former Red and Blue quarterback, "I would say Grange is not to be feared, but give him adry gridiron and he is liable to get loose at any time. Against Michigan he could not dodge much, but he showed me enough Saturady to make me feel that Pennsylvania must be alert ever second to win from Illinois.

"Illinois, with Grange as a scoring menace, is not as dangerous inside the 15 or 20 yard line as the 40 yeard line or mid-field. Our defense, I believe, is strong enough to throttle Coach Zuppke's team inside the 20-yard line but Grange, if given the ball around midfield, is likely to get loose at any time and race for a touchdown. For that reason, I say, Penn must outscore Grange."

"Every time I see Grange he looks better," said Summer. "He sort of grows on you.

"He reminds me of Eddie Kaw, former Cornell star, more than any other player I know of. Fast as lightning, sure of his feet, a good straight-armer, strong on defense and plucky as a safety man, Grange has everything and is tricky.

"I don't think Illinois is any better than Chicago but there is more to be feared from Zuppke's team on account of Grange. Both lines play high but the Illinois forwards go through faster than Stagg's."

HAGEN NOT TO PLAY IN LOS ANGELES TOURNEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 28. (AP)—Walter Hagen, professional golf champion, today announced he would be unable to compete in the Los Angeles open tournament in January, but that arrangements would soon be made, he hoped, for a 72-hole contest with Bobby Jones of Atlanta, national amateur champion. The former British and American open title holder has just returned from a hunting trip in the Canadian northwest, where he scored a hole in par on the duck ponds by bagging 99 ducks with 100 shells.

Hagen will play in the open tournament in November at Princess Anne Country club at Norfolk, Va., and in the fall meet at Pinehurst, North Carolina, before conferring with Jones about their contest. It is probable that this struggle of the premier linksmen will be played at Pasadena and Saratoga, Fla.

BUTTERWORTH IS INJURED NOT TO PLAY SATURDAY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 28.—(A. P.)—Ben Butterworth, right tackle on the Yale football team, was injured in this afternoon's scrimmage preparatory to the Army game and probably will be unable to play Saturday. Butterworth was injured in the Penn game and has just returned to the team this afternoon. His place again was taken by Burt Benton, who has been holding down the right tackle post since last week.

A football rally, the first of the season was attended by 1,500 students tonight. The students headed by a torchlight brigade and the Yale band, marched to Woolsey hall where J. W. Cutler spoke, cheers were given and a new song was introduced. This song, "1-2-3 for Eli" will be heard at the bowl Saturday.

MANN TO STUMP FOR SPRINGFIELD CANDIDATE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—Leslie Mann, outfielder on the Boston Braves, and now an athletic instructor at Springfield (Mass.) college, today joined the speaking staff for his cousin, Frank D. Waterman, republican candidate for mayor.

Mann said Mr. Waterman had been interested for years in boys' athletics and had suggested a baseball course in the movies.

"I am most interested in Cousin Frank's campaign," he said, "and I can assure the fans that he will be a hard hitter as mayor."

NUTMEGS TO PLAY SUNDAY AFTERNOON AT SACHEM FIELD

Sunday afternoon at Sachem Field, Falls, the Nutmeg A. C. will meet the Lorraine Mills football team in the game that was postponed from last Sunday. Westerly's team is made up of ex-Stonington and Westerly high school players. These include such players as "Buck" Gavitt, Stillman, Dyer, and Frechette.

A hard fast game is promised to all folks who attend the contest. The field has been newly marked off, ropes put up and police protection will be had for Sunday. This will be the Nutmegs last home game for some time as they leave on their annual road tour on Sunday Nov. 8.

BIG RUSH FOR TICKETS TO PENN-ILLINOIS GAME

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28—So great was the crush to obtain football tickets today for the Pennsylvania-Illinois game at Franklin Field Saturday that a detail of police was summoned to quiet the milling crowd that stormed the office of the athletic council.

From 8 a. m. until nightfall thousands of students stood in front of the office shouting for tickets. Trouble was feared in the excitement and a call was sent for police. A patrol wagon load responded and restored order without making an arrest. In the line were many co-eds, who sat on boxes studying during the long wait.

BROWN LINE TO BE REBUILT FOR DARTMOUTH

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 28. — (AP)—Practically rebuilding his entire line from tackle to tackle is keeping Coach Ed Robinson of the Brown football squad busy this week as he prepares for the Dartmouth game Saturday.

With four veteran linemen out of the game, Robinson has shifted McCrillis, a guard, to tackle, and Getz, another guard, to center. Hal and Don Morey, the New Rochelle, N. Y., twins, will start on the left side of the line.

Mascart Signs For Bout

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—(AP)— Edouard Mascart, French holder of the European featherweight championship, today signed for matches with Willie Cunningham of Buffalo at Buffalo, November 9, and with Eddie Anderson of Wyoming in Brooklyn, November 16.

MUCH TRADITIONAL COLOR CLINGS TO SATURDAY'S FOOTBALL GAMES

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(By the Associated Press)—Football rivalries that go back into the more or less dim past of the game will bloom forth in their 1925 rivivals this Saturday in four of the contests that hold the interest of gridiron fans.

There is no traditional color connected with the outstanding two intersectional clashes of the week. Those involving Michigan-Navy and Pennsylvania-Illinois, but there is a wealth of background to the contests that bring together Army and Yale at New Haven, Cornell and Columbia at the Polo Grounds and Dartmouth and Brown at Providence. In addition there is the renewal of the dispute between two old New England schools, Trinity and Wesleyan, which goes back to 1853.

Yale holds a big edge over the army in their series of gridiron conflicts, started in 1893, but the Mule is primed for revenge on the Bull Dog this week with more than a fair chance of gaining it in the opinion of many critics. Not since 1911, when the Army won by 6 to 0, have the cadets raised the victory cher at New Haven. In twenty-four previous games, Yale has won fifteen, the army three, while six battles, including that of 1924, have ended in ties.

Dartmouth dates it warfare with Brown back to 1894 and the Big Green eleven, acknowledged to be among the most powerful in the east this year, is cut to square the count with the Brunonians, who have won ten and lost nine games so far in the series between the two New England rivals. Brown has not been victorious since 1919 but "by" to that time, with the exception of a five-year winning streak by Dartmouth from 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the Providence outfit had things pretty well its own way.

If Brown can summon reserve strength sufficient to bolster up its weakened line, hard hit by injuries in the Yale and Penn games, the Bears may make it more interesting for Dartmouth than is expected.

Columbia has not beaten Cornell since 1908, the year before the game was dropped here, but Coach Chirley Crowley's proteges are conceded a good chance of breaking the spell this week. Columbia undoubtedly has the best eleven it has produced since reviving football, with Captain George Pease back in the game directing play, the New Yorkers should give a strenuous tussle to the up-staters who have run rough-shod over all opposition so far with an outfit much improved over that of 1924.

Last year Cornell beat Columbia, 14 to 0, in the latter's first game after the sudden death of Coach Percy Haughton. Cornell has won five straight from Columbia and altogether, since 1899, has won nine out of twelve contests.

Preparing for their own historical struggle the following week, Princeton and Harvard, rallying from setbacks last Saturday, should have comparatively little trouble taking the measure of Swarthmore and Williams and Mary, respectively, this week.

In other contests which hold unusual interest, although they lack ancient backgrounds, Syracuse will try to keep its goal-line inviolate against Penn State; Colgate goes west in search of intersectional conquest at the expense of the Michigan Aggies; West Virginia battles Washington & Lee; while four unconquered outfits are involved in the Holy Cross-Bucknell and Fordham-New York university tilts.

PITTSBURGH PLAYERS SELECT THE CHAMPIONSHIP EMBLEM

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—(AP) — The Pittsburgh nationals, world's baseball champions, have finally decided upon the emblem they want to mark them as the titleholders. It will be a pirate's head in the form of a lapel button or a watch charm.

Since winning the highest honor in baseball the Pirates until today were undecided as to the emblem. Some wanted a diamond ring while others voted for watch charms and numerous other designs. The players were undecided when they left for their homes in various parts of the country, and the club management was forced to continue the emblem negotiations by mail.

CULLOP PITCHES LOUISVILLE TO VICTORY OVER SEALS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28. (AP)—The Louisville Colonels, playing in championship fashion took the seventh game of the baseball series today, defeating the San Francisco club, 6 to 2. Cullop was in good form and although touched for nine bingles, was never in any great danger. The seals used three pitchers and were found for eleven hits.

By winning today's game the association champions cut down the Seal's lead to one game. The series now stands San Francisco 4 games; Louisville three. The score:

Louisville	020 020 010	5	11 1
San Francisco	000 000 020	2	9 2

Cullop and Meyer; Mitchell, Crockwell, Geary and Agnew.

BOASE DOES NOT APPROVE STANDARD GOLF BALL

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—(AP)—William Norman Boase, chairman of the championship committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf club of Great Britain who arrived on the Scythia today said that he did not view favorably the standardized golf ball sponsored by the U. S. Golf association. He expressed the belief that for the time being at least there would be no radical change in the matter of balls used in the British championship tournaments.

Mr. Boase, who is chairman of the Scotch Flax Spinners and Manufacturers' association and a director of the Alliance Trust company of Dundee, Scotland, is in this country on business and also will visit the Canadian northwest.

ILLINOIS PUTS IN LAST HARD DRILL

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Harold (Red) Grange, born in a small Pennsylvania town 23 years ago, led his Illinois team through their last practice tonight before departing tomorrow noon for Philadelphai in Red's native state where Illinois meets Penn Saturday. The game will mark Grange's first appearance on an eastern field.

Irish Win Again

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The All-Irish women's hockey team defeated the Vassar varsity 3 to 1 here today.

EASTERN CONN. WORTHIES FIGURE IN NEW SEITZ BOOK

It is an interesting fact that in the much talked-of new book by Don C. Seitz, of the New York World, a boon which he has aptly titled, Uncommon Americans, among the characters most compelling in exciting the attention of readers are four from Eastern Connecticut—Gen. Israel Putnam, John Ledyard and Edmund and Nathaniel Fanning.

One would know at the outset that Mr. Seitz's book would disclose unusual features. It is dedicated "To those who have failed" and its foreword is so original that the reader is prepared for something out of the ordinary. This foreword reads: "Henry Adams once wrote a relative that he had learned the easiest way to succeed, it was to conform. This volume is devoted to sketches of individuals who did not, and made their marks. Some of these marks were black, most white and a few red. But they were brand and plain. In days of drabness, it is well to know something of unconventional success."

After this original method of preparedness, Mr. Seitz takes up and shows up in order twenty-two uncommon Americans; Joseph Smith statesman; Brigham Young, organizer and builder; Martin Scott, who made the 'coon come down; Lord Timothy Dexter, merchant adventurer; Peter Cartwright, evangel of the backwoods; Charles Grandison Finney, saver of souls; Israel Putnam, patriot of Pomfret; Nathan Bedford Forrest, home-made general; John S. Mosby, great guerrilla; Susan B. Anthony, sister of suffrage; Red Jacket, protector of his people; George Francis Train, creator and crank; Tecumseh, patriot and warrior; Ethan Allen, liberator of Vermont; James Abbott McNeil Whistler, wit, wasp and butterfly; Edmund Fanning, pathfinder of the Pacific; John Ledyard, first American traveler; Hinton Rowan Helper, voice in the wilderness; Henry George, preventer of poverty; Mary Baker Eddy, mother of faith; Edwin Forrest, whose hiss bred a riot; David Crockett, who died for Texas.

This list—as startling as it is interesting—gives the first idea of what Mr. Seitz is going to tell and foreshadows how he will tell it.

While each chapter is absorbing reading, it is about the characters most familiar in Eastern Connecticut that interest centers, naturally; new admiration is inspired for the rugged and heroic personality of Israel Putnam, as the author sketches him with rapid strokes. He calls him "the Connecticut farmer, who, perhaps, next to Washington enjoys the greatest fame as an American soldier."

Because Whistler spent a brief portion of his picturesque existence in Stonington, there is special interest in Mr. Seitz's characterization of this great and odd genius. The particular chapter is bristling with new and pungent anecdotes, quips and quirls.

More staid and serious is the sketch of Edmund Fanning and his brother Nathaniel, sons of Gilbert Fanning, ardent Stonington patriot of Revolutionary times. They came from a family who were in truth "men of the sea," and it must be sluggish blood indeed which does not stir at reading Mr. Seitz's spirited and sprightly account of their ventures and achievements.

As Mr. Seitz pictures him, Edmund Fanning was not only brave but far-seeing; and as the result of dull sleepiness on the part of the national authorities only partial advantage was taken of his discoveries. As the author sums up: "The nation failed to seize any advantage from the results, hence we today have our Pacific problem. Had Edmund Fanning's advice been heeded, it would not exist. The South Sea would be an American lake in which we would be strongly posted, with no fear of yellow peril, while the commercial advantages do not need enumeration. Fanning led, but had no followers."

Another character brought out in strong lights by Mr. Seitz is John Ledyard, whose early manhood is entangled in an interesting way with the founding of Dartmouth college in Lebanon, Conn., when it was primarily a school for young Indians. John Ledyard had a checkered career, which the author rims in high colors, as he narrates the explorations of the Connecticut farmer's son, in his strange farings, to the Barbary coast, to Van Dieman's Land, to Teneriffe and New Zealand and where not—through pulse quickening adventurings by land and sea, up to the time of his sudden death at Cairo, Nov. 17th, 1789.

The same facility and aptness of expression which characterised Mr. Seitz's other books—Joseph Pulitzer; His Life and Letters; Artemus Ward, Braxton Bragg, The Buccaneers, makes the book delightful reading. Its portraits and make-up serve to add to its attractiveness.

CONNECTICUT HAS 28 MILES OF FEDERAL AID

Connecticut has completed 9.5 miles of federal aid highway since June 30, the bureau of public roads announced Wednesday at Washington. The total cost of the projects completed up to Sept. 30, was $676,452.75, of which the government paid $171,947.14.

The state now has 29.4 miles of federal aid highway under construction at a total cost of $1,909,405.24, of which the government is paying $609,-[illegible]. Connecticut still has a fund of $1,240,277.72 federal aid available for new projects, and since 1917 has completed 161.6 miles of federal aid roads the entire cost of these eight years of construction was $4,558,639.29, of which the government paid $1,819,368.66.

WESTERLY

William Segar of Westerly and Edward E. Bradley of Stonington borough will leave Westerly today (Thursday) on a three or four weeks' vacation trip, Mr. Segar to visit in New Mexico and Mr. Bradley in California, before their return home. This is Mr. Segar's fourth trip to New Mexico, where he will pass some time in Raton. Both men plan visits to the principal cities of the Pacific southwest section.

Records on file in the Westerly town clerk's office show that on Oct. 27 Luigi Luzzi and wife Filomena sold to Ottavio Del Cotto and wife a tract of land with buildings and improvements on the north side of the Niantic road, south and west of the Pawcatuck river.

Friday evening in the vestry of the Calvary Baptist church the Sunday school is to hold a Hallowe'en party. Hallowe'en favors will be provided and many of the participants will be masked and in costume. Daphine Saunders will be in charge of the games and Ida May Smith will have supervision of refreshments. William D. Howard is superintendent of the Sunday school.

Public schools of Westerly will be closed today (Thursday) and Friday to enable the teachers to attend the annual Rhode Island Institute of Instruction to be held in Providence on Nov. 29, 30 and 31. This (Thursday) morning at Providence Technical High school they will attend a memorial meeting in honor of James C. Greenough first principal of the reorganized Rhode Island State Normal school.

Largely attended Wednesday was the Harvest Supper of the Third Order, in the vestry of the Immaculate Conception church. The menu consisted of baked ham, baked beans, potato salad, rolls, pickles, doughnuts, pumpkin apple and mince pie and coffee. The guests were served at three long tables which together with the rooms were effectively decorated with flowers and autumn foliage the decorations being in charge of the Mrs. Moores.

The building which formerly housed the defunct Kingston Trust company for defalcations in which Miss Tefft was sentenced in superior court in Westerly to a term in Rhode Island state prison, was sold at auction Wednesday noon to Bernon E. Helme of Kingston for $5500. Although there was a large crowd bidding was confined to two persons, Mr. Helme is the owner of the building which adjoins the bank structure, which was sold at the order of the receivers of the institution.

Charles E. Grinnell of Mystic returned to his duties as teller in the Washington Trust company in Westerly after a vacation which included a visit to New York.

Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck accompanied by Mrs. Wilcox and Miss Grace Carmichael of Westerly were automobile visitors in Providence Wednesday.

Miss Mary T. Thorp of Jamestown, R. I., after attending the R. I. Institute of Instruction in Providence, will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Job Thorp, in Westerly over the week end.

Constable William Ostman of Stonington borough was a business caller in Pawcatuck and Westerly Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Vars, who have been on a vacation visit to Atlantic City, N. J., are stopping over to visit relatives in Washington, D. C., before returning to their Westerly home at the week end.

Patrolman Fred. Ferraro began a week's tour of day duty Wednesday, while Officer George H. Champlin, having completed a week of day duty returned to the night patrol. Police Officer Robert Kessel is having a vacation.

The town of Stonington probate judge, Frank Hinckley of Mystic, passed a busy day Tuesday attending to Pawcatuck probate court matters in the probate court room in the Walton block on West Broad street.

Vets hall, the meeting place of Harley P. Chase post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in the Walton block, will be enlarged. Another room will be added to the post room by building an addition out over the ell of the building on the south side.

William Vanderbilt was a Westerly visitor Tuesday, having motored here from his summer home in Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cottrell have returned to their home in New Jersey after visiting in Westerly to attend the funeral of William Clark Tuesday.

Wednesday afternoon 2400 Westerly taxpayers had paid their 1925 taxes at the office of the Westerly town treasurer, with many to pay in the three days left.

Blazing brakes which had been set on an automobile, coming down Vincent Carr hill, High street, Wednesday evening, about 8 o'clock, was the cause for an alarm of fire being turned in from Box 64, Pleasant and High streets. Fire Chief George E. Egger and all three pieces of apparatus responded, only to find that their services were not needed.

SEGT-MAJ. ROBT. ATKINS ARMISTICE DAY MARSHAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 28—Armistice day celebration plans were carried nearer to perfection Wednesday evening in Westerly, when it was announced that Sergeant-Major Robert Atkins of Bradford, had been chosen marshal of the parade. He is a member of the British Colonial Great War Veterans, of which Thomas Waddington will be commander for the day. Announcements were also made that a speaker to represent Rhode Island Governor Abram J. Pothier, whose dates were taken, would be made known Thursday night, according to a report from the governor's military aide, Captain John F. Datson of Westerly. Action on a half holiday on Armistic day will also be considered on Thursday night when an executive committee from the Westerly Chamber of Commerce, Lewis Stanton, president will meet with the Armistice day committee of the Westerly Veterans' organization in the American Legion post rooms on Broad street. The next regular meeting will be held Wednesday evening next when Marshal Atkins together with James Kane, an aide from Harley Chase post, Veterans of Foreign Wars and aides to be named from the legion and British Veterans, will report the line of march laid out and the formation of the parade. Permission has been obtained from Wilcox park trustees, so that the formal presentation of flags to Westerly hospital by Harold W. Merrill post American Legion, will take place there at the conclusion of the street parade.

PLAINFIELD

Joseph Raille of 129 Sixth street, Plainfield, who was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined costs of court by Judge John T. Barry of Jewett City was driving a car toward Plainfield when he crashed into a car driven by Dr. Phillips of New Haven, who was returning home from a visit to Providence. Dr. Phillips' car was damaged badly and it is reported it will take several hundred dollars to repair it.

Mrs. Daisy Gee gave a party at her home Wednesday night to the members of the Girls' Friendly society. About 35 members were present, and hallowe'en games were played. Refreshments were served by the hostess and each girl received favors. The home was decorated in Autumn colors, with symbols of Hallowe'en.

The whist and social given by the Women's club Tuesday night at the Community house was a success. Receipts will be used for the re-location of the village sign at the entrance to the village. Other whists and socials planned by this organization will be held for charitable objects and civic improvements. Prizes were awarded Sidney Mathewson, Mrs. Clara Ducharme and Irving Flagg were given the consolation awards.

The 11-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gadbeau of the New Village, who died on Saturday, was buried Tuesday in the Plainfield cemetery, Rev. W. C. Prentiss read the burial service.

Miss Edith Knabe, who died at Worcester, is to be buried in Plainfield.

The Q. J. S. society is planning for its annual roast beef supper. Mrs. Arthur Moffitt is in charge. A play entitled "The Light Brigade" will be given by the same cast that presented it at Central Village.

In spite of bad weather there was quite a large attendance at the Union service at Sterling hill Sunday evening. The message given by Rev. G Leon Wells of Moosup, and Rev. George Browne of Plainfield, were inspiring to all.

The annual whist party and social held by the Children of Mary society of St. John's church, was a great success. Plans had been made for 27 tables at whist, but as many more could have been filled, as the attendance surpassed the expectations of the committee. It was scheduled to hold the affair in room C, at the Community house, but through the courtesy of Roy Dissinger the auditorium was placed at their disposal. Prize winners were Mrs. Phillip Smith, first; Mrs. Camille Maucerelle, and Mrs. Pierre Allard, tied for second prise, and a cut of the cards awarded the prize to the former. Mrs. Roy of Taftville received the consolation award. The men's prizes went, first, Alphonse Coulombe; second, Simon Gveise, as the consolation to Lionel Jordoin.

A special program was given before a large audience Sunday evening at the harvest festival services, held at the parish hall of St. Paul's church, under the auspices of the Sunday school in charge of Miss Slamlow and Miss Florence Walker. The concert included songs by the entire Sunday school assembly, besides many solos and recitations.

Miss Dorothy Prentiss, Miss Ida Butler and Miss Dorothy Pike returned late Sunday evening from New London after attending the Older Girls' conference.

The Lincoln club of Plainfield held its meeting Monday evening with a large attendance. Supper was served by the ladies in charge of Mrs. Cooper. The entertainment consisted of piano selections by Mr. Thornton; banjo and harmonica selection by Mr. Utz; and selection by the male quartet. The speaker was Dr. Wilson of Hartford, a specialist, in straightening deformed bones, who gave an illustrated lecture on the work he is doing. William Bartholic and Herbert Phillips were accepted by the club as members. The next meeting of the club is to be Nov. 9.

CONVICTED OF ROBBERY; INDICTED FOR MURDER

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—A few hours after he had pleaded guilty to a nindictment charging first degree robbery today, Frank "Cowboy" Tessler, 35 year old leader of a robber gang, was indicted by a grand jury for murder in the first degree. Tessler is accused of killing Abraham Peskoff, fur dealer, during a robbery of his store, July 2, 1925.

Tessler, it was learned today, had posed for the purpose of gaining information about valuable stocks, as a reputable fur dealer and his business reputation was stainless until he was arrested. Following his plea of guilty to the charge of robbery Tessler had been returned to the Tombs without bail to await sentence.

He will plead to the murder indictment tomorrow. The 'Cowboy Gang" as Tessler and his associates were known is accused of committing more than 65 robberies during the last two months.

The murder of Peskoff was particularly brutal, police said today. He had been tied up by the bandits while they looted his store. He was lying on the floor groaning from injuries inflictedflicted by Tessler and his gang when Tessler, infuriated by his refusal to stop groaning, turned and deliberately fired several shots into Peskoff's body.

A smart walking stick which proved to be a rifle with a steel barrel of one half inch bore and a trigger concealed in the handle which seized by the police from Alfred Howard, a messman on the American freighter Waukegan docking today. An automatic containing several cartridges, and 18 large shells filled with buckshot were also seized. Howard, after refusing to make any statements, was released.

NEED BETTER METHODS IN REARING CHILDREN

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—The need of a fuller, more creative life for adults is just as vital to the progress of humanity as the need for better methods in the rearing of children, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, novelist, said tonight at the closing session of the three-day conference on modern parenthood held under the auspices of the Child Study Association of America.

"That is what gives me a thrill of exaltation as I catch a glimpse of it," she said, "the possibility that we are working for better living conditions for all human beings when we fight against living conditions we know to be bad for our own children."

Just as dull, uninteresting tasks have been found to hinder the development of children, so do such "jobs" in the industrial world of adulthood lead to an unhealthy unsatisfactory life, Mrs. Fisher said.

Mrs. Fisher, as a parent herself, welcomed the entrance of experts into the field of child study pointing out that many important discoveries relative to raising children have been discovered by them. "Parents, in this business of rearing children," she said, "have had their own way too long. They have been left too much to wallow in their own ignorance, deprived of any supervision from the very salutory monitor—other people's estimate of their value."

Although the conference closed tonight, a ten day institute will be held by the Child Study association from October 29 to November 7.

The Confederate ironclad ram Stonewall was built in Bordeaux, France.

WORKING ON KIDNAPPING OF FRANKIE MACKIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—Frankie Mackin, 5, bruised and ragged, was seen being dragged along by a man 48 hours after he had disappeared Sunday from his tenement home in West Thirty-Ninth street, the police learned today.

A taxicab driver telephoned police as detectives were on the point of discarding the theory that the boy was kidnapped and proclaiming him the victim of an accident.

He said that yesterday he took as a fare at Fifth avenue and Fortieth street a burly man who was dragging by the hand a small boy who was crying bitterly and wailing that he wanted to go home. The boy's face was bruised. In his hand he had a bag of cheap candy.

The chauffeur drove the pair to the Hudson terminal from which a subway crossed unde rthe North river to New Jersey. He said he carefully observed both the man and the boy and that today when he saw a picture of Frank Mackin he recognized it as that of the lad in his car.

AMERICANS ORDERED TO LEAVE DAMASCUS

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—Despatches stating that all Americans have been ordered to leave Damascus, Syria, because of the rebellion of the Moslem druses against the French government have been received by the near east relief here from its representatives in Syria. There are about 150 Americans listed in Damascus by the American consul, James L. Kooley.

Thousands of refugees are now pouring into Beirut, Syria, with other thousands seeking a haven in Palestine, the despatches said.

The relief organization today shipped 50,000 pounds of clothing to Beirut to assist the 20,000 Christian villagers made homeless by the uprising.

TO ACQUIRE ARCHIVES OF VOYAGES OF COLUMBUS

MADRID, Oct. 28—The Spanish government has taken steps to acquire important archives of the voyages of Columbus, now the property of the Duke of Veragua, and today an inspection of the relics, kept in the bank of Spain, was made by the mayor of Seville and General Hermosa, of the military directorate, on behalf of the government.

These archives comprise 97 documents said to be of great value, including a letter from their Catholic majesties, Ferdinand and Isabella, authorizing one of Columbus's voyages, and letters from Columbus to the Spanish sovereigns and to the king of Portugal.

The mayor of Seville said after the inspection that the state would acquire the documents for 1,500,000 pesetas (about $215,000) although American collectors had offered twice as much.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR ATTEMPTING WRECK TRAIN

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 28—Floyd Black, 32, upon being convicted today on the charge of attempting to wreck the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Dixie Flier here last December, was sentenced to a life term in prison. The life sentence was imposed under the habitual criminal act, Black having twice before been convicted on felony charges.

NO TRAFFIC IN DRUGS IN MAINE STATE PRISON

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 28—No evidence of illegal traffic in drugs had been found in the state prison at Thomaston by narcotic agents recently, federal officials stated today. An agent was there two weeks ago, they said, and satisfied himself that stories of drug peddling among the convicts were "mythical." Other agents had made previous investigations with similar results, they added.

POETRY

The Shoes of Polly Hughes

Quite elfish is their tapping
Upon the street and stair,
And when they catch me napping
I'm charmed ere I'm aware;
They're such a rhythm, fair and fleet,
Those cunning little shoes—
Or is the music in the feet
Of pretty Polly Hughes?

Sometimes I hear them skipping
When she is full of glee;
And then the music's ripping
And takes the heart of me;
I'm sure that there are dimples then
Above her number two's—
For that's the size, I'd have you ken
Of Polly's little shoes.

Some girls have winsome faces,
And nothing else beside;
And shining locks are graces
That wake in others pride;
But, tell me, do you think it's fair
A girl like Polly Hughes
Who has all these should take the air
And witch men with her shoes?

Whenever Polly glances
At me, most staid of men,
My placid pulse just dances
Though past two score and ten—
How must it be with these young blades
Who hang round her in crews
Unmindful of all other maids
For pretty Polly Hughes?

There'll never be a chappy
As fortunate as he—
I often think how happy
That happy wight should be;—
Who some day wins the right—how sweet!—
No matter by what ruse,
To clothe till death the little feet
Of pretty Polly Hughes.

October

The city lies fair as a folded flower,
Sleeping beneath the blue autumnal haze,
While to and fro an unseen censor swings
And sends to earth a sweet and perfumed shower.

That makes old Silence nod within his hour,
To dreams, forgetful of those recent days
When all these hills were dumb with wild amaze
To see great flames leap to the skies and tower.

Hark! Now the breeze sobs with a burst of sound.
As bells hymn forth their golden minstrelsy,
It seems as though young angels kneel around,
And tell in song their vesper rosary.

That chemical warfare methods are effective against the chief animal pest on shipboard, the German cockroach or croton bug, has been determined by Dr. C. E. Rice, of the United States public health service. In his experiments he used cyanogen chloride, one of the deadliest of poison gases, but not used during the war because it was too volatile for trench warfare. By sealing up all sources of ventilation and confining the gas for two hours he killed almost all the insects. A four hour fumigation not only made a complete sweep but killed all the eggs as well.

ANTI-CHRISTIAN CAMPAIGN IN CHINA HAS BEEN INSPIRED BY BOLSHEVISTS

(This is the fourth of a series of six articles by Drew Pearson on the Chinese Puzzle).

By DREW PEARSON

PEKING, China.—Christianity in China today is being subjected to a more scathing fire of criticism than at any time since the Boxer Rebellion.

The use of the Bible has been barred in all elementary schools in South China, and due to the student boycott, many mission schools are finding it difficult to open this autumn. Missionaries have been assembled in urgent conferences trying to devise methods of dealing with the situation. Some are in favor of closing down their schools for one term or perhaps an entire year, while others favor turning their schools over to Chinese Christian teachers for two or three-year periods.

The most regretable phase of the Chinese campaign against Christianity has been the purely Bolshevik-inspired attacks upon the Saviour. Posters have been plastered upon the walls of many Chinese cities depicting the Saviour smoking an opium pipe, with an inscription below which charges "Christ and Opium Caused China's Downfall." One writer in a popular Canton paper attacks the divinity of Christ by maintaining that while Christianity says that Jesus is the son of God, everyone knows that he was really an illegitimate child. Just as Lung Tsai Kwong's soldiers used to force young women to gratify their desires, so Jesus came into the world."

The poor missionary has been the recipient of a storm of abuse from both sides; first from the Chinese whom he taught and befriended, second from the American and British business men who blame him for the present boycott. The business man is right to the extent that the instigators of the boycotts have been students, but he loses sight of the fact that most of these young rebels came from purely Chinese rather than from missionary schools. The businessmen claim that educating the Chinese has only made them self-assertive and nationalistic and points out that the schools and colleges have become hotbeds of nationalism.

"This criticism however is as nothing compared with the storm of abuse heaped upon the head of the missionary by the Chinese themselves. "Missionaries are the vanguard of foreign imperialists," reads one manifesto issued by the Educational association in three central provinces, which I pick out as an example. "The chief preachings of the missionaries is brotherly love, but they have brought into our midst poison in the form of mission schools and colleges, which distribute their poisonous teachings throughout China. This is the chief reason why the nation is now in such helpless condition. In order to crush the imperialism in our midst, we must put an end to foreign missions in China. If this is done, it will be easy for foreign imperialism to lose its grip on China."

Link Missionary and Army

Another typical document broadcast over North China by the students of Peking, reads: "Of all religions, Christianity is the most detestible. One sin of which Christianity is guilty and which particularly makes our hair stand on end is its collusion with militarism and imperialism. Christianity is the public enemy of mankind, just as imperialism, since they have one thing in common: to exploit weak countries. It is the intelligence officer of the militarist and the hireling of the imperialist. If no effort is made to exterminate the evil it is impossible to foretell its dangers in the future."

It is not difficult to understand why the Chinese really believe this sort of thing to be true. In the first place, China has been flooded with this sort of propaganda, printed in Moscow for seven or eight years past. In the second place, the Boxer wars, by which China was not only forced to yield a huge indemnity, but ceded the treaty ports to foreigners; were started by the murder of missionaries. Finally, Shantung was seized by Germany when two missionaries from that country were murdered. No wonder Chinese believe that missionaries are the forerunners of all foreign aggression. Chinese also see that Christian organization or organizations have become one of the great property holders in China. The Roman Catholic Churches recognized as the greatest landlord in several cities along the Yangtze, and the Canton Christian college's beautiful campus and buildings occupy several square miles outside the city whose name it bears.

Would Regulate Schools

In the last four years, Chinese have shown an increasing desire to secure partial control, or at least to regulate these Christian institutions. They maintain that missionary schools are not registered with the government nor do they follow government instructions; all of which gradually alienates the exclusive right of the government to educate. Various American states, they point out, interfered with private schools to the extent of prohibiting the teaching of German, and have required foreign schools to submit to inspection and regulation.

The Chinese believe that the schools are a medium by which the seeds of patriotism may be planted in their children and by which their country may become more solidified. They believe that Chinese schools and Chinese teachers are more able of teaching Chinese history and Chinese traits than are foreigners; and that foreign schools, by teaching their own western subjects, gradually alienate the affections of the young Chinese from their own motherland. They fear that those educated in American schools will learn to love the United States and in British schools, Britain.

Last year the movement to regulate mission schools became so strong that the government was barely kept from closing all primary schools under religious auspices. This year many of the schools will be closed, not by government order, but simply because there will be no students on hand to teach. In other words, students are boycotting British missionary schools as ardently as they are boycotting the British steamship lines.

Missionaries Hopeful

Broad-minded missionaries, however, believe that the present anti-missionary movement will be a net gain for the church. In the first place it is the intention of every mission which operates in China to secure native co-operation and to turn the work over to the Chinese as soon as the latter are strong enough to carry on. They believe, therefore, that this desire to regulate the schools of China is a natural and healthy one and some missionaries are ready to turn their property over to the Chinese almost immediately.

It should also be noted that, except in the most avowedly Bolshevik propaganda the Chinese have not attacked the person or the teachings of Christ, but only the western machinery by which christianity is brought to them. Perhaps China in her own new world can avoid some of the petty denominational bickerings which have handicapped the church in the western world and can resurrect a new christianity more suitable to the Orient, from which Christ came.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED IN TRAIN AND CAR COLLISION

SOUTHBORO, Mass., Oct. 28—Four persons were injured, none seriously when a heavy freight car on the Boston and Worcester street railway slid backward down the Fairville Hill in this town tonight and crashed into a passenger car which had stopped at the bottom of the incline. Because of the slippery rails the brakes of the freight could not stop the car.

David Bicknell of Wellesley, motorman of the passenger car, sustained severe bruises and cuts as the cars collided with great force, throwing the dozen passengers from their seats Three passengers, including two women, suffered minor injuries.

DECISION RESERVED IN MACKINAC DISASTER CASE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 28—(A. P.)—Decision was reserved today by inspectors of the United States Steamboat Inspection service in the trial of George C. Mullen, assistant engineer on the steamer Mackinac, one of whose boilers exploded August 18 off Newport, causing 55 deaths. Mullen, who had just recovered from serious injuries incurred in the disaster, is charged with negligence.

Captain George W. McVay, master of the vessel, was tried on a similar charge immediately after the disaster, as was Chief Engineer John A. Grant. Mr. Grant's license was revoked, but decision in Captain McVay's case was reserved pending the outcome of Mullen's trial. It was stated today that Captain McVay's case will probably be re-opened tomorrow morning.

Assistant Engineer Mullen today testified that he had noticed the leak in the Mackinac's boiler two days before the disaster and had called it to the attention of Engineer Grant. He said however, that as Grant had called boiler workers to the boat on the fateful morning, he was under the impression that the crack had been repaired.

Edward Cassidy of the Wholey Boiler Works testified that he had not acquainted Assistant Engineer Mullen with his findings when he ascertained the leak to be too difficult to repair before the Mackinac sailed with an excursion party on the morning of the explosion.

Mullen said that he had not been told by anybody that the boiler was in a serious condition, and testified that if he had believed the boiler to be unsafe, he would never have permitted his mother and sister to be passengers aboard the craft. His sister was one of the victims of the catastrophe.

REGULATED MONOPOLY BEST FOR THE PEOPLE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—Lucius S. Storrs, former president of the Connecticut company and now managing director of the American Railway association, speaking at the Dunham laboratory of electrical engineering in the Sheffield Scientific school here today, expressed the opinion that the reconstruction of the street railways of the country and their future depend on an efficient monopolistic control.

"A regulated monopoly," he said, "is the best thing for the people and the only practicable thing for the railways themselves. More and more the bus service in the suburb is becoming an important factor in the transportation of the masses of American business men and women. For the most efficient and profitable management of the bus lines, they should be operated in conjunction with the street railways as part of a monopolistic public service corporation under the control of the public to avoid corruption, which seems to be an idea insolubly bound with monopoly in the American mind.

"With a vast and complicated mass of small competing bus lines in the field, there is bound to be waste which can easily be eliminated in a big corporation with all the facilities that power and wealth give. A regulated monopoly is the best solution to the problem of urban transportation.

"The development of American cities has been directly proportional to urban transportation. Seventy five per cent of the people living in the big cities of the United States use public transportation. The street railways move over fifty million of people daily, and with such facts before one it is easy to see that any interference with the service the street cars render would be a grave calamity."

THIS WOMAN'S REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Entirely Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Forest City, Iowa.—"My first child lived only a short time and I was sick for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could almost scream with pain in my back. One day I was so bad that I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine but it did no more good than if I drank just water. Once when we had been in town a little book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking and taking care of chickens and garden. Besides I have a fine baby girl eight months old, just the picture of health and I am feeling fine myself. You may use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. OSCAR F. BORGHELM, Route No. 5, Forest City, Iowa.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

COOLIDGE TO OPEN THE FARM BUREAU MEETING

CHICAGO, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—President Coolidge will be heard and seen by every member attending the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau federation here in December.

The president will open the meeting on the morning of December 7. Members will have 2,600 reserved seats in the main hall at the Hotel Sherman and 1,000 of the most advantageously located seats in adjoining lobbies.

Seat reservations are to be made in advance by mail and all seat assignments will be made through state farm bureau headquarters.

At the luncheon, President Coolidge is to meet the president of each of the 44 state federations, the voting delegates representing the state federations, and th board of directors of the American Farm Bureau association.

At this luncheon plans are to seat 3,000 representative members.

Mrs. Coolidge, if she comes to Chicago, will be the guest of the Home and Community committee of the federation and a group of farm women who have prominently identified themselves with the organization.

DISCUSSED THE COAL CONDITIONS WITH COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28—(A. P.)—Representative Treadway, republican, Massachusetts, today discussed with President Coolidge the coal situation as it affects New England. He said he told the president he was in accord with the movement to obtain satisfactory substitutes for anthracite so that the public would be independent of "monopolistic conditions in Pennsylvania."

If legislation will serve to obtain anthracite for New England, however, he added, he was prepared to offer a bill at the next session of congress. He said he believed congress would give the president the authority he requested in his annual message two years ago which would serve to supply coal in times of strike.

PLANE WAS FORCED TO LAND NEAR MELVILLE, R. I.

MERIDEN, Oct. 28—Lieutenant Earl Fleet, pilot, and Robert L. Morrow and Charles F. Schepp, passengers, all of Meriden, had narrow escapes from serious injury when their airplane went into a forced landing Tuesday morning near Melville, L. I., it became known here today.

When at an altitude of two thousand feet the motor failed. Fleet had to select the best available landing place, which was a small field fringed with trees. The plane was damaged considerably by the trees in landing, but none of the passengers was injured.

MR. AND MRS. C. M. SHAY, NEW LONDON, HAVE PASSED WORTHLESS CHECKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 28.—Clarence M. Shay, Mott avenue, corner of Neptune avenue, is being sought by the police of New London and Norwich for the alleged serious offense of passing worthless checks, a practice that both Shay and his wife have indulged in for some time. Shay cannot be found in New London and it is believed that he is in New York, but that he will return to this city within a day or two.

Shay, who was formerly proprietor of the Shay Fertilizer company, Groton, has been engaged in the trucking business of late. His other business appears to be that of negotiating worthless checks, for recently he visited Norwich and tendered a check on a merchant of that city. The check was drawn on the Winthrop Trust company of this city, and a few days later was returned to the Norwich merchant as being worthless, because Shay did not have the funds on deposit at the bank to meet the check. When a collection of the check was not successful, the Norwich merchant lodged complaint with the Norwich authorities and the Norwich police requested the New London police to cause Shay to present himself at the Norwich city court, but an effort to locate Shay did not prove successful. It developed today that Shay and his wife have both issued fraudulent checks in this city, each having negotiated worthless paper drawn on the Winthrop Trust company. When the checks were returned to the depositors as being worthless, complaint was lodged with the New London authorities. Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky admitted this afternoon that he had knowledge of the fraudulent acts of Shay and his wife, but that he had not issued a warrant for their arrest, he having notified Shay to arrange to have the negotiators of the worthless checks reimbursed.

The Eagle Realty company today sold four lots on the Burrows homestead plat, Bayonet street, to Anthony Ferris Enos.

Ambrose Cassara today sold to James Nicholas Dunn the residence and large tract of land on Ocean avenue, formerly owned by Thomas W. Casey, formerly of New London, now residing in Providence. The price paid was $12,000.

Meyer H. Hollandersky has sold a house and lot on Harrison street to Waleryia and Bolestol Wieczorek.

The cottage at 46 Alewife avenue, Ocean Beach, owned by Iman Elionsky, Bank street merchant, was discovered late last night to have been burglarized and it later developed that practically the entire furnishings of the place had been stolen.

Elionsky visited the place about midnight and once in the cottage he discovered that entrance had been forced. An investigation by the owner revealed that two rugs, 9x12, and five smaller rugs, together with all the silverware and dishes had been stolen. Entrance to the place was gained by forcing a rear window. Elionsky, who reported the burglary to Patrolman James McKenna, declared that the break was perpetrated some time since a week ago Tuesday, for he visited the cottage on that day and the place was undisturbed.

The summer residence of Mrs. Margaret C. Reyburn, 114 Glenwood avenue, was threatened with serious damage by fire this forenoon when a quantity of leaves that had accumulated the past few days beneath the veranda were discovered to be ablaze. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and Chief Charles H. Rose and the Pequot Hose company responded. When the firemen arrived at the house the flames had communicated to the veranda, but the fire was subdued before damage of consequence resulted. It is believed that boys ignited leaves in the yard of the place and that the fire gradually made its way to the accumulation of leaves under the veranda.

A. Pomeroy Robinson, associated with the New London Ship and Engine company, was fined $25 in police court this morning for reckless driving on the night of October 25, when his automobile collided with a truck from the police barracks at Groton. The truck became disabled because of a lack of gas and was at the side of the road when the Robinson car passed along. The matter was explained to the court and then the minimum fine was imposed.

Tomorrow morning two alleged liquor law cases will come to the police court. They are some of those in which John McCarthy figured by reason of employment by the state police. Some nineteen complaints were brought to the court by McCarthy, but in only one of those tried has a conviction resulted. In a few of the others, pleas of guilty brought fines of $200 on each of the counts alleged. Several complaints were nolled or the accused were discharged without trial. It will be a matter of interest to learn how the cases to be tried tomorrow will terminate, as it is supposed that the evidence which will be introduced will be of the same nature as was presented in the cases already disposed of. McCarthy's plan in previous cases was to take a companion with him, according to his own statements, and it was to the companion that the alleged liquor was sold. The companion in each case is unknown and McCarthy has failed to produce him.

The funeral of John O'Brien, for many years engineer of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad bridge across the Thames river, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, and was attended by many mourners including a delegation of members of Knights of Columbus and New London lodge of Elks. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, with Rev. John McGrath, Hartford, formerly of New London, deacon, Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger, sub-deacon, and Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley master of ceremonies. The bearers were John Neilan, John Burke and Nelson Smith, representing the Knights of Columbus, and W. Frank Downing, James Shields and James Connors representing New London lodge of Elks. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss Ella Howard, 73, a resident of Clark lane, Waterford, died at Hillside home late yesterday from a weakened condition of the heart and but a few hours after she had been admitted to the institution. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Edward Preston, of Waterford.

Theresa Margaret, infant daughter of Police Sergeant and Mrs. Patrick J. Murphy, died this afternoon at their residence on Ledyard street. The child was born five days ago.

Harold Halloway, 164 Willetts avenue, found a pocketbook on State street on Sept. 26th, the purse, which contained $7, being turned over to Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy. This afternoon Holloway appeared at the police station and was given the money as the owner could not be found.

Andrew Fallon, with a police record of 13 arrests for intoxication, will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning on the same charge. Fallon was arrested this evening when he appeared at the police station drunk and requested lodging. He has been given lodging there of late. Fallon's last residences were given as Montville, Fort Wright and Midway.

George Sistare, Station 13 1-2, Waterford, complained to the police tonight of the reckless driving in Waterford of the driver of a commercial car bearing Connecticut registration 24-708. It developing that the owner of the truck, which is a five-ton Mack, is H. J. Murikle, owner of the Arrow line trucks, 6 Broadway, Mystic. Sistare declared that he was driving to his home and when he reached station 13 1-2, the truck, which was headed towards New London, came along and was operated to the left hand side of the highway so far that Sistare was forced to operate his machine off the macadam and his car nearly ditched. Sistare stated that he would lodge complaint against the driver of the truck with the state motor vehicle department.

Mrs. Lennatti Jacobson of 26 Cutler street; Mrs. Martin Greenblatt and infant daughter, 366 Gorton street, and Mrs. Martha Aursoil, 21 Bayonet street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

John H. Sweeney, 61, formerly of New London, but for the past eight years a resident of Harrison's Landing Waterford, died at his home this afternoon after an illness of but a few days with pneumonia. He was a brother of the late James Sweeney, local architect, and is survived by three brothers, Thomas R., Timothy W. and Edward M. Sweeney, all of this city; a sister, Miss Hannah Sweeney, of Hartford, and by three daughters, Miss Veronica Sweeney, this city; Miss Marian H. Sweeney, a student at a normal school, Keene, N. H., and Mrs. David R. Dunham, of McKeesport, Pa. Mr. Sweeney was the son of the late John and Bridget Sweeney and was born in New London Sept. 20, 1864, and had always resided in this city until he moved to Harrison's Landing.

Funeral services for Miss Natalie Florida, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Florida, 169 North Bank street, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the young lady's parents, Rev. Panteleimon Skyriotis, Norwich, officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

HOLLANDERSKY BLOCK IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 28—Fire broke out at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Hollandersky block, a four story business and residential structure on the west side of Bank street, between Golden and Pearl street. So furious did the blaze become that the entire interior of the structure was threatened, although the fire did not get beyond the store where it originated. The entire building was filled with smoke that issued from the highly inflammable material that the flames fed upon.

The structure was originally owned by the late C. Henry Schwaner, and later by Frederick H. Davis, and a few years ago was acquired by Meyer H. Hollandersky.

The origin of the fire is not known, but it is believed that the blaze was caused by an overheated furnace.

The fire started in the store of the Central Hardware Co., 121, and at a time when there were no customers in the place. Employes of the store were at work in the rear when one of them heard a crackling sound and when he started to investigate and moved to the southerly side of the store, clouds of smoke issued from the partition, indicating the existence of a serious blaze. When an attempt was made to go to the cellar great clouds of smoke poured into the main store and the heat was intense. An alarm was rung in from Box 32, in front of the Allen Hook and Ladder company and five minutes later practically all of the city's fire fighting equipment had responded and the men were stretching lines of chemicals into the building. The attack by the deluge of chemicals did not suffice to check the flames and Chief Charles B. Rose and Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman ordered several lines of hose stretched to the cellar and to the main store. After working on the flames three-quarters of an hour the fire was conquered, but not until the big furniture store of Sharaf and the numerous apartments on the three floors above had been filled with smoke.

The fire being extinguished, an investigation was conducted by Chief Rose in an effort to determine the cause. It was ascertained that the fire originated close to the furnace and as the heater provides heat for the entire structure, it is the belief that the furnace became overheated and ignited the woodwork above it.

In the rear of the hardware store and as far away from the furnace as it was possible to store it, was a quantity of linseed oil, turpentine and denatured alcohol. The hardware company is insured as is the building, but what the loss will be has not been determined.

While the firemen were fighting the flames, the new Seagrave aerial truck, recently purchased by the city, and which has been stored in a fire house of the New Haven fire department a fortnight to await the alternations being made for its reception at fire headquarters, arrived at the fire, the truck having been driven from New Haven for delivery to the city tomorrow.

This letter from Mrs. G. Russell merely relates a typical experience. In hundreds of ways Beecham's Pills have helped millions of people all over the world!

"Beecham's Pills have been a byword in my home for over 60 years, and were in my mother's home in England. Now I am 89 years old.

"I have never known Beecham's Pills to fail to relieve the worst headaches and constipation.

"I would think anyone who suffers from constipation and sick headaches would give Beecham's Pills a trial. Then they would never be without a box in their house.

"For years they have been used in my household and in my mother's before me. So I know of the benefit to be derived from their use."

Mrs. G. Russell, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A clean inside means a healthy body. Sufferers from constipation, sick headaches, biliousness and attendant ills will be greatly benefited by taking Beecham's Pills.

Breed Theater

What is heralded as one of the greatest mystery-dramas ever screened is Tod Browning's production of The Unholy Three, the Metro-Goldywn-Mayer picture coming to the Breed theater, Sunday. It deals with the criminal adventures of three freaks recruited from a dime museum.

A promising cast appears in this underworld drama. It includes Lon Chaney, Mae Busch, Matt Moore, Victor McLaglen, Harry Earles, Mathew Betz, Walter Perry, Charles Wellsley, Percy Williams, Marjorie Morton, Wiselet Crane, Lou Morrison, Edward Connelly, William Humphreys and A. E. Warren.

The picture is based on C. A. Robbin's novel. Waldemar Young wrote the continuity, David Kesson was the photographer and Daniel Gray was the editor. Cedric Gibbons and Joseph Wright designed the settings.

Seventh Heaven

Only a few of the principal cities will see Ann Forest, Louis D'Arclay and the special cast that will bring John Golden's great success, Seventh Heaven to the Lyceum New London, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Saturday matinee, Nov. 5, 6, 7.

For three months, following the departure of Seventh Heaven from the Booth theater, New York, after a two years' run, Miss Forrest, Mr. D'Arclay and their supporting players packed the "subway" theaters and in several instances shattered the records piled up by the earlier Golden classic, Lightnin'.

Miss Forrest's picture following has been an important factor in the phenomenal success she has achieved in Seventh Heaven. She is best remembered as Nona in the Fox film If Winter Comes. After seeing her in that role, Mr. Golden signed her on a long contract for a series of stage appearances. Mr. D'Arclay, a young Belgian romantic actor, gives promise of becoming another Lou Tellegen.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Two big shows in one—seventy-five minutes for each, making for a perfect program, opens at the Broadway theatre today.

The Keith vaudevills which follows is and will be another grand surprise.

Charles Deagon offers "Unique Equilibrium," something at which to marvel.

Joe Jinks and Ann offer "A Musical Interlude" for the musically inclined.

Sylvia Snow and Dan Sigworth in "Let's Pretend" have a vehicle for merriment of the best kind.

You'll get a big surprise when you see Joe DeLier that well known comedian. The surprise is secret so go and see for yourself.

The Power Brothers Revue is the closing number consisting of four people in a high powered singing and dancing combination.

Lila Lee's newest picture, "The Midnight Girl," which opens at the Broadway theatre today for a three days run, is a fast-moving, thrilling drama that will satisfy everyone. The story of the beautiful and talented Italian singer's struggle for recognition on the operatic stage is replete with romance, beauty, comedy and drama.

"The Midnight Girl," a picture of Broadway night life with all its glamour and all its grief, is from the pen of Garrett Fort, specially written for Miss Lee, who makes the most of the many opportunities that the story affords her.

Stage struck girls will find a lesson in this photoplay, which is a true picture of the difficulties that beset one who is ambitious of a career in the theatre.

The supporting cast is an exceptional one and does itself justice at all times.

Palace Theatre

Five good acts of vaudeville headed by The Broadway Lights a vaudeville offering with five people featuring a comedy singing quartette and a dainty miss with fancy steps.

Josie St. Clair and her boys have a musical treat in store. One of the boys is featured as The One Man Band. He plays twelve instruments in about four minutes.

Martin and Earl comedy eccentric dancers.

Bronson and Coyne with singing comedy numbers.

The Leach La Quinlan trio complete the bill that offers variety in every form.

On the screen William de Mille's "New Brooms" film version of a Broadway hit.

"This may ruin the business, but it may make my boy," Robert McWade said to his factory manager, when he turned over his business to his son, Neil Hamilton, for a trial year.

This is one of the many interesting situations in "New Brooms," a William de Mille production for Paramount coming to the Palace theatre today. It is the simple story of a father trying to teach his son the fundamentals of life.

Hamilton, as the son, has graduated from college, and returned home filled with a set of brand new, untried ideas about everything. He is young, carefree, optimistic, and a firm and voluble believer in the glad hand, the kind word, the ever-open pocketbook.

Self-love is more commendable at times than self-forgetfulness.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

MANSFIELD PLAYERS WILL APPEAR IN NORWICH

The play selected as the opening production of the Richard Mansfield Players in Norwich is that delightful comedy of American life of today, "The Goose Hangs High," written by Lewis Beach, an outstanding young modern playwright. Produced recently in New York, this play caused something of a stir because of the author's unusual treatment of the flapper problem. It had a most successful run of over 200 nights, bringing greater fame to its author.

"The Goose Hangs High" has a very timely subject, since it deals with the flapper and her relation to the family. However, the author, Mr. Beach, presents the situation from an entirely different angle than the one taken by the usual author, preacher, and moral mentor. And at the same time, he makes of the play a highly entertaining affair, rich in comedy and little intimate family jollity.

The choice of this play is an unusually happy one for the Richard Mansfield Players, for it suits admirably the varied talents of the company. Also it includes in its cast practically the entire personnel of the Players, thereby introducing to its Norwich audiences the whole company at its first presentation in this city. The cast will be headed by Mrs. Richard Mansfield, who returned to the stage last season expressly to play this part with the Bonstelle company in Detroit. Her success was so great that she broke all box office records for that company, and the play ran four weeks, twice as long as any previous run at that theatre.

The production is in the capable hands of Edwin R. Wolfe, stage director for the Players, and the setting is especially designed by the noted theatre artist, Louis Bromberg.

TO PURCHASE HONEY TO STOCK BEEHIVES

MARLBOROUGH, N. Y., Oct. 28—Honey for the bees instead of from the bees will be the rule along the Hudson river valley this winter, if they failed to fill their hives and the agriculturists are faced with the necessity of purchasing more to stock the hives for the winter.

Millions of bees are kept in the Hudson valley. Dr. H. B. Wilson the agriculturist of the state college of agriculture at Ithaca warned beekeepers that they must buy honey and other sweets for the hives in order to insure the safety of their charges until the spring blossoms come again.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(By the A. P.)—Fortified by a series of constructive dividend developments, speculators for the advance again assumed control of the price movement in today's stock market after successfully combatting another large volume of profit-taking and bear selling which brought about a temporary interval of heaviness during the morning. Total sales exceeded 2,000,000 shares for the thirteenth consecutive full session, with expanding public participation denoted by the substantial increase in 100 share lots.

The day's dividend developments included an extra of $1 a share on American Tobacco stocks, with an increase in the regular annual rate from $7 to $8, resumption of dividend payments on Barnsdall A, and B, an extra on American Bank Note, and increased rates on Kelvinator and American Stores. Other favorable developments included reports of expanding steel operations and record breaking chain store sales.

Motors were again the sensation of the market. Chrysler, which sold as low as 108 1-4 easier in the year, was pushed up 11 3-2 points to a new high record at 231 1-4.

General Motors, which earned over $5 a share on the common stock in the third quarter, climbed over 3 points to a new high record at 138 7-8. Mack Trucks closed nearly 3 points higher at 227 1-2. Fisher Body, Hudson Motors, Indian Motorcycle, Jordan, Nash, Packard, Paige Detroit and Mullins Body showed net gains of about 1 to 3 points.

Gulf States Steel was run up over seven points to 92 3-4 closing a point below the top, but the other members of that group lost ground on profit taking. United States Steel common closed fractionally lower at 125 3-8.

Spectacular advances again took place in the so-called "rich men's stocks." General Electric soared 18 points to 318 1-2, closing within a point of the top. Woolworth jumped nearly 10 points to a new high record at 318 3-4; General Railway Signal and United Drug climbed over eight points each to new tops at 385 and 162, respectively; American Bank Note moved up 10 points to 195 on a few sales and McGrocy Stores B, Otis Elevator and United States Realty all moved up 3 points or more. Foundation company was bid up over 3 points to a new high record at 168 1-4.

Sharp gains also were recorded by some of the lower priced issues. Federal Mining and Smelting common and preferred, Redi Ice Cream and Standard Milling each advanced about five points and American Type Founders, Brooklyn Union Gas, Case Threshing Machine preferred, Fairbanks-Morse, Ginter Company, Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Union Bag and Paper closed at net gains of about 3 points or more.

Rails were again rather quiet, although Bangor and Aroostook moved up one point to another new high record at 55. Pittsburgh and West Virginia fell back over 3 points.

Call money renewed at 4 3-4 per cent. and again advanced to 5, with interior banks reported to be withdrawing funds in anticipation of month end settlements. Time money rates softened slightly, some of the longer dates being available at 4 7-8 per cent. with 4 3-4 per cent. the ruling rate for the shorter maturities. Prime commercial paper held steady at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent.

Trading in foreign exchanges quieted down with reactionary tendencies prevailing. Demand sterling ruled about 1-8 cent lower around $4.84 7-16 and French francs sagged a few points to around 4.16 1-2 cents.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(By the A. P.)—Selling broke out in several divisions of the bond market today and prices drifted irregularly lower. New low figures for the year were established by some of the Liberty Bonds and corporation issues, with only South American and Mexican obligations giving any consistent display of strength.

A slight easing of the money rates failed to stimulate trading, which continued to suffer from the counter-attraction of an active and rising stock market. Because of the rapid and wide fluctuations in stock prices, many interior banks were reported to be withdrawing their funds from this center and this development, coupled with a tightening of call loans, caused the general money situation to be viewed somewhat apprehensively. As a result Liberty Bonds were offered freely with the 3 1-2s and second and third 4 1-4s selling at the lowest prices of the year.

With the fall of the French cabinet, that country's financial situation was considered more confusing than ever. Selling of French bonds continued today and while banking support prevented serious declines in the government's issues the railroad and municipal loans extended their recent losses. Mexican bonds, however, rallied to new peaks for the year and a brisk demand developed for Brazil 8s and Brazil Central Railway 7s.

Corporation liens offered poor resistance to selling pressure and substantial losses were scattered through the semi-speculative railroad, oil and sugar company groups. Norfolk & Western convertible 6s, Erie Prior lien 4s and Manati Sugar 7 1-2s were among the conspicuous heavy spots.

An increase in bond trading commissions has been approved by the membership of the New York stock exchange and will go into effect tomorrow.

Negotiations were concluded today for a $7,000,000 Danish joint municipal 30-year 5 1-2 per cent loan and an offering of the bonds will be made next week by a syndicate including Brown Bros. & Co., the New York Trust company and Halsey, Stuart & company, the loan is a joint obligation of 26 municipalities in Denmark.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(By the A. P.)—Realizing sales again appeared in large volume in today's curb market, but offerings were generally well absorbed and the market moved irregularly higher. Trading was relatively dull during the morning reaction but picked up when prices headed upward in the afternoon.

There were several spectacular movements in the industrial list. Libby Owens jumped over 12 points to a new high record at 220; Victor Talking Machine was run up over 10 points to 111 3-4 at the expense of an overcrowded short interest; National Tea jumped nine points on a few sales and General Railway Signal and Federal Motors each advanced about four points to new peak prices. Kelvinator crossed 70 to a new high in reflection of the increased dividend, and Trans-Lux Pictures touched another new top at 9 3-4. Radio stocks were heavy.

Revival of activity and strength in Pan-American Western, which moved up 2 1-2 points to a new top at 37, featured the oil group. Kirby Petroleum advanced nearly two points and Lion advanced fractionally to a new high at 24 1-2. The Standard Oil shares moved within rather narrow and irregular limits.

Public utilities were mixed, strength of American Light and Traction, Commonwealth Power, Electric Bond and Share and Southeastern Power being counteracted by the heaviness of Associated Gas and Electric, United Light and Power and United Gas.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 28—(By the A. P.)—Heavy selling to realize profits in the wheat market late today wiped out most of an earlier sharp advance in prices. The temporary bulge in values was due more or less to active purchasing on the part of speculators who previously had been on the selling side of the market. Wheat closed unsettled at 3-8c net decline to 5-8c gain, new style, December $1.49 3-8 to 1.49 1-8 and May $1.46 1-4 to 1.46 5-8 with corn unchanged to 1-8c higher, oats 1-8 to 1-4c off, and provisions varying from 30c decline to a rise of 12 cents.

On the upward swing of the wheat market, commission houses usually identified with leading Chicago traders were the chief buyers of December delivery. Meanwhile eastern interests were likely purchasers of May, and with the market for the time being almost bare of offerings no obstacle to the rise in values appeared until there had been a jump of 3c

FAIR, COLDER TODAY; CLOUDY TOMORROW

Norwich Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., THURSDAY, OCT. 29, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Thursday, Oct. 29, 1925

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The great area of high pressure and abnormally low temperature from the northwest has spread eastward to the lower lake region and the Appalachian mountains, the temperature at eight p. m. ranging from twenty to forty degrees below normal east of the Rocky mountains except in the Atlantic and East Gulf states.

The temperature Wednesday morning was the lowest record so early in the season at many stations from Indiana westward and northwestward, the lowest reported being 14 degrees below zero at Rapid City, South Dakota. A disturbance that developed along the south Atlantic coast is now centered south of Cape Cod and moving rapidly northeastward.

Mostly fair weather will prevail Thursday east of the Mississippi river, but the eastward advance of far western disturbance will probably cause precipitation so far east as the middle Atlantic coast by Friday night. The temperature will be much below normal Thursday and Thursday night, but it will rise slowly on Friday in southern New England.

Storm warnings remain displayed from Cape Hatteras to Eastport, Maine.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: West and northwest gales diminishing by Thursday night and mostly fair weather Thursday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Northwest gales diminishing with fair weather Thursday.

Forecast

For Southern New England—General fair and much colder Thursday; Friday increasing cloudiness with slowly rising temperature.

Observations.

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Wednesday:

	Ther.	Bar.
7 a. m.	34	29.90
12 m.	50	30.00
6 p. m.	40	30.00

ROCKVILLE PICTURE HOUSE FORCED TO SUSPEND

Crushed in the gears of the state movie tax law machinations, the Princess theatre at Rockville has been forced to close down indefinitely this week. Since the passage of the film tax law by the state assembly, the theatre has had a hard time to secure films, and now the management finds itself without any place to get pictures.

This situation has forced other movie houses throughout the state to close. Film distributors, objecting to the tax, have leveled a boycott on Connecticut and refuse to send films into the state. Such houses as have managed to get pictures are those which have had contracts still valid.

WILLINGTON MAN CHOSEN DIRECTOR OF MILK MEN

The New England Milk Producers' association at the second day's session of its annual meeting in Boston Wednesday elected the following directors: R. L. Worthley, Strong, Me.; George M. Putnam, Concord, N. H.; F. B. Catlin, Randolph, Vt.; Elmer M. Poole, North Dartmouth, Mass.; Frank Peckham, Newport, R. I.; R. A. Sikes, Willington, Conn., and Dr. George Little, Schaghticoke, N. Y.

W. E. Knight of Clinton, Me., was chosen a director at large. H. L. Webster of West Canaan, N. H., treasurer and Richard Prattee of Boston clerk.

CITY'S ROAD SCRAPER STRIPPED BY THIEVES

Lost, strayed or stolen—Three wheels and one perfectly good steel blade from the city's road scraper. Street Commissioner John Donovan discovered several days ago that the scraper which he left sometime ago in what may be called storage just off Falls avenue is now minus most of its necessary parts.

Just where the wheels, blade and several other pieces of the scraper have disappeared to is a mystery. The fact remains that they are gone, and that the street commissioner, of necessity, has resorted to the use of the town's scraper for the time being, at least.

WEST SIDE WOMAN SUES CITY FOR $15,000 FOR INJURIES IN FALL

The following cases which are returnable before the superior court in November were filed Wednesday at the office of Judge George E. Parsons, clerk of the court, in this city:

Suit against the city of Norwich for $15,000 damages has been brought by Mrs. Elizabeth Jennes of 30 Summit street because of injuries she received in a fall on the sidewalk on Summit street near the rear of Mt. Calvary Baptist church on the day before Christmas, 1924. She alleges negligence on the part of the city authorities in allowing holes to exist in the sidewalk and ice and snow to accumulate. The injuries which it is claimed were sustained were dislocation of the right shoulder, strain of muscles and ligaments of the back, right side and arm, resulting in permanent disability and causing the plaintiff to expend so far $309.95 for medical and surgical treatments. She claims to be permanently injured so as to be unable to perform her duties as a housekeeper.

For Automobile Accident

Damages of $6,000 are sought by Hyman Stein of Colchester in a suit against Lorenzo D. Fairbrother of Stonington and David Felden of Colchester for injuries the plaintiff received in an automobile accident, Feb. 10, 1925, at Frazier's corner in the town of Salem. Stein was a passenger in a motor truck owned and driven by Felden, which was in collision at the corner with the automobile operated by an agent of Fairbrother. The claim is made that the collision was due in part to the excessive speed of the Fairbrother machine and the failure of the operator to keep a proper lookout, and in part to the failure of Felden to keep a proper lookout for traffic approaching on his right or to give warning or have his car under proper control. Stein was thrown out and has suffered partial paralysis of his right shoulder, was laid up for twelve weeks, spent $600, with doctors, and claims he lost $3,000 because of being unable to attend to his business for three months.

Three Divorce Suits

Divorce from Lawrence Joseph Chappell of New London and custody of their three youngest children is sought by Laura Lamontagne Chappell of New London. They were married Feb. 11, 1914 and she alleges intolerable cruelty from that date.

Mary Vallette Hewitt of Groton asks divorce for desertion since July 5, 1921 from Cyrus I. Hewitt of Groton. They were married Feb. 9, 1919. She asks change of name to Mary J. Vallette.

Emma Sylvia Burgess sues for divorce from Nelson B. Burgess of Groton whom she married Dec. 25, 1920. She alleges desertion June 8, 1922 and asks change of name to Emma Sylvia.

George S. Gadbois of New London sues John A. Connor of that city for a claim for $750, dated Oct. 1, 1925, which is brought on the common counts. A plot of land at Thames and Sharaf streets in New London has been attached.

DENIES THEIR APPLICATIONS TO RUN BUS LINES

Two applications for bus lines running through this city have been denied by the public utilities commission of this state. Mayor Milo R. Waters and Selectman William S. Murray have received copies of the memorandum of decision from the commission. The decision reads as follows:

The Acme Lines, William G. Haggerty, proprietor, filed with the commission on July 31, 1925, application No. 1521 to operate a jitney service from the Massachusetts-Connecticut state line at Quinebaug, to the Connecticut-Rhode Island state line via Thompson, Putnam, East Putnam, and a route fully set forth in its application on file.

Application No. 1522 was filed on the same date by the same party to operate a jitney service northerly from New London to the Connecticut-Massachusetts state line in the town of Thompson, via a route set forth fully in its application on file.

On March 7, 1925, H. J. Barrett filed application No. 1350 to operate a jitney service between the Massachusetts-Connecticut state line at Quinebaug, south to Moosup via Putnam, and a route fully set forth in his application on file. Said applications were assigned for a hearing to be held at the municipal building in Putnam on Wednesday, Sept. 30, 1925. Due and legal notice of the time and place of hearing was given to the applicants, to the towns in and through which they proposed to operate, and to all common carriers operating in whole or in part over said routes, or substantially parallel hereto. At said time and place the applicants, the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, The Connecticut company and other interested parties appeared and were fully heard.

The Acme Lines now operate interstate between Southbridge, Mass., and Providence, R. I., and in connection with such service, desire to do an intrastate service in Connecticut as applied for. The route traversed in Connecticut is thinly settled, and parallels the street railway operated by the Connecticut company from West Thompson to Putnam. The applicant stated that the interstate traffic, which might be reasonably expected if the application should be granted, would be slight, and that the chief source of revenue would be from the interstate operation which it already supplies. No evidence was presented that public convenience and necessity require the operation of the service applied for.

Applications Nos. 1522 and 1350

The Acme Lines proposed under application No. 1522 to follow the trunk line highway northerly from New London to the state line in Thompson, a distance of 54 miles, and thence to Worcester, Mass., a total distance of 78 miles. It now operates an interstate service between New London and Worcester over the aforesaid route, paralleling in Connecticut existing common carriers. By letter filed after the hearing, it proposed to stop at only certain towns along the route and at alleged remote places. The testimony came from the applicant to the effect that it and its employes have from time to time received requests from patrons of their interstate service that they pick up and discharge passengers between points in Connecticut.

The service proposed by H. J. Barnett under application No. 1350 would similarly parallel existing common carriers between Moosup and the state line.

The Connecticut company operates a frequent street railway and a motor bus service between New London and Norwich, and a frequent street railway service between that point and North Grosvenordale. Upon an application filed by said company heard at Norwich on Oct. 2, 1925, the commission by its order dated Oct. 20, 1925, authorized said company under provisions of the appropriate statutes to operate motor vehicles between Norwich and North Grosvenordale, in place of and in conjunction with its present street railway service. The applications under consideration would therefore, parallel and duplicate the existing street railway, and the authorized motor vehicle service of the Connecticut company.

From the evidence presented at the hearing, the commission is of the opinion and finds that public convenience and necessity do not require the operation of jitney service along the routes applied for under the three aforesaid applications, and said applications are, therefore, denied.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S COUNCIL'S STATE MEETING IN HARTFORD

The Connecticut Council of Catholic Women will hold its fifth annual meeting on Saturday, November 7th, at Hotel Bond, Hartford. The business session will open at ten o'clock. An address of welcome will be given by Rev. Matthew J. Judge, diocesan director of charities. Reports of the activities of the council throughout the diocese will be made by the chairman and the county representatives. Mrs. F. Arthur Emmett will make a report on the work of the Big Sister committee. Miss Mary P. O'Flaherty, chairman of the committee on social legislation, and Mrs. James J. Quinn, chairman on national memberships, will also make reports. The luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock.

Right Reverend John J. Nilan, will honor the meeting with his presence, and will address the gathering. Dr. John A. Lapp, director of the social action department of the National Catholic Welfare conference, will also speak. Dr. Lapp has just returned from six months' tour abroad where he was in touch with the work of many welfare organizations. He has been associated with the National Catholic Welfare conference from the period of its organization and is a recognized authority in the field of social action.

The educational program of the council is presented through lectures, and study clubs of the various local branches throughout the state. At the present time there are forty local branches of the council. The Connecticut Council of Catholic Women has raised a scholarship fund for the National Catholic service school and every year a young woman from Connecticut is sent to Washington to take up training for social work. Lakeville Manor, the vacation house at Lakeville, Connecticut, is another undertaking of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women. It has had three successful seasons and approximately eight hundred women and girls have enjoyed delightful vacations at Lakeville during the past three years.

The Norwich Council of which Mrs. Roderick F. Sullivan is chairman has given special attention, during the past year to institutional visiting. Monthly visits were made to the Backus hospital, Uncas-on-Thames and the state hospital, the members bringing refreshments and reading matter at each visit. At Christmas and Easter special treats were given and the children at the New London County home were remembered with gifts—dolls, toys and candy." A Christmas party was given for the inmates at the almshouse, while each patient at the sanatorium received a Christmas box.

The Italian children's sewing club was continued and special Christmas and Easter parties were arranged for their entertainment, by the Junior council.

In February the diocesan bureau of social service established a branch office in Norwich, which is open two days a week—Tuesdays and Fridays, and has the services of the secretary. Miss Moroney, for two full days a week. The council has co-operated in every way possible in this new development in the work. New office rooms were secured and adequate equipment furnished and the council continues to share in the financial responsibility for the conduct of the work of the bureau, which administers to the wants of the poor families and dependent children in Norwich.

On May day, 175 May baskets filled with homemade candies were sent to the patients at Uncas on Thames.

In August the children at the New London County home were given an outing at Ocean Beach, and one gratifying result was that one attractive little boy was given a good free home by a generous-hearted member of the council and at the expiration of a year will very likely be adopted.

In September the council conducted a food booth at the New London County fair, where they sold light lunches. Proceeds from this sale, as well as from whist parties and other food sales, have helped to finance the work of the council during the year.

The Montville Council with a membership of 30, holds its meetings at the Community House in Montville, for the use of which they contributed $20 this past year. A committee for visiting the sick members of the parish provided them with fruit and flowers. From suppers and whist parties they raised during the year $278.25 which they gave to the pastor for the benefit of the parish.

BULLET WENT THROUGH BLEACHERY OFFICE WINDOW

Late Wednesday afternoon police headquarters received a telephone message from James Purdon, chief clerk at the United States Finishing Co., that a rifle bullet had come through a window at the bleachery office and had nearly hit one of the clerks there.

Chief George Linton dispatched Sergeant Myron E. Morgan and other officers to scour the Preston side of Greeneville on the supposition that some careless user of a rifle must have fired the gun from there. Nobody could be found who had heard a shot fired or had seen anyone using a rifle.

There is a serious penalty for the use of firearms within the city limits and there is the added danger of what stray bullets may do when fired without thought or care of where they may land.

Y. M. C. A. BIBLE STUDY DISCUSSES PAUL'S LIFE

The Men's Bible Study club at the Y. M. C. A. held a very interesting session Wednesday evening in the dining room of the "Y" building. The topic was "A Remarkable Change in Life," and the scripture was from the ninth chapter of Acts, the story of the conversion of Saul of Tarsus.

Among other points brought out in the discussion were the following: The great Gentile world was still largely untouched by the new Gospel and God needed a man, a specially strong man of leadership. God has a place and a purpose for every man. In this case God sought a man who was totally opposed to His cause, even a persecutor of Christ's followers. Saul was well fitted for leadership; he was well born; he was highly and practically educated, and he had unbounded enthusiasm in anything he undertook to do. These assets always spell success, and especially so when rightly directed. Saul was conscientious in his work of persecution, he was not a bad man but he was terribly mistaken. Saul did what he did because he believed that the new religion was a superstition, and that it would endanger the faith of his race. When one does wrong unwittingly he is guilty, though not probably as guilty as when he plans to oppose what he knows to be right; he needs to repent. Jesus told Saul that he was persecuting Him, meaning that no one wrongs a human being without wronging God. A wrong act has a sad influence upon the man who commits it, upon his family, his friends, the community, and even upon God himself. When Saul saw his terrible mistake he did the manly thing; he quickly repented. It takes a big man to frankly admit he is wrong. When Ananias was told to go where Saul was and restore his sight, he argued that this man was he who had mistreated the Christians, but the Lord said, "Go thy way." It is not for us to question the orders of Christ. God said that Saul must suffer many things for his sake, thus suggesting that to follow him is not easy. When Saul came to himself, he entered the service of Christ with the same enthusiasm as he had when opposing Him. The average professed Christian seems to live and act in a negative way, but Saul worked along the positive line. It is not enough to "cease to do evil," but we must also "learn to do good." Saul asked for orders. The useful man in any employment is he who asks for orders rather than he who waits for them. No man knows his own possibilities until his life is surrendered to the domination of God.

WHIST AND PINOCHLE BY MOOSEHEART LEGION

A successful whist, pinochle and food sale was held Tuesday evening by the Women of Mooseheart Legion with Mrs. Teresa Watters in charge. The prizes were awarded as follows: Whist, first ladies, Mrs. Prodell, 37, bath set, donated by Mrs. Ida Eccleston, Willimantic; second, Mrs. Irene Burns with 36, linen guest towel, donated by Mrs. Sourbier; first, gentlemen, Mr. Webber, 39, jack knife, donated by Mrs. Rogers; second, Mr. G. Morse, 37, tie donated by Morley; consolation, Mrs. McKelney and Mr. Tomanio, prizes donated by Mrs. Ethel Hoelck. On pinochle the prizes were: first ladies, Mrs. Dwyer, 6,960, hand embroidered centerpiece, donated by Mrs. E. E. Watson, New London; second, Mrs Hallisey, 6,890, dresser scarf, donated by Women of Mooseheart Legion; first gentlemen, Mr. Dwyer, 6,630, box of cigars, donated by Mrs. Tomanio; second, Bernard Wunderlich, 6,160, pair of socks, donated by Mrs. Marie Retkowski; consolation, Mrs. Bush, 4,890, and Mr. Wheaton, 5,700, prizes donated by Mrs. Martha Wunderlich. The scorers were Mrs. Roger and Miss Pauline Wunderlich on pinochle and Mrs. Ethel Hoelch on whist. Mrs. John Foley was awarded the box of candy. A food sale was held after the card playing and a good sum was realized. The hall was nicely decorated with Hallowe'en emblems and colors of black and orange. Hallowe'en score cards were used with the Hallowe'en caps and aprons for the committee, presenting a festive appearance.

YALE IN CHINA THANKS GOVERNOR OF HUNAN

Because Mr. and Mrs. Dickson A. Leavens (Marjorie L. Browning) of Norwich, are at Chang Sha, China, there is great reassurance to all their friends, these troublous times, in the fact that resolutions in English and Chinese have been forwarded from Yale university by the president of the trustees of Yale in China to the Governor of the Province of Hunan, thanking him for his prompt action in protecting the college against a riotous attack last June. This attack was frustrated by the governor's influence.

The resolution is signed by Anson Phelps Stokes, president of the society; F. W. Williams, chairman of the trustees; Palmer Bevis, secretary of the trustees, and Edward H. Hume, president of the College of Lali.

Mr. Leavens, who is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Leavens, of Broadway, has been a member of the faculty of Yale-in-China for upwards of seven or eight years.

Mrs. Leavens is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Browning of Kitemaug.

HUNTINGTON MAKES RECORD IN COLONIAL PINOCHLE

Tuesday evening ended the first round of play in the pinochle tournament held by the Colonial club. Huntington, in a whirlwind finish, came out on top of the heap. His score of 9,455 for the night's play was the highest ever made in the club's history. It dislodged Drake from first place and Griffith from second. Griffith's low score of 5,490 dropped him from third to eleventh place in the final standing. A new series will start next Tuesday. The final standings of the one just finished are as follows: Huntington, 32,390; Drake, 31,560; Washburn, 31,635; Allen, 31,145; Gifford, 31,105; Burlingham, 30,915; Amburn, 30,115; McNaught, 30,075; Cochran, 29,915; Harwood, 29,835; Griffith, 29,570; Willis, 29,435; Crowell, 29,095; Thompson, 28,965; Higgins, 28,030, and Gee, 27,570.

STATE CONVENTION REPORT GIVEN TO KING'S DAUGHTERS

In the absence of the leader, Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, the vice leader, Mrs. Edward Adams was in charge of the meeting of Comfort Circle, of the King's Daughters, held Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. William H. Baker, of Laurel Hill. There were present fifteen members and two visitors. Mrs. Adams led the devotional exercises, after which the circle listened to an interesting report of the delegate to the state convention at Norwalk, Mrs. E. L. Green. Plans were made for a social meeting later.

Mrs. Mayer Arranged Concert

A Hartford paper says: About 150 inmates of the Municipal Home attended a concert given by the St. Joseph's Cathedral Choral Club yesterday afternoon. The program given by the club of forty voices consisted of concert and solo numbers under the direction of Miss Josephine St. John. On suggestion of Superintendent Bailey the choristers received a vote of thanks from the audience, the members of which hoped the club would give another concert for them. During the concert members of the choir visited shut-ins in the wards and sang for them.

The concert was arranged by Frank Coskey, president of the club and Mrs. Sadie Plaut Meyer, charity commissioner. Mrs. Meyer and Charity Commissioner Frank Montel attended the concert, as did nurses and employes of the hospital and home.

UNION SQUARE PARKING FOR PUBLIC SERVICE CARS

Seven parking spaces which are to be used only by the O-cars, jitneys, which formerly parked alongside the United Congregational church, have been painted in Union square around the white way light in the center of the square. The O-cars will be moved from their present parking place in Chestnut street and will be obliged to occupy the spaces in Union square.

Arrows have also been painted in white on the surface of the street in the square to direct the traffic coming out of Union street or proceeding into Church street.

Well child conferences, held under the auspices of the Connecticut state department of health, are scheduled as follows for eastern Connecticut: Putnam high school auditorium, Tuesday, Nov. 3; Wauregan, Company hall, Thursday, Nov. 5; Danielson, Town hall, Friday, Nov. 6.

A plaintiff's verdict for $750 was returned by a jury in the superior court in New Haven in the suit of William H. Pomeroy against Frank A. Semrau, two Meriden farmers, who were in an automobile collision near their home in June 10, 1924.

My Sex

Needs this help above all. Facial cleanliness

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Thousands of women ask me how I made myself a famous beauty and how I kept my youthful bloom to my grand old age.

There are many reasons. One of the greatest was taught me by Lucie Lantelme, a famous Parisian beauty.

She never used soap on her face, nor have I since I met her. She used no cleansers based on animal or vegetable fats.

She gave me a formula which all the greatest beauty experts now employ. It cleans the skin to the depths. It removes all the grime, dirt and oil which interfere with beauty. But it does not assimilate with the skin. Not a drop can be absorbed. It simply leaves the skin entirely clean.

That is the first step to skin beauty. A clean skin, without blemishes, blackheads or mars. I know no other way to get it, nor do you.

Now I have arranged so that all girls and women may enjoy this luxury. I call it my Facial Youth. All toilet counters now supply it, exactly the same as Lucie Lantelme furnished it to me.

A great laboratory now prepares it for me. I wish you would try it—any woman who wants to look her best. You cannot do it, I am sure, without my Facial Youth. Please clip the coupon now.

For Trial Bottle

Mail this today to Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago. Enclose 10c for postage and packing.

I want to try Facial Youth. 35

WITHDRAWAL OF APPEAL FROM COMPENSATION AWARD

An appeal from the compensation commissioner's award for the death of Max Dempski of this city, an employe of the Connecticut company, has been withdrawn from the superior court. Dempski died Aug. 4, 1925, from a fractured skull and other injuries he received in a fall from wires on which he was working on Main street near Franklin square in this city. A workman's compensation award in favor of his mother, Mrs. Theresa Dempski, of 723 Boswell avenue was made by Commissioner J. J. Donohue providing for payment of $18 per week for 312 weeks and the usual $100 for funeral and medical expenses.

OPENS DANCING SEASON WITH NORWICH CLASSES

Under the supervision of Mrs. Edward Andrews, the private class for children was opened Wednesday afternoon in the ball room of the Wauregan House, over thirty couples being present. The affair proved most delightful and many of the late dances were enjoyed during the program, music being furnished by Mrs. Lena L. Healey at the piano. Among the numbers was the grand march in which Billy Webb and Myrtle Fuller were leaders, followed by Russell Edmond and Mildred Potter.

Dances included on the program were the waltz, Paderewski's minuet and fox trots, also a number of classical exercises for technique.

In the evening Kyle's orchestra furnished the music for the opening dance of the private Academy class, over thirty couples being in attendance. Mrs. Andrews was assisted during the evening by Mrs. Percival Chapman and Mrs. William Zumbro who served as chaperones. The program for the evening comprised fox trots, the Charleston, Miami canter and Cuban danzon.

Both programs were most delightful and gave promise of a most successful and enjoyable season of dancing.

NON-CATHOLIC ORGANIST SERVED FOR 36 YEARS

Pleasing reports continue to reach Norwich of the appreciation shown in New Haven of the playing of Frank L. Farrell, the new organist of St. Mary's church there.

That this is a parish which values good work is proved by the fact that Professor Rice, whom Mr. Farrell succeeds, was organist for the Dominican Fathers in that parish for 36 years. Prof. Rice is not a Catholic, but his ability as an organist was valued by Rev. T. L. Crowley, O. P. and his assistant priests and when, over a year ago, Prof. Rice was stricken with a shock, he was still retained as organist and chorister, although the assistant organist did most of the work. It was not until Prof. Rice's health became so impaired that he insisted on giving up his work that Rev. Father Crowley would accept his resignation. When his decision to leave was final, Rev. Father Crowley offered the engagement to Mr. Farrell, then organist at St. Patrick's church, Norwich.

COL. MITCHELL MUST FACE RIGORS OF COURTMARTIAL

Court Quickly Overruled Claim Made by the Defendant That He Was Acting Within Constitutional Rights When He Made Charges Relating to the Army and Navy Air Service Administration—Court is Acting With Such Alacrity as to Indicate That It May Close For Findings This Week.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Every move to escape trial by an army courtmartial on charges of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline resulted in failure today for Colonel William Mitchell and his counsel.

The prosecution proceedings, started yesterday by a courtmartial convened by direction of President Coolidge, and based on the Colonel's charges in public statements relating to the army and navy air service administrations, swept forward rapidly with plain indications that the court would close for findings probably this week.

Numerous pleas entered in behalf of the air officer by Representative Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, his civilian legal adviser, availed nothing. The court left the chamber several times to vote in secret on contentions advanced by the defense counsel. The members remained seated behind the bench just as often, however, accepting the opinions of the court law officer Colonel Blanton Winship, without objection. Whether in or out of the court chamber, the deliberations ended always in quick decisions against the motions of the defense.

Colonel Mitchell's plea that he had committed no offense triable by the court when he issued the statements at San Antonio charging the war and navy departments with incompetency, criminal negligence and almost treasonable administration of the national 96th article of war was overruled by the court almost at the beginning of today's sessions.

The decision on this point established the legal competency of the court to sit in judgment of the accused, and a plea that he had been within constitutional rights, exercising only the privilege of free speech when he issued the statements, also was quickly rejected.

Successive pleas then were filed and voted down. One contending that all the charges and specifications against Colonel Mitchell should be vacated for the reason that they had not been prepared in accordance with court martial regulations, provoked the most prolonged and heated arguments between defense attorneys and the trial judge advocates in charge of the prosecution. Mr. Reid's motion on this point said:

"The charge and each specification fail to state any offense of which this courtmartial has jurisdiction for the reason that they do not show that:

"1 The commanding officer of the accused investigated the charges or ordered them to be investigated:

"2 The commanding officer of the accused recommended a courtmartial;

"3 There was a preliminary investigation of the charges by the proper officers as providedby the courtmartial manual."

The defense placed special emphasis on the fact that Major General Ernest Hinds commanding the eighth corps area, on whose staff Colonel Mitchell was serving when he made his attack on the war and navy departments, had not recommended a courtmartial it called attention as well to the failure of Brigadier General Rockenbach, commanding the district of Washington, to prefer charges, contending that if any crime had been committed it was the duty of these officers to take action and that the war department officials who ordered the investigation and finally brought the charges had no authority under the manual's provision to do so.

DISCLOSURE MADE OF MAINE STATE PRISON

THOMASTON, Maine, Oct. 29—Charges that Protestant convicts in the state prison have been discriminated against were made today at a hearing conducted by Gov. Ralph F. Brewster, his council, and the state prison commission. The hearing promptly followed charges of various forms of misconduct among the inmates of the prison which were included in affidavits presented to the governor.

Rev. Percy J. Clifford, a Methodist minister who is the chaplain at the prison, said that prisoners coming to his office frequently had reported discrimination against non-Catholics, but said he reminded them that Catholics predominated among those who had been punished.

Rev. Clifford, examined by Attorney General Raymond Fellows, said discipline at the prison had been extremely lax, declaring inmates were going to all parts of the institution freely and that the convicts were defiant to the officers. He said he had been insulted and threatened several times. Nothing was ever done about it that he had heard of, the chaplain said.

The minister also described conditions among the women inmates of the prison as being "unfortunate." He said two women had been placed in solitary confinement and asserted that his wife, the matron, had found that they were being taken food by men prisoners who had keys to the cells. The chaplain charged that immoral practices had been discovered. He declared the women fought like demons for the privilege of being sent to "solitary," breaking prison rules in order that punishment would be given them.

Reyt Clifford said the worst girls were sent to the prison when they could not be handled at the women's reformatory. He said there had been a general careless attitude among officials toward the contact of the women with the men prisoners, and asserted that there had been correspondence between them and that the women had received presents from the men.

DANBURY PHYSICIAN IN CONTEMPT OF COURT

DANBURY, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Judge Nwell P. Jennings announced in superior court here today that Dr. Harris E. Brownlee, one of the leading physicians of Danbury, was in contempt of court because of his failure to obey a subpoena to appear in court today as a witness. The judge said the doctor would have to take the consequences upon his return.

The case in which the doctor was called as a witness was that of Rosina M. Peix against the city of Danbury. Mrs. Peix is suing for $7,500 for injuries sustained in a fall on a sidewalk in front of Dr. Brownlee's residence last March.

Judge Jennings said that Dr. Brownlee had called him on the telephone a few days ago saying that he had an important engagement out of town and asked to be excused. Judge Jennings said he had told the doctor that the court had no right to excuse him and warned Dr. Brownlee that if he did not appear in court he would be in contempt of court.

ELECTION CAMPAIGN IN NEW YORK DRAGS ALONG

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The fifth day before election found the New York City political campaign enlivened only with formal announcement by Mayor John F. Hylan of that he would support the entire Democratic ticket, headed by Senator James J. Walker, his opponent in the primary contest for the Democratic mayoralty nomination.

Otherwise the campaign dragged on as it has done for nearly a month.

Frank D. Waterman head of the Republican ticket, made five addresses in Brooklyn tonight, and Senator James J. Walker, Democratic candidate, five in the Bronx. At one of the latter gatherings the time was given almost entirely to governor Smith by Walker, who devoted a portion of his address to urging the election of Senator Walker.

CONSERVATIVES GAIN IN ELECTIONS IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Oct. 29. (AP)—In the elections throughout Canada today for 245 seats in he house of parliament, the Conservative party made sweeping gains. W. L. McKenzie King, head of the liberal government went down to defeat in his own constituency and with him, even on incomplete returns, went seven other cabinet ministers.

In Nova Scotia, out of 14 seats, the Conservatives have elected eleven members, and the Liberals three. In New Brunswick the Conservatives elected ten and the Liberals one, out of a total of eleven seats. The overturn in these provinces had been expected, for both went Conservative in the recent provincial elections.

Nova Scotia had hitherto been a Liberal stronghold, returning in every seat in the last election a supporter of the king government.

In every province which has thus far reported, Conservative gains are announced. Ontario is returning to the Conservative fold. Of the 53 seats which have thus far reported in that province, the conservatives polled 47, the Liberals 4, Miss MacPhail, a Progressive, and the only woman member of the last parliament, and an independent Liberal account the other two.

Quebec alone of the provinces retains in the main its Liberal allegiance. The Conservatives have captured three seats on the island of Montreal, but for the rest the Liberals seem to be holding their ground.

Ottawa, Oct. 29. (AP)—The prime minister's office at 11.30 p. m. gave out the following summary:

Conservatives elected, 101; Liberals, 74; Progressives, 4; Independents, 4.

UNITED STATES REQUESTS EXPLANATION FROM FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Failure of French authorities in Damascus to give warning to American residents prior to the punitive bombardment of certain sections of the city last week has prompted the Washington government to make representations through Ambassador Herrick to the foreign office in Paris.

No American lives were lost nor was any American injured, so far as official advices have reported, out some damage was caused to property owned by Americans and suitable claims will be filed with the French government when the necessary data is available.

The more serious aspects of the situation lies in the fact that reports received from the American consul show that, while French families were withdrawn to places of safety before the bombardment, no warning was given to the consul or to American or other foreign residents.

The consulate itself is situated in the Christian quarter of Damascus, and American Nationals reside in the surrounding sections which were subjected to artillery fire as a warning to the native population and a retaliation against those who had joined with druse tribesmen in rioting and attacks upon the French soldiery and police.

BERKSHIRE DIVISION BLOCKED BY WRECKS

DANBURY, Oct. 29.—(AP)— The lines of the Berkshire division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad were still tied up tonight as the result of a wreck of two freight trains in a cut about one and a half miles from the station here today. Sixteen cars were smashed and one of the engines were practically demolished. Fireman M. J. Donlon, of Bridgeport, was slightly injured. It is expected that the lines will be opened before morning.

TRIAL OF CAPTAIN OF THE MARINAC REOPENED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The trial of Captain George W. McVay, commander of the Mackinac on her ill-fated excursion when a boiler explosion in Newport harbor on the evening of August 18 took a toll of 53 lives, was reopened this afternoon by the United States steamboat inspectors, who heard further testimony and then announced that the case was closed and that decision was reserved.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Would Recall Gen. Sarrail

PARIS, Oct. 29—M. Millerand in the senate committee today demanded the recall of General Sarrail, French high commissioner in Syria. He declared that General Sarrail was responsible fo the death of 3,000 French soldiers and serious injury to the prestige of France in order to cover the blunder of the party which had appointed him to the post.

CHICAGO BANDIT ESCAPED; HIS BETRAYER WAS KILLED

CHICAGO, Oct. 29—(A. P.)—Marty J. Durkin, sought for the murder of a department of justice operative, tonight led the police a merry chase. He escaped unscathed from a trap hereearly today when his betrayer was killed by shots from a police cordon's shot guns and one officer was seriously wounded by Durkin. The shooting occurred at the home of Betty Werner, Durkin's sweetheart, when he walked into a trap pre-arranged by the girl's aunce, Lloyd Austin who died late today of eleven bullet wounds.

Durkin, nicknamed "the Sheik" because of his dar er appearance has caused the arrest of numerous me who sought refuge in various jails here today when crowds threatened them and police arrested them. All were released however with letters of identification.

Police claim their shots at Durkin ers effective, but failed to stop him because of his steel vest, the Werner girl denies he wears any armor.

The police, however have decided to aim at other parts of his anatomy. They have orders to shoot on sight.

Austin was wounded when he got between the fire of Durkin and police. During the fight a detective was wounded by Durkin.

Stinging from the rebukes from their superior officers, several squads of swearing, sweating detectives scoured the city in a fruitless search.

Durkin who a few weeks ago shot and killed Edward Shanahan federal agent, who the latter attempted to arrest him on an automobile theft charge, had been reported in half a dozen states since the slaying. Betty Werner, arrested at the time of the slaying, was released Tuesday and the killed immediately returned to Chicago. He climbed through the window of her bedroom, aroused her and induced her to leave home with her 15 months old baby.

Last night she was to return to her home for clothing, expecting to flee with Durkin to Michigan where he had promised to go straight.

"I wouldn't have gone," she told the police, "but he bought an entire new outfit for the baby. And he walked into a department store past a lot of cops right in the day time. Imagine that. He wasn't afraid of anything."

Austin, the girl's uncle, learned of her return, and believing Durkin would accompany her, informed the police who secreted themselves in the apartment. Durkin walked into the flat, started firing the instant he saw the officers, jumped through a second story window, exchanged shots with more officers outside the building and escaped.

His sweetheart saved him from possible death by knocking aside the shot gun of one of the policemen and the slugs intended for Durkin found their resting place in Austin's body. The police assert that they would have killed their man except for his steel vest. Durkin's sweetheart says he does not wear the shield.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE FOR REVISION OF TAXES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—(AP.)—Reduction of the maximum surtax rate from 40 to 30 pe. cent in the new revenu law; retention of estate or inheritance tax with greatly modified rates, and removal of the $10,000 limitation in the provision allowing deductions for earned incomes, were recommended to the house ways and means committee today by Professor Thomas S. Adams of Yale.

Mr. Adams served with the treasury in an advisory capacity when taxation of incomes was initiated, and for more than two hours today the committee, which will start work on a new tax bill next week, consulted with him on all of the main points in dispute. His views were solidited by republican and democratic members and the full committee of 25 members listened attentively to his responses.

He appeared before the committee primarily to recommend repeal of the limitation on the amount to which the 25 per cent reduction allowed for earned income may be applied, and to urge that the statute of limitations applying in tax settlements, now four years, be reduced, and that salaries for internal revenue officials be increased and their terms of office lengthened.

In reply to questions of committee members he endorsed proposals that the surtax rate be cut to a maximum of 25 per cent, that the capital stock tax be eliminated, and if necessary, that the corporation levy of 13 1-2 per cent be correspondingly increased.

In executive session, the committee declined to postpone from Monday to Wednesday the beginning of its work of drafting the tax reduction measure it plans to present to the house when congress convenes. Chairman Green announced that, if additional appeals for hearings were received, the committee would continue its public sessions Monday and Tuesday.

Conflicting views on proposals for reduction in the alcohol tax also were heard today by the committee. Representatives of the proprietary association, the American Manufacturers of Toilet articles and the Inter-State Manufacturers' association asked a reduction of this tax, while the American Drug Manufacturers' association opposed it, thereby presenting the first money issue heard by the committee in its ten days of sessions which was not an appeal for a cut in some levy.

ONE MAN KILLED IN MOTOR CAR DERAILMENT

DANBURY, Oct. 29.—(AP)—One man was fatally injured, another is in a dying condition at the Danbury hospital and two others were injured seriously late today when a motor car operated by a section crew on the New Haven railroad, was derailed at Botsford, fifteen miles south of this place.

Harold Jones, of Bethel, died in the Danbury hospital tonight from internal injuries, fractured ribs and punctured lungs. He was 34 years old and was married.

John Moyle, of Danbury suffered a fracture at the base of the skull and internal injuries and it not expected to recover.

Alexanderson and John McInerney, also of Danbury were seriously hurt and are at the Danbury hospital.

The car, carrying members of a section crew and carpenters, left the track at a curve, the men being hurled to the ground. The cause of the accident has not been determined.

New Radio Safety Device For Railroads

Test Gives Hope That It May Prevent Accidents Will Halt Engineer at Danger Point.

DETROIT, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A radio-operated safety device that checks speeding locomotives automatically when danger looms ahead was given a successful demonstration over a 19-mile stretch of Pere Marquette railroad tracks yesterday. The test was in the presence of officials of the Pere Marquette, the Michigan Central and Thomas E. Clark of Detroit, inventor of the device.

Following the demonstration railroad officials said they believed the invention, if generally adopted, would result in the saving of thousands of lives by preventing railroad accidents and millions of dollars in equipment destroyed in wrecks.

By mean of a system of radio-controlled signal lights installed in the engine cab, it was demonstrated that the engineer can be forewarned of impending disaster, making it possible for him to know many minutes in advance of danger ahead. Should the engineer be disabled or dead, the system of control checks the engine's speed and brings it to a halt at any danger point at any time.

Mr. Clark explained his invention. "The success of continuous control depends on the propagation of electro-magnetic waves following in the track rails these waves being picked up by loop collector coils under the pilot. The waves are pumped into the rails by a roadside unit. They are transmitted at a wave length of 28,000 meters to give a clear a indication and at a wave length of 22,000 meters to give a caution signal.

"The loop collector coils are equipped with variable condensers for tuning each coil to the wave length propagated in the rails. These coils transmit the various wave lengths to the visual signal device in the engine cab. This consists of three lights—red for danger yellow for caution and green for clear track ahead. These signals give the engineer advance information of the condition of the track ahead.

"Should a train be occupying a block, the rest of the rail surface within that block becomes automatically demagnatized and another train entering the block from the rear or front will receive the danger signal and an automatic application of the brakes."

The Michigan Central railroad has equipped ten locomotives and ten miles of track between Jackson and Ithves, Mich., with the Clark radio-control device.

During the test the engine was traveling at 50 miles an hour when the red signal flashed. The engineer got down from his seat, under the assumption he had been taken ill and could not perform his duties, and immediately the radio device automatically applied the air brakes and the locomotive was stopped with the throttle wide open.

Mr. Clark said that any tendency on the part of the engineer to exceed the speed necessary in the "caution" zone results in a partial application of the brakes, so that upon entering the "danger" zone he gets a further automatic brake application which brings the train to a stop in the shortest possible distance.

ELECTRIFICATION OF ALL RAILROADS IS PROBABLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—An important step toward electrification of all railroads of the United States was seen by officials of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co., in reports upon the operation of new type locomotives by the Virginia railway over a trans-Alleghany section of that system. Speed of operation over a heavy grade was measurably increased, the report said, in the experiments using 22,500 tractive horsepower, or three times that previously utilized with steam.

"The demonstration has an important bearing on future railroad development," declared F. H. Shepard, director of the company's heavy traction department.

NEW YORK PATROLMAN HAS SAVED 26 LIVES

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—(AP)—Patrolman Frank J. McCann today brought the total of lives he has saved to 26 as the result of a wholesale rescue he effected in a fire in the Bebski Chair factory in East Ninth street. McCann found a young woman unconscious on a floor of the burning building and carried her to safety. A few minutes later he made his way to the roof and rescued 30 other women by carrying them to safety in a freight elevator down a smoke-filled shaft.

Some time ago he was commendation for bravery by saving four persons from drowning.

Crisis in the Balkans Is Being Cleared up

Both Greece and Bulgaria Have Assured Council of L. of N. That They Will Abide Its Findings.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Hastening to the scene of the Macedonian fighting on special trains provided by the Jugoslavian and Greek governments, the allied military attaches at Belgrade and Athens so succeeded in smoothing out the Greco-Bulgarian conflict that the council of the League of Nations was vastly aided tonight in its work of clearing up the Balkan crisis.

Although another session will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning to receive final reports from the attaches that evacuation has been completed, the council unanimously adopted Austen Chamberlain's resolution that the council was satisfied hostilities had ceased, and that the troops were withdrawing, and formally appointed a commission of inquiry to proceed to the spot and report its findings to the December session of the council.

Both Greek and Bulgarian representatives assured the council that their countries would accept the commission's findings without qualification and give it every assistance both at the frontier and in Athens and Sofia.

The council, resolution emphasizes the wisdom of the commission studying measures to eliminate future conflicts, and specifically instructs it to ascertain the origin of the recent outbreak and establish facts enabling the fixing of responsibility. It must also supply material for determination of reparations. It is stipulated that all prisoners must be released and all confiscated property restored.

GREEKS MARCHING OUT OF BULGARIAN TERRITORY

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 29—The Greeks silently began their march out of Bulgarian territory at one o'clock this morning. At that hour a bugler walked between the hostile camps and signalled the Greeks' intention to obey the orders of the league of nations.

The Bulgarians retained their position until the arrival of the allied attaches was heralded by bugles in the Greek camp. The attaches went forward to meet the Bulgar Colonel Zlatoff. They warned him not to disturb the Greek withdrawal.

Already the attaches have begun to estimate the damage caused in the evacuated territory. The number of Greek troops engaged in the entire operations was thought to be about 30,000.

CHARGE FRENCH TROOPS COMMITTED EXCESSES

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Syrian refugees, the Cairo correspondent of the Daily Mail reports, charge the French troops with committing excesses at Damascus. After the bombardment had ceased two armored cars passed through the principal streets firing at the shops on either side. French officers and soldiers are alleged to have broken into a jeweler's shop and removed the contents, asserting that the proprieter was a Moslem whom they wished to punish.

The house of one of the leading Moslems adjourning the French bank of Syria was blown up with dynamite after the bank's valuables had been removed.

The refugees report that the bombardment wrecked the jail, kilinig 1,200 prisoners.

GILPATRIC'S BOND DEALINGS AS STATE TREASURER SHORTLY AFTER ASSUMING OFFICE TO BE INVESTIGATED

HARTFORD, Oct. 29—Suspicious circumstances indicating that G. Harold Gilpatric took advantage of his position as state treasurer within eight months of his installation in 1919 are under investigation by auditors in the employ of creditors of the First National Bank of Putnam. It is learned that $135,000 was involved in a bond purchase of August, 1919, and that Gilpatric used the funds over a considerable period for his own purposes before delivering the bonds.

The transaction is said to have been similar in many respects to that of February, 1921, when Gilpatric, suddenly aware that he was being watched by the then Governor Lake, is alleged to have stolen approximately $169,000 from funds at his disposal as cashier of the First National Bank of Putnam to pay for bonds that he had to deliver to the state treasury within forty eight hours or stand exposed.

Decision to proceed to a careful investigation of Liberty bond transactions carried on by Gilpatric during the entire period of his administration as state treasurer was made at a conference today of Governor Trumbull, State Treasurer Rogers and Attorney General Healy. The action of State Treasurer Rogers a week ago in halting an investigation of treasury securities by the accounting firm of Hadfield, Rothwell and Soule, of this city, was approved and an agreement reached to discontinue that investigation. A checkup will be made by the state treasury department itself while Attorney General Healy pursues an inquiry to determine the reasonableness of the contention of the Putnam bank's creditors that bonds in the treasury were bought by Gilpatric with funds stolen from the bank and trust funds at Gilpatric's disposal.

The following statement was given out by the state executives today following their conference:

"At a conference held in the office of the governor this afternoon, the matter was discussed thoroughly in reference to the matter of state securities that are in the state vault.

"It was the unanimous opinion of the state officials that the state does not desire to hold any securities that do not belong to it legally. The question of legality to be decided by the courts. If it is found that the state has in its possession securities that do not legally belong to it the officials do not believe that the state would want to be a party to hold securities that might have been acquired illegally. On the other hand, the state officials will exhaust every effort to protect the state's interests and will proceed to secure all possible information obtainable regarding any transactions covering the securities in question. A certain procedure was decided upon to obtain this information which seems unwise to disclose at this time. The public can rest assured however, that the state officials recognize their responsibility and are doing everything within their power to assist in unravelling the various transactions leading up to the present situation.

"Additional information will be given out from time to time that will not be incompatible to the state's interests. On the facts as they appear now there is no justification of the state's surrendering the securities in its possession and so far as it appears Connecticut has only the securities that it bought and paid for."

The state executives present were Governor John H. Trumbull, Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers, Deputy Treasurer Thomas H. Judd and Attorney General Frank E. Healy.

PERSONNEL OF NEW FRENCH CABINET IS MADE PUBLIC

Premier Painleve Will Act as Finance Minister—Briand Retains the Foreign Affairs Portfolio—Chaunet Has Been Appointed Governor of the Bank of Finance—The New Cabinet Will Face a Period of Serious Difficulties When Parliament Opens Next Week—Painleve is Inclined to Deal With Other Financial Problems Before Settlement of the American Debt.

PARIS, Oct. 29—(A. P.)—Premier Painleve has succeeded in reconstituting the cabinet, which will proceed to grapple with France's problems, financial, military and political, without the aid of M. Caillaux and several other members of the previous ministry.

M. Painleve has taken over the portfolio of the finance ministry himself, Aristide Briand remains as minister of foreign affairs, and Charles Chaumet, who was formerly minister of commerce, has been appointed governor of the Bank of France.

With his cabinet M. Painleve called today on President Doumergue, who ratified the selections. The new ministry is constituted as follows:

Premier and minister of finance—M. Painleve.
Minister of foreign affairs—Aristide Briand.
Of justice—Camile Chautemps.
Of the interior—A. Schrameck.
Of works—Anatole de Monzie.
Of war—Edouard Daladier.
Of marine—Emile Borel.
Of commerce—Daniel Vincent.
Of agriculture—Jean Durand.
Of instruction—Yvon Delbos.
For the colonies—Leon Perrier.
Of labor—Antoine Durafour.
Of pensions—Louis Anteriou.
Of budget—George Bonnet.

The new ministry was scarcely on its feet when pressure was put upon it from groups for the coalition for radical measures to solve the financial problems. Opposition groups served notice that the government can rely upon their support only if it follows a policy of national concord and rejects the demands of the extremists for the carrying out of policies decided upon outside of parliament. The socialists propose to wait upon the premier and ascertain just how far he is going to satisfy their demands.

In spite of the good impression the ministry has made in radical circles the reopening of parliament next week promises to bring a period of serious difficulties for the cabinet.

M. Painleve is disposed to allow the American debt to rest where it is for the present. He has not yet made any declaration concerning it, but his attitude is described as regarding the question as less pressing than other financial problems confronting the government. Smaller sums than embodied in M. Caillaux's rejected proposals would not be acceptable to the United States, the premier feels; the prevailing view among the ministerial supporters is that public opinion in France would not tolerate the proffer of larger sums.

M. Caillaux was quite determined to proceed further in the matter, and for that purpose called on Monday to M. Lacourgayet, the French financial agent in New York, to come immediately to Paris. The fall of Caillaux however, is likely to cause the postponement of his sailing.

M Caillaux believed that he could rearrange the French schedule of payments and render it more acceptable to Washington. French public finances are in such confusion that the new government, it is understood, would rather let the American debt question drift indefinitely than make itself responsible for increased burdens at a time when the treasury was having difficulties in finding money to meet current needs.

The ministerial declaration will probably make reference to the question and express the hope that an adequate settlement will soon be reached, but it is regarded as extremely unlikely that it will recommend immediate action or action in the near future.

SIX BANDITS IN BUFFALO GET AWAY WITH $93,000 CASH

BUFFALO, Oct. 29—Another daring robbery was successfully executed in Buffalo today.

Six armed men swept their scene of action with a withering barrage of revolver fire and escaped with $93,000 in cash, leaving one dead and two seriously wounded in the street.

The dead man was Charles W. Clifford, driver of the bank of Buffalo's armored car. Lewis M. Yarington, a bank guard, was shot in the abdomen and John H. Meyers, a bank messenger, was shot in the arm. Yarington is not expected to recover.

The police are convinced that the robbers were members of the bandit gang that has been operating in this district for several months. Five witnesses identified the leader of the gang through photographs as Harry Harris, alias Garfield, who jumped his bail bond of $50,000 in Detroit two weeks ago. Two other members of the robber band were identified as Polack Joe and Mike Speruzzi.

Detectives investigating the robbery believe the man who drove the bandits' automobil was Dutch Anderson, pal of Gerald Chapman, notorious criminal. An attendant in a garage where the bandit car was stored last night declared that the man who left the car at the garage last night and came for it this morning resembled in every detail Anderson's photograph.

The money was being transferred from the Federal Reserve bank, Seneca and Main streets, to the Bank of Buffalo, an institution affiliated with the Marine Trust company, at North Division and Main streets, a distance of three blocks, the holdup was staged at about 9:15 a. m., and evidently had been carefully planned.

When the bank car drew up at the Bank of Buffalo entrance and began to remove the currency two robbers who had been standing near the entrance opened fire. Two other gangsters began firing at the same time from the tonneau of the robbers' machine which was parked across the street from the bank entrance. Pedestrians scurried into doorways.

The bank guards and messengers ejected and the robbers shot to kill. Meyers refused to drop the package containing the $93,000 and one robber grappled with him, finally shooting him. Meanwhile Clifford had been shot dead and Yarington, who had opened fire was dropped with two wounds in his abdomen.

Seizing the two packages of money the two men fled were on foot ran to the robbers' car. One dropped a package when it is believed he was shot in the wrist. The car, containing the five men shot east on North Division street and out of sight. Meanwhile Traffic Officer Bunce, who was on duty at Main and North Division, had come running. He fired as he ran.

As the robbers' car sped down the street another automobile, driven by the sixth member of the gang, turned crossways on the treet, effectively blocking pursuit. He then drove away North on Main street. Patrolman Bunce commandeered a passing automobile but traffic stopped the way and the robbers made good their escape.

DEPARTMENT STORE SALES ARE "VERY FAVORABLE"

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Sales of New England department stores during the first three weeks of October were of "very favorable volume." It is revealed in preliminary reports received by the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. An increase of 15 per cent. over the corresponding period in October of last year is shown.

Rhode Island and Connecticut department stores continue to report larger increases over a year ago than the stores in other sections of New England. Wholesale grocery sales in September were of good volume.

With the exception of silks and velvets, dress goods sold poorly in September. Youths' apparel, both boys and girls sold very well, as did men's clothing. Furniture and luggage showed increased sales.

BOARD POSTPONES SUB S-51 HEARING UNTIL RAISING

BOSTON, Oct. 29—(A. P.)—The naval board of inquiry which has been investigating the sinking of the Submarine S-51 off Block Island on the night of September 25 with a loss of 33 lives after a collision with the steamer City of Rome, today adjourned sine die to await a reasonable time for the raising of the submarine and the presentation of further evidence. Adjournment was taken after the board had heard Roland M. Litchfield, second officer of the steamer H. F. Dimock, describe a near collision between his vessel and a submarine because the submersible displayed insufficient running lights. Captain John H. Diehl of the City of Rome was also allowed to take the stand to correct portions of his testimony given before the board yesterday. Evidence found aboard the submarine will be presented, if the craft is raised within a month. Otherwise the board will re-convene to complete the case.

It was brought out in earlier examination of witnesses from the City of Rome that the collision occurred after a single white light had been observed for 20 minutes or more off the starboard bow of the steamer, and that the sudden flashing of a red light on the submarine, followed by quickly changed course, whistling and reversing of engines on the part of the steamer immediately preceded the crash.

DENIES PROPOSING TO MISS ANNE CALDWELL

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 29—Denying that he ever proposed marriage to Miss Anne Caldwell, member of a New York musical comedy company, John W. Hubbard, president of the Hubbard Pressed Steel company, in an answer filed in federal court today to Miss Caldwell's breach of promise suit, for $500,000 damages charged that he "would have reason and legal justification for annulling or refusing to carry out the contract of marriage."

He alleged that in 1924 Miss Caldwell left New York, where she had been studying for a stage career, and went to California in company with a motion picture producer. Hubbard also declared Miss Caldwell was a resident of Chester County, Pa., and denied that she was a resident of New York or New Jersey.

Miss Caldwell in her suit charged that in January 1922 Hubbard made an oral agreement with her to be married and that he repudiated the agreement about September 10, 1924.

OBITUARY

Charles H. Nettleton

DERBY, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Charles H. Nettleton, president of the Derby Gas and Electric company and of the New Haven Gas Light company, and one of this city's most prominent citizens, died this morning at 7:30 o'clock at his home, 61 Seymour avenue, of heart disease following an illness of a few hours.

Mr. Nettleton, who was in his 76th year was at his place of business as usual yesterday. Early this morning he awoke ill and his condition became rapidly worse until the end which came so suddenly as to be a great shock to his family and friends. Last June Mr. Nettleton celebrated his 75th birthday anniversary having at that time been panies noted above, Mr. Nettleton was connected with the gas business 55 years. He began his career with the gas company in Mount Vernon, N. Y., in 1870. He was widely known in gas and electric lighting circles.

Besides his presidency of the companies noted above, Mr. Nettleton was president of the Birmingham National bank, the Derby Water company, vice-president of the Derby Savings bank, and an officer and director in several local enterprises. His wife and two daughters, Mrs. Helen N. McClure and Miss Katherine Nettleton survive. Mr. Nettleton was a member and an official of St. James' Episcopal church of this city.

WILLIMANTIC

An out of court settlement of two of the three cases listed for trial in the Windham county superior court for Thursday was announced by attorneys to Judge Edwin C. Dickenson, at the opening of the session.

The first was that of James Walker vs. the Town of Canterbury. March 29, 1925, the plaintiff was driving his automobile on the highway between Brooklyn and Canterbury, when the machine struck a stone that protruded from the ground some ten and one half inches. He brought suit and in the Plainfield town court, April 26, Justice of the Peace Mrs. Edith M. Kennedy found for the plaintiff, to recover damages of $48.40 plus costs of $24.19. From this judgment the selectmen of the town of Canterbury appealed to the superior court. At the eleventh hour the selectmen made a settlement in full with Walker. Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson prepared for the plaintiff.

The other case was that of Attorney John T. Barry of Jewett City vs. Mary Ciolek and Appolian Tomeysk, a dispute over a partition of land located in the towns of Sterling and Voluntown, one-half owned by the plaintiff and one quarter each by the defendants. Barry sought a partition of the property with rights to all. The Jewett City bank held a first mortgage of $1,000 and F. M. Greer a $500 second mortgage on the property. Attorney Back, for the defendants, stated that the plaintiff had withdrawn his case.

The only case to be tried was that of Charles H. Kinne vs. Lucy C. Jarvis Smith residents of Brooklyn, concerning the lease of a farm in the town of Brooklyn, owned by Mrs. Smith.

The test is to show whether or not the agreement relative to the lease was oral or written, the defense maintaining that it was oral, and that the rentage for a one-year lease was $75 per month, plus labor, plus a certain amount of milk daily. The labor clause was for the making of improvements on the farm which the defense alleges was not done and further that the delivery of milk ceased before the expiration of the lease.

When the plaintiff sought to renew the lease last spring this was not only refused, but further order was given to quit the premises. Kinne having occupied part of the buildings on the property. The plaintiff then secured an order of the court and has remained on the premises since the start of the trouble, some six or eight months ago.

Plaintiff claims that the rent of $12 a month is a good one for the farm which is stated as having been in a run-down condition and is considerably improved since his arrival.

The defense has instituted a counter suit for damages of $500, claiming that without the clauses, "labor and milk" in the lease, the rent should amount to $30 or $35 a month, and in the failure of King to perform the work in question or deliver the milk, that amount of rent is collectible.

Attorneys for the plaintiff are Harry L. Back of Danielson and Charles L. Torrey of Putnam and for the defendant, Howard L. Bradford and F. F. Russell of Putnam and Frank H. Fess of this city.

Witnesses for the defense in the original case were Lucy C. Jarvis Smith, the defendant, Victor Smith, her husband, Louis Inkies, Milon D. Whittemore and Augustus Dumas.

The plaintiff side introduces as witness, Charles H. Kinne, the plaintiff, his brother, Dwight E. Kinne, Oliver Downs, former selectman and assessor of Brooklyn, Edward Allen whose father formerly owned the farm in dispute, Albert Webb, former selectman, assessor and representative of Brooklyn and Clarence E. Salmon.

Judge Dickenson instructed the attorneys to submit arguments at the conclusion of the short calendar session today (Friday). Court adjourned at 5 o'clock until 10 a. m. Friday.

The Old Ironsides campaign being conducted here by the Elks will conclude this (Friday) night in the town of Windham schools, but not in the surrounding towns. The delay in the arrival of Old Ironsides buttons which are to be presented children making contributions has caused the committee to extend its canvassing program in neighboring towns to a later date. Thursday forenoon, Exalted Ruler Albert J. Fournier and Gerard E. Loisell, secretary of the committee, visited the various rooms at the Windham High school and in displaying one of the beautiful four-colored reproductions of Old Ironsides, handsomely framed, made it known that it would be awarded the room making the largest contribution. Other reproductions are being framed and will be presented each school responding to the campaign.

Miss Irene Surpremant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Surpremant, of New Haven and Arthur George Beaulieu, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aldege Beaulieu of Windham Road, this city, were united in marriage at St. Louis's church, New Haven, Wednesday morning by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Courmoyer. A nuptial high mass was sung. Miss Dora Kenealy was maid of honor and Theodore Surpremant was best man. The ushers were Roderic Beaulieu and Carl Erickson. The bride wore a gown of bluish pink chiffon, embroidered in silver bugles. Her bluish pink veil of tulle was held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia and Sweetheart roses. Her maid of honor was attired in orchid crepe de chine with pansy colored picture hat; she carried chrysantehmums. A reception was held at the home of the bride, after which Mr. and Mrs. Beaulieu left on a honeymoon journey. The bride wore for traveling a cinnamon brown ensemble suit trimmed with beaver trimming and a hat to correspond.

George Dube was given a party at his home recently in honor of his 45th birthday and received many gifts, including a handsome pipe from Eugene Leclaire of this city. Music was provided by Misses Bernadette and Marie Jeanne Dube on the violin. Recitations were given and an address was read by Ernest Ricard. Others present were: Mr. George Dube, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ricard, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Leclaire, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jean, Mr. and Mrs. Arille Rouette, Mr. and Mrs. Hormisdas Chamberland, Mr. and Mrs. Amidee Terrien, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brouellette, Mr. and Mrs. Gagnon, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Marcotte, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Auger, all of this city, Roy Logan, Joseph Vallee, Moe Samson, Joseph Gamache, Napoleon Morin, Eugene Martin, Emile Chamberland and Emilen Duclos of Lewiston, Me., Joseph Boucher, Clovis Morin, Emile Brocher and S. Washburn of Providence, R. I., Alfred Bergeron, Donat Rancourt, Frank Labrecque, John Binette, Joseph Fortin and Andrew Pintrell, of New Britain, Ronso Rodeau and Alonzo Mott of East Berlin, Messrs Grant and Murral of Hartford, Pete St. Onge, Leonel Dube, Messrs Dion, Madeau, J. A. Martin and Morean of New York and Misses Irene, Florence, Laurencia and Jizelle Leclaire, Ivette Rouette, Blandine, Cecile and Germene Rouette, Yvonne Demers, Ledia Laurenger, Yvonne Cloutier and Gabrian of this city.

Anson Young died in New York city Wednesday, it was made known here Thursday. He was a former resident of Willimantic.

Funeral services for Mrs. Martha M. Chappell were held at ten o'clock Thursday morning at 83 North street with burial in Franklin cemetery. Avery and VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements.

One of the most successful social gatherings of the season was that at the Al-Pierre Taberin Wednesday night in the form of a masquerade. The festive atmosphere was enhanced with Hallowe'en decorations and the distribution of novelties. Refreshments were served in the balcony. Music was by the Peerless Eight orchestra, the members of which appeared in costume.

Noting the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Caswell for a trip south today (Friday) Judge and Mrs. Otto B. Robinson entertained them and many friends at a party Wednesday evening with all the traditions of Hallowe'en carried out. The guests arrived masked and costumed. Old fashioned dances were enjoyed and typical Hallowe'en luncheon served.

Briefs and Personals

Miss Irene Randall recently entertained the I. X. L. Sewing Circle of the Methodist church when Dorothy and Alice Davis were surprised when presented a gift from each member of the circle. The Misses Davis are leaving next Tuesday to spend the winter in the south. Hallowe'en games were played.

Miss Mary Adams will resign at the H. C. Murray company this week to become secretary to Dr. H. F. Stoll of Hartford.

The sudden high wind which shook houses in the city shortly after eleven o'clock Wednesday night blew over a large cherry tree in the yard of E. Byrd Freeman.

The Ashford Welfare association, an organization aiming at community betterment has planned a Hallowe'en party at Knowlton Memorial hall in Warrenville.

GEORGE LYMAN, COLCHESTER, BLAMED IN AUTO MISHAP

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 29.—George Lyman, 30, of Colchester, arrested shortly after midnight Thursday morning after a collision of automobiles, on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, denied driving the car and also being intoxicated, when his case was taken up in police court Thursday morning. The complainants in the case, however, Ovide Constant of North Windham and Marcil Boucher insisted that Lyman was the driver of the machine and that he was drunk. In order to give Lyman an opportunity to secure his alleged witnesses and the man he states was driving the car Judge Frank H. Foss continued the case until this (Friday) morning, placing Lyman under a bond of $500.

Officer William Hurley of the police department was summoned to Ash street, opposite the Dion property about midnight. He found one car, a Dodge in the yard of the house opposite the Dion store, the machine having ploughed through a wooden fence. Lyman was seated behind the steering wheel and very much under the influence of liquor, according to the officer. The second car was a short distance away. It had been driven by Constant who was on his way to his home on the North Windham accompanied by Boucher. Constant stated that on approaching the point of collision he saw a machine approaching at a fast rate of speed and he turned his machine into the gutter to the right of the road. The oncoming machine then crashed into the left side of his car, tossed it to one side, knocked off one of the wheels and punctured three of the tires, besides breaking the front spring. The Lyman car then left the road and went partly through the fence. Lyman was too drunk to talk and while Boucher kept watch over him Constant secured the police officer.

ANOTHER LABOR DIFFICULTY AFFECTS STRAND THEATRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 29.—The reappearance of a picket line in the city caused something of a stir when 200 men and women members of the union formed in line in the vicinity of the Strand theatre on Broad street here Wednesday in protest to the hiring of non-union musicians and operator. Manager Louis J. Coriaty feared for the safety of the place and requested police protection, which was granted in the form of four policemen headed by Lieutenant of Police Frank McLean. The duty of the picketers was to inform patrons as they entered the theatre that Mr. Coriaty's labor connections were of an unfair nature.

The trouble has been brewing for some time. Mr. Coriaty had offered the use of the theatre for mass meetings of the striking employes of the American Thread company and his hospitality has been accepted at times, but he has steadfastly refused to comply with the requirements of a unionized theatre by signing contracts with his employes.

A year and eight months ago Robert Hyde, a union operator, formerly employed at Capitol theatre, New London, came here to work at the Strand. He states that he had the permission of local union officials to come here, but was not recognized as a union man by his employer and did not receive the union scale of wages until he had been here some time, when they were accorded him. The necessary contract, however, was never signed.

Early this month, an officer in the local branch of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Operators of the United States and Canada received a telegram from the home office of the union ordering that the union operator at the Strand discontinue his connections with the theatre, in the event that Mr. Coriaty did not settle his differences with the musicians' union. It was, therefore, brought to light that the pianist, Mrs. William Segar, was not a union member. She has been in the employ of Mr. Coriaty for a year and a half, and due to the fact that the unions affecting operators and musicians are affiliated, friction arose as a result of the coming here of Robert Hyde. Mr. Hyde has not ended his engagement with the Strand and in the meantime receives $15 a week from his union. He stated Thursday that he would enter upon duties of a similar nature in New London. Mr. Coriarty has engaged the services of another operator, Herbert L. Tifft of this city.

The secretary of the local branch of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Operators said Thursday that there was no representative of his branch at the Strand Wednesday evening. From various sources it was stated that those who appeared on the picket line at the Strand were local textile strikers.

GULDEN'S SALADRESSING MUSTARD

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

No damage to property. No carrying away signs. No recklessness! This is the edict of Chief John MacFarland as to observances of Hallowe'en by merrymakers in Danielson. "No effort will be made to prevent everyone having a good time," Chief McFarland said Thursday, "but those who overstep the bounds between having a good time and doing reckless things, damaging property and the like, as has been done sometimes in the past, will be brought into court and allowed to answer there for their action".

As is the custom each year, an All Saints' day service is to be held at Old Trinity church, Church street, Brooklyn, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. A service will be held at St. Alban's church here at 9.00. This will allow the congregations of St. Alban's church and of Trinity church at Brooklyn Center to unite for the service at Old Trinity, oldest Episcopal church standing in Connecticut. The service will be conducted by Rev. Leonard Richards.

Many people in Killingly have not filed their tax returns yet, a member of the board of assessors said Thursday morning. Returns are particularly slow this year. Many of those who had not filed returns up to Thursday are resident in Danielson where it is convenient to attend to this duty. If so happens that tomorrow (Saturday) is the last day for filing tax returns. Those who have not filed by the time the assessors close their work for the day will have the lists they last filed 50 per cented. The assessors have no option about this. The law insists it must be done.

Following are the newly named committees of Danielson's recently organized Rotary club: Membership, Richard D. Banigan, John M. Dowe, Louis E. Kennedy; program, Sidney P. Marland, Gordon Gale, Burdette C. Hopkins; fellowship, Sidney P. Marland, Gordon Hale, B. C. Hopkins; Rotary education, William E. Parker, Clifford H. Starkweather; boys work, Gordon Hale, L. E. Kennedy, Henry Dubuc; publicity, Gordon Gale, B. C. Hopkins, S. P. Marland; business methods, Harry Richardson, Walter Anderson, Frank E. Kennedy; classification, Obadiah Butler, S. S. Russell, E. H. Veach; luncheon, Irving W. Davis, S. P. Marland; community service, William E. Parker, chairman.

The one-way traffic rule in Center street will become effective about mid-November. This arrangement will detour all traffic now moving through Center into Main through other streets such as Academy and Cottage. Center will be the first one-way street in Danielson. As it is used almost exclusively by local traffic, it is not anticipated that there will be any great difficulty in enforcing the one-way rule, though there may be some at first—until drivers generally become accustomed to the arrangement.

At the Sacred Heart church in Wauregan Thursday morning, Rev. J. C. Mathieu was celebrant of a high mass of requiem for Mrs. Ladis Messier. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Peter Blanchette, U. Blanchette, Frank Root and E. Poirier. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

An incidental news item in this column Thursday morning, conveying certain information of general public interest, promised during the day to bring worthwhile business to a local concern. The item was not intended as advertising, but it proved well within that sphere—if results may be used as a basis of classification. It was in any case still another of the innumerable illustrations that advertising pays.

As to the hunting season, one hears an occasional remark that a small group of hunters "hog the game." Well, there isn't much to be done about that. Good sportsmanship is not universal—never has been, probably never will be, unless Henry Ford starts standardizing human nature and makes a better job of it than he does on most things other than building perfectly good low-priced cars. The complaint of the hunters appears to be that some men are out every day, shoot everything that gets within range, including hen pheasants, which is against the law, and hope to make a record clean-up. This is unfortunate for good sportsmen, but there appears to be a dearth of remedies for the condition, for good sportsmen do not "squeal" even if they are a bit perturbed by some things they know.

Industrially, the people of Killingly seem to be sitting pretty, as regards a prosperous winter. The town's manufacturing plants are all busy. This is a situation that should inspire confidence in those who make this town their home and are concerned with its prosperity. It should mean lively business for the people in trade and consideration for them by the town's people who have money to spend. The prospects here are much more rosy than was the case in the fall of 1924.

Mrs. Hermanie Thomas, 54, wife of Zotique Thomas, died Thursday morning at their home on the West Side. Mrs. Thomas had been resident here for years. She leaves her husband and eight children—Mrs. Joseph Bernier, Wilfred, Joseph, Amie, Yvonne, Malcolmn, Valerie and Helen. Mrs. Thomas was a native of Vermont.

"There's a new one," remarked an hombre who has tried everything to drink "what am" since prohibition and lost out on every shot. "Who sells it and how much does it cost?" He had been reading an advertisement telling about Worm Syrup and remarked that "it ought to be good." Probably good for worms!

"I don't know what to do with my week end" George Stone of Broad St., quoted a man as saying Thursday and remarked that someone suggested, "Put on your hat!" Now just think of that, with all the football games and everything scheduled!

Members of the Danielson Rotary club held a meeting Thursday evening and at the gathering talked over plans for the future. They had a feed, as is the usual custom of good Rotarians when they get togethe..

Rene Caron and Howard Davis will motor to Rockingham, N. H., Saturday to see the automobile races.

Killingly grange will be represented Saturday at Canterbury in the class that is to receive the Pomona degree in Quinebaug Pomona grange.

An edge of that 14 below zero weather reported from the Dakotas manifested itself in Danielson Thursday morning, when the temperature was below the freezing point.

Julius Rainville of North Main St., is considering spending the winter season in Florida.

The death of John O. Fox at Putnam removes a man who had many friends in the town of Killingly, where he enjoyed the same remarkable degree of well earned respect that was his in the neighboring town.

William F. Mulligan of Elmville has taken a lease on a store here and is to engage in a business dealing in textiles.

John M. Dowe, former student at Brown university, will be among those from Danielson attending the Brown-Dartmouth game at Andrews field on Saturday.

There were many at the Community house in South Killingly Thursday evening for a social affair that provided much in the way of entertainment.

Joseph LaBelle and Ozario Warner will be at Providence tomorrow to see the Brown-Dartmouth football game.

Members of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows of Putnam, will come here next Tuesday evening to witness the conferring of the second degree on a class of eight candidates.

The service battery has a program of dances and whists mapped out for the late fall and winter season.

Trolley passengers have been transferring around where track is being relocated at Elmville the past few days.

James A. Milton of Hartford was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Thursday.

Boxing fans from various sections of eastern Connecticut came here on Thursday evening for the series of amateur bouts at the Casino arena, as told elsewhere this morning.

This has been a quiet week in the town court. There has been but one case—that of a man charged with having been intoxicated.

Evidence that Danielson is conserving coal might be observed as reflected in the clouds of smoke swirling out of chimney pots from wood fires in homes about the borough Thursday, something of a fall day.

SEAS MOUNTAIN HIGH ON TRIP FROM EUROPE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 29—Mrs. Leonard Richards, wife of Rev. Leonard Richards, rector of St. Alban's Episcopal church, and their two youngest children arrived here Wednesday evening after five months' visit in Wales and England.

Mrs. Richards describes the homeward ocean voyage as tumultuous. From the time the giant liner Synthia headed away from the Irish coast the vessel was beset by storm after storm. So severe was the weather that the Scynthia was driven southward from her regular course. Passengers went and prayed, as the fury of the storms tossed the great liner about as though she had been a chip. Practically the entire list of passengers were made ill and even members of the crew did not escape seasickness. The Scynthia was out in the storm during which the President Harding took off the crew of the sinking Italian liner Ignazio Florio and in the storms that followed.

PUTNAM

Owen J. White has been commissioned first lieutenant of Headquarters company to succeed Rosario Beaudoin, resigned, and Howard H. Sheriffs has been made second lieutenant to succeed Mr. White. Those commissions were issued by the adjutant general of the state.

John Smith who has been living on the Shauer place, Senexet road, has been engaged as caretaker for the Dr. A. W. Catlin property. Mr. Smith is at present engaged in putting the farmhouse on the place in condition for winter use and expects to be comfortably located in his new home sometime in November.

Miss Bertha Plessis has been appointed collector of personal taxes by the selectmen of the town of Putnam to succeed her father, Joseph Plessis, who died last Saturday. This action was taken some time ago when it was realized that Mr. Plessis could not recover. Miss Plessis has been her father's assistant for several years and is thoroughly familiar with the duties of the office and her selection will be approved of by the public.

Three applications were received at the meeting of Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows, Next Tuesday they will meet at 7:30 and after business will go to Danielson where the second degree will be conferred on eight candidates of this lodge by the Danielson degree team. An invitation from Granite Lodge No. 33 of Pascoag, R. I., to pay them a fraternal visit on the evening of November 12 has been accepted.

The supper and social of the Hi-Y club this week was attended by thirty-two members and friends. A fine supper was enjoyed after which games were played. The next meeting will be a business one followed by a talk by Superintendent of Schools Ralph C. Jenkins. A recent rummage sale netted $100 for the club.

The Social Circle of the Second Congregational church held a social in the chapel Wednesday afternoon, which was largely attended. An interesting program was given as follows:

(a) Just Like the Dawn ... Hanson
(b) Rose of My Heart ..... Lohr
Miss Alice Stevens, soprano
Reading—"An Afternoon With O. Henry"
Mrs. Ernest C. Morse
(a) Barcarolle from Tales of Hoffman
(b) Santa Lucia.
Mrs. Harriet Cropp, soprano.
Mrs. Pearl Wheaton, contralto.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Herbert J. Smith, Mrs. Helen Willey and Miss Ellen Wheelock.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Maryott and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Kent motored to Hartford last week and while there attended the aviation meet Saturday.

Saturday of this week is the last day that the assessors will be in session.

Mrs. Guy L. Baker has gone to Florida to join her husband. They expect to spend the winter there and it is not improbable that they may make their home there permanently.

King Bagardus, who has been instructor in the machine shop at Putnam State Trade school for the past five years, has resigned to take effect as soon as his successor can be appointed. He goes to a position with a nut and bolt foundry in Taunton, Mass. Mr. Begardus is considered an expert machinist and has made many friends in Putnam, all of whom will regret to hear of his leaving.

At a meeting of the Storrs College Athletic association which was held recently, Gerald D. Allard of this city was elected president.

The Thompson W. C. T. U. meet Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Lilla Babbitt. A report was given by the delegates to the convention. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Alice Elliott and Mrs. Babbitt.

William E. Rogers has moved his household goods from Worcester and is now living in the Tatem residence on Grove street. Mrs. Tatem has gone to Providence to make her home for the winter.

Archie Macdonald of Putnam and Rev. Fr. Bernard M. Donnelly of North Grosvernordale were at Meriden yesterday attending a meeting of the trustees of the State Boys' school there. They have been members of the board for many years.

Mrs. Mary B. Bishop and Mrs. Genevieve Letters attended the annual meeting of the Mayflower society in Hartford Tuesday. The luncheon and reception was held at the Hartford club, after which the members inspected the antiques at the Morgan Memorial. Mrs. Bishop was on the reception committee and gave a report for the recruiting committe of which she is also a member.

Putna mLodge of Elks wil celebrate its 25th anniversary next month. The following committee has been appointed to make arrangements: Ralph S. Thurston, Lucius P. Merriam, Exalted Ruler James E. Murray, John H. Bulger and George Lewis, Jr.

Miss Alice Stevens spent Wednesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stevens, at East Thompson.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR ARMISTICE DAY EVENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 29—Every indication points to the realization of the prediction voiced by some enthusiastic citizen a month ago that the dedication exercises of the Soldiers Memorial Bridge on Memorial Day will be the greatest event that the town has ever witnessed.

According to the contractors the bridge with the bronze memorial tablets in place on the side walls will be completed before November 11. Even if it is not, the success of the day will be in no way marred.

At the meeting of the Citizens' committee last night 25 members attended and everyone was enthusiastic over the development of the plans.

The bronze tablets have been on displayed for two days and have elicited expressions of admiration from everyone. They are beautiful specimens of work of that kind and the comment has all been favorable—there has been no criticism. These tablets will be in their place whether the bridge is entirely completed or not and the program of exercises will be just as effective, as the parade will traverse all the principal streets in any event. The speaking will be from a stand erected against the Citizens National Bank building in the center of the city. After its conclusion there will be a concert on Union Square by the band of 192nd regiment.

If the day should be stormy arrangements have been made to have the speaking and the concert in the Bradley theatre.

The initiation committee reported that all of the prominent men of the state who have been invited have sent acceptances except U. S. Senator Bingham. He expressed regret that he could not come saying that his duties as a member of the President's Air Craft Inquiry Board would keep him in Washington.

Besides the regimental band, there will be five other bands in line and there will be a sufficient number of marching men in line to justify them.

At least two airplanes will be here and possibly a squadron may be sent. From engagements that he has now Governor Trumbull will be in New York on Tuesday and if he is he will come to Putnam Wednesday morning by airplane.

The program of exercises as adopted definitely by the committee at its meeting last night follows:

Parade at 1:15 o'clock, with John Hill Moss marshal.

Following the parade the following program will be carried out:

Seection by 192nd regimental band.
Address of Welcome, T. H. deCourires.
Prayer, Rev. Charles F. Bedard.
Address, John A. Macdonald, state highway commissioner.
Address, Edward White, state commander American Legion.
Address, Governor Trumbull.
Reading Roll of Men Who Died in the Service.
Unveilins of Tablets.
Placing of Wreaths.
Thirty Seconds of Silence.
Taps.
Address, Captain John H. O'Brien.
Benediction, Rev. N. B. Burton.
Star Spangled Banner, 192nd Regiment band.

The following were named as the reception commitie: Ralph C. Jenkins, reception committee: Ralph C. Jenkins, Byron R. Bugbee, Luther M. Keith, Miss Katherine Byrne, Archie Macdonald, Samuel Reynolds, Victor Chapdelaine, C. E. Pierce, William F. Warren, Edward Girard, Mrs. Ruth Wheelock, J. J. Dupre, Col. Henry J. Thayer, E. C. Rogers, Charles Richard.

JEWETT CITY

Whatsoever Circle of the King's Daughters held an experience social and served a covered dish supper in the Baptist vestry Tuesday evening. Twenty-five were present and as each one brought some article of food the menu was varied, also "considerable!" The covered dishes were placed on the tables and everybody sniffed and guessed as to the contents. Baked beans, escalloped potatoes, macaroni, American chop suey, potato and fruit salads, rye bread, rolls, cranberry pie, all kinds of cake, fruit jelly and whipped cream, pickles, tea and coffee had to be sampled by everyone. One young lady dreamed of catching a spider as big as a dinner plate that night. The tables and room were decorated with the maltese cross and silver colors of the order. Each member had earned a dollar during the summer and related her experiences. Many of these were very funny. Twenty-seven dollars was the result of the experiences. There was an entertaining program during which Ellen Prior played a piano solo, Mrs. C. F. Gardner and Mrs. G. H. Prior read, Mrs. Walter Hyde and Mrs. E. E. Scates sang solos, and Ellen Prior and Doris Carpenter sang a duet. Mrs. Scates was in charge of the covered dishes.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Helen Louise Phillips of Lisbon and Philip Raymond Peterson, of Westerly, R. I. Miss Phillips is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Morgan Phillips. The wedding will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phillips in Lisbon Saturday afternoon, Nov. 7th. Miss Phillips is a graduate of Plainfield high school and for the past five years has been a successful teacher in Plainfield grammar school.

Special Fri., Sat. all millinery reduced prices at Miss McBroome's. Sale Bon Ton Corsets.—adv.

George H. Prior, Edward Chapman, Thomas McBroome, L. M. Carpenter, Wallace H. Payne, were bearers at Olin F. Miller's funeral held in New London Tuesday afternoon. They represented Mount Vernon lodge, No 75, F. and A. M., of which Mr. Miller was a member. John A. Hourigan and William T. Driscoll attended the funeral also.

David Hale Fanning, of Worcester, retains his relish for Griswold apples, as indicated by a letter received from him Thursday by Mrs. George A. Haskell. Mr. Fanning requests her to have forwarded to him a barrel each of baldwins, greenings and russets, a request which she is to grant at once.

One of the residents of Taylor hill who feels as if childhood friends were passing away, when trees under which he had often played, fell or must be cut down, writes a requiem which all lovers of land marks will appreciate. Great beds of lilies-of-the-valley used to grow under these trees. A pine tree, a giant of its kind, and landmark in the Taylor section of Jewett City, crashed to the ground during the high wind of Sunday about 3 p. m. The ring marks tell of its supreme struggle against the combating elements. The tree is between 70 and 100 years old. This tree grew as one tree to the height of a house and then branched off as two distinct trees. It was one of these parts that broke, causing the electric and telephone wires to be put out of commission. Superintendent Hiscox and his men soon had the electric wires in place, while the men of the neighborhood worked together in clearing the tree away so as to make the road passable. The tree was partially decayed and it is thought that the winds of several Saturdays ago wrenched it enough as to cause its falling. The neighbors heard with regret that the rest of the tree and its companion nearby the house would soon be taken down as a precaution against further damage.

The Little Light Bearers of the Methodist church are to hold a meeting and Hallowe'en party in the vestry Saturday afternoon. The mothers and children of the Sunday school have been invited.

COLCHESTER

The case of State vs. Victor H. Johnson, charged with reckless driving, was tried before Justice Baker Tuesday evening, in grange hall at 8 o'clock. He pleaded not guilty but was found guilty and fined $25 and costs of $17.27 which he paid. Grand Juror C. F. Brown prosecuted. The case of State vs. Raymond Lord, charged with violating the rules of the road was tried Tuesday evening before Justice Baker. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs of $22.72, which he paid. Mr. Lord was represented by Attorney Harry Hunt of Hartford. Charles F. Brown prosecuted. Mr. Lord and Mr. Johnson were involved in an accident on Chamberlain Hill, July 5th in which Mr. Johnson's mother was so badly injured that she died from the results of the accident.

Hattie Jackson temple, Pythian Sisters, held its meeting in Pythian hall Tuesday evening. After the meeting a Hallowe'en party was given by the sisters which provided entertainment for the members and visiting brothers and sisters from New London, Norwich, Salem and other nearby temples. A lunch was served and dancing followed.

Hyman London has bought out the business owned by Gilbert J. Murray.

Charles Jones and Clayton D. Barton of East Hampton were in town Tuesday.

F. O. Brown and son Harold and F. B. Ames of Salem left Wednesday for Vermont to purchase cattle.

Not Coming for Divorce

VIENNA, Oct. 29—"Frau Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraeten, questioned today concerning rumors of a possible divorce proceedings against him by his wife, who was Millicent Rogers, of New York, said: "I am leaving in a few days for the United States with my mother to visit my wife. One does not, I believe, generally take his aged mother to attend divorce proceedings."

Many a hungry man wishes that he was outside the soup.

ESTHONIA'S AGREEMENT

The adjustment of one more debt, small though it is, indicates progress and sets an example to those who have not as yet done as much. Esthonia bought some surplus supplies after the war and it has now agreed to pay its bill and interest over a period of 62 years so that its total settlement will amount to just under $14,000,000. Until 1933 it will pay interest at the rate of three per cent. and thereafter at the rate of three and a half per cent. Esthonia has accepted the same terms that were given to Poland.

What Esthonia is to pay in the period agreed upon is only a mere bit of change for some of the larger countries of Europe, but it represents much to Esthonia and it is to be realized that the spirit displayed in facing the removal of this indebtedness by that little country is showing a very fine example to others.

With the adjustments which have already been completed with the nations of Europe for money borrowed to carry on the war and money loaned since the war was over it becomes apparent that a basis has been established for settlement which it can be expected that others will be asked to accept. The capacity to pay has been taken into consideration in the respective cases. It will continue to be respected, but there will have to be good and sufficient reasons produced for any departure therefrom. Just a plea for cancellation or a request for reduction will not be acceptable unless there is ground for it. Belgium made a claim that was accepted. It is one that the other nations cannot rely upon, and thus far it doesn't appear that they have been able to advance any that would indicate the probability of the same favorable chances.

Obtaining an adjustment should be the aim of those which have not done so. Even France gives indication of realizing the mistake that was made when its commission returned to Paris without accomplishing its errand. Considering the time that has elapsed since the armistice was signed this debt situation should have been cleared up a long time ago.

THE EMBARGO ON BULBS

Secretary Jardine of the department of agriculture has given notice that there will be a hearing next month for the purpose of inquiring into the embargo which has been ordered for the first of the year on narcissus and other bulbs which are imported each year in large numbers from abroad.

According to the federal horticultural board, which ordered the embargo, the step was taken for the purpose of fighting the diseases which are distributed by such bulbs and through restricting the foreign product to make some progress in the fight against the pests in this country. Otherwise it has been claimed that the desired control over such a situation could not be maintained.

Imported bulbs must pay a duty at the present time. But in spite of that large quantities of them are brought in and increased quantities, even under an increased tariff, are attributed to a greater interest in their growth and the attractiveness of the flowers. The claims are being made nevertheless that the embargo has been established primarily in the interest of the American growers of such bulbs, and that the exclusion of the foreign bulbs would mean the creation of a monopoly and higher prices. It is even maintained that the order would have operated against bulbs which do not carry the pests which are being fought and that certain bulbs are included which can in no way be held to be detrimental.

It is only a short time before the embargo would go into effect but it will be possible to reach a decision on the justification for or against the embargo in time to act. It remains of course for the remonstrants to show that the charges they have advanced against the embargo are sound, while the horticultural bureau will be expected to show why the protective measure against pests ought to be enforced, and place the facts on the table concerning the menace that the bulb industry in this country faces from imported roots.

RUSSIAN CROPS

While crop conditions are being reported from other countries there cannot fail to be interest in the estimate which is given by the International Institute of Agriculture to the effect that the Russian grain crop is approaching the pre-war average.

This means a gain for 1925 of 73 per cent over 1924 and is what must be regarded as a bumper year for that country in view of what has characterized the recent past. Aside from the indications of a big yield there is also the intimation that the people of Russia are making a better use of their land and that farming is on the gain.

There is the same general improvement in all the grain crops published here from time to time. The wheat crop for instance shows a jump of 73 per cent over last year which brings it to within 2.8 per cent. of the pre-war average, while the rye crop shows a gain of over 31 per cent. or 11 per cent. higher than the pre-war average. Barley went to 89 per cent. higher than 1924 but even that [illegible] average. Oats showed a growing [illegible] of 38 per cent. [illegible] the potato crop, which [illegible] the world's crop, [illegible] which [illegible] remains to be seen. There have been other years under improving conditions when they failed to get the benefit of the foodstuffs raised in the country. It is to be hoped that with the approach to pre-war production that Russia will not be calling upon the rest of the world this winter to take care of its starving millions.

THE HOSPITAL ADDITIONS

With announcement made of the opening next week of the new building of the Backus hospital which will house the nurses, and in which the entire community is interested, full advantage should be taken of the opportunity to [illegible] the hospital [illegible] this visit [illegible] the surroundings [illegible] all or [illegible] needs [illegible] what [illegible] that [illegible] pile and [illegible] an institution [illegible] the very [illegible] special [illegible] future in connection with [illegible] sion of the necessary [illegible] for both hospital and community service.

The opportunity to see what the new hospital building offers in the way of advantages should not be neglected.

Another important service which has been established in connection with the Backus hospital is the Ladies auxiliary, which has been laboring for the past two years for the creation of a greater community interest in the hospital. That it has accomplished most commendable work has been evidenced in many ways. It is an addition to the hospital which is constantly at work in various ways in Norwich and adjacent towns to establish a greater community regard for what this institution is and what the individual can do to make it better, and thus render the best possible service.

Norwich some time ago recognized its obligation to the hospital through its contributions for the home and also through the large additions made to the auxiliary membership. For the same good reasons that prompted such actions that interest should be kept alive in the interest of a necessary and great community asset. The field for cooperation in this respect is a [illegible]

DEALING WITH CRIME

In connection with the problem of handling crime or enforcing the laws for the punishment of the criminal, it is an interesting claim which is being made by Baltimore when it expresses the belief that it has devised the most satisfactory solution of the crime problem. That step is bound to cause other cities to sit up and take special notice, and to compare their methods with those which are followed in the Maryland city.

Baltimore claims that criminal cases are promptly handled, that of 1500 cases docketed at the opening term of the year all were disposed of but 177 before the end of the term, that there are times when courts are ready to try cases the day after indictments are returned and ordinary criminal cases are delayed no longer than necessary for preparation. The secret seems to lie in the fact that jury trials are dispensed with in from 75 to 90 per cent. of the cases, including burglary, manslaughter and murder.

Maryland isn't a state which prevents jury trials but the accused can and does waive the right to jury trials. That has served to reduce the time of trials and introduce speed with the probability that there's more law and less sentiment displayed in decisions. What influence will the Baltimore example have?

BEING QUIET AND MODEST

"[illegible]," confided the bob-haired blond who sported in the motion picture, "when it said that nowadays a girl would make a hit by being quiet and modest and indifferent to the men. They're so used to being run after that the contrast get 'em. What do you think?"

"Sometimes it's so," agreed the ruby-lipped brunette who was next to the head at the basement handkerchief counter, "and sometimes it isn't. Lizzy [illegible] it was cute of you changing your name and everything; it depends on the fellow, and most of 'em are spoiled. It's easier for them to sit pretty and let the girls do the work! What's troubling you?"

"Oh, nothing," breathed the bob-haired blond, applying a blob of rouge. "I was just wandering. Sometimes I think it isn't worth the trouble.

"Remember my telling you about that sweet [illegible] I met at my cousin's who danced with me all evening and said he wanted a date with me and everything? He sure was good looking. And when he never called up or nothing I thought maybe he'd lost my phone number and I'd better call him.

"He couldn't seem to understand who I was at first," the blond continued. "I kept a-saying 'the dance at the Double OO' and 'Ethels cousin' and 'double chocolate sundaes'—he guyed me because I ate three during the evening—and when I said my name at last he repeated it kind of vague and then said, 'Oh, yes, yes, indeed! Sure I remember you. How are you girlie?' just as p'easant!

"Then I asked him wasn't he ever coming around and said that dates were filling up fast, and he said sure, how about next Monday, and I said sure, meet him at the drug store on the corner. And then I worked like the dickens fixing a dress to wear.

"Well, I waited at the drug store for two hours and this other guy he didn't [illegible]. Gertie." Not at all. I was real worried, thinking mebbe he was knocked down by an auto or something had happened, and I didn't know his home number, so I called his office the next morning just in a friendly way to find out. The office boy who answered said, say, who is this, and I told him and then he says real hard that oh, that guy ain't here any more and hung up—and I've worried a lot. I'd like to know what happened to him."

"Huh," the ruby-lipped brunette interrupted kindly, "he was just letting you down easy, Lissette! What's the matter with your other boy friend, Bud Hinsbye?"

"Oh, I dunno," mused the blond. "I've always known him and how can you be crazy over a fellow you've played baseball with as a kid and swapped apples? Bud's a kind of good looking, though.

"There was another fellow I used to see at the club parties who acted real interested in me, only you see he lived way over on the other side of town. He took me out once or twice but things sort of petered out. He was a nice boy and when my folks said they couldn't stand the raise in rent this spring I said well, let's move into another part of town, let's go way over in the south side—and I knew where he lived and there was a vacant flat right in that building.

"I thought what fun it would be, when he met me in the hallway some evening and said whatcha doing here and I could just laugh and say, why I live here, silly. Well, the folks liked the flat and took it—and three days after we moved in I met him down town and he happened to say that he had been busy moving into a flat with three other fellows they'd taken out in Rogers Park! I ask you, what's the use? Of course, I wasn't really chasing him, but it does seem luck is against me! And I can't see that this modest violet game gets you anywhere—"

"Huh," said the brunette. "It seems to work sometimes. How about this Bud? He sounds good to me—hand him over to me some evening, seeing you don't c'A' about him!"

"Well, I guess not!" the blond said tartly with flashing eyes. "I've been thinking about Bud lately—and it seems kind of nice having somebody like you don't have to worry about or anything or wonder if he's getting tired of you! I'm going out with Bud myself this evening! And he has to come fifteen miles to get me, too!"—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Arthur R. Robinson, who has been appointed to the seat in the United States senate made vacant by the death of Senator Ralston of Indiana, long has been active in politics in Indiana and is a close personal friend of Governor Jackson of that state. In 1916 he was a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination, but was defeated by Harry S. New, then the sitting senator and now postmaster-general in the Coolidge cabinet. For 16 years Mr. Robinson has been engaged in legal practice in Indianapolis. He served in the Indiana senate until 1917, when he went abroad, serving throughout the war and returning with the rank of major. At one time he held a recess appointment as a judge of the Indianapolis superior court. The new senator is 45 years old.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Says Good By to Slowpoke

If you must at another smile
Be sure to turn your head the while.
—Peter Rabbit.

Slowpoke the Box Turtle never hurries. "There is no use in hurrying," says Slowpoke, "Take your time and live long." Slowpoke quite lives up to his saying. He does take his time about whatever he is doing, and he lives long. He never boasts about his age, and few people know that he is the oldest person in the Green Forest. But such is the case.

Slowpoke had just told Peter Rabbit

Peter Rabbit watched him that he must prepare for the winter and straightway he began to do it. All the time he had been talking with Peter he had been slowly looking over a certain place where the ground was soft. At last he gave a little sigh of satisfaction. It sounded like a hiss, but that was as near to sighing as Slowpoke could come. Then very slowly he began to dig. Peter Rabbit watched him. Peter had to smile, although he didn't let Slowpoke see him smiling. He knew that Slowpoke considered that he was working fast, but he, Peter, could have thrown out in two minutes the sand that it took Slowpoke many minutes to dig out. But Peter said nothing and Slowpoke said nothing.

After a while Slowpoke stopped to rest a bit. He crawled out of the shallow little hole he had dug. "How deep do you propose to dig that?" inquired Peter.

"Deep enough to make sure that Jack Frost won't be able to harm me," replied Slowpoke.

"Will you fill up the opening behind you after you get the hole all dug?" inquired Peter.

"No," replied Slowpoke, and his beady little eyes twinkled.

"Then I should think you would be afraid that Jack Frost would come right down that open hole and freeze you," said Peter.

"Oh," replied Slowpoke. "No, I'm not afraid he'll do anything of the kind. You see, there won't be any open hole."

"But you just said you wouldn't close it," objected Peter.

Slowpoke chuckled. "I said that I won't come back and fill up the hole after it is dug," said Slowpoke. "You see there won't be any hole to fill up. It will be filled as fast as I dig it."

A vision of Old Mr. Toad slipping down into the ground with the earth falling in over him came to Peter. "Do you mean," he cried, "that you won't throw the dirt out, but will let it fall back over you as fast as you dig your way in?"

Slowpoke nodded. "You've said it, Peter," said he. "That is just what I propose to do. If you will sit around long enough you'll see me disappear."

"Will you come out again before winter?" Peter asked anxiously.

"No, sir," replied Slowpoke. "After I once dig in I don't come out again. I'll keep right on digging until I'm down deep enough, then I'll close my doors and go to sleep and wait until Seattle Mistress Spring comes to waken me. Now I must get to work again. Good-by, Peter Rabbit. Good by till next spring."

"But you haven't gone yet," cried Peter.

"But people don't say good by after they've gone," retorted Slowpoke. "I'm going right now. Good by." He poked his head down into the little hole he had already dug and once more began digging.

"Good by," said Peter, and then felt very foolish. The idea of saying good by to some one who was in plain sight all the time right under his very nose!

Peter stayed there until Slowpoke had wholly disappeared. He could still see the sand moving where Slowpoke was at work, but nothing of Slowpoke was to be seen. It gave him a very queer feeling. He knew that that good by really had been good by. He knew that Slowpoke really was preparing for winter, and that nothing more of him would be seen until the coming of Mistress Spring. Then Slowpoke would open his doors and come out again. "It's a funny world," said Peter as he hopped away. "It's a funny world and there are many funny people in it."

An Old-Fashioned Beauty Recipe

The old-time application of Buttermilk and Cream to whiten and preserve the skin and remove harsh little wrinkles and ugly sallowness is grandmother's recipe and women throughout the country are again using it to ensure a beautiful complexion and snow-white hands and arms.

Buttermilk, however, is not always obtainable, but a specialist has at last perfected a method of concentrating buttermilk and combining it with a perfect cream, which you can buy in small quantities ready for use at any first-class drug store by simply asking for "Howard's" Buttermilk Cream.

There is no secret about it nor is there any doubt about the result—it's just a common ordinary buttermilk in the form of a wonderful cream, gently massaged with the finger tips around the corners of the eyes and mouth.

If you have not yet tried this simple, easy way to beauty get a small quantity of Howard's Buttermilk Cream today and let your face be the judge. Your favorite toilet goods counter can supply you. Lee & Osgood Co. is selling lots of it.

From Small Beginnings

Robert C. Clowry, President of the Western Union

The messenger boy is a subject for cartoonists and for all sorts of cheap jokes made by people who fail to realize that messenger boys have been sent from one end of the country to the other, and on errands of great responsibility.

"You'll be president of the company some day, you may say to your messenger boy, and think it a joke. If you had said that to "Rob" Clowry some years ago you would have seen your joke come true. The messenger boy became president of the Western Union and all through his own efforts and ability.

Robert Clowry was a farm-born boy and his success helps to prove the belief that some people hold, that being born on a farm is like having a ticket to success. He did all the odd jobs that a boy can do on a farm—and a boy's work on a farm is never ended. He breathed good country air and cultivated common sense, as well as hens and cows. Then he went up to town to get a job and found a place as the solitary messenger boy for a telegraph office. Now a boy in a telegraph office simply cannot keep his hands off the key of the instrument if he did he would be dismissed. Bob Clowry kept fingering the [illegible] and asking questions and [illegible] until he had made himself not only an operator but a first class operator. As soon as people learned how quick his hand and ear were he was sent to take a position as operator—and now he felt like the king of a great land.

The young man had won a good position, but he did not stop. In the intervals when he was not busy he did not scrawl pictures nor idle with cigarettes; he studied and kept on making himself more and more expert in every way. All this resulted in sending him to a better office and then to a better one still and then to the position of head operator and of superintendent. When he was about 25 he was the leading man in the Western Union company and was made president. That certainly was a long step from the humble beginning of obscure messenger boy in a Western office. The one who does little things well is very likely to be given the job of doing great things well.

Stories That Recall Others

Slight Misunderstanding

A friend with a taste for books had picked up an old volume or two at a second hand store. Passing the store later she paused and asked the young man at work in front: "Have you any old books in this morning?"

The young fellow was new in the place and a bit fresh in other respects it would seem, for he grinned at what he took for a pleasantry and he answered in the affirmative.

"Where are they?" my friend asked as she stepped inside and failed to see any books about.

"Why back there by the stove, ma'am," the young fellow directed, surprised at her question.

"What, books!" my friend exclaimed. "Oh, books, ma'am! Why I thought you said old bucks!"

Sleeps Like a Child

Thanks to New Harmless Treatment.

We all remember how soundly we slept as children and how we bounced out of bed in the morning, bright, refreshed and ready for the day's play.

And you can do the same thing now if you will follow the example of thousands everywhere—take just a short treatment with the wonderful new preparation called Neura.

Neura is an easy-to-take pink pellet that does not contain any opiates or harmful habit-forming drugs of any kind. Yet the very first treatment usually gives wonderful results.

So remarkable have been the results from Neura that it is now being dispensed by Lee & Osgood Co., and all good druggists with an absolute guarantee to return your full purchase price if the very first package does not give you deep, restful sleep. Don't toss and turn for hours. Get a good night's sleep by taking Neura today.

SAYS TETANUS NOT CAUSED BY VACCINATION

Recently the newspapers have carried a story in regard to a death from tetanus 25 days after vaccination. Owing to the suggestion that vaccination may possibly have been a factor in causing tetanus the state department of health made an investigation of the case and obtained the following information: The child, aged 7 years, was vaccinated September 5th, and developed tetanus September 29th, which was 3 1-2 weeks after vaccination. It appeared to be a very acute case as the child died on the morning of September 30th, the next day after the first symptoms were observed.

It was further learned that a week or ten days prior to the child's final illness she had fallen and scratched her arm. The wound on the arm was said to be over the elbow and not near the point of vaccination. There was also a wound on the left leg which was made at the time of the fall. These injuries were not treated at the time. The lesion on the arm is described by the physician at the hospital to which the patient was taken as a ragged laceration one and a half inch long, one eighth of an inch wide in the widest part, and about one-eighth of an inch deep, healing and forming a scab. The doctor stated the wound looked to be about a week or ten days old and this accords with the history of the child having received the wound in a fall about that time before the development of tetanus.

One thing appears certain from the history and that is that tetanus spores were not introduced into the child's body at the time of vaccination. If such been the case the disease would have developed very much sooner than is usually considered that the [illegible] the period elapsing between infection and the development of the disease, the milder the attack will be. Thus an attack coming on three and a half weeks after infection would be very mild indeed. It appears, however, that the disease developed at about the right time to have received infection when the child fell and hurt her arm. Tetanus beginning about a week or ten days after the spores of the germs are introduced into the body is sure to be severe, and is nearly always fatal.

Members of the family state that the vaccination was kept dressed with gauze, wrapping the gauze all the way around the arm according to the doctor's directions. Thus the point of vaccination was protected against dust or dirt being ground into it at the time of the fall. It would appear therefore, that infection with tetanus in this case should be attributed to infection received at the time of the child's fall a week or ten days before her death, and that the infection entered the body through a wound on the elbow made at the time of her fall and not through the vaccination lesion. Thus the facts in the case do not warrant the suspicion that tetanus may have been due to vaccination.

Healthy Hair

Gleamy, Thick, Wavy
—Full of Life

Modern style in hair dress, particularly constant curling and waving, is slowly burning the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; often the hair roots shrink, then the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty-tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, inducing the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes indescribably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

For Deep, Heavy Colds

Here is the best way to get rid of a bad cold. First apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores of the skin.

Then massage briskly with Vicks for five minutes, spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication directly to the affected parts.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, helping the vapors inhaled to relieve tightness and soreness.

NORWICH MUST PAY ABOUT $29,000 IN TWO TAXES

Treasurers of towns in the state have received from the tax commissioner notice of the amount of state tax and military tax which each town is obliged to pay to the state treasurer on or before Nov. 10.

For Norwich the state tax is $24,130.76 and the military tax $4,867.46.

For the other towns of the county the following is the list, the state tax due being given after the name of the town, and followed by the military tax:

Bozrah, $326.16, $66.96; Colchester, $919.52, $186.30; East Lyme $1,752.57, $354.97; Franklin $283.46, $57.41; Griswold, $2,952.85, $598.05; Groton $7,636.84, $1,546.77; Lebanon $976.41, $197.76; Ledyard $387.84, $78.55; Lisbon, $458.32, $92.83; Lyme, $391, $79.19; Montville $2,389.96, $484.09; New London $28,645.65, $5,801.85; North Stonington $416.99, $84.46; Old Lyme, $1,068.81, $215.46; Preston $486.71, $98.55; Salem $235.40, $47.68; Sprague $1,464.25 $296.57; Stonington $6,695.64, $1,357.91; Voluntown $311.96, $63.18; Waterford $2,778.99, $562.86.

The total amount of state tax imposed upon towns by chapter 218 of the public acts of 1923 is $1,500,000. The military tax amounts to $303,-$10.25.

Hartford leads the towns of the state with the amount of taxes due with a state tax of $211,154.32 and a military tax of $42,769.42. Bridgeport's state tax is $201,044.03 and its military tax $40,719.22. New Haven's taxes are $181,497.65 and $36,742.46. Marlborough will pay the smallest taxes in the state, its state tax is $112.63 and its military tax $22.81.

The state tax is apportioned to the towns in the proportion of the total revenue obtained yearly from direct taxation in each town, including that from all taxing districts and that which would have been received from all property exempt from taxation under the provisions of any special act or by town vote, as averaged for the three fiscal years next preceding, to the total revenue so determined for such time as averaged in all towns in the state.

The military tax is based upon appropriations made by the Legislature. The total appropriations made for the two year period ending June 30 1927 amounted to $716,850. Of this amount the state treasury pays 15 per cent and the remaining 85 per cent is paid by the towns. This tax is apportioned to towns on the same basis as the state tax.

Those present were Miss Maude Buckingham, Mr. and Mrs. John Watson, Miss Jennie Glasbrenner, Mrs. Maude Baker, Mrs. Donovan, Mrs. Frank Watson, Frank Newton, John Balga, Philip Mudderman, C. J. Peterson, Joseph O'Neil, Harvey Lacombe and Miss Beebe.

WEDDINGS
Botham-Burton

At 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo B. Burton, No. 175 Palmer street, their daughter, Miss Pauline Elizabeth, was united in marriage with Arthur Worthington Botham of No. 54 Hedge avenue. Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of a large number of relatived and friends of the couple. The bridal party entered the parlor to the music of the Wedding March from Lohengrin, played by Mrs. Botham, mother of the groom. The parlor was attractively decorated with palms, ferns and autumn foliage.

The maid of honor was Miss Dorothy Burton, sister of the bride, and Carlisle Botham, brother of the groom, was the best man. The bride was charming in a gown of white satin with tulle veil, caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of roses. Her maid of honor was gowned in blue silk embroidered canton crepe and carried pink carnations.

After the ceremony there was a wedding dinner and reception. The bride presented the maid of honor a substantial gold piece and to the best man the groom presented a pair of gold cuff links. The bride's gift to the groom was a gold watch chain and the groom's gift to the bride was a blue sapphire bracelet. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

During the evening the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to New York and on their return will reside in a newly furnished apartment at No. 9 Ledge avenue. They will be at home to their friends after November 10th.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of the Broadway grammar school. Mr. Botham is employed as an automobile mechanic. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Botham of Hedge avenue.

Eternal vigilance is the price of pretending to be other than what you are.

EARNEST WORKERS BRING IN $9,000 IN DRIVE FOR ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL

Notes of jubilation were struck at the headquarters in the Selias building Thursday evening as reports were turned in by the teams in the drive for $25,000 for equipping St. Joseph's school building. As one team after another came in with its reports of a good days work and the figures were assembled by General Chairman Adelard Morin with the assistance of Team Manager Thomas F. Shea, the total kept mounting up until the grand figure of $9,000 was announced at the close of the tabulation and was greeted with rousing applause.

Not all the teams have yet reported, some of the absent ones having very good territory that it is felt is sure to make substantial additions to what has already been recived so that a feeling of confidence is noticeable at headquarters at what will be brought in during the next few days of the drive. Some very agreeable surprises are predicted from information that is in the hands of the campaign managers but is not yet ready to be made public.

The workers generally are reported that they are receiving very favorable reception in the canvass of their territory and they are finding a very ready spirit to assist on the parts of individuals to the extent of their ability.

Great expectations are entertained towards the Sunday afternoon performance at the Palace theater from which the theater management has promised to give the entire proceeds for the drive. Attention was called to the fact that the theater management is really giving two shows for one admission at this entertainment as the admission tickets will also give admission to the Palace on either Monday or Tuesday of next week without extra charge. The musicians and the theater staff are giving their services free and it is believed the house will be packed for the performance.

Preparations are being made to secure contributions in those factories where the management has indicated a willingness to assist in the drive, and steps will soon be taken to put this plan into operation.

The teams will report again tonight (Friday) at 6:15 at headquarters.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY BY A. O. H. AUXILIARY, NO. 54

A most enjoyable Hallowe'en party was held by Division No. 54, Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H., at their hall on Main street, Thursday evening, the costumes worn by the participants being of every imaginable character, affording no end of amusement during the evening.

The entertainment of the evening opened with a grand march led by Mrs. John McHale and Mrs. Bernard Peterson and as the couples marched about the hall the judges, Edward Sullivan, Joseph Cox and Patrick Barry selected the winners for the best costumes. First prize was awarded to Mrs. John McHale, who was dressed to represent an old Irish mother, second prize going to Raymond Mantiglia, who was dressed as a Spanish dancer.

Old and new dances were enjoyed during the evening, the music being furnished by the Misses Agnes and Reita Cronin, a special feature being an Irish jig danced by Mrs. John McHale. Refreshments were served following the dance by the committee, which comprised the following, Mrs. Francis Williams, chairman, Mrs. Joseph Cox, Mrs. Bernard Peterson, Mrs. John McHale, Miss Margaret Caples, Miss Anna Connell, Miss Mary Fallon and Miss Catherine Coughlin.

SILVER WEDDING SET TO PAY FUNERAL EXPENSES

MILFORD, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Mira Reab Dodge, 80 years old, once prominent in Washington society, an owner of considerable property at one time, and a grand daughter of Lieutenant George Reab, who served under George Washington in the Revolutionary war, died here last night almost penniless. It became known tonight. Her husband was once employed by the United States bureau of agriture and is said to have taken a part in the organizing of that branch of the government. He was a member of the Legion of Honor and was twice decorated by the French government.

Mrs. Dodge at one time owned 22 parcels of property in New Haven. She came here year ago from Oxford to visit a school girl friend and through the latter's influence was placed in a private home at the expense of the town.

To obtain money for her burial, Mrs. Dodge recently sold her wedding silver set to an antique dealer. The money was found pinned to her clothing and will be used to defray the expense of her funeral tomorrow. She will be buried in the Yantic cemetery at Norwich.

JUVENILE PROBATION OFFICER ADDRESSED SOCIAL WORKERS

Miss Anne O'Brien, probation officer of the juvenile court of Hartford, was the speaker at the meeting of the Social workers of New London and Windham counties held Thursday afternoon at the diocesan bureau of social service, 42 Jay street, New London.

Following the business meeting, which was called to order at 2:30 o'clock by the president, Miss Betsey Mitchell of Norwich, Miss O'Brien gave her audience an interesting talk on the subject, Operation of Juvenile Court. In her talk Miss O'Brien pointed out particularly these three things: The attitude of the judge, the co-operation of the public and the interest and intelligence of the probation officer. At the conclusion of her talk a discussion ensued on the subject during which Miss O'Brien was subjected to many questions, answering them to the satisfaction of her inquirers.

Delicious refreshments were served, Mrs. Blanche Lanman Carr of New London pouring tea.

NEEDLEWORK GUILD'S WORK MAKES NEW RECORD

The annual meeting of the Needlework Guild was held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community house on Church street with a good number attending. The garments made for the various charitable organizations numbered 732, the largest number ever exhibited since the guild was formed. All were displayed on tables showing the various organizations which are to benefit by the work of the guild, these being the Rock Nook Home, Backus hospital, county home, Salvation Army, United Workers, the Sheltering Arms and almshouse.

The fine record for the year was a tribute to the untiring efforts of the president, Miss Susan L. Gallup.

Officers were elected as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. Charles L. Hubbard; president, Miss Susan L. Gallup; vice president, Mrs. F. L. Woodard; secretary, Mrs. Walter T. Camp; treasurer, Mrs. Charles H. Preston.

MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION HEARS BRIDGEPORT SPEAKER

The Norwich Manufacturers' association held its annual meeting on Thursday evening with a dinner at the Wauregan house at 6.30, attended by about 35 members of the association. President F. B. Ricketson conducted the business meeting at which directors were elected as follows:

John F. Rogers, Charles A. Saxton, Chauncey A. Sherman, Grosvenor Ely, Joseph W. Curtiss, Flint Brayton, A. E. Payson and Charles J. Twist.

Officers were elected by the directors as follows: President, John F. Rogers; vice president, Joseph W. Curtiss; secretary-treasurer, Charles J. Twist.

The speaker of the evening was Alpheus Winter, office manager of the Bridgeport Manufacturers' association, who spoke in a particularly interesting way of the activities of that association.

Woman Hit by Automobile

A woman was knocked down late Thursday afternoon at Shannon's corner by an automobile driven by John Smokowskie. Beyond slight bruises she was not hurt.

MERRY MASQUERADE BY THERMOS OFFICE EMPLOYES

With about 75 present the office employes of the American Thermos Bottle Co., held a most enjoyable Hallowe'en party and masquerade dance Thursday evening at Scotland Road hall. It was a merry crowd that left Union square at 8 o'clock in the Thermos company's large truck and in private machines for the five mile ride to the hall. Arriving at the hall the evening's programme got underway with a dance number, music being furnished by an orchestra of six pieces, largely composed of Thermos employes.

From then on until midnight the evening was one round of pleasure with dancing, a grand march and vocal selections featuring the program. Many of those present were in Hallowe'en costumes, a number of which were unusually attractive. About 9.30 the grand march took place with about 35 couples participating. Two prizes, one for the prettiest costume and the other for the funniest costume were awarded during the evening. The prize for the prettiest costume went to Mrs. Mary Shahan and the prize for the funniest costume was awarded to Miss Loretta Gadle.

Among those who entertained with vocal numbers were Miss Isabelle Petrone, soprano, who was heard in West of the Great Divide and John Kelly who sang On the Road to Mandalay. Mrs. Bell accompanied both vocalists, who graciously responded to insistent encores.

Refreshments of doughnuts and sweet cider were served under the direction of the committee in charge of the evening, Miss Louise D. Lessard, Miss Anna Kelly, Miss Marie Desmond and Miss Loretta Gadle.

The hall was attractively decorated in orange and black streamers, with pumpkins and black cats adorning the walls. The decorating was in charge of a committee comprising Miss Anna Kelly, Miss Adelaide Coughlin, Miss Celeste Copeland, Miss Louise D. Lessard, Miss Marion Jervis, Miss Marguerite Driscoll, Miss Mary Huggard, Miss Clarice Melvin and Miss Eleanor Ludwig.

The orchestra members who volunteered their services for the dance program comprised Edward Moore, saxophone, Henry Ladd, violin, Dwight Richardson, piano, J. Besard, drums, Leo Tetreault, clarinet, and Henry Peon, cornet.

Connecticut College

(Special to The Bulletin.)

"On the whole we are an imitative people, we Americans," said Dr. William Ernest Hocking, professor of philosophy at Harvard university, in his Tuesday afternoon lecture on "Imitation and its Cure," the second of the series of lectures on the convocation program at Connecticut college this year. "We are a curious mixture of imitativeness and individualism," he said in the introduction to his pithy and well connected discussion of this interesting subject, enhanced in interest by the original thought which he has put upon it. The individualism he commends. The imitativeness occasionally has good points, is sometimes necessary, and is often deplorable. Appropriation is his term for the process of thought and action which should replace, or cure, imitation.

"The greatness of our national life depends upon a certain sort of likemindedness," said Dr. Hocking in commending the element of "psychological co-operation" in our American imitativeness. The rapid circulation of our ideas is good. The inevitability of some imitation is felt in our mode of government, in our sports and business affairs; the individual, by his own unavoidable ignorance, is often forced to derive his political opinions from those who know—"legislation has not been able to provide us with independent heads." In our business system, and in our sports, competitions enters, and competition, which causes an effort for quantitative success, in a field of qualitative likeness, inevitably induces imitation.

Imitation may be deplored in our system of expenditure. "We have, in our society, a hundred different strata with regard to wealth," said the speaker, "and each stratum is inclined to imitate the scale of expenditure of the next higher stratum." The training of the youth of American society is another course of regrettable imitation whereby members of the so-called social circles are drawn into "dull uninteresting replicas of each other." Imitation in religion led the mediaeval saints, apostles of the letter of Christian teaching, into an exotic existence, unconnected with the exigencies of their own time. Education, in which we are becoming "committed to wholesaleness" does not escape the evils of imitation. The ordinary teacher does not have time or energy to evoke the "original inspiration" of each thought in the mind of the pupil, in colleges "we are bound to present the mature values of culture to immature minds." The result may be a superficial quantitative knowledge rather than an organic in the student's [illegible]

The evil in imitation, as [illegible] forcibly expressed it, is that imitation is a "sort of self-alienation, a repression of the self." It is a failure of self confidence, and will provoke revulsion sooner or later. We attempt to escape it by changing orthodoxy to heterodoxy, and fall when the latter in turn becomes orthodox. The present-day cult of "self expression" is an attempt to escape from imitation, it fails also, said Dr. Hocking, for it means following "a theory of what I am," thus cutting off "new buds of self-hood which are sprouting every moment." "If one one wants to express himself, let him remember that the self takes care of itself."

Appropriation is one [illegible] escape from imitation. In a few concise words Dr. Hocking contrasted the two: "Imitation copies visible, external qualities. Appropriation finds the inner meaning." True religion is appropriative; a true Christian today "penetrates to the idea and motive" of Christ's teaching. Real education is a process whereby the student appropriates, make part of himself, the material which is presented to him.

The art of appropriation was explained by Dr. Hocking as consisting of two processes: (1) getting ride of our comparative consciousness, which confuses the truth of our ideas with their use of popularity; and (2) finding a way to an ultimate good. "The thing you really enjoy is yours; pleasure is not imitative." If you derive a real pleasure from science, the fine arts, music, friendship, philosophy, or prayer, you have "come face to face with reality and found reality good."

Dr. Hocking concluded his prescription for the cure of imitation by stating three simple tests for the art of appropriation, whereby any one may judge his own skill. If to mere passing conversation you can give an individuality of meaning, if you make your amusements a true "practice of joy;" if you are free from humiliating fears, then you have found your way to an ultimate good, and "to any one who has found his way to an ultimate good, all good belongs."

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. (AP)—The battle to reach the shadowy goal of eastern gridiron supremacy spurs on a good share of the football forces that come to grips this Saturday along the Atlantic seaboard.

Early season setbacks already have unexpectedly blasted the hopes of some of the [illegible] dwindling [illegible] pack, but [illegible] than [illegible] [illegible] on with the [illegible] that [illegible] success [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] a portion of [illegible] [illegible] when final [illegible] tabulated.

Of this, however, only a [illegible] major [illegible] remain to mark [illegible] sideration in the [illegible] [illegible] reach the peak of these [illegible] Army and Cornell [illegible] the biggest [illegible] on their [illegible] marches by [illegible] Yale and Columbia, respectively. Dartmouth and Syracuse, two others in the top flight, face [illegible] rivals in Brown and Penn State but are favored to come through victoriously by decisive margins. Pennsylvania meets another intersectional rival in Illinois and though a defeat would not jar the Quakers from eastern contendership it would effect their general rating nevertheless.

Cornell and Syracuse share with Bucknell and New York university another distinction—that of having uncrossed goal lines which they will attempt to retain in spite of sturdy opposition this week.

Cornell and Syracuse boast clean records with no tally made against them on the ground or in the air but Bucknell has been forced into a safety while N. Y. U. has seen a ball left over its cross bar.

In facing Columbia, the scholar-athletes of Gil Dobie meet their first big test of the season. While the Ithicans will be favorites it would not be surprising to see Columbia seriously menace the Cornell goal line and even cross into territory heretofore untrampled by an enemy visitor. Cornell boasts a more powerful forward wall, while Columbia has the faster set of backs.

Syracuse faces Hugo Bezdek's Nittany Lions, conquerors of western opponents in Markets and the Michigan Aggies. The Penn State record has been bemirched by a 16 to 7 defeat by Georgia Tech but the Nittany Lions are always dangerous and the orange-clad eleven will be forced to display power heretofore hidden to tame them.

Bucknell, while engage with Holy Cross as the underdog, the New England eleven being favored by most critics to conquer, but Bisons in a game which brings two undefeated elevens together. Bucknell squeezed out a 3 to 2 victory over Georgetown last week, a notable achievement, but in Holy Cross the Bisons face an undefeated combination and one which lowered the Crimson of Harvard.

When N. Y. U. and Fordham, metropolitan rivals, clash at the Yankee Stadium another pair of undefeated teams will engage in combat. Chick Meehan's N. Y. U. eleven has come through with its goal line unscathed but the educated toe of Willard Davis of Union propelled a ball over its goal posts. Providence college scores the only touchdown against Fordham.

The Navy journies west for a tilt with Michigan, the western conference favorite, while Colgate steps into a nearby foreign field when it meets the Michigan Aggies at East Lansing.

Washington and Jefferson, Lehigh, and Boston college, another trio of undefeated elevens, will face comparatively minor opposition in Bethany, Muhlenberg and Providence.

TIGERS AND SPEEDBOYS CLASH SUNDAY

The outcome of the football game between the Greeneville Tigers and the Jewett City Speedboys at Ashland park this Sunday will be a deciding factor in the dispute over the Eastern Connecticut championship title. Both teams have been practicing hard during the past week and both are confident of victory. The teams are composed of experienced men most of whom have played High school football. The football fans of both Norwich and Jewett City are expected to turn out strong and they can be sure of a clean, hard fought, and interesting game. The Tigerteam will be composed of Rockwell of last year's N. F. A. team at the pivot position and with men like Christie and Maloney two 190 pounders in the guard positions, the center of the line has a likeness to a stone wall. Woroskie, right tackle of the Academy last year will be in at that position Sunday while Langevin, E. Valley High player and "Babe" Sullivan of the New London Independents will grid like left tackle position. For wing work the Tigers will rely on such men as McIntyre, Gay and Monahan. These three men are unrivaled for breaking up end runs and getting down under punts. The Tiger backfield is second to none in Eastern Conn. high school or otherwise. The management has been fortunate in securing Bill Higgins a triple threat man and star halfback of last years Academy team who will play right halfback. The other halfback position will be divided between Nelson and Swanton who is a world of strength on the defense. Nelson is a ten second man and a good broken field runner. "Lou" Gordon, the line-bucking fool will be in at full. "Lou's" motto is "find a hole or make it." Johnny Tennant will run the team and when it comes to directing plays Johnny is there. Always a team that cannot be equalled in Norwich or vicinity. Former Coach Boyd has resigned as he has been called away on business. The coaching duties will be taken up by Michael Boothe, former guard on the N. Y., N. H. and H. Engineering school eleven.

JOHNSTON REMOVES WESBROOK IN MEXICAN TOURNEY

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 29—(A. P.)—William M. Johnston today eliminated Walter Wesbrook of Los Angeles from the men's singles play in the Mexican National Tennis championships, 7-5, 6-2, 6-0.

Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, Mass., defeated Sinsabaugh of Mexico City, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1.

In the men's double Robert and Howard Kinsey of San Francisco defeated Delpancaneto and Locana of Mexico City, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.

In the mixed doubles Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles and Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles defeated Mr. and Mrs. F. Scott of Mexico City, 6-0, 6-1. Miss Charlotte Hosmer and Ray Casey of San Francisco defeated Miss Echenique and Lemaire of Mexico City, 6-1, 6-2.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Howard Kinsey defeated Mrs. J. V. Hitchins of Mexico City and Robert Kinsey, 6-2, 6-1.

In the men's singles Ray Casey defeated Berkeley Bell of Austin, Texas, 6-7, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2. Bell gave Casey a stiff game.

FORTY-TWO HOCKY GAMES AT GARDEN THIS WINTER

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. (AP)—Forty-two hockey games, bringing into action intercollegiate, professional and amateur teams, will be played in the new Madison Square Garden rink between Dec. 15 and March 15.

The New York team in the National Hockey league will play 21 games before metropolitan audiences. Twelve games will be contests between teams of the Eastern Amateur Hockey association while the remainder will be made up of contests between college and school teams.

Teams of the "Big Three" will play in the new rink during the season. Yale will meet Princeton January 16, and Harvard February 22, while efforts are now being made to bring the Harvard-McGill university game to the Garden as an international college attraction.

SCOTCH WELTERWEIGHT TO COME TO AMERICA AGAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—(A. P.)—Tommy Milligan of Scotland, welterweight and middleweight champion of the British Isles, is planning his second invasion of America. Jesse McMahon, new matchmaker of Madison Square Garden, today announced he had signed Milligan for three matches in this country, terminating with a title contest with Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion.

AGGIE FRESHMAN TEAM UNDERGOES SEVERE SHAKE-UP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 29.—Coach Alexander's Connecticut Aggie Freshman team that plays the Springfield Yearlings at Storrs Saturday will start the game with a lineup that has been considerably shifted since the contest with Milford last week.

Despite the fact that the Yearlings won the game, Alexander was not altogether satisfied with the work of his men, who failed to make good all their opportunities.

Springfield Frosh shape up as one of the strongest teams on the slate of the Nutmeg Yearlings, and work this week has been long and strenuous to prepare the freshmen for the battle expected.

Hewitt, former Chapman Tech athlete, and Brown, colored youth from Amherst, Mass., will start on the wing positions against Springfield. Brown is the best defensive man on the frosh team, and earlier in the season Alexander shifted him from end to the backfield, where he was used to back up the line on defense. Though only weighing 140 pounds, his tackling is deadly, and his work helped materially in checking the running attack of opponents encountered thus far. He will go back to end this week, however, though he may be pulled back in the line for defensive work. Hewitt, the New London boy, has been showing up well, especially on the receiving end of forward passes, and if he can continue with his good work, should be able to hold down a regular berth from now on.

Sayer, Hartford boy, who has been kept out of competition by a shoulder injury, will be in condition to start Saturday, playing one of the tackle berths. Wilson of Springfield, Mass., will play the other tackle position. Calicurcio, and McNamara from Norwich, will start in the guard positions. Both are good linemen, and can be depended upon to give a good account of themselves. Crombie, who has been used at tackle, will be shifted to center.

Williams, former Windham High athlete, will get the call for the quarterback position. Dickson will start in one of the halfback berths, while Captain Sahagian will be shifted from fullback to the other halfback position. Coach Alexander has not definitely decided on his fullback, though the choice will be between Keser and Allard.

GOOD SCORES MADE IN "Y" OLYMPIC GAMES

Good scores and exciting competition marked the "Olympic games" contest in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday, the individual high points for the day going to A. Armstrong who broad jumped at distance of 17 feet 11 inches, closely followed by A. Brown and F. Barber. In the intermediate section the broad jump was won by V. Flaherty, followed by R. Burke and T. Lynch. The junior leaders were M. Mulkins, A. McLaughlin and G. Ranger. The team standing at present is as follows:

PENN SQUAD IN SECLUSION AT ABSECON

ABSECON, N. J. Oct. 29. (AP)—Seeking seclusion and sea breezes to relieve the nervous strain of his players Coach Lou Young brought the University of Pennsylvania football squad here today for a rest before the clash with Illinois at Franklin field Saturday. Talk of the great "Red" Grange and how much a victory means, together with requests from friends for tickets were said to have wrought mental havoc with some of the men.

"Y" Swimming Meet

An interposing swimming meet is scheduled to take place in the "Y" pool this evening when the Intermediates will take on the Vallants for a return match. Although the latter mermen were defeated by the Intermediates quite recently, they have added to their lineup and are determined to give a good account of themselves in tonight's meet.

YALE PUTS FINISHING TOUCHES ON DRILL IN PREPARATION FOR ARMY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 29.—(A. P.)—The Yale football team had its last important workout today in preparation for the battle with the Army at the bowl Saturday. Stan Gill, left end, was slightly injured in scrimmage yesterday and was replaced by Scott today, but Gill will be in the lineup Saturday. Al Fonte is practically sure to start in Kline's place at right halfback, Kline's shoulder being in bad condition. Ben Cutler, the other half back, who was declared early in the week to be in no condition to play against the Army, was in uniform today, but did not take part in the signal drill or the dummy scrimmage. There is a chance, however, that his side injury will permit him to get into the game against the Army. If he does not play, his place will be taken by Larry Noble.

Ben Butterworth, left tackle, injured in yesterday's practice, was also in uniform today but there is little chance that he will be able to take his place in the line Saturday. Bill Webster, guard, also is definitely out with a bruised shoulder.

The Yale Athletic association announced tonight that the demand for seats for Saturday's game had exceeded the demand for any game ever played in the bowl. While thousands of regular seat applications have had to be rejected, the Yale authorities are being stormed with telegrams and last minute requests for the pasteboards. The seating capacity of the bowl Saturday will be 75,238, including 486 seats in the press box.

The Army squad of 36 men will arrive here tomorrow morning and the bowl will be turned over to the cadets tomorrow afternoon. Eleven hundred cadets will make the journey to New Haven in motor busses, will parade to the bowl and give a drill before the game.

Many notables will be here for Saturday's contest including the presidents of Harvard, Princeton, Cornell, California, Northwestern, Clark, Illinois, Missouri, North Carolina, Washington, Swarthmore and Carnegie Tech. The college executives are here attending the 27th annual conference of the Association of American universities.

Brigadier General Malvern Hill Barnum, of Boston and the superintendent of the United States military academy, General Fred W. Sladen, will be the chief army officials at the game. Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war, was invited but declined because of the necessity of his being in Washington for the Mitchell trial.

CAPT. BRINK WILL START GAME AGAINST MANHATTAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 29.—Contrary to previous announcements, Captain Brink of the Connecticut Aggies may be able to start against Manhattan here Saturday. Trainer Daly said today that Brink's shoulder injury, received in the M. A. C. game, will not prevent him from starting, and he worked out with the team this afternoon.

This will enable Coach Dole to start a team of full strength against Manhattan, as with the exception of Brink every man on the squad is in good condition.

Light drill was in order for the Aggies today, Coach Dole taking no chances on injuring any of his small squad. A long signal drill and dummy scrimmage, in which all the plays to be used against Manhattan were thoroughly reviewed, occupied most of the time this afternoon. The forward passing and kicking work was also stressed.

Hassan, the Turkish prince, playing fullback for Manhattan, will be unable to start against the Aggies, according to reports received here today, as internal injuries suffered in the Fordham game will keep him on the sidelines.

STORRS HOCKEY TEAM TO PLAY MAINE GIRLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Oct. 29.—The women's hockey team of the Connecticut Agricultural college, accompanied by their coach, R. J. Guyer, head of the physical education department at Storrs, will leave for Maine tomorrow morning, where they will meet the girls hockey team of the University of Maine, Saturday afternoon. It will be the first hockey game between the women students of the two institutions, and it will be the first intercollegiate contest for the Connecticut girls since the recent organization of a team at Storrs.

Following the last practice session here this afternoon, Coach Gyver announced his starting lineup for the Maine game, as follows; Center forward, Brown; inside right, Healey; inside left, Foley; right wing, Welsh; left wing, Brown; center half, Monrad; right half, Budd; left half, Law; fullbacks, Green and Swan; goal, Grant. Others making the trip include Healey, Hopkins, Gustafson and Dudley.

AMATEUR BOUTS OPEN BOXING SEASON AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 29.—A card of seven amateur bouts opening the boxing season at the Casino arena entertained an audience Thursday evening that seemed very well pleased with the whole show. Amateur bouts are new to Danielson but it is not unlikely they will prove popular here as the season wears on.

In the first bout Ray Strong of Hartford won from Timmy O'Connor of New Haven. These boys battled at 112 lbs. and had to go an extra round to determine the winner.

Lou Tellio won another extra round bout from Lefty MacGuire of New Haven. These boys were in the 130 lb. class.

A very special feature of the evening were three one minute rounds between Young Sully and Young Tiger of Hartford. These youngsters are pin weights, weighing in at 69 lbs. and put on a good bout as it was fast and clever.

Danny Doran of Hartford won a decision from Frank E. Wilson of New Haven in one of the fastest bouts of the evening. They, too, fought an extra round. They were in the 132 lb. class.

Johnny Angelo of Hartford won a decision over Young Major of Danielson in a four round bout. This was in the 126 lb. class.

Johnny Mack of New Haven, amateur featherweight champion of New England, made short work of Johnny Bonster of New Haven, winning by technical knockout in the first round. Mack was lightning fast and the crowd would have liked to have seen more of his boxing skill.

In the star bout of the evening Joe Howard of Hartford, middleweight contender for the New England amateur championship, beat Sunny Mays of Danielson in a bout that had the crowd in an uproar. Mays was game and good but not fast and clever enough for such a boxer as Howard, who has 24 knockouts in a row to his credit. Mays staid the limit but it was tough going for the last two rounds.

All the bouts were scheduled for three round affairs with an extra round where the judges disagreed as to the winner. Billy Conway of Hartford was referee, Frank Murphy of Hartford, announcer, W. E. Bitgood and Lucien Lambert, judges, and Sydney P. Marland, timer.

DREW GETS VERDICT OVER "BABE" RUTH

HARTFORD, Oct. 29. (AP)—Johnny Drew, Worcester, Mass., won the referee's decision over "Babe" Ruth, of Philadelphia, in the first indoor fight of the season here tonight. They fought 12 rounds. Drew weighed 129 pounds and Ruth 128 1-2.

In the semi-final, George Jackson, of New York, was awarded his fight with "Red" Riley of Troy, N. Y., on a foul in the seventh round of a scheduled eight-round bout. Riley, according to Referee Buckley, hit Jackson while the latter was on the canvas from a terrific right-hand smash to the body.

Eddie Lord, of Waterbury, outpointed Cleo Champine, of Albany, N. Y., in a six-round bout.

WALTHOUR AND SPENCER TAKE LEAD IN BIKE RACE

CHICAGO, Oct. 29. (AP)—Bobby Walthour and Freddie Spencer, veteran American bicycle riders, went into the lead tonight in the six-day bicycle race at the Coliseum after fifteen minutes of wild jamming in which they lapped the field in some of the most brilliant riding seen here in years.

At 9 o'clock the 93rd hour of the grind, the leaders had covered 1,370 miles and 9 laps. The Horan-Horder combination, which has led the field, and the Bello-Benezatto pair, which came up on equal terms today, were even with the leaders in mileage, but trailed in points. The leaders had 243 points, Horan-Horder had 176 and the third team 155.

The other nine teams ranged from one to four laps behind the leaders.

DARTMOUTH TEAM IS IN PERFECT CONDITION

BOSTON, Oct. 29. (AP)—Dartmouth's football squad, which defeated Harvard last Saturday, was in Boston again tonight, this time, however, merely for an over-night stay to break the journey to Providence where the men will arrive tomorrow noon for the annual clash with Brown Saturday. Every man of the squad of 33 was pronounced ready for action against the Brunonians, with the exception of Captain Parker, who is still on crutches with an injured foot sustained in the Harvard game. Phillips, a former Andover Captain, will take his place.

Tiger Frosh Scores on Varsity

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 29. (AP)—Princeton freshman today scored on the varsity when Norman, playing halfback, broke through the line for a 40-yard run for a touchdown. The freshmen appeared able to pierce the first team line at will.

Coach Roper today ordered a try-out of several plays which he is expected to use against Harvard and Yale.

Considerable time was spent today in perfecting the passing game.

COLONELS EVEN UP SERIES WITH SEALS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29. (AP)—The American Association club of Louisville defeated the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast Baseball league here today in the eighth game of their scheduled nine-game series, the score being 12 to 11.

The Colonels, emulating the feat of the Pittsburgh Pirates, in coming from behind in the world's series, have won three games in a row and stand a chance to grab the series tomorrow. The Seals used four pitchers and the Colonels five.

Showing Parking Facilities Adjacent to Norwich Business Center

NORWICH CAN PARK FULLY 1500 CARS ADJACENT TO FRANKLIN SQUARE

Special arrangements have been made with local garages for parking cars on Suburban Day, Saturday, October 31st. The Commercial Garage, located on Shetucket street, within a stone's throw of the junction of Broadway, Main and Shetucket streets, has agreed to charge a nominal price of twenty-five cents for the day for the storage of cars. The Commercial Garage can accommodate approximately 200 cars.

The East Main Street Garage, with a capacity of approximately fifty cars, is also available for twenty-five cents. The New Haven Railroad can accommodate 100 cars at twenty-five cents on its premises at the railroad station. The Elks' Club have offered the free use of their parking space in the rear of their clubhouse on Main street, adjacent to the Postoffice, with an approach from Park street, which can take care of over 100 cars. This parking space, through the courtesy of the Elks' Club, will be free, and the merchants will employ an attendant to regulate the parking. Joe's Service Station, located on Franklin street, opposite Willow street, has courteously offered the free use of parking on their premises, which will take care of 100 cars. There is also five-hour parking on Laurel Hill, Talman street, East Main street, North Main street, Park street, Oak street, Chestnut street above Willow street, and Franklin street above Willow street Broadway on the right hand side going from Union square up, and also around little Chelsea parade, Union square unlimited, Church street, five hours; and Washington street, five hours. There is also five-hour parking at the Central Vermont station. These various parking spaces and garages will accommodate approximately 1500 cars, so that the people from Eastern Connecticut coming to Norwich on Suburban Day can be readily accommodated. All these spaces mentioned are within a radius of one-half mile of Franklin square.

The number of available streets and garages for parking of cars adjacent to the business center of Norwich clearly indicates that the parking facilities are exceptionally good in Norwich. In fact, they are better than most cities of our size, which is a tremendous advantage to the shoppers coming to Norwich and making Norwich the trading center of Eastern Connecticut. The courtesy of the Elks' Club on Main street, and Joe's Service Station on Franklin street in offering free parking space on that day, as well as the co-operation of the local garages in giving special rates on that day will be appreciated by those coming from out of town. The Commercial Garage and the East Main Street Garage are modern in every respect and of fireproof construction. The charge in both of these garages is twenty-five cents for the day.

These arrangements made by the Norwich Retail Merchants' Bureau offer special inducements to the out of town people coming here on Suburban Day to visit Norwich stores and to see the high class merchandise offered by the local merchants at prices that will compare most favorably with the merchants of the larger metropolitan cities in this section. The above map indicates the location of these various streets and was arranged for the benefit of the out of town people who desire to come to Norwich to trade. A glance at the map will reveal the fact that the parking facilities of Norwich adjacent to the business center is exceptionally good and will accommodate those who come here to see our stores.

Many Wonderful Values to be Offered the People of Eastern Connecticut on Suburban Day. Special Trolley Accommodations Will Take Care of the Thousands Who Will Flock to Norwich on Suburban Day — While Special Parking Privileges Have Been Provided for Those Who Will Come by Automobile. All Stores Participating are Prepared to Take Care of an Early Morning Rush.

With the opening of the Norwich stores, Saturday, October 31st, Suburban Day will be observed by more than sixty leading merchants and stores of the city. The heads of the mercantile establishments of Norwich predict a record business, for they are of the opinion that the Suburban Day values which they are offering are so inviting that the people of Eastern Connecticut cannot afford to overlook the opportunity.

For several generations Norwich merchants have been supplying the needs of the people of Eastern Connecticut—and each year has seen a growth in the volume of business transacted with the people living hereabout, who make Norwich their trading center.

There must be sound reasons for this consistent growth—and the reason, undoubtedly, lies in the principles and methods governing the conduct of business by Norwich merchants.

The merchants of Norwich thoroughly believe that the better they serve their customers, the better they serve themselves.

They try to excel in value giving.

They endeavor to give customers the best possible values obtainable—merchandise right in quality and right in style. And with it all, they honestly try to give pleasant, cheerful and courteous service.

It is to show their appreciation, to the people of Eastern Connecticut, of the pleasant business relations that have existed over a long period of years, that more than sixty of the most progressive merchants of Norwich are co-operating in presenting Suburban Day.

Norwich stores enjoy the enviable reputation of being the best and largest stocked stores in the whole of Eastern Connecticut, and in the state, for that matter. The stores are right up to the minute in style and quality, and purchasers would find it difficult to make better selections, even in the great metropolitan stores.

Arrangements have been made for extra trolley accommodations, in and out of the city, throughout the day, and special provisions have been made for parking, either free or at a nominal charge, for all those who will come by automobile. In fact, everything possible is being done by the merchants for the care and comfort of the thousands who are coming to Norwich on Suburban Day.

German Tradition Shattered

The first German professorship for calisthenics has been conferred by the Leipsic University on Dr. Hermann Altrock, who has been an instructor of gymnastics at the Berlin Stadium. His appointment virtually revolutionizes the time-honored tradition of a thousand years that universities were solely intended for mental education. For the new professor of calisthenics is not a mere appendix, but a full-accredited member of the faculty.

New Style in Time Telling

An electric clock which has a square dial and no hands is being tested in the big railway stations in Paris and is let down automatically, and in the same way the hours are changed. The claim is made that it is much easier to read the figures than the hands at a distance, and for that reason the timepiece is eminently suited to railway stations.

Monte Carlo and the Riviera are looking forward to a banner season for sports this winter. Besides the customary racing and shooting, for which Monte Carlo has long been famous, there will be numerous motorboat and aviation contests, swimming, boxing, rowing, horse shows, and a variety of athletic competitions for both men and women.

TOWN OF FARMINGTON TO PURCHASE FOREST

At a recent town meeting, the citizens of Farmington, appropriated $1500 to apply towards the purchase of a town-owned forest, to be a war memorial for the sons and daughters, of the town, who gave their lives in the great war. This sum together with an added $1500, to be raised by the American legion, is sufficient to purchase a 175-acre piece of woodland, which as the years go by will become a valuable timber tract and a financial asset to the town, in addition to serving as a local recreation place and bird and plant reserve.

Farmington is the first town in the state to appropriate money for this purpose, although two other Connecticut towns have established town forests. The first, Newton, in Fairfield county, received a small woodland area as a gift from one of its citizens; the second being Salisbury, in Litchfield county, which set aside 10 acres of timber land, formerly part of the town poor-farm, to be managed as a forest reserve.

Forty-one towns in Massachusetts have set aside town forests, the largest being over 500 acres in extent.

The committee in charge at Farmington consists of Thomas Hewes Hary C. Ney, Herbert Knox Smith, Robert Ayer, E. C. Heacox and Austin D. Barney. The committee was appointed at a town meeting over a year ago and has been at work on the project ever since. They asked the advice of the state forestry association, which stands ready to assist any town in organizing a town forest. The association is now preparing a special bulletin on the subject of town forests.

Fire Trucks to be Leased

Kansas City, Mo., temporarily finds itself in the predicament of not being financially "flush" enough to buy outright some needed fire trucks, and consequently it is making arrangements with an automobile company to lease the trucks, a new idea in city finances. The city will eventually be able to buy them out of a bond issue. The automobile company has thought favorably of the idea.

$10,000,000 For Sugar

To the extent of $10,000,000, the Free State is subsidizing the growth of sugar beets in Ireland. The first factory for the production of beet sugar is to be erected by a Belgian firm which obtained the concession. There was lively competition among Irish towns seeking to be selected as the place for the factory. Carlow was chosen, and when the decision was announced the town band turned out and serenaded the representatives of the Belgian firm. Bonfires were lighted and there was a general celebration.

FORTUNE WAITS FOR INVENTORS

There are plenty of fortunes waiting yet for inventive minds.

For instance, a device that would keep men's trousers creased, and prevent bagging at the knees, would mean a fortune for the inventor.

A stove that would give all its heat out into the room instead of sending it up the chimney would find a quick sale to stove manufacturers.

Railroads would pay well for any kind of device that would stop the clank, clankety noise on trains, caused by the wheels passing over the rail connections.

Wipers have been invented for automobile windshields. But if some one could find a treatment for glass which would prevent the glass from being obscured by fog or rain, doing away with the ned for the wiper, even, auto manufacturers would gladly buy the patent.

Wolves Near Moscow

Fifty packs of wolves have been counted in the Yegorievsky and Mojalsky districts, about 30 miles from Moscow, and the Moscow Hunters' Union has taken upon itself the task of shooting them before winter weather makes the animals' appetites dangerous for travelers. Hunting, even of wolves, is permitted in Russia only to those having union cards, which cost 25 cents each.

INDIANS THE SAME DURING 3000 YEARS

Living in exactly the same place, with exactly the same customs, for three and a half thousand years, the Indians of San Francisco bay region in California, take the palm for conservatism. This long and unchanging record has been exposed by excavations of partly submerged prehistoric shell mounds around the bay which show that the region was inhabited 3,500 years ago by Indians who then lived as their descendants live today, it is announced by Dr. A. L. Kroeber, of the University of California, through the Smithsonian institute, says the Kansas City Star.

"When Troy was besieged, and Solomon was building his temple, at a period when even Greek civilization had not yet taken on the traits that we regard as characteristic, when only a few scattering foundations of specific modern culture were being laid and our own northern ancestors dwelled in unmitigated barbarism," says Dr. Kroeber, "the native of California already lived in all essentials like his descendant of today.

"There are a few parts of the world even those inhabited by dark skinned savages, where such a condition can be regarded as established. The permanence of California culture, therefore, is of far more than local interest. It is a fact of significance in the history of civilization.

"If it be objected that the period dealt with is, after all, conjectural rather than established, the import of our inference may be diminished; but it is not destroyed. Cut the estimate of thirty-five hundred years in half, or even to one-third, we are still back to the time of Charlemagne. The elapsed millennium has witnessed momentuous alterations in Europe, in India, in Japan; even the Mohammedan countries, China, Central Asia and Malaysia, have changed deeply in civilization, while this part of America has stood still."

Dr. Kroeber bases his inferences upon the fact that all classes of objects found in these shell mounds were unearthed with practically the same frequency from the top, middle and bottom of the heap, and show that the prehistoric people ate the same food, in nearly the same proportions prepared in the same manner and sewed skins, rush mats and coiled baskets similarly to their recent descendants.

"Even their religion was conservative, since the identical charms seem to have been regarded as potent. In a word, the basis of culture remained identical during the whole of the shell mound period," he asserts.

NEW YORK "UP IN AIR" FOR HOME AND BUSINESS

That New York has not reached its limit of going up in the air to live and work is demonstrated by the proposal to erect a hotel 56 stories high on the site of the Vanderbilt home, Fifth avenue between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth streets. The structure will rise 610 feet above the street. There are but two buildings on Manhattan island that stand higher. Both of these are office buildings—the Woolworth at 792 feet and Metropolitan Life at 700 feet. In the Old World the Eiffel Tower alone is higher, and the Great Pyramid of Egypt is only four fifths the height.

Judged by the plans, the new structure will be the wonder hotel of the world. It will tower above buildings in that section whose height has excited our admiration and astonished our visitors.

Rising from a limestone base, in the form of a tower, the Italian Renaissance shaft of brick promises to be a splendid example of what has become the distinctive architecture of America—Old World forms carried to heights never before believed possible. Besides their utility, these lofty buildings serve as monuments to the spirit and daring of their projectors. And there will be other such hotels. The daily study and contemplation of this edifice when it is completed are sure to lead ambitious architectural students to lay plans for going still higher.—New York Evening Post.

Snake Fares Well in Japan

While laborers were at work in the grounds of the Imperial Palace in Tokio, they came across a live snake, so large that they first believed it was a log and started to move it. The reptile came to life and the workmen scattered. However, they could have done nothing anyway, as the court officials ordered that the crawler not be needlessly disturbed, and they emphatically declared there would be no snake hunt. The snake, Japanese believe, is the spirit of the ancient fortress that was once on the site where it was found, and if let alone will harm no one.

Foremost Poet Of England Visits U. S.

BRADFORD VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Alfred Noyes, considered by critics and students of literature and poetry, the greatest poet of England of the present century, excelling even Poet Laureate Bridges. It was Mr. Noyes' first tour of lectures and readings in 1913 that revived popular interest in poetry. This will be his first American tour in 5 years. After a few Eastern engagements he will go West to speak at the University of Michigan and before the annual meeting of members of the Michigan State Teachers' Association in five Michigan cities. On his return he will speak at the Town Hall, NYC. He expects to be in America until Christmas. Mrs. Noyes, who will accompany him, is a daughter of Col. R. G. Daniels of the U. S. Army.

One way to induce a little girl to keep her hands clean is to give her a pretty ring.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT IN READINESS FOR SNOW

HARTFORD, Oct.—(AP) — Should the approaching winter be a hard one with plenty of snow it will find the state highway department ready for it. The snow removal program, laid out on a larger scale than ever before, calls for plans to keep clear a total of 1,909 miles of main line and connecting road systems. The goal of the program is to keep Connecticut open at all times throughout the winter so that travel may be maintained with the minimum inconvenience.

The department will have 175 heavy duty trucks with snow plows attached available for the work. Added equipment has been secured to replace the trucks and plows long in the service. At a cost of approximately $140,000, twenty-nine new trucks were added to the state's fleet last week. These will replace 16 machines which have outlived their usefulness, and 13 will be used to increase the present equipment.

About 100 miles of roads have been added to the mileage which the state will attempt to keep open for travel this winter. The mileage also has been increased by the widening of sections of the Boston post road to thirty-six feet in Fairfield county for a distance of about twelve miles.

Last winter the cost of snow removal was $70,453.36, the winter before it was $53,000.20 and the winter before that $175,021.78.

TWO NOMINATIONS FOR AMERICA'S HALL OF FAME

NEW YORK, Oct. —(AP)—John Paul Jones, naval commander, and Edwin Booth, actor, have been nominated for this year's additions to America's hall of fame at New York university, it was announced today. They were the only two selected from a list of 27 noted Americans whose names appeared on the ballot.

The list which failed of nominations included the names of John Jay, Samuel Adams, General "Stonewall" Jackson, Noah Webster, General P. H. Sheridan, Walt Whitman, William Penn, William Lloyd Garrison and Paul Revere. Twelve vacancies were open for the 1925 elections.

Both of this year's successful nominees have already been approved by the senate of New York university. Each of them has been nominated previous to the present election, but failed to receive the required three-fifths of the approximately 100 electoral votes. University and college presidents, historians, professors, scientists, authors, artists, judges and other public officials, as well as men and women of affairs, constitute the electorate. Robert Underwood Johnson is director.

BOBBY JONES AS INFANT WAS ROCKED BUT NOT "TOO PETTED"

ATLANTA, Oct. — (A.P.)—Bobby Jones, national amateur golf champion when a baby was rocked more than modern physicians would have approved, but was not "petted too much."

Mrs. Robert H. Jones, mother of the golfer, made this statement in connection with a discussion in Atlanta relative to present day methods of caring for babies as compared with those 25 years ago.

She disagreed with a young matron that "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." no longer is true. In Mrs. Jones' opinion, babies still are rocked and mothers can find time to do their part of ruling the world even if they spend a large part of their time in nurseries.

Bobby was rocked because he was a delicate child, and young Mrs. Bobby Jones rocks her six months old daughter, christened Clara Malone but already known as "Bobby," when she is sick or needs "extra babying."

Grandfathers, in the opinion of Grandmother Jones, still are the principal causes of spoiled babies—but they are not to be blamed, for they know nothing of rearing babies.

IF A GOOD GUESSER YOU CAN TELL MOVIE STARS IN ROME

ROME Oct.—(AP)—While American film stars are even more numerous this season, the uninitiated American tourist must be an adept guesser to recognize many of their names on the posters.

This is largely due to the fact that in the Italian language "C," "K" and "C" have the same sound and are used interchangeably. Thus one reads the names of such American stars as Eddie, Maj Murral, Betti Bliche, Gloria Svanson, Marj Pikford, Marie Pikford and Maj Mkavoj, Douglas Fairbanks seldom gets his last name used, at least when fans talk of him, due to the fact that Italian custom calls for placing last names first. He is known simply as "Douglas."

If women didn't know how much hate to see them cry they wouldn't do it so often.

Discovers Method For Reducing Blood Pressure

Dr. W. J. Macdonald, of St. Catharine's, Ontario, Canada, practitioner and surgeon, who is now spending all his time at the University of Toronto laboratories, where he is perfecting his discovery to reduce high blood pressure, the bane of innumerable humans in this high tensioned generation. In 33 out of 33 cases, his treatment, which is a dose of calf's liver extract, which works as miraculously in reducing high blood pressure, as does insulin in reducing sugar-filled blood. As quoted, "one of three people die of ailments caused by high blood pressure," and his discovery has been hailed by international medical circles as the greatest find of the medical world, ranked with insulin

Col. E. M. House

A late picture of Col. E. M. House, prominent aid to Wilson at the Versailles Peace Conference who recently returned to the United States from a trip abroad.

Followers of the green table sport are manifesting considerable interest in the coming match between the veterans George F. Slosson and Maurice Daly, both of whom have held the world's billiard championship in days gone by.

Colors of Diamonds

Experts hold that the most beautiful of all precious stones is the red diamond, thought to excel even the ruby in beauty. Such a diamond is extremely rare. One of the most notable red diamonds is that which was purchased by the Emperor Paul of Russia for $100,000. This stone weighs 10 karats.

Of blue diamonds the most notable are the "Hope" and the "Bismarck." These, by some authorities, are held to be, indeed, the only "true blue diamond." Dark blue diamonds, resembling the sapphire, but displaying the same beautiful play of colors peculiar to the diamond, are handsome gems.

Very rare are diamonds of the black and rose colored varieties. The green diamond is much more common. The "grass-green" variety, however, is scarce but when it does occur is generally of a brilliancy exceeding that of the emerald. The Museum of Natural History at Paris possesses a collection of green-tinted diamonds that is held to be of the finest, but at the Museum in Dresden is to be seen the most perfect specimen of this color.

In the Museum of Vienna there is a wonderful collection of diamonds of many colors. They are in the form of a bouquet, the natural colors of the flowers being represented by diamonds of the same hues. These stones were collected by a Tyrolese, Virgin von Helmreicher, who passed many years in the diamond mines of South Africa and Brazil buying many of his finds from the mine owners.

A Dollar to Grandpa

Youth leads the way everywhere, so they say. Yet once in a while old age cuts up a dido, and then youth is put in its place, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Witness Captain Robert Dollar, eighty-three-year-old head of a steamship line. Only the other day a new pilot put the steamship President Garfield on the Half Moon Shoal ten miles north of Nantucket Island. And the same day Captain Robert Dollar, eighty-three years old, took her off the sandbar. He saved a $4,000,000 cargo and came back to his office a hero. There are some Cappy Ricksas in real life, after all.

Captain Dollar pretends it was nothing at all. That is in keeping with the best traditions of the sea of a day when there were no press agents. But down in his heart he probably has a chuckle or two for himself, who got a young pilot out of trouble by taking the bridge in his eighty-third year. And all the grandfathers who read about him will probably feel better as they watch the days pass on the calendar and their eighty-four birthday hove to on the horizon. When a man has fulfilled his threescore and ten he has one great ambition—to prove that he can turn to and show the youngsters when emergency rears its ugly head. Often he fails, but he is always puffed up when somebody else does it.

Untimely Remembering

One still occasionally hears of persons suffering from a propaganda hangover who refuse to buy goods made in Germany, says the Waterbury American. That Germany also has cases of like sort we may gather from the announcement that Roald Munson's former publishers in Munich have declined his latest book because "he severed all connection with the German nation when, during the war, he returned his German decoration and resigned his honorary membership in German societies." Not until he has made proper amends for his offensive behavior, says the publishers will they consent to publish more of his works.

These are short-sighted publishers, indeed. No doubt Amundsen is heartily ashamed of his action by now; the fact that he is scheduled to deliver a series of lectures in Berlin before coming to this country next month suggests that he retains none of the propaganda-bred feeling that caused it. His former publishers might have helped in the restoration of sanity by continuing relations with him as if nothing had happened. They reopen the wound by demanding that he apologize—for that seems to be what they expect. It is better that every one of us, realizing to what depths of folly we were carried by war propaganda, should refrain from uncovering like folly in others.

Portrait of a Tailor Famous

When Moroni, a sixteenth century painter, did his now celebrated picture, "Potrait of a Tailor," he achieved a work that was destined to bring him distinction if it did not at first place him in the circle of the world's greatest. Strangely enough, many of his other works were credited to other painters. Recently he has been brought into the National Gallery in London, the Metropolitan and Boston Museums in America, and in some other European galleries; including those at Milan, Florence, Vienna and Berlin.

Huge Waste of Gasoline

Statistics compiled by Prof. Alexander Silverman, head of the chemistry department of the University of Pittsburgh, disclose that automobile and truck drivers annually are wasting 385,270,200 gallons of gasoline. This waste is caused by permitting motors to run while the machines are standing still.

Sheridan's Words Misnamed

NEWARK, N. Y., Oct. 26—(A.P.)—The legendary, "Turn boys, turn, we're going back," were not the words of General Phil Sheridan, when he completed the ride which has been made famous in song and story. The general's widow in an interview said that the exact text of the command could best be expressed by dashes.

November 7th is the date now set for the world's sculling championship between Major Goodsell, the titleholder, and James Paddon. The match will be rowed on the Parramatta River course in Australia.

WESTERLY

A representative of the Westbury, N. Y., Nurseries arrived in Westerly Thursday afternoon enroute to Watch Hill, where he was accompanied by a gang of men. At "Sunshine," Watch Hill summer estate of R. B. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, a carload of trees will be set out to the westward of the palatial summer residence. Considerable grading work is being carried on, which includes the filling in of marshy land with loam taken from Breen Bros. lands. In the improvements about Sunshine in years past, a short street, known as York avenue, was closed and an elaborate causeway approach from the south which included a stone-arched underpass, was constructed to the summit om the hill on which the residence is located.

Sewer main installation is being rushed in anticipation of the approach of cold weather; the excavated ditch on Railroad avenue having neared the east entrance to the Westerly station of the New Haven road. At the Canal street end of the main drains have been laid and the excavated ditch refilled. Along the stretch of highway already excavated the old electric street car rails have been avoided but as the work progresses up Railroad avenue, the rails and ties will become an obstruction to be contended with. Thursday was the first day that High street, where the sewer mains have been installed between Canal and Grove avenue, was freed from barricade and traffic was able to pass over that stretch of highway.

The early Thursday morning express and accommodation train to Providence was filled with teachers of the public schools of Westerly on their way to attend the three-day session of the annual Rhode Island Institute of Instruction being held in Providence. A few teachers went by automobile or the train of the previous evening or later morning local express.

The regular session of Third District court this (Friday) morning before Judge Michael J. Turano will be a busy one for the criminal docket continued from a week ago contains complaints of assault preferred by Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown besides other charges and a complaint by Oliver P. Crandall, director of public air. Added to the criminal docket will be the usual list of civil cases.

By notice posted by Everett E. Whipple, clerk of the Westerly Board of canvassers, members of the Westerly Town council, acting as such, will meet Monday morning in the council chambers when the voting list will be made up for use at the election for town and district officers.

For participation in the observance of Armistice day, Wednesday, Nov. 11, in Westerly, secretary of the committee on the observance has among others notified the following organizations of plans being considered with the request that their co-operation be secured:

Battery E, R. I. C. A. C. (H. D.); Budlong post, G. A. R. Hancock post, G. A. R., Budlong W. R. C., Hancock W. R. C., Westerly Sanitary corps, Robert Brucker camp, U. S. A. W. V., Westerly chapter, American Red Cross, Amos P. Chapman camp, S. of V.; Westerly band; Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts of America; St. Michael Girl Scouts, who have tendered the services of their bugle and drum corps.

Criticism of the building being constructed on Canal street, for Westerly's United theatre, led Wednesday morning to Rhode Island State Factory Inspector J. Ellery Hudson, coming to Westerly for the purpose of inspecting the building. On Wednesday afternoon Fire Chief George E. Egger was called in and with representatives of the theatre, a thorough inspection of the work was made. As a result, it is stated that changes recommended will add to the safety of theatre patrons and it is said in place of two narrow stairways leading down from the balcony there will be four.

Inspector Hudson declared that in his opinion reports of fire hazards or inadequate and dangerous exits in the structure have been greatly exaggerated.

He states, however, that he did not examine the plans of the structure and his survey of conditions was confined entirely to the building in its present state of construction, with especial attention to the provision for adequate exits.

His visit to Westerly was made at the request of the parties constructing the theatre, he said. Exits in the structure, with a few slight changes suggested by him, seem to him to be entirely adequate, he stated.

"I wish half the theatres in the state were as well constructed," he said. "It is a brick structure and looks practically fireproof."

Mrs. William Fraser, who has been the guest of her father, Wilfred Ward, left Westerly Thursday morning for New York and will sail on Saturday to return to her home in Bradford, England.

Louis J. Oat of Norwich, was a business visitor Tuesday in Pawcatuck and Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Rowe, of Watch Hill Wednesday having closed their summer cottage, Shawondasee, near the Misquamicut Golf club, for the season. Mrs. Rowe went to Providence for a short visit to be joined at New Haven by her husband on Thursday and proceed to their home in Florida.

George Corey was a Westerly business visitor in New London on Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Charles P. Cottrell and son, Calvert B Cottrell of Westerly have been on a business trip to New York.

Maurice E. Kent returned to his home in Pawcatuck from New London Wednesday night for a short visit with relatives and friends.

Narragansett commandery, No. 27, Knights Templar of Westerly, John A. Hogg, recently elected commander, held a rehearsal of officers on the Red Cross degree Wednesday evening in the asylum on High street.

Workmen on Westerly's United theatre building were engaged Thursday in placing the stucco on the south end west exterior walls of the head house over the theatre stage.

Westerly Cycle club defeated the Westerly Masonic club bridge team in the second match of the series in the latter's club rooms Wednesday evening 14,426 to 13,861. Light refreshments were served. The individual play resulted:

Cycle Club—Joseph Law, W. Craig, 3,594; C. P. Ecclestone, W. Phillips, 1,615; E. Parker, Seth Mayme, 2,095; C. Blackler, H. Stillwell, 1,096; E. Hartson, J. Crandall, 3,115; F. Saunders, J. Payne, 2,171. Total 14,426.

Masonic club—J. Hodgson, H. A. Stahle 1,218; H. Briggs, F. Smith, 2,345; T. Samuels, C. Lamb, 2,975; F. Haswell, M. Nye, 2,857; H. Saunders, R. Spargo, 3,472; D. Hoxie, L. McLaren, 2,996. Total 13,861.

The Mistuxet club of Stonington was defeated by the Colonial club of Westerly in the former's club rooms in Stonington borough 11,319 to 10,523. Individual play:

Colonial club—J. DeV. Barber, C. Sreman 1,853; A. Trotman, F. Ahern, 2,189; H. Livingstone, W. Fowler 2,193; E. Coy, A. Archie 1,740; H. Johnson, R. Briggs 678; J. Champlin, E. Crouch 1,677. Total 11,391.

Mistuxet club—L. Fairbrother, L. Chesebro 2,046; H. Friedman, L. Cassano 2,242; D. Fairbrother, W. Harper, 1,156; K. Keelb, W. Bindloss 2,110 C. Cowan, L. Tracy, 2,276; F. Stanton, H. Chesebro 693. Total 10,523.

New Invention Saves Millions

A Lamp that Burns 94% Air.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, O. N. Johnson, 842 N. MYSTIC

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Haley and daughter, Miss Juliet Haley, have returned to their home in Brooklyn, N. Y., after spending the season on High street.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bailey, on their way home to Providence after a visit in New York, stopped to spend a day and night as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gurdon Allyn.

The addition to Wilfred Rollinson's store on Noank road is completed and is being painted.

Eastern Star chapter held a Hallowe'en social Tuesday evening with games that caused much merriment; one was a ghost march. Doughnuts, cheese, apples and coffee were served. Williams post, No. 55, assisted by the Woman's Relief Corps, had as guests Department Commander Rev. James W. Davis of Bridgeport and Mrs. Maude Deming, department president, of the W. R. C. of Willimantic. At 2 o'clock a chicken pie dinner was served. Mrs. Ellery Burdick entertained with readings and Mrs. Sherman Hammond with solos. The visiting officers were J. W. Davis, Charles Shafer, Harlan P. Rugg, all of Bridgeport; Ira R. Weldman, Danbury; Mrs. Maude Deming of Willimantic, and Mrs. Eleanor Lucy of Mystic. Rev. J. W. Davis, department commander, was pastor of the Advent church in Bridgeport for many years and after a pastorate elsewhere returned there to spend the remainder of his life. He is very active, although over 90.

The meeting of the W. C. T. U., held in G. A. R. hall Wednesday afternoon opened with singing and reading of the first psalm by Mrs. Lamb This was followed by prayer by Mrs. Cutler. The roll call responded to by reading fourteen points of encouragement. Mrs. Lamb stated that Mrs. Mary B. Wilson, state vice-president-at-large was to speak to the unions in New London county next week and would be here next Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 3, in G. A. R. hall. It was voted to visit Westerly, Pawcatuck and Noank unions. The time was given to the president, Mrs. Lamb, and the two delegates to the state convention in Middletown to give reports. These proved most interesting and some of the addresses published were read. The delegates carried two beautiful afghans that were hung up for all to see. This week these afghans were carried to Allington hospital to be used by the soldier boys. The Rhode Island state convention was held at Westerly last week and was attended by several from Mystic; Mrs. Phillips reported for Tuesday, Mrs. Newbury for Wednesday and Mrs. Callaghan for Thursday.

W. Grant Mooney and Norton C. Wheeler are spending a few days in Boston.

Mrs. Russell Potter and daughter, Dorothy, are visiting in Bradford and Carolina, R. I.

The house occupied by Earl Bavier is being renovated an painted.

A triduum, or three days' devotion is to be held in St. Patrick's church tonight (Friday) Saturday, and Sunday evenings in anticipation of All Saints' Day, which is Sunday.

Two telephone poles on High street, placed there while Baptist Hill was being cut down and graded, have been removed, according to agreement with the land owners.

The midweek service at the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday was a communicants' preparation Service.

The Methodist Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. Burdick Thursday afternoon. There is to be a choir rehearsal this (Friday)) evening in the chapel. Next Sunday there will be special services in remembrance of the honored dead, in keeping with All Saints' Day.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

James Fitton, 81, a former resident of Stafford Springs, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William T. Williams in Boston Tuesday. The body will be brought to Stafford Springs today (Friday) for burial.

Mrs. John Antaya has returned from Providence where she attended the wedding of her son William H. Thiesing who married Miss Sarah Downey of Bristol, R. I.

Joseph Braun has returned from a three months' European trip.

Jerry Shearman, who was recently operated on at the Johnson Memorial hospital is making a good recovery.

Mrs. W. B. Bean has returned from a week's visit in New York city.

Michael J. Burke, operator of the freight elevator at the Johnson mill, got his heel caught in the elevator Tuesday and besides getting it crushed sustained a broken ankle. He was taken to the local hospital for treatment.

Bishop William F. Anderson, resident bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church in New England is to preach at the Stafford Springs Methodist church Sunday evening.

The engagement of Miss Ada Buskey to R. Percy Parkhurst has been announced.

John Piccin has returned home from the Johnson hospital where he was operated on for appendicitis.

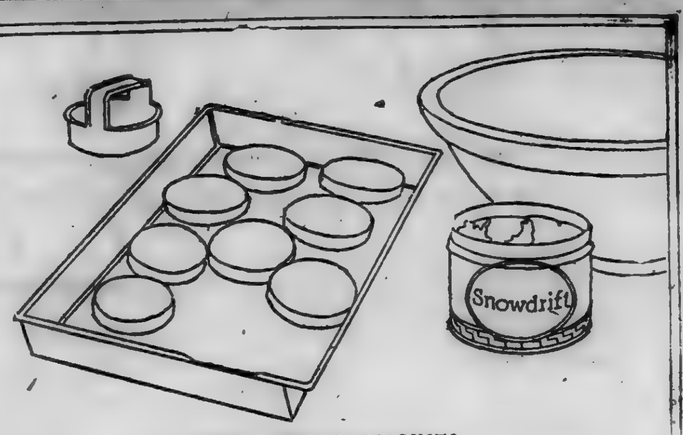
After sickness and where rickets are suspected they are especially valuable. No need to give them any more nasty Cod Liver Oil—these tablets are made to take the place of that good, but evil smelling, stomach upsetting medicine and they surely do it.

A very sick child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in 7 months.

Ask Lee & Osgood or any druggist for McCoy's Liver Oil Compound Tablets—as easy to take as candy—60 tablets 60 cents and money back if not satisfied.



BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

3 Cupfuls Flour
6 Teaspoonfuls Baking Powder
¾ Teaspoonful Salt
½ Tablespoonful Sugar
3 Tablespoonfuls Snowdrift
Equal Parts Milk and Water (about a Cupful)

Sift together the dry ingredients, then rub in the Snowdrift with the fingertips or the back of the mixing-spoon, until the mixture looks flaky. Pour in equal parts of milk and water to moisten—approximately a cupful—then quickly turn the mixture onto a slightly floured board and pat or roll it to one-half inch in thickness. Shape into rounds with the biscuit cutter, tucking under the edges as you work, so there will be no remnants. Place, scarcely touching, on a baking-pan oiled with Snowdrift, and bake in a quick oven, 375 degrees F., about fifteen minutes. Thin biscuits will bake in ten minutes.

If you do not care for baking powder biscuits try Snowdrift in your favorite biscuit recipe. The goodness of the biscuits will say more for Snowdrift than words can.

LAW IN CHINA IS ADMINISTERED BY AT LEAST FOUR DISTINCT GOVERNMENTS

(This is the fifth of a series of articles by Drew Pearson on "The Chinese Puzzle").

PEKING, China.—China, as a government, is not much more united than the Balkans, and yet, administrative unity is her greatest need.

All Chinese admit this, yet none are able to point a way by which China may become one compact governmental unit, instead of a group of provinces ruled by quarrelsome feudal lords. For, although the Chinese as a people are more unified by a new nationalism than ever before in history; their country is administered, to all intents and purposes, by at least four distinct governments.

By DREW PEARSON

In the south, the Canton Government, infant prodigy of the late Sun Yat Sen, spurns the Peking Government in the north, except when it becomes expedient to unite in writing diplomatic notes to the British. Canton, being very progressive, is at present undergoing one of the latest western innovations—a fight between the Reds and the Whites, and I am not able to predict who is to be its next ruler.

In Central China, the eight provinces in the wealthy and prosperous Yangtze River valley have united in a sort of confederacy and are raising money and troops to gamble upon their fallen leader, Wu Pei-Fu. Since his defeat last fall. Wu is reported to be biding his time and preparing for another war with his old enemy Chang Tso Lin.

Foreign Money Supports Army

In Manchuria and down along the coast as far south as Shanghai, this same Chang Tso Lin, ex-bandit chief, and the strongest man in China, holds sway. Chang is an interesting character as well as an extremely able one. Gentle of manner with a high-pitched voice, many people have asked how he was able to hold the strategic points of north China in his grasp. The secret probably is foreign money, which he admits has been loaned him chiefly by the Japanese. But besides this Chang has one characteristic which is very rare in the Chinese. Chang can keep his own counsel. He can make up his mind for himself. He knows when to act. He uses advisors but never lets them make decisions for him. Most Chinese like to "run with the gang." They hash over their decisions with all their friends and relatives before they act. And because the ex-bandit chief plays a lone hand, he is feared and respected by all his countrymen.

Chang has had his eye on the Chinese presidency for some time, but is not strong enough to get it without the cooperation of at least one of his rivals. And recently he severely, perhaps permanently blighted his chances for high office by protecting Japanese and British property during the anti-foreign riots. Certainly to protect foreign property was a most commendable thing to do and it earned him much praise from the foreigners but it got him disastrously in wrong with his own folks, and the Chinese, after all, are the ones to make Chang president.

A Christian General

On the other hand, Feng Yu-Siang, Chang's bitter enemy, took advantage of the anti-foreign sentiment to strengthen his own hand. The Christian general, who has been busy establishing himself as lord almighty of the northwest ever since he parted enemies from Chang Wu last autumn has issued many vitriolic manifestoes denouncing the British. These have put him exceedingly in right with the great mass of Chinese.

Chang and Feng, therefore, stand out as the two strongest leaders in China today. They also stand out by point of contrast, for no two men could be more dissimilar. Chang is small and has a figure as slender as a woman's. Feng is one of the biggest Chinese I have ever seen. Feng is a Christian and has a wife who is reported to rule him in proverbial Christian fashion. Chang's religion is nondescript and he has five wives, all of whom he rules, except the fifth and youngest, who is said to have bundled him home to Mukden in a hurry last summer when her lord and master began flirting with a Tientsin lady. Feng is pro-Russian and anti-British. Chang is just as ardently anti-Russian and a good friend of the British and Japanese. Chang's soldiers can on occasion become excellent bandits and are not averse to looting. Feng's army is the only one in China which pays for what it takes.

Feng apparently is a remarkable leader. I spent nearly a week in his camp and have never seen Chinese troops so well trained and with such devotion to the leader. Instead of guns they carry picks and shovels and have worked miracles upon the roads round Feng's camp. They dress in clean, white blouses and although I have tempted a good many of these with cigarettes, I have yet to see one of them smoke. In fact the only thing I have against Feng's army is the fact that they woke me every morning at an exceedingly early hour by singing Christian hymns, with Chinese words, to a tune which must have been a cross between "Lead Kindly Light" and "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

Although General Feng is accused of being a hypocrite and making a sham of Christianity, the chief fact we are concerned with is that he is a good soldier and has behind him about the best army in China.

Needs Real Leaders

Here then, are the two strongest men in China diametrically opposed to each other, while Wu Pei-Fu sulks in the Central Provinces and South China remains strictly independent. That, briefly is China's problem of governmental unity. It is a problem chiefly of personalities and is difficult because of the jealousies and rivalry of the actors I have just described.

China's great need today is for leaders. It must have leaders who are above personal ambition. A Japanese friend who knows the Chinese better than do the Chinese themselves, once said to me: "The trouble with Chinese leaders is too many concubines. When they buy concubines, they begin smoking opium. When they smoke opium, they gamble. And when they gamble, they squeeze the government in order to pay their gambling debts." What he meant was that almost every Chinese official was concerned not with helping his country, but with enriching himself.

China, today, is similar to feudal England about the time of the War of the Roses. China's provinces are ruled by feudal lords. They maintain their power by the weight of armies. These are personal armies. They answer not the summons of the president of China, but the command of the man who feeds them. And their lord, or tuchan, feeds and clothes them by taxing the people where he lives. He does not collect taxes for the president of China. He collects for himself. And like the feudal lords of old these tuchans and tupans battle among themselves for the right to tyrannize their provinces, while the world outside considers China a united country.

"But," say the Chinese with a smile "Why worry? In one hundred years or so, our tupans will learn to stop fighting, and we also shall become a united country." And considering the fact that the Chinese have already lived 4000 years, perhaps they can afford to wait.

KICK IN HOME BREW AMAZES POLICE CHIEF

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 29.—Several bottles of beer taken from the George Wheeler home and which had tested over six per cent. when seized several weeks ago became somewhat restless at long confinement in an ante-room of the police headquarters Thursday afternoon. Chief of Police Allan McArthur was in his office. He heard a loud report and for a moment thought that he had been shot. A second report came and he still lived, so he decided upon an investigation. It developed that the homebrew was just trying its kick by popping its metal caps to the ceiling and incidentally leaving musty splurs on the walls and an inviting odor in the room. Then the chief got busy, and at one sitting he downed dozens of bottles of beer—down the sewer. As the smells of home made nectar invaded the various offices on the upper floor of the town building visitors drifted in one by one until a good-sized gathering watched the chief smashing the bottles on the floor of the cell room from where the contents flowed into the sewer. Hoboes getting a night's lodging at the station slept in a real "atmosphere of the old days" Thursday night.

UNION ST. PARKING, NEW LONDON, RESTRICTED, DUE TO FIRE TRUCKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 29.—The parking of motor vehicles on the east side of Union street, between Masonic and Church streets is to be restricted. City Manager William A. Holt this afternoon issued such an edict. The reason for the stopping of the parking of cars in that section of Union street is to permit the fire apparatus, particularly the aerial truck, which arrived here yesterday, to be provided ample room to swing either north or south on Union street as the fire wagons emerge from the central station and start to respond to alarms.

The city is to have a new iron fence erected around the wall of the standard school, corner of Union and Federal streets, and the contract for the fence which will be of wire, has been awarded the C. A. Gates Co. of Boston. One hundred and fifty-eight feet of fence will be erected at a cost of $2.32 per lineal foot.

The city has also awarded the contract for laying a cement floor in the garage of the Thomas Hose company on Thames, Occhialini at this city. There were four bidders for the work and Occhialini was the lowest. His bid was $1,557.60, with agreement to start work Nov. 10 and complete the job Nov. 15.

Four youths absented themselves from school this afternoon and by doing so got into trouble, for the one who was arrested by Patrolman John Courtney, charged with trespassing at the Capitol theatre. The youths had succeeded in gaining entrance to the vaudeville house without purchasing tickets and their presence there was discovered by Manager Walter T. Murphy, who lodged complaint with Officer Courtney. The boys were later turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield for presentation in the juvenile court. Manager Murphy has been annoyed considerably of late because of the practice of youths gaining entrance to the theatre before the doors are open and hiding themselves away to await the entrance of patrons before the show starts.

Two more complaints against alleged liquor sellers went into the discard today in the police court, when cases against Frank May and Nick Tsukis were nolled. Prosecutor Holinderesky told the court that conviction could not be expected on the evidence in his possession, and he said there was no corroboration of what the witness for the state testified. He regretted that time and attention had been given to the cases as they stood, but he acted on what he believed would be evidence in abundance, one case is yet to be presented to the court, and that is on the docket for the 4th of November. The defense today asked for a continuance for documentary evidence might be obtained that is essential, and for procuring the attendance of witnesses who are not now in the city.

Andrew Fallon, who has been sued perhaps a score of times of intoxication was presented for that offense today. He represented that he has been employed at Oakdale. Last night he wandered into the police station for lodging, but he was so intoxicated that he could not find his way around. He was given a bed in a cell and today was sent to jail.

Solomon Eisman complained to the police last night that a couple of fellows attempted to hold him up in his store shop and to take from him a lot of clothes that had not been paid for. He represented that Steve Purvis and Arthur Watson, employed on the night boat Frank H. Chappell, were the would-be robbers men and said the latter struck him in the face while the former held his arms. That didn't seem to prove that the men complained of had robbery in their minds when they came to the Eisman store, but it did Solomon so that his outcry could be heard all about the neighborhood he was terribly afraid he was in possession of a suit of clothes he had made for Purvis and for which he had not been paid. Policeman Jesse Perkins heard the cries of the alleged victim and went to his assistance with the result that the pawnbroker men were arrested. Judge Crandall today heard the complaint of Eisman and fined Purvis for intoxication and for the breach of the peace and disturbance. Purvis is the fellow who a week ago assaulted Edward Lewis, the latter was a negro. Both men are just over 21. Purvis has a bad reputation as a quarreler and admits he has prejudice against the negro race.

The funeral of Theresa Margaret, the daughter of Police Sergeant and Mrs. Patrick J. Murphy was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her parents. There was a large attendance of sorrowing acquaintances and the bereaved parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss Katherine C. Barker, about 70, daughter of the late Benjamin F. and Mary Barker, formerly resident of New London, died this morning at the residence in Waterford. Miss Barker was born in New London and resided in this city her entire life until about three years ago when she moved to Waterford. She was an active member of the Methodist Episcopal church, this city.

Funeral services for Miss Ella Howard, of Waterford, were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at 63 Washington street, Rev. Horatio J. Chase officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of James Fraser, former locomotive engineer in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 32 Sixteenth street and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, including a delegation of members of Nameaug Engine company and Brainard Lodge of Masons. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Members of Brainard lodge acted as bearers and conducted the Masonic ritual in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Ralph Paulison and infant son, of Poquonoc Bridge; Mrs. Robert Stocking and infant daughter, 21 Shapley street; Miss Marie Anderson, Niantic, and Mrs. Charles Deveney, Westerly, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Joseph Smith, 19, of 565 Plymouth avenue, Fall River, Mass.; John Martin, 19, of Swansea, Mass.; Cornelius White, 18, of 16 Pine street, Fall River; and Leo Proulx, 18, of 172 Central street, Fall River, were arrested this afternoon by Capt. Kelley, of the force of special agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad when the young men were found loitering on railroad property in the Union station yard. The boys were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, who will see to it that the youths return home.

An automobile owned and driven by Roger N. Daboll, 100 Thames street, and a car owned and driven by James W. Fordham, 50 Hempstead street, were in collision this afternoon on Jay street, corner of Federal street. Both automobiles were damaged.

The Eagle Realty company today sold three parcels of land of the former Burrows Homestead plat, Bayonet street, to Cecelia Saurerzopf.

Ralph D. and Anna S. Briggs today sold a house and lot on Gorton street to May Benson.

Sergeant Samuel Hick this afternoon arrested two boys, neither over 14, for the theft of two bicycles from students at the Chapman Technical High school yesterday afternoon. The youths had the cycles in their possession when arrested. Complaint was made to the police yesterday of the theft of the bicycles by F. S. Hitchcock, principal of the school.

Mrs. Pasquale DiMaggio, 2 Pratt street, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital suffering from a weakened condition of the heart caused by advanced years. Mrs. DiMaggio's condition has not improved since she was admitted to the institution several days ago.

Miss Lillian Clark, of Westerly, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was able to return to her home today.

Michael Andriola has sold a house and lot in Denison court, Groton, to Frederick and Minnie MacGlaflin.

Mrs. Michael Schwartz has returned to her home 41 Squires street after having spent several days with relatives and friends in New York.

Mrs. Rose Cherkasky, Willetts avenue, is entertaining Mrs. Mark Harris and daughter, Miss Anna, of New York.

A pitiable case of destitution was discovered about 4:30 o'clock today when the police had James Lewis, about 65, taken from his squalid abode on Rosemary street, to the police station. It was believed that the man would die from exhaustion if allowed to remain in his squalid home. Lewis, who was known to residents of Rosemary street, to be without relatives and who lived the life of a recluse, had not been observed by neighbors for a week or more and within a day or two Commissioner of Charities Henry S. Dorsey was informed that the man had not been seen of late about his home. The neighbors were of the opinion that Lewis had been taken ill and that when the house was entered he would be found dead. Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Frank Philopena were sent to Lewis' home but they were unable to gain admission as the entrances were locked and no heed was paid to their knocks at the doors. An inspection of the house was made and a window that had been broken, was observed patched up with a small board. The officers succeeded in removing the board and then were able to unlock the window, which permitted the officers to enter the place. The officers located Lewis, fully dressed and in bed. He had such meagre covering as he possessed pulled over him, but the man showed plainly that he was suffering from cold and lack of nourishment. The officers forced Lewis to go with them to the police station where he could be provided with warmth and supplied with nourishment. It is probable that Lewis will be committed to Norwich State hospital as it is apparent that he is mentally affected.

The Yale Candy Kitchen on Bank street has closed its doors, not because of financial embarrassment, but because the owners were dissatisfied with continuance of the business when they were not obtaining profits that were anything like reasonable. The owners are silk makers and at their trade can earn good wages. Their friends declare that the owners have decided wisely. They are Greeks and have long resided in New London.

The resurfacing of lower Bank street, recently completed, has elicited the approval of operators of automobiles and vehicles in general. That being the case it is likely that the resurfacing will be continued north on the street in the spring and that the brick paving will be entirely covered to the corner of Howard street.

Frank Walker, manager of the Mohican hotel, will return from his vacation in a few days. He has been in Canada and to his former home in Maine, where he has land interests which will increase in value by recent changes that have been made. It is understood that a bridge has been erected across the river and that its terminus is on or close to the land owned by Mr. Walker. His friends here hope that the bridge will, with the business it is likely to bring, cover his land with prospects that will enable him to realize his greatest anticipations.

The expressions of opinion as to the advisability of New London enacting a zoning ordinance and putting the law into effect thereby in this city appears to have passed into the inactive state. It is admitted that some sort of regulation as to the sections in which business should be established should be enforced, but when it is pointed out that New London need not have any anxiety as to where business shall be extended until such time as some business comes in that will need a location. None has come in lately and the most enthusiastic of the city's residents do not see any in sight now that is likely to come. The statement made at the meeting in the council chamber last Monday that the constitutional rights of man were his protection against such a zoning law as is proposed. It was held that no law nor any ordinance could prevent a man from using his land for the erection of a dwelling if that house was not a nuisance and did not interfere with the rights of neighbors. The zoning law, it is understood, provides that only a defined percentage of the land of the owner can be used for the erection of a one-family house, and that for a two-family house an increased area is allowed, but that in both cases the extent of land used is fixed. That provision would seem to be such that the courts would not uphold it in validity. There is general sentiment among residents that factories should not be erected in purely residential sections.

Rumor has it that the supernumerary policemen who have been on duty continuously during the summer season and who are still serving the city in the capacity of officers to preserve the peace are to be laid off about the 1st of November. There are several of these officers. The opinion is stated that as many policemen as are needed in the summer are not required when cold weather comes, and that sort of weather seems to be at hand now.

The city's speed car used by the police department is under general repair and the department is getting along without its use or without the use of a machine to take its place. The car has been in the shop a fortnight now so that its return to service cannot be far away.

TRIAL OF WILLIE MAR BEGINS AT NEW HAVEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 29—Patrolmen Augustus Ray and Edward Daniels were in New Haven today testifying before a grand jury in the case of Willie Mar, Main street Chinaman, who was arrested several months ago, with three other celestials, when Mar's home on Main street was raided by narcotic agents and local police. The narcotic agents declared that the arrests and seizures were the most important in New England in many years. Mar had opium in his possession, another person was in the act of attempting to leave the place with a quantity of the drug, while a third was in a reclining position and smoking the drug. Mar has been arrested twice before for violation of the narcotic act

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Grotto's Indoor Circus

Barnum and Bailey's circus did not show in Norwich this past season but Norwich circus followers will have an opportunity to see several acts from this circus through the efforts of Nemrud Grotto that in connection with the Conn. Nat'l Guard company of Norwich which will stage a first indoor circus or freak city ever to show in this city. This freak city will have besides all of the circus novelties, a fat girl weighing 700 pounds, a tattooed man with every inch of his body covered with a design or picture, Martha, the wonder girl, who has no arms, writes, eats and powders her nose with her feet, a sword swallower who puts two feet of steel down his throat, the human fire eater, Bingo, the boy with the elephants ears, a boy who has the body of a bor, one of the most wonderful freaks of today; Zip, everyone has either seen or heard of this animal or man. He is the original Barnum's "What is it," the midget and the giant, the snake charmer, Scalo the fire boy, American doll lady, man with two feet and one leg. The Albino baby and several other freaks of nature that are all genuine and legitimate and no jokes.

Lyceum Theater

Striking evidence of the popularity of John Golden's plays is evidenced by a rush of mail orders for Seventh Heaven. The finest Golden offering, which is rated second only to Lightnin' as a box office harvester, will be presented at the Lyceum, New London, Thursday, Friday and Saturday matinee, Nov. 5, 6 and 7.

The first announcement of the 1925 and 1926 season for Seventh Heaven caused a flow of orders and it is a safe forecast that Ann Forrest, Louis D'Arclay and other principals of the special cast to be seen in the play, will be greeted by capacity audiences. Seventh Heaven differs from earlier Golden plays in that its scenes are laid in Paris but in wholesomeness, brisk fun and settle humanity it is a worthy companion of Turn to the Right, Three Wise Fools, The First Year, Thank-U, and Dear Me.

Persons ordering by mail should include remittances and enclose a self addressed stamped envelope. The box office sale will open Tuesday Nov 3 at Capitol.

Coming to the Breed

Tod Browning's master crook film, The Unholy Three, a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production interpreted by an all star cast will be seen next week at the Breed theater.

Browning, who has always been regarded as a master director of this sort of melodrama, is said to have made a heart-interest drama that will live for a long time as the best film of this type.

The story is a film adaptation from C. A. Robbins' work and was prepared for the screen by Waldemar Young, former police reporter who is familiar with the life of the underworld.

The all-star cast includes: Mae Busch, Lon Chaney, Matt Moore, Victor McLaglen, Harry Earles, Mathew Betz and several others familiar to the fans.

Miss Busch has the featured role and Chaney, who is considered the real master of the art of make-up, plays a dual role that will not be forgotten soon. Matt Moore has the role opposite Miss Busch and Victor McLaglen, celebrated English actor and Harry Earles, thirty-five pound midget, are two of the "heavies."

The story has to do with the adventures of three freaks from a museum who organize a band of crooks and operate under the cover of a bird and animal store.

Browning has filled this picture with heart interest and the scenario writer has woven in a well-defined thread of romance.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

A Hallowe'en Cabaret Party will be the added attraction at the Palace tonight, thirty minutes of real good fun. The stage will be set with special scenery and decorations of the season. The party will take place immediately after the vaudeville and all are invited to join in the fun.

The regular vaudeville consists of five wonderful acts opening with the Leach LaQuinlan Trio, balancing on a rose wire which is secured on both ends by the teeth of two pretty maidens. The set is a strong act and gets a strong hand from the audience, most of the stunts are amazing.

McAllister Kiddies follow with some snappy songs and dances. The two Bonnie Wee Lassies took the audience by storm at last night's performance. One couldn't help but like them as they deliver their act in such a pleasing and smooth way.

Josie St. Clair and Boys do a musical act, playing several different instruments, featuring the piano accordion. Their playing is great. Bronson and Coyne furnish the Hokem and do it in great style. They receive much applause from the audience for their efforts.

Broadway Lights is the feature act consisting of five people including a male quartette, of course the quartette just kept the audience howling for more and the boys were quite liberal with their encores. The show is one of the best and should not be missed by those seeking some real good entertainment. There will be a continuous performance Saturday from 1.30 to 10.30.

"Neil Hamilton will give every young man who sees him in 'New Brooms' a distinct shock," says William de Mille, noted author-producer-director.

It's because Hamilton portrays in this new de Mille picture the typical youth of today, careless, carefree and extremely thoughtless.

"How many boys stop to think of the sacrifices their dads made to put them through college?" asks de Mille.

"Not many and so in this light comedy Neil Hamilton has done many things. He has portrayed in the early portion a characteristic college boy, bubbling over with good spirits, cigarette smoke and bills. His dad is an after-thought. Pleasure is the thing of the moment—but the most important thing."

This cocksure young man is given a sudden jolt by his clever dad who sees what his boy is headed for. The way in which Neil "pays the price" is very droll, very human and while there are plenty of laughs, there are many tender feelings around one's conscience as he sees it.

Bessie Love, the girl Neil falls madly in love with, is all that has ever been said about her. There is only one diminutive Bessie Love who is so adorable and so feminine. She is the sort of girl, in this picture, who recreates faith in the younger set.

Phyllis Haver completes the trio of players featured in the production, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Friday and Saturday. Clara Beranger wrote the screen play.

Broadway Theater

There is a show at the Broadway theater the last of this week, that everybody who is at all interested in good entertainment is going to see. There are five B. F. Keith acts on the stage with a scenic investiture that is seldom seen. Everyone of the acts proved to be a big hit. The photoplay feature with Lila Lee in The Midnight Girl rounds out the perfect show.

And two features Sunday night. For the first time in the history of motion pictures the alluring atmosphere of Beacon Hill, Boston, has been caught by the camera. It will be shown, on the screen at the Broadway theater, commencing Sunday in a Banner production called The Love Gamble.

The beautiful Lillian Rich is the star.

The story is based on the popular novel by Maysie Greig, titled; Peggy From Beacon Hill.

Here is the touching story of Bohemian life in the careless, artistic center of Boston, from which have come some of the most famous writers and artists of our day.

You'll enjoy every "shot" for they were taken overlooking Boston Commons among the queer little homes on the hill.

The second feature offers William Fairbanks and Eva Novak in The Fearless Love opportunity for real acting.

Watch for Saturday's announcement and remember all seats are 25 cents.

Breed Theater

The most popular cowboy on the screen will again make his bow to the people of Norwich. Harry Carey western star with the reputation of a hard-riding, two-gun actor of ability will be seen today and Saturday at the Breed theater in Beyond the Border.

Like all the Carey stories this is a red blooded story of brave men and cowards who lived out in the great west where men rule by right and the law takes its own course. It is crowded with action to thrill one, romance to thrall one and mystery enough to tingle the blood and make it rush through the veins.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE.

Pursuant to the judgment entered in the matter of Progressive Finance & Realty Co., Inc., v. Morris W. Liebmann, et al by the Superior Court for New London County on October 15, 1925, notice is hereby given that at two o'clock in the afternoon on the 9th day of November 1925, the undersigned will sell at public auction to the highest bidder three certain parcels of and situated in the Town of Lebanon, County of New London, bounded and described as follows, to wit:

First tract, with buildings thereon standing is situated on the southerly side of the highway leading from Lebanon to Colchester and Hebron, bounded northerly by said highway, easterly and southerly by land now or formerly of Edwin Caswell, westerly by land now or formerly of Willis Gardner, Elmer Caples and Van Lombard;

Containing sixty (60) acres more or less, and known as the Daniel Abell Place formerly owned by F. J Brown.

Second tract commencing at the highway at corner of land formerly of F. J Brown, thence running southerly by land last mentioned to the brook; thence turning and running westerly, thence southerly, thence again westerly to a corner; thence again southerly to a Pond by land of D. E. Abell; thence the line runs still in a southerly direction across the Pond to the northeast corner of land formerly of Silas P. Abel; thence running in a westerly course by land last mentioned to land formerly of Samuel Wilcox; thence by said Wilcox land to land formerly of Ralph B. Crocker; thence still in a northwesterly course by land last mentioned to land formerly of D. E. Abell; thence easterly and northerly by land last mentioned to the highway; thence easterly by the highway to the place of beginning;

Containing thirty (30) acres more or less.

Third tract (on which pump house is located) is bounded on the north by Klotic premises, so-called; on the east by said Klotic premises and the highway known as the Hebron Turnpike; south by said Turnpike, and west by Williams Pond, so-called.

Subject to all existing prior encumbrances of record.

The aforesaid sale will be for cash and will be conducted on the premises and will be subject to the approval of the Superior Court for New London County. The successful bidder will be required to deposit with the undersigned ten per centum (10 per cent) of the accepted bid at the time of the sale and the balance of said bid upon the delivery to the purchaser by the undersigned of a good and sufficient deed pursuant to the further order of said Court

MARKET CLOSED UNSETTLED

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—(By the A. P.)—Selling orders for both accounts, thrown into the stock market in large volume just before the close, unsettled prices today after period of strength which was featured by another rapid advance in the motors and specialties. Closing prices displayed considerable irregularity a long list of gains ranging from 1 to 61-2 points being offset by an equally long list of losses ranging from one to nearly 4 1-2 points.

Bullish news was again plentiful. It included the decision of the stock exchange governors to propose the sale of 25 additional seats in order to take care of the unprecedented volume of business; publication of unusually favorable earnings statements by the General Motors, Chrysler, Simmons and other corporations; announcements of increased dividends on the stocks of the American Metal, U. S. Hoffman Machinery and Pennock Oil Company, over-subscription of three large stock issues and continuation of record breaking carloadings.

The usual Thursday rumors about an increase in the New York federal reserve re-discount rate were circulated when the selling was at its height, but they again proved groundless, the rate being maintained at 3 1-2 per cent. Much of the selling is believed to have originated with professional traders, apparently acting on the theory that the advance had been too rapid and that at least a technical reaction was in order.

Chief speculative interest again centered in the motors and accessories, a dozen of which mounted to new high levels for the year, with total sales in that group comprising more than one third of the day's entire volume of business. Chrysler was the sensational feature, soaring nearly 11 points to a new high record at 241 7-8 on publication of reports showing net earnings in the third quarter equivalent to $9.86 a share on the common stock, and then breaking to 234.

General Motors crossed 140 to a new top and then broke to 136 5-8 for a loss of over two points on the day. Studebaker touched a new high at 67 on total sales in excess of 170,000 shares and yielded to 65 3-8 for a net gain of nearly 2 points. Hudson, Pierce Arrow common and preferred, Packard, Fisher Body and Timken Roller Bearing also reached new high ground.

High priced specialties again received strong buying support. General Railway Signal jumped over 10 points to a new high record at 395 1-4 on the announcement of a large volume of new business. National Lead was run up nine points to a new high record at 169. Foundation company and International Business Machines attained new tops at 168 3-4 and 172 3-4, respectively. Sears Roebuck, U. S. Realty, American Bank Note, the Commercial Solvents issues, LaClede Gas and United Fruit showed net gains of 3 to 8 1-2 points.

Pan-American Western which was admitted to trading today after having been dealt in on the curb, opened at 37 1-4, ran up to 47 and then fell back to 43 3-4.

Standard Industrials were reactionary, U. S. Steel common closed fractionally lower at 128 after having sold as high at 129 3-8. American Can showed a net loss of over two points at 251 1-2 and Baldwin yielded fractionally to 122 3-4.

Buying of the rails was of a selective character. Atlantic Coast Line was the outstanding feature, climbing over six points to a record high for all time at 203. Southern Railway, "Nickel Plate" and Western Pacific preferred also reached new high ground, but Chicago and Northwestern, Pacific preferred also reached new high ground, but Chicago and Northwestern, New Haven, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Delaware and Hudson and Missouri Pacific preferred were reactionary.

Call money held steady at 4 3-4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

With the exception of demand sterling, which was slightly lower at $4.84 5-16, most of the foreign exchanges displayed a firmer tone in quiet trading. French francs ruled about 7 points higher around 4.23 1-2 cents and Italian lire advanced nearly four points to around 3.98 cents.

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Friday, Oct. 30, 1925

THE WEATHER
Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Moderate to fresh northwest, probably becoming northeast over south portion and generally fair weather Friday, followed by rain Friday night.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh north and northeast and overcast weather probably rain Friday.

Conditions

The Atlantic coast storm has moved northeastward to Newfoundland with rapidly increasing intensity and the low western disturbance is now over Arizona and New Mexico.

Precipitation has occurred within the last 24 hours in the north Atlantic states.

The temperature has fallen in the Atlantic states and it has remained much below normal in practically all sections east of the Rocky mountains.

There will be much cloudiness Friday over the states east of the Mississippi river and precipitation, mostly light is probable over the greater part of the area. The indications are for mostly fair weather on Saturday. There will be little change in temperature Friday but slowly rising temperature is indicated for the eastern half of the country during Saturday and in the eastern and southeastern states Sunday.

Weather Forecast

Eastern New York: Increasing cloudiness probably followed by light rain or snow on the coast and light snows in the interior Friday; Saturday probably rain with slowly rising temperature.

Northern New England: Generally fair Friday and probably Saturday. Slightly warmer in northern portion Friday.

Southern New England: Increasing cloudiness Friday, possibly rain or snow by Friday night; Saturday probably fair, not much change in temperature.

SUES AUNT'S ESTATE TO RECOVER TRUST FUND OF OVER $14,000

Allegations that a trust fund between $14,000 and $15,000 has been put out of her reach by her aunt, Mrs. Mary Clark, deceased, are made by Maude P. Eddy of New London in a suit brought in the superior court against the administrator of Mrs. Clark's estate. The suit is one of several which were filed Thursday with the clerk of the superior court, all being returnable in November.

Suit against Joseph A. Stanners of New London as administrator of the will of Mary P. Clark of that city, has been brought by Maude P. Eddy of New London, niece of Mrs. Clark, asking $15,000 damages, and judgment that a trust fund of $8,976.70 in the Savings bank of New London, with interest, was created by Mary P. Clark for the benefit of the plaintiff and is now the property of the plaintiff and that the estate of Mary P. Clark has no right or title to. It is also asked that the sum of $5,000 with drawn from this bank on March 5, 1924, and deposited in the Mariners Savings bank be transferred from the estate of Mary P. Clark to this plaintiff or that the administrator, Stanners, restore this $5,000 to the plaintiff.

It is alleged that on June 24, 1922, Mary P. Clark deposited a trust fund of $14,651.70 in the Savings bank of New London, receiving a pass book reading "Mary P. Clark or Maude P. Eddy, payable to either survivor." Of this trust fund it is claimed $5,161 was a special sum given by Emma A. Packer to Mary P. Clark in trust for the plaintiff. The complaint goes on to say that on Dec. 29, 1922, Mary P. Clark created two accounts from the trust fund, one for $10,651.70 in her own name and the other for $4,000 in the joint names of Mary P. Clark and Lizzie Clark Rogers. On Jan. 23, 1923, Mary P. Clark had these two accounts transferred into the name of Mary P. Clark and Maude P. Eddy, from which she wrongfully withdrew the following sums: Feb. 17, 1923, $100; March 5, 1923, $5,000; April 5, 1923, $150; May 22, 1923, $250. The balance, $8,976.70, was transferred June 29, 1923, to a new book in the name of Mary P. Clark, and still remains on deposit in the bank, while the $5,000 withdrawn on March 5, 1923, was on that date deposited in the Mariners Savings bank in the name of Mary P. Clark, it is claimed. The administrator of the Mary P. Clark estate has disallowed the claim by Maude P. Eddy for $14,651.70.

Priest Sues for Damages

Rev. Joseph N. Raniszewski of New London sues for $3,500 damages from John F. Dahlberg of Meriden for personal injuries and for wrecking of his automobile, which, it is claimed, was run into by the automobile driven by defendant. The pastor's car was parked at 7.30 p. m. on June 21, 1926, in front of the Polish rectory of the Immaculate Conception church at Southington when it was hit in the rear by Dahlberg's machine and was driven along the street 168 feet. The clergyman was thrown against the side and steering wheel of his car, his left leg injured and his back twisted and sprained. By reason of his injuries he claims he was incapacitated from performing his clerical duties, at which he earned about $150 a week, and his car, which was worth $800, was a total loss.

Seeks $15,000 Damages

Mrs. Mabel Agnes Ray, whose husband hired and occupied a house from the Ponemah company of Taftville from May, 1923, to Dec. 1924, sues the company for $15,000 on claim that she was made sick by unwholesome water for the house from the company's reservoir. The claim is made that plaintiff became ill from Bright's disease and diseases of the kidneys, was confined to her bed since November, 1924, and will be confined to her bed for a long time, being obliged to expend much money for medical attendance.

Reginald C. Butler of New York city sues Arthur E. James, now or formerly of Flushing, N. Y., to collect a judgment for $1,436.95 and costs of $100, which was obtained in the city court of New York on Dec. 23, 1921. Service has been made upon Arthur F. Libby, garnishee, as executor of the will of Gertrude H. Gale of this city, as the defendant, James, is entitle to a legacy, devise or distributive share in the estate of Gertrude H. Gale, deceased, by virtue of her last will.

LIONS FIRST TO HEAR NEW ORTHOPHONIC VICTROLA

There was a large attendance at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. President William A. Anderson presided at the meeting and the song leader was Secretary Edward Rich. Among the guests were Miss Ruth Putnam Mason, executive director and Miss Jetta Geffen, managing director of the Richard Mansfield Players. As usual the meeting opened with the singing of America, and grace was said by C. Edward Carpenter.

A feature of the meeting was the concert program on the new orthophonic Victrola, given through the courtesy of Max Hanover. Mr. Hanover first played the Soldiers' chorus from Faust with a chorus of forty voices. The selection was heartily applauded by the Lions. As the next record, Mr. Hanover played Collegiate, a beautiful dance rythm wonderfully reproduced. The feature selection was Tripolo-Symphonie March by Creatore's band. The audience was greatly impressed to hear the world's greatest achievement in the realm of recorded and reproduced music, the marvelous reproduction, for the first time in the history of music, of the drum, bass drum and lower range of wood-wind instruments. When the record finished the Lions showed their appreciation with loud and prolonged applause. Max Hanover closed the presentation by saying, "Gentlemen of the Lions, we have now lived to a new epoch in the world's musical accomplishment."

With Pete Ethier at the piano there was the usual program of group and club songs under the direction of Song Leader Ed Rich. Edward McAvoy, manager of the Palace Theatre, introduced the Misses Ruth Putnam Mason and Jetta Geffen of the Richard Mansfield players, and Miss Mason gave an interesting talk relative to the organization and ideals of the Mansfield players. She announced that Robert LeFeur who is well known in the city where he won many friends several years ago when playing in a stock company, is to be the leading man of the Mansfield players, playing opposite Mrs. Richard Mansfield, the leading lady of her company, when they produce their first play here, The Goose Hangs High.

The attendance contest prize, a cigar lighter, donated by Secretary Edward Rich, was awarded to George P. Maddox. The November entertainment committee was announced as follows: Edward McAvoy, George P. Madden and Herbert Cory. The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

FORMER NORWICH BOY INJURED AT UXBRIDGE

Rexford, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Ballou of Uxbridge, Mass., received a broken leg above the angle and numerous bruises and cuts when he was struck by an automobile Saturday afternoon driven by John Anderson of Uxbridge. The boy was taken to the office of Fred C. Goddard, where the fracture was reduced. Four stitches were taken in a cut on the right side and the child also lost several front teeth.

He was in the gutter beside the road in front of his home when the machine hit him. The boy was picked up by Chief James P. Creighton and carried to the office of the physician, before the mother knew of the accident.

The Ballou family formerly lived in this city, where they have many friends who will be sorry to learn of the injury to the boy.

NORWICH BARBERS WILL JOIN PROTEST OVER LAW

The master and journeymen barbers in Norwich have been invited to send delegates to a joint conference of master and journeymen barbers to be held Sunday morning in New Haven. The object of the joint conference will be a discussion and action on the new cosmetic law which goes into effect Monday, November 2nd. This law provides that barbers cannot give shampoos and facial messages to women unless they provide a separate section of their shops with separate entrances for women.

It is felt by the barbers that the law will greatly affect their business. In some quarters it is felt that the law is unconstitutional.

A woman is always perfectly sure that she is right until it comes to backing her opinion with money.

NAMED ON COLLEGE'S COMMITTEE FOR $500,000

Three Norwich persons were named Thursday to membership on the executive committee by George S. Palmer, general chairman; to further the interests of Conn College for Women; the only woman's college in the state.

The Norwich members are Miss Agnes B. Leahy, Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins and James L. Case.

Others who were named to the executive committee which will function for the general citizens' committee of one hundred named recently by Governor John H. Trumbull, chairman, include Viggo E. Bird, New London, treasurer, Edward Mortimer Chapman, New London; Harrison B. Freeman, Hartford; Everett G. Hill, Hartford; President Benjamin Tinkham Marshall, New London; Ernest E. Rogers, New London; Charles T. Treadway, Bristol; Miss Julia Warner New York city and James E. Wheeler, New Haven.

Plans are underway to conduct an effort to raise $500,000 before Christmas for Connecticut college. A statewide organization is now being formed. In event the college attains its quota in the effort the general education board will give the institution $150,000 thus raising the total to $650,000 of which $500,000 will be for endowment.

The general citizens' committee of one hundred also has a generous representation from Norwich. Included among the Norwich persons are Rev. Alexander H. Abbot, Judge Allyn L. Brown Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Grosvenor Ely, John P. Huntingdon, Miss Louise C. Howe, Philip Johnson and Mrs. Joseph H. Selden.

LEADERSHIP COURSE FOR NORWICH SCOUT MASTERS

A leadership training course which will be held one night each week during November and part of December at Scout headquarters was one of the interesting topics discussed Wednesday evening at the meeting of scout leaders. This will be for scoutmasters and older scouts who contemplate leadership and for new men who may take up the work. Other things discussed were Community and Civic good turns, by the troops, mobilization, intertroop visits of officials and scouts, the official scout uniform and other topics.

The men took up constructive work in the scout movement and remained till a late hour planning it. Round tables will be held monthly for the purpose of further developing and handling these problems. The Yale-Maryland football game at New Haven Saturday, November 7, 1925, will be a free game for the scouts. Each year the Yale Athletic association gives one game free to the scouts and Scout Executive Benton asks each troop to provide its own automobiles to transport them.

Many scouts have expressed their desire to go and every troop in the city ought to have a good representation. After refreshments of ice cream and cake, the meeting adjourned.

TOMBSTONE BROUGHT BACK FOR PLACING IN BOZRAH

Dr. Reginald Pelham Bolton of New York city, who some time ago found a tomestone on Riverside Drive in that city and who later, through Arthur L. Peale and Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers of this city, discovered that the stone had come from a grave in Bozrah, has brought the tombstone to Norwich. It has been turned over to the Daughters of the American Revolution here and they will see that the stone is replaced in its original position.

Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers, Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell and Mrs. Arthur Harvey Lathrop are the committee who will see that the stone is replaced. It came from the grave of Charles Crocker, son of Lieut. Jabez Crocker, Jr., an old family residing in Norwich years ago. Just how the tombstone got to Riverside Drive in New York is a mystery.

Given Surprise Shower

A surprise shower was given last week for Miss Melis Shaw at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Shaw, Russell road, by 25 girl friends. A mock marriage was held. Mrs. Anna Addison acting as minister, the bride-groom, Mrs. Dorothy Wilcox, the bride, Mrs. Annie Fetterman, the bridesmaids, Mrs. Kate Cocker, and Mrs. Minnie Armitage. Games and music were enjoyed and later refreshments were served. The bride-to-be received many beautiful gifts including aluminum, linen, pyrex and cut glass.

APPLE WEEK TIME IS NATIONAL EVENT

Annual "Apple Week" this year comes at a time when it holds more significance to both buyers and sellers of apples than usual, according to the state department of agriculture in a statement issued Thursday in connection with the announcement of the date this year of the now famous fruit week, October 29 to November 7. The cause of the greater importance of the annual event this year is the surplus of good apples now available due to the recent wind storms which have resulted in a larger proportion of the native crop having been picked by nature rather than by man.

These apples which were blown from the trees in such quantities by the two recent storms although not suitable for storing, or selling as fancy fruit are, nevertheless, practically as good for immediate use as those which are carefully taken from the trees by hand.

The point is that these apples must be used soon if they are to be used at all, and those who recognize this and buy them freely will not only benefit by the temporary surplus by getting good apples at cheap prices but will also benefit the apple growers and help prevent waste at the same time.

"Apple Week" is an annual national affair when apple growers and dealers generally throughout the country center their efforts especially on reminding buyers that the apple still continues America's best and most important fruit. It is the time when every one is asked to remember once more the now famous time-worn slogan that "An apple a day keeps the doctor away." Even though oranges, peaches, lemons, pears and berries may have periods and uses when they are preferable to other fruits it is still the apple that is the standby in the largest number of dishes, places and periods.

LUTHERANS WILL OBSERVE REFORMATION ANNIVERSARY

Tens of thousands of protestant churches throughout the United States and Canada will celebrate with the Lutheran churches the 408th anniversary of the Protestant reformation. Beginning some years ago Lutheran congregations began the annual observance of Reformation Day on October 31st, or on the Sunday just before or after. It was on that date in 1517 that Dr. Martin Luther, the Friar of Wittenberg, nailed to the church door in that city the famous Ninety-Five Theses protesting certain practices among the clergy and laity of the church of his day. It was an act of bravery and fraught with countless dangers, but it freed men's souls and minds from bondage. Out of that act developed the Protestant Reformation which swept over all Europe, radically changing the viewpoint and habits of the people in religion, education and political dependence. Luther's subsequent declaration at the Diet of Worms has been evaluated by Thomas Carlyle as "the greatest scene of modern European history; the point, indeed, from which the whole subsequent history of civilization takes its rise."

According to Rev. H. Hunsinger, pastor of First Evangelical Lutheran church in this city the Reformation anniversary will be observed at the regular services next Sunday.

A. & P. SUPERINTENDENTS CELEBRATE WINNING CONTEST

About 80 A. & P. managers and superintendents met Wednesday evening at Selias new hall for a banquet to celebrate winning a recent contest with a group of assistant superintendents. Superintendent Robinson's district won by a large increase in business. The following menu was served; fruit punch, little necks on half shell, tomato bisque, broiled sirloin steak, hearts of celery, icebere lettuce, mammoth olives, A & P stringless beans, rolls, ice cream, cake, Bokar coffee, cigars. Songs by the entire company, solos and quartet numbers were enjoyed and address was given by Robert Clougher, vice president of the New England division and general superintendent of the Providence unit. Mr. Clougher spoke in a most interesting way of the great growth of the A. & P. Tea Co., which reaches its 66th anniversary with about 14,000 stores and still more to come. Superintendent R. Gardner was toastmastr in his capable manner and the following superintendents were among the speakers: H. Eastwood, L. Croker and C. Barstab. The men are all ready for another sales contest in which they expect to repeat their usual record of winning the prize.

BENEFIT WHIST AND PINOCHLE EVENING HELD

A successful benefit whist and pinochle was given Wednesday evening at the Buckingham Memorial under the auspices of Mrs. Moles. Those to receive the prizes in pinochle were the following: First ladies, Mrs. Henry Clement, 6,470; Second Mrs. John Moody, 6,380; consolation, Mrs. W. H. Hastedt, 4,570; first gentlemens, James Dwyer, 6,930; second, John Moody, 6,460; consolation, James Shelly, 5,495.

In whist the prizes went as follows: First ladies, Mrs. A. Hastedt; second, Mrs. Peterson; consolation, Mrs. Prodell; first gentlemens, Ed. Sullivan, second, George Robarge; consolation, Frank Devine.

The door prize was awarded to Mrs. McKelvey, and a large cake to Miss Nellie McCarthy.

Music was furnished for dancing by Moore's orchestra.

LAUNDRY WEEK VISITORS ADMIRE TROY LAUNDRY

Hundreds of people have taken advantage of visitors week to inspect the Troy Steam Laundry, the largest laundry in Norwich and conducted by F. Russell Smith, president, and all have remarked most favorably on the efficient management and model cleanliness of the establishment.

All departments of the laundry have been open to public inspection and employes of the concern have been most courteous in showing the visitors about the plant and explaining the intricate machinery hich is used in handling the vast amount of work sent in by families each week.

The first thing noticed in the tour of inspection is the interior finish which is entirely of white, also the dress of the employes which is also of white. The first visit is to the entry room where drivers leave the washings and here are the large tables where girls sort and list the articles. From there they are taken to the washing room where a series of washing machines are installed, each of the automatic shift, alternating the direction of rotation. The next department is the extracting room where the clothes are placed in large cylinders that revolve at a rapid rate of speed and throw the water from the articles placed within.

The next department is the flat work ironing department where large ironers, covered with white canvas are installed. The flat pieces pass between two canvas aprons and the machines, heated by steam, which cannot burn the clothing, quickly dries and irons them.

The next department to be visited is the starching department where clothing is dried in sanitary rooms. The collar machines are most interesting, thousands of collars hanging on a belt driven chain, being seen passing through the starching machines, into the drying machines and from there into large baskets.

The dampening department has a sprinkler system and in drying room the large tumblers, heated by steam, are noticed. These tumblers have a fan device and when the clothes are dried the power reverses action and fresh air is blown through the clothing thus giving them a fresh, clean smell.

The next place visited is the demonstration table where the services are shown and demonstrations given to show how dirt is taken from clothing. The laundry uses Lux for soap and Oakite as a water softener.

Other departments visited are the ironing departments where hand work is used, and finally the sorting department, where all articles are again sorted, listed and placed in the proper bundles for return to their owners. Larger pieces, such as blankets and rugs are noticed in the trip and are carefully handled.

The final visit is to the main office of the company where each visitor receives a card which entitles them, if they so desire, to send a washing to the laundry during the week of November 2 to 6th, when it will be done at half price.

All visitors enjoyed the trip through the laundry and expressed pleasure at the service rendered by the company, also remarking at the modern methods used in service and the efficient workmanship of the employes. It was also explained to them that the Troy is a member of the National Laundry Owners association, which maintain a $1,000,000 laundry at Joliet, Ill., solely for the purpose of experiments, and also maintains a fellowship at the Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh. This membership permits the Troy to submit all laundry problems to the association for expert opinions and permits a speedy adaptation of the most modern laundry methods.

GIVEN LEADING PARTS IN AMERICAN LEGION PLAY

The leading parts for Princess Bonnie, an American Spanish comic opera, vehicle of Frank Daniels, to be presented b. Fletcher post, American Legion, were assigned Thursday night, the cast including many of the young people of the city who have made names for themselves in local productions.

Princess Bonnie is to be played by Mrs. Walter Buckingham, who played the lead in The Glorious Girl, while Miss Eunice Taft, leading lady in Bimbo, will play the part of Kitty Clover. J. Warren Kane, leading man in Bimbo will play the part of Roy Sterling and Frank Crowell will be Captain Tarpaulin. The other principal parts have been assigned with Mrs. Myra Frink Ward as Auntie Crobbe, and Miss Mary Prodell will represent Donna Pomposa. Herbert McNeely has been selected for the part of Admiral Pomposo, William Mitchell picked for the part of Shrimps, Walter LaFontaine for Faicetti, George Madden for the character of Salvadore and Harry Bowers as Captain Surf. Miss Gertrude Platt has again been selected for accompanist.

Work on the chorus of fifty voices is starting and new members are appearing nightly at the rehearsals. All indications are that the play will be a great success and the advance sale of tickets is an indication of support and satisfaction on the part of the public, built up through plays preceeding Princess Bonnie.

Lebanon Dog Owners Fined

Twenty-four owners of dogs in Lebanon were fined in Judge Kinnaird's court last week on charges of not having license tages on the collars of their dogs. The fine was $1 and costs amounting to $14.15 in each case. They were summoned to court on complaint brought by Dog Warden Clark Stendt of Lebanon and Chauncey B. Jennings an attache of the state department of domestic animals.

L. OF N. IS STRIVING TO BE AN EFFECTIVE FOE OF WAR

Council Has Decided That Henceforth the League Will Become the Medium For Settlement of All Disputes and That War Must Cease—Austen Chamberlain Asserts That if It Does Not All Nations Will Perrish From the Earth—Locarno Security Pact is Bearing Fruit—Talk Renewed in Paris of the Formation of a United States of Europe.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Internationalism is opposed to extreme nationalism—an internationalism which will be based in moments of war peril on some surrender of state sovereignty,—was given new strength today by the League of Nations.

Completing the work of its special session quickly adjusting the crisis between Greece and Bulgaria, the task for which it was convoked, the council of the League, passing on to greater issues, practically wrote the second chapter of a modern history of which the Locarno security treaties with Germany constituted the first chapter.

This second chapter is that henceforth the League of Nations becomes the machinery for the settlement of all disputes and that war must cease, because, as Austen Chamberlain the British foreign secretary said, if it does not all nations will perish from the earth.

Obeying the covenant of the League, Greece and Bulgaria, by agreeing to submit their quarrel to the mediation of the council, set a precedent which, Mr. Chamberlain warned, must be followed by all. Britain's foreign secretary even went so far as to add that any menace of war anywhere concerns all the members of the league.

The international backing given the league, with two great powers, France and Great Britain, taking the leadership, has created a profound impression in Paris, and has started anew tonight talk of the formation of a United States of Europe, the idea which Mr. Lloyd George vainly tried to launch at the Genoa conference.

It also has convinced statesmen that Europe's power, economically, financially and politically, working through the league will become greater because it will be concentrated instead of divided by jealousies and rivalry.

Another feature of today's council meeting which is causing tremendous interest was the intervention of Viscount Ishii of Japan, who expressed the hope that security pacts like those of Locarno will multiply in other parts of the world. There is considerable speculation tonight as to whether Japan would like to see elaborated a Pacific security pact which would include the United States and would be broader in scope than the Washington four-power agreement which replaced the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

It is recalled that inter-continental pacts were favored by the Latin-American states during the last assembly of the league.

The death of the Geneva peace protocol, it is pointed out, leaves Japan only with that protection afforded by the league covenant.

THREE MEN PROSECUTED FOR CAUSING GIRL'S DEATH

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Oct. 30—The dying declaration of Madge Oberholtzer, after certain deletions, will be admitted in evidence tomorrow in the trial of D. C. Stephenson, Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck for first degree murder.

It is the state's ace in the prosecution of the trio in connection with the girl's death.

Judge Will M. Sparks announced today, after listening to defense objections to admission of the statement, that he will decide tomorrow what parts of the document may be admitted.

"There is no question," he said, "but that the dying declaration ought to go in, though there are some things in it which are not competent and ought to be stricken."

Three witnesses who testified today for the state helped to build up claims of authenticity for the document. They were Asa J. Smith, Griffith G. Dean and Ermina Moore, all of whom were present, they said, when Miss Oberholtzer signed the statement. It was drawn up, their testimony showed, by Smith an Indianapolis attorney, from notes taken by him and Miss Moore and from his own recollections of Madge's story. The signing took place March 28, eleven days after the girl was brought home suffering from injuries and self-administered poison, after the alleged abduction to Hammond and her assault. She died April 10.

Both Smith and Dean were cross-examined by Eph Inman, chief defense counsel. He sought to show that they had gone to the office of Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, and had offered to "settle the case" with him, first for $100,000 then for $50,000 and then for $25,000 and finally for $10,000.

Both denied any part in such a scheme.

The defense attempted a coup early in the day's session by moving for dismissal of the case and halting of the submission of evidence, on the ground that remarks of the court to the counsel and jury Thursday had prejudiced the case of the defendants. The court overruled the motion, but gave the defense thirty days to file a bill of exceptions.

ADVISES RETENTION OF THE INHERITANCE TAX

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—(A. P.)—The house ways and means committee was advised today by Professor Edwin R. A. Seligman, economist of Columbia university, to retain the inheritance tax, at reduced rates, and to cut the income rates on low incomes rather than exempt these taxpayers entirely.

Questioned by democratic committee members, Mr. Seligman and Professor Thomas S. Adams of Yale, who testified yesterday and was recalled today both opposed proposals to extend the period for payment of the national debt from 25 to 62 years with a view to making greater reductions in taxes now.

Mr. Adams declared it was "inconceivable that the European debtor nations will continue regularly their debt payments for 62 years, anyway," and they thought that the debts of all these nations would tempt them eventually into war against the United States.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The Nickel Plate merger hearing was ended.

Negotiations were begun for a rum treaty with Cuba.

Mayor Kenrick asked President Coolidge to allow Brigadier General Butler to continue as Philadelphia's police head.

Colonel Mitchell pleaded not guilty at his court-martial and his counsel is considering calling President Coolidge.

COOLIDGE EXPECTS SARGENT TO REMAIN IN THE CABINET

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—Taking note of recent political gossip that Attorney General Sargent was preparing to resign to run for the senate, white house officials asserted today that President Coolidge expected to remain in the cabinet for a long while.

The president is well pleased with his selection of Mr. Sargent, especially in view of his opinion that the attorney general's office should be filled by a man not recruited from political ranks and should be kept free of partisanship as far as possible.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Tax on Gasoline in Cuba

HAVANA, Oct. 30—(AP)—Since the inauguration of a tax on gasoline five months ago, the Texas Indian Oil Refining company has paid the government $423,609. This announcement was made yesterday. The gas tax revenues will be used in building roads.

MRS. ANNE U. STILLMAN SUES FOR AN ABSOLUTE DIVORCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Complete secrecy tonight surrounded the facts involved in the report that Mrs. Anne U. Stillman had brought suit for absolute divorce against James A. Stillman, the banker, who failed in his long efforts to divorce her within the past five years.

So shrouded with mystery was the relationship between Mrs. Stillman and her husband become that it led to widely divergent reports today in circles which had followed the domestic tangle of the couple. One held that Mrs. Stillman had begun divorce action in Westchester county, another that the banker and his wife were on the verge of a reconciliation and still a third that the divorce action had been started when efforts at a reconciliation had failed.

The principals in the case and their legal representatives either could not be reached or declined to deny or affirm any of the conflicting information.

"The report that Mrs. Stillman has filed suit for divorce is unauthorized," said Isaac N. Mills, counsel for the banker's wife during her husband's unsuccessful suit when he charged that Fred K. Beauvais, a French-Canadian Indian guide was the father of Guy Stillman. "I do not feel called upon to deny or confirm something I know nothing about. Merely because an active imagination has caused publication of such stories is no reason why it should be necessary for me to issue a statement on the subject."

D. Gordon Flannery of Beacon, N. Y., an associate of Judge Mills also declined to discuss the case further. Mr. Flannery recently returned from a hunting trip in Canada which carried him within 20 miles of Grand Anse, Quebec, the Canadian home of Mrs. Stillman. Within the past week he denied that he had seen Mrs. Stillman on that trip or that he had any knowledge of an impending divorce suit against Mr. Stillman.

"I haven't seen Mrs. Stillman for fully a year and a half," he said, "and as far as I know the report is not true."

No notice of action has been filed in Westchester county where the case presumably would be tried, but under the court procedure in these counties it would not be necessary to file the papers until the eve of the first hearing.

Cornelius J. Sullivan, counsel for Mr. Stillman, would not discuss the case, referring all question to Mr. Stillman whose whereabouts he declined to reveal. The banker is said to be spending a week at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., on a golfing tri.

Mrs. Stillman is at her Canadian home in complete isolation, the nearest telephone being 30 miles away.

The report that a reconciliation is in prospect was said to come from friends close to Mr. Stillman, but also lacked confirmation. It was said that efforts to patch up the differences between the couple began when both appeared at the wedding last spring of their daughter, Anne to Henry P. Davison, Jr.

WORKING FOR RETENTION OF BUTLER IN PHILADELPHIA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—President Coolidge is giving consideration to the request of Mayor Kendrick of Philadelphia, and others that Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler be granted an additional leave of absence to remain as director of public safety in Philadelphia, but he is giving little encouragement to those making the appeals. He has not received any opinion from his advisers to support a further extension.

Mayor Kendrick's request, which has been awaited by the president before preparing for a definite decision on the question, was made personally today at the white house. No indication was given afterwards as to when the president expected to reach a decision.

When Mayor Kendrick appeared at the white house today his audience with the president was delayed until Secretary Wilbur and Major General Lejeune, commandant of the marine corps and General Butler's commandant officer, could be summoned to the executive office, together with Senator Swanson and Representative Vinson, ranking democrats on the senate and house naval committees, and Chairman Madden of the house appropriations committee.

While the president sympathizes with the desire of Mayor Kendrick to have a seasoned man at the head of his police department during the celebration of the city's sesqui-centennial next year, he has in mind the letter he wrote to the mayor last year when he granted a one-year extension of the general's leave after he had been in charge of the Philadelphia force for a like period. In that letter, the president said he did not approve of use of military men for police duty, and expressed the hope that Mayor Kendrick would see fit to release the general at the end of this year if not before.

Secretary Wilbur and General Lejeune have consistently declined to discuss the proposals for extension of General Butler's leave, holding that the question was one solely for decision at the white house. Senator Swanson and others who attended the conference at the white house, opposed further leave of absence for General Butler.

BIGAMIST PREFERS ELECTRIC CHAIR TO PAYING ALIMONY

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—Henry Weiss, a white-bearded octogenarian, alleged to have two wives, today asked supreme Court Justice MacCrate to sentence him to the electric chair "to end this thing," rather than pay $5 a week alimony to his second wife, Lena, 59.

"Kill me, judge. Send me to the electric chair," Weiss shouted. "Let's have this thing over with now. It will make matters a lot easier."

The justice gravely considered the request, then admitted "he couldn't do that much." He advised Weiss to make his payments regularly, however.

TWENTY MEN TRAPPED IN MINE IN WEST VIRGINIA

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 30—(A. P.)—Four men are reported to have been burned to death in a fire which was sweeping through the workings of the Constanza Coal company's mine at Warwood, near here, tonight.

Upwards of twenty men are believed to have been trapped in the mine. An official of the company said no check-up had yet been made on the number of men supposed to be working in the pit. Some are reported to have reached the surface but he said four of them were believed dead. Rescue workers have been unable to make much headway because of the fire. Its cause has not been determined.

SUPT. OF ORPHANAGE HELD FOR CRIMINAL ASSAULT

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—(A. P.)—Wilson Johnson, superintendent of the Long Island Baptist Orphanage, was held in $25,000 bail for the grand jury today on charges of criminal assault, after examination before Magistrate Eriperin in Coney Island court.

Elizabeth Sullivan, 15, complaining witness, testified that Johnson had posed as a prophet, giving girls in the institution horoscopes of their future. She said Johnson had gained her confidences through his prophesies. He approached her five times, she testified.

Johnson's wife, who was in court with him, expressed confidence in his innocence.

LIVELY SESSION OF COL. MITCHELL COURT MARTIAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The brief but lively session held today by the court martial sitting in judgment on Colonel William Mitchell, charged with conduct prejudicial to military order and discipline in violation of the 96th article of war, accomplished little today beyond putting the air officer's pleas of "not guilty" in the record and denying him the "bill of particulars" he had requested.

During the time the court was in session, from 10:25 to 11:30 a. m., however, word was circulated that Colonel Mitchell had under advisement the making of a request that he be confronted in court by his accuser, meaning either President Coolidge, secretary of War Dwight Davis, or both. This report was confirmed later by his civilian counsel, Representative Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, who said late tonight that he still was open minded about the question and would not decide definitely until Monday, when the court is reassembled.

The court's proceedings today were enlivened by sharp passages between Mr. Reid and Colonel Sherman Moreland, trial judge advocate. These were precipitated by the defense request for the bill of particulars, which Colonel Moreland had indicated yesterday he would prepare, and assertions by Mr. Reid that the charges also drawn were so vague, broad and indefinite that he could not properly prepare Colonel Mitchell's defense. The recess until Monday was another surprise in the day's proceedings but was taken up on recommendation of both counsellors, who wished in the interim to examine three witnesses who had arrived from Texas.

Colonel Mitchell's pleas of "not guilty" were made with the officer standing, smiling and repeating firmly his negative response to each of the charges and specifications. Mrs. Mitchell sat at his side at the time. When the accused was recessed, she leaned forward, clasped her husband's hand in a grasp that remained unbroken for the while. Another touch of sentiment between the accused officer and his wife took place later when they separated for the first time since the trial began, Mrs. Mitchell to go over the week-end on a hurried visit to her baby ino Detroit and the colonel to remain in Washington under technical arrest forbidding his departure from the city.

YESTERDAY'S SNOW STORM COVERED A WIDE AREA

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—A driving combination of snow and rain today swirled into the metropolitan area, spoiling the earliest official snow fall in this city on record. The previous early record was Nov. 9, 1892.

The storm left its trail of snow in an area extending north to southern New England and south to Pennsylvania. All New York state and New York state and New Jersey experienced abnor al atmospheric conditions. A four inch snow fall was reported at Oswego, on Lake Ontario.

A glum forecast for football enthusiasts who expect to attend scores of gridiron contests in the east tomorrow was offered tonight by the weather man: "Cloudy skies. Possibly rain or snow," was his prediction.

Snow fell over a wide area in Pennsylvania.

Airing the Scandal of Maine State Prison

Decision Reached at Special Cabinet Meeting to Consider the Syrian Situation.

THOMASTON, Me., Oct. 30—(A. P.)—William R. Pattangall, who ran on an anti-klan platform against Governor Ralph O. Brewster last September, will call witnesses next Monday to refute charges of lax discipline and favoritism to Roman Catholic inmates of the state prison here, which have been the subject of an investigation by the governor and his council. Mr. Pattangall is counsel for Warden Lester D. Eaton of the prison.

The governor and his council, together with the prison commission concluded today the examination of witnesses who had signed affidavits telling of alleged laxity in the prison and after a conference it was decided to permit Mr. Pattangall to call his own witnesses. There was no definite statement as to who these witnesses might be, but it was believed that women convicts, accused of intimacy with men prisoners, who were alleged to have had access to their cells while they were in solitary confinement, would be among those heard.

Three of the women prisoners today sent a letter to Warden Eaton, denying the charges made yesterday by Chaplain Percy J. Clifford, a Methodist minister, and declaring the chaplain was the only man in the prison who ever had "insulted" them.

They charged that the chaplain was "too free with his hands" and that he had made improper remarks. Rev Clifford vigorously denied this charge and said he hoped his wife, the matron, would be called to substantiate his statements in regard to the prisoners.

Chaplain Clifford was recalled to the stand today and admitted that relations between himself and the warden were not of the friendliest. He declared that the warden always seemed "to have the attitude of suspicion and dislike."

Most of the witnesses today refused to tell who actually had drawn up the affidavits they had signed, although some of them said it was Clarence Johnson of Rockland, said to be a local Ku Klux Klan leader. Joseph L. Paquin, who has been the prison clerk the past five years, told of meeting Governor Brewster in Augusta after an appointment had been by Johnson and A. W Gregory, also reported to be a Rockland klan leader.

Ernest Hilt, a guard on the prison wall, had declared in his statement that all of the members of the convict governing body were Catholics. Mr. Pattangall brought out, however, that Hilt was not sure of this fact from personal acquaintance with the men and the witness also said, under cross-examination that all of the prisoner monitors, the number of whom he did not know, were Catholics as set forth in his statement.

GIANT POWER SYSTEMS AN ECONOMIC MISTAKE

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 30—(A. P.)—The movement for "giant power systems was declared to be "an economic mistake" by Byron E. White, of Utica, N. Y., here today.

Mr. White represented the Mohawk Valley Engineering club at the annual meeting of the administrative board of American Engineering council. The board decided to appoint a committee to investigate the giant power report sponsored by Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, so that "the public might not be misled."

The investigation was urged by Dean Dexter S. Kimball of Cornell University, I. E. Moulthrop of Boston, Dr. Harrison E. Howe of Washington and Professor C. E. Scott of Yale university.

Among other things, the board voted to press a nation-wide campaign for reorganization of the department of the interior and made known that a bill providing changes in the department will be introduced in the next congress.

The measure asks that a division of public works be set up in the interior department, with an assistant secretary of the interior in charge.

KEGS OF WHISKEY BILLED AS "LUBRICATING OIL."

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Billed as "lubricating oil," fifteen small kegs, or about 158 gallons of what was said to be whiskey, were seized on an express wagon this afternoon by customs men under Deputy Collector Frank Gallagher. The shipment was from the Economy Lubricating company of Boston to the De Roller Carting company of this city. The carting company denied all knowledge of it. Mr. Gallagher said a constant watch has been kept on shipments from this firm in Boston and the customs men here were tipped off.

French Gen. Sarrail Recalled From Syria

Women Inmates Have Charged That the Chaplain Has Been "Too Free With His Hands."

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The cabinet, in special session tonight to consider the situation in Syria, decided to invite General Sarrail, the French high commissioner in Syria, to come to Paris for the purpose of explaining in detail the recent events in Damascus and the surrounding country.

There have been persistent reports the last few days of the likelihood of General Sarrail being displaced as high commissioner, for the authorities have made no secret of their displeasure over the manner in which he has reported on the trouble between the French and the Syrian tribesmen.

At the close of the cabinet council tonight, the remark of M. Schramneck, minister of the interior, to the newspaper correspondents, was interpreted as indication that the recall of General Sarrail is not unlikely.

He said: "The most elementary discretion commands us to first inform the interested parties of the decisions and measures of which they have been the object before the press is permitted to publish them."

General Maurice Nollet, former minister of war and at one time chief of the French military mission in Berlin, is being prominently mentioned as General Sarrail's successor in the Syrian post.

REVIEW SHOWS BUSINESS IN NEW ENGLAND GOOD

BOSTON, Oct. 30—(AP)—Further though moderate improvement had taken place in the business situation in New England during recent weeks, says the monthly review of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston. The September figure of the New England business activity index, calculated by this bank to measure the general level of activity in the leading trades and industries of New England, was the highest since the early part of 1923.

"Speaking in general terms," the review continues, 'it may be said that business in New England, so far as volume at least is concerned, is good. Shoe production has shown considerable improvement in this district in the past three months and September output was the largest for the year to date, and larger than the same month of either of the two previous years.

"The consumption of raw cotton by New England mills during September was slightly larger than in August but was considerably greater than in September last year and closely approached the consumption of September, 1923. The woolen textile industry is not as active as the cotton textile industry. The consumption of wool by New England mills during September was slightly greater than in August but less than in the corresponding month of either of the two previous years.

"In spite of the approach of cold weather the building industry remains very active. Contracts awarded in September were approximately e qual to those of August and very much larger than at this time a year ago.

"Shipments of merchandise by New England railroads reached a new high volume for the year late in September. Car loadings have averaged higher than in the corresponding period a year ago ever since last January.

"October was a very good month for retail trade. Boston department stores reported that their sales during the first three weeks of the month were 15 per cent larger than in the first three weeks of October last year. Sales for the entire month of September were also above those of the corresponding month a year ago, as a result of a large volume of charge business. Charge sales have been relatively better than cash sales each month of this year. Instalment sales have shown large increases when compared with those of last year, the gain in September, for example mounting to 78 per cent.

"Money rates have strengthened further, and the volume of loans made for commercial purpose increased sharply in October."

THEFT OF $30,000 WORTH OF JEWELRY IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Oct. 30—(A. P.)—Two black leather sample cases containing $30,000 worth of jewelry were stolen from a hand truck on the sidewalk in front of E. J. Brown, jewelry, at 214 Asylum stret this afternoon, according to a complaint made to the police by William N Peale, a traveling salesman employed by Strobell and Case, Inc., of Newark, N. J. The theft took place when "Patsy" Kenney, of 121 Pearl street, a porter who earns a living by transporting salesmen's cases, went into a lunch room on Asylum street, to buy a cup of coffee.

Norwich Suburban Day

Through cooperative efforts on the part of nearly 70 merchants of Norwich today has been designated Suburban day and special trading opportunities will be provided for the people in the eastern part of the state.

Norwich stores have established an enviable reputation in connection with such events and careful buyers understand the wisdom of taking advantage of the chance to supply their wants under such favorable conditions.

Goods of quality, excellent value and up to date in style will be offered by the well stocked stores where good service can be anticipated.

Suburban day is another one of the days for the thrifty. There are few days when a dollar will go as far or accomplish as much.

Trade Today. Trade Early. Trade in Norwich.

LATEST RETURNS FROM ELECTIONS IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 30—(A. P.)—The conservative party, with Arthur Meighan as its leader, which made decided gains in the parliamentary elections held throughout Canada yesterday, is still short six seats to assure it an absolute majority in the next house of commons. This is shown by the returns tued tonight, which give the conservatives 117 seats and the liberals 97, with the result in eight constituencies still undoubtful.

From present indications it is not likely that Mr. Meighan will get a clear majority. Should he fail to do so it is quite probable that the present government, headed by Premier MacKenzie King, will decide to meet parliament instead of presenting its resignation.

Premier King has announced his intentio nof discussing the situation with the governor-general before making any announcement of his intentions.

At 8 o'clock tonight the standing of the parties was as follows: Conservatives 117 seats; liberal 97; progressive 20; labor 3; independent 1; doubtful 8. Total 245

Among the doubtful seats is the unusual one of a tie. In this case the returning officer will have the right to cast a deciding vote. The defeated candidate, however, would still have the right to apply to a local judge for a recount, and if the recount shows another tie, the returning officer will again have the right to a deciding vote.

(A returning officer is appointed in each district to make a report to the government on the outcome of the election in the district.)

CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD THE U. S. GOV'T

Col. Thomas W. Miller, Former Alien Property Custodian, Involved With Four German and Swiss Citizens and Three German and Swiss Corporations—Indictment Concerns Release of About $7,000,000 Assets of the American Metal Company, Representing the Sale of a 49 Per Cent. Alleged Enemy Interest.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (AP)—Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, four German and Swiss citizens and three German and Swiss corporations were indicted today by a special federal grand jury of charges of conspiracy to defraud the United States government.

The indictments involve the release by the custodian of about $7,000,000 of sequestered assets of the American Metal company—representing the sale of a 49 per cent. alleged enemy interest—to pretended Swiss owners.

In its report the grand jury declared that Miller, John T. King, former Republican national committeeman from Connecticut, and the late Jesse Smith, confidant of Attorney General Daugherty, arranged the transfer with the foreign defendants in consideration of payment to them of $391,000 of the recovered assets.

King appeared before the jury and waived immunity, the statement said, although named as a conspirator, he was not indicted.

Miller is expected to appear for arraignment before Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow Wednesday. Although invited to appear before the grand jury during its deliberations, Miller declined, Hiram C. Todd, special assistant attorney general, prosecuting the case, declared today.

Other defendants indicted today were Richard Merton of Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, president of the Metallgesellschaft and former captain in the German army; Alfred Merton of Frankfort-on-Main, president of the Metallbank; Leopold Du Bois of Basel, Switzerland, president of the Swiss bank of Basel; Fitz-Zahn Geigy of Basel, Switzerland, president of the Societe Swisse Four Valeurs de Meteaux; the Metall-Gesellschaft, a German corporation of Frankfort-on-Main; the Metallbank of Frankfort-on-Main and the Societe Swisse Four Valeurs de Meteaux, a Swiss corporation of Basel.

The following statement was issued today by Colonel Miller's counsel, Robert S. Johnstone:

"The charge against Colonel Miller is entirely without foundation. Colonel Miller, however, does not intend to try the case in the newspapers. The charge will be met and answered in open court and the facts will be brought out.

"The records of the department of justice itself show that the action of the alien property custodian with reference to the return of the property turned over by the American Metals company was entirely proper. The department of justice itself passed upon the claim and allowed it.

"Colonel Miller invites the most searching investigation of his administration of the office of alien property custodian. The investigation, however, should be conducted openly and publicly, and by persons who are actuated by a desire to ascertain the truth."

On Oct. 1, 1921, it is alleged that Merton paid $391,000 of the $7,000,000 total returned to him by the United States to Thomas W. Miller, John T. King and Jesse Smith in the Waldorf Astoria hotel. The Mertons, controlling the Swiss Metals society, received the money from the treasury of the United States when Miller authorized the sale of 49 per cent. of the stock in the American Metal company and turned this money over to the Mertons through their Swiss society.

During the grand jury investigation which was conducted by Hiram C. Todd and Clifford Byrnes, special assistant attorney generals, many persons connected with recent government inquiries appeared. Roxie Stinson, wife of the late Jesse Smith, came from Columbus, Ohio, to testify concerning the alleged transfer of liberty bonds by Smith to a bank controlled by Harry S. Daugherty in Washington courthouse, Ohio.

Gaston B. Means, former federal agent, was brought to New York from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., and was in the grand jury room, but Mr. Todd said today that he did not testify.

Mal Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general, also testified.

Miller, a native of Wilmington Delaware, held several state positions there before he was appointed alien property custodian March 17, 1921. He held that office until March 17 of this year. He was formerly head of the Fiduc, an inter-allied war veterans' organization with headquarters in Paris.

United States District Attorney Emory R. Buckner declined to say whether his office had any further leads which might result in further prosecution of other individuals in connection with acts of the alien property custodian's office.

THE TRIAL OF MILLER TO BE PRESSED VIGOROUSLY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30. (AP)—The indictment at New York today of Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, concluded an investigation which was begun shortly after Harlan F. Stone succeeded M. Daugherty as attorney general.

Department of justice officials declared tonight that the government case, directed by Hiram C. Todd, of New York, as a special assistant attorney general, was in shape for immediate trial and that the prosecution would be pressed vigorously.

The naming of several foreigners in the indictment will not deter or handicap the prosecution, officials declared, it being the government's intention to proceed against all members of the alleged conspiracy over whom its courts have jurisdiction whether reference to others who, as long as they remain on foreign soil, may be able to keep out of the reach of the American law.

Even if the foreigners are able to evade trial at this time, the indictments will remain on the records and they will have to stay away from America or face the accusations when they come to this country. The possibility arises, therefore, that some of them will come to the United States to fight the case, officials pointing out that Richard and Alfred Merton, for instance, have extensive business interests necessitating visits to this country.

SAW "DUTCH" ANDERSON ON NEW YORK CENTRAL TRAIN

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 30—(A. P.)—A man identified as George (Dutch) Anderson, notorious criminal suspected of complicity in the Bank of Buffalo auto robbery on Thursday, was seen on a New York Central train between Rochester and Syracuse, according to information telephoned to Detective Chief Higgins by the Syracuse police tonight.

Chief Higgins at once notified the police of cities to the east of Syracuse to look out for the train and to search each car. He would not express an opinion as to the plausability of the clue.

The report to the Syracuse police was given by a man whose name was not transmitted to the Buffalo police. He stated that he recognized one of the passengers as one of the bandits whose picture appeared to the left of a row of suspects appearing in the Buffalo Express. This picture was that of Dutch Anderson.

The desperate character of the gang, which killed two bank messengers and stole $98,000 in the boldest robbery in the history of Buffalo, was further attested by the finding late yesterday afternoon of two weapons that had been abandoned by them.

One of the weapons was a double barreled shot gun using twelve gauge shot. The other was a freak rifle. It folded so that it could be carried easily in a grip. The handle is a triangular piece of steel shaped like an ordinary rifle handle. It has two barrels, which discharge simultaneously the upper firing a .22 calibre bullet and the lower a .44 calibre.

FRANCE TO SEND A NEW AMBASSADOR TO THE U. S.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Senator Victor Henry Berenger, noted French financial authority, it became known today from an unquestionable source, is soon to be appointed French ambassador to the United States, succeeding Emile Daeschner. The choice of M. Berenger, for the post is still an "official secret," knowledge of the government's intention being confined to a narrow circle.

WILLIMANTIC

Wet snow Friday, the first of the season, covered the top of stationary objects with a light white blanket. The temperature rose to a mild degree after a cold snap Thursday evening.

Friday's short calendar session of the Windham county superior court, held in this city was a busy one. The attorneys present were asked to arrange for jury cases to be heard either in Putnam or in this city, at the opening of the court. Judge Edwin C. Dickenson was on the bench. Most of the interested parties in jury cases are residents of the eastern extremity of the county. The Putnam attorneys hold out to have their cases tried in that city. There is only one Willimantic action assigned to jury, that of Frank Ladone vs. Daniel F. Dunn, et al. Attorney Frank H. Foss stated for the defendant that there was a prospect that a settlement might be reached. Attorney Charles L. Torrey for the defense, informed the court that in the case of Edward J. Keegan vs. the Town of Thompson et als, judgment in accordance with the recent decision of the supreme court in favor of Keegan was acceptable to the town of Thompson and the acceptance was so entered by the court.

The case of Brown of Bigelow vs. Nichols & Klnopsoki, a motion that bonds in the amount of $75 be ordered for prosecution, was taken up. The bonds were ordered by the court for return in two weeks.

In the case of Salem Trading and Finance company vs. Joseph La Flame defendant did not put in an appearance and judgment was rendered for the plaintiff to recover.

Judge Dickenson ordered the case of Dute Wilcox Flint, Inc., vs. Rosoff Motor Sales company to stand for assignment at the next short calendar session of court.

The plaintiff was awarded $6,477.18, the amount of foreclosure with interest, in the case of Alden Tillinghast, vs. Florence M. Hopkins, E. Fitch Johnson and Harry W. Clarke, foreclosure of mortgage, a hearing on limitation.

Judgment was rendered for the plaintiff to recover the amount of the bill of $218.24 in the case of Asher B. Holmes vs. Francis Wood, a bill for painting sundries.

The case of Eleanor T. Ford vs. The Community Hotel corporation was declared off the list.

At the close of the short calendar the attorneys in the case of Charles H. Kline vs. Lucy C. Jarvis Smith made brief arguments. Judge Dickenson took the papers in the case and reserved his decision.

Assignments of cases for next week were made as follows: Tuesday, Nov. 3; first, Frank A. Phillips vs. James W. Baker; second, Sylvester Pelechatz vs. Stafo Shimansky; Wednesday, Nov. 4, first, John Romanoff vs. Lena Sabina and Elisha P. Sabins; second, Haskel Rosen vs. James E. Randall; third, William R. Chandler vs. Charles Lavalley; Thursday, Nov. 5, first, Frederick E. Payne vs. Oscar F. Arnio; second, David P. Ahern vs. Cassius A. Barstow; third, Kosma Dubina vs. John Stanczyk; Tuesday, Nov. 10, first, John A. Ordway vs. William A. addad; second, The Putnam Land and Mills company, appeal from the ... l of Relief of the Town of Putnam; Wednesday, Nov. 11, John Zu... et al vs, Michael Piasrko et als; ... day, Nov. 17, first, Walter P. Lathrop admr, estate of Sarah E. Dorrance vs. N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad ... ny; second, Walter P. Lathrop, ... estate of Henry Dorrance vs. N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. Co. (to be ... Putnam); Wednesday, Nov. 18, ... Ellen Cooney Callahan's appeal from ... robate, estate of Daniel Cooney; ... Steamship Fuel corporation vs. ... Saad et al.

Four cases assigned to be heard in Putnam Thursday, November 19 are as order: Joseph C. Fournier vs. William Dragon; Lida Fournier vs. William Dragon; James H. McGovern vs. William Dragon and Margaret McGovern vs. William Dragon. The case of Max Udel' Sons vs. Charles Seder will be the first for Tuesday, November 24, and second on that date will be that of Teresa Angelo vs. City of Putnam.

The case of Arthur E. Howard Jr., trustee in Bankruptcy, estate of G. Harold Gilpatric vs. Rose Levine will be heard following the short calendar session November 29. The case of Frank Ladone vs. Daniel P. Dunn et al has been assigned for jury on Tuesday, November 17, but it is expected by the attorneys that it will be settled out of court. Court adjourned at noon until Tuesday, November 3, at 10 a. m.

N. C. Hanks, noted sightless and handless lecturer and entertainer is to be heard at a public meeting at the Methodist Episcopal church, it was stated Friday by the pastor, Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead. Mr. Hanks comes here on recommendaation of Richard C. Cabot, professor of social ethics at Harvard and Radcliffe colleges and W. N. Ferris, president of Ferris Institute, Big Rapids, Michigan. His lectures ring with optimism which has been nationally admired in a man suffering the physical handicaps of loss of sight and both arms. America, Hope of the World, is his general topic.

The student body support of Windham high school football team was strongly urged at the Lyceum gathering of the school students Friday forenoon. Appeals for a record attendance at Recreation park this (Saturday) afternoon when Windham high meets Wilby high school were made by Coach Thomas A. Gallaghan, Principal Egbert A. Case, Manager Robert E. Dziomba and Captain John Nichols. This year is probably the last opportunity Windham will have of having Wilby high and Hartford public high school on its football schedule.

President Nichols was in charge of the meeting. Muriel Smith gave two humorous recitations and Jessica Fenton entertained with two piano solos.

Olaf Lindheim, 26, of Andover, a cripple, caused some consternation to relatives and neighbors when he failed to return from picking wild berries after having been out in the woods since afternoon. Bands of searchers organized and Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink was summoned. The young man had last been seen near the river bank and there were fears for his safety until he was found some distance from the house about 9:30 o'clock in the evening.

Deputy Sheriff A. L. Frink of Andover cleared up a window-breaking mystery this week when he rounded being implicated in the smashing of by two boy residents of Andover as forty-eight panes of glass in a house at present unoccupied and owned by E. A. Standish of Andover. The boys' fathers have promised to pay for the damages of $20 and are attempting to identify the remainder of the stone throwers to have their parents assist in making the payment.

The funeral of Anson Young was held Friday with services in New York city. The body was brought to this city for burial in Windham Center cemetery. Avery and VanZandt had charge of the local arrangements.

Miss Rose Guarneri was tendered a miscellaneous shower at her home Thursday night and presented many beautiful and useful gifts. The affair was in honor of her approaching marriage with Joseph DeStefano. Present were Mrs M Cavell, Mrs. A. LaMarin, Mrs. M. Lanza, Mrs. R. Gobin, Mrs. R. Dipolino, Mrs. J. Mazzola, Mrs. Rose Shea, Mrs. Joseph Giracca, and Misses M. Mazzola, L. Pipin, F. Lamontagne, L. Riquier, M. Riquier, E. Ducharme, B. Gobin, A. Mazzola, S. Salveggion, Messrs Lanza A. BOYS BACK FROM POLAND, FATHER STILL DETAINED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 30—"We're certainly happy to get back, to get back to the good U. S. A." were the words with which Stanley, 18, Frank 14, and John 16, greeted their friends and their mother, Mrs. Katie Hlebus, of 227 Valley street, upon returning here this week from Poland where they have been since May 20, 1920. Conditions in Poland are very bad, said Stanley, the oldest of the three children. In the town of Dobowiec, where he had been living, work is as scarce as honest men in Sing Sing and the maximum pay for hard labor is not over one dollar a day. The cost of food is high and many of the residents look gaunt and weary. There are four of the Hlebus children and all were born in this country. One girl, aged 13, is remaining in Poland with her father. Back in 1920 four natives of Poland, Andrew Hlebus and Stephen, both having wives in this city and Wincenty Cyzaniski and Jan Szurma, having wives in Poland put their savings together and decided to go back to their native land, buy farms and prepare them for their future homes. After arriving there, however, they found conditions very much adverse to happiness and moderate prosperity Hlebus tried to come back to this country but due to laws of Poland which have been strictly enforced to retain thousands of Polish men who left this country to fight in the Polish ranks during the World war, he could not return. He has sent back three of his children and he and his family are anticipating the day when he too, and his daughter Helen will return to the Land of Promise.

MISS EILEEN MURPHY RANKS HIGH AT HOLYOKE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 30.—

Another graduate of Windham high school has added to the remarkably high record of alumni entering colleges. Principal Egbert E. Case is in receipt of a letter from Carolina B Greene, registrar at Mount Holyoke college which states that Miss Eileen Murphy, daughter of Valentine E. Murphy of Lewiston avenue, ranked third with another student in a class of 285 at the South Hadley, Mass., institution during her first year. Miss Murphy's academic record during her first year averaged over 90 per cent. She was valedictorian of the class of 1924 at Windham high school.

DECREE OF DIVORCE FOR GRACE M. McGRATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 30.—

In the uncontested divorce case of Grace M. McGrath vs. William McGrath, of Dorchester, Mass., the local woman was granted the decree of divorce and the right to the restoration of her maiden name Grace M Chapman.

The petitioner stated that she and McGrath were married March 21, 1906, and that six months after the ceremony he left her. He returned for a time, but on June 8, 1907, he again deserted her and never came back. She said that her husband was employed by the Elm Dairy Milk company and worked on the milk tram. When they were married he was 21 and she was 22. Witnesses testifying on behalf of the plaintiff were Amelia Ducharme of Norwich, Martha Hasard, a sister of the plaintiff and Alice Young. All stated that she had not lived with her husband for many years. Questioned by Judge Dickenson, Mrs. McGrath said that she could advance no reason why her husband left her. He had never asked her to come and live with him in Massachusetts and when he came to this city he never called on her. She said that she was employed in a local laundry and has been supporting herself since the time of her marriage.

JEWETT CITY

Arthur Courtland Spicer, 67, who died at Pittsfield, Mass., October 28, was born in Jewett City, January 26, 1858. He attended the grammar school here. After leaving school he worked in Ashland mill as mulespinner. Later he worked in Willimantic, afterward moving to Woonsocket, R. I., where the death of his wife occurred. He lived in Hudson, Mass., for fifteen years or more, until March of this year, when on account of poor health he went to make his home with his oldest son, George in Pittsfield, Mass. Many here remember the care free, happy disposition of his boyhood days which he retained throughout his life. He has spent many pleasant days with his brother here where he was always more than welcome. His wife was Nellie McCarthy of Jewett City. They were married here May 30, 1888. She died twenty years ago. They had four sons, George, Arthur, Jesse, Harry and a daughter, Carrie B. He leaves two sons George and Jessie of Pittsfield, a brother Charles E. Spicer of Jewett City and a sister, Mrs. Lulu B. Palmer of Norwich.

Pachaug community club meeting Thursday evening was attended by 130. The program was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Holmes, George Palmer, Lucy Miner and Alexina Pepin. It opened with singing of America and Love's Old Sweet Song. There was a piano solo by Susan Terry, recitation by Mildred Hoelck, cornet solo by Eino Karjala, duet by Mildred and Rita Hoelck, harmonica solo by Arthur Millard, Pumpkin pie, cheese and sweet cider were the refreshments. The committee for the November meeting is Walter Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gray, Mrs. Edward Gibson and Mary Wilkinson.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Nichols are in Worcester to attend the funeral of Mrs. Nichols' father.

The Norwich Town C. E. society is to visit the Congregational society Sunday evening. There are to be stereopticon views shown of the Rocky Mountains and the Great Basin.

There is to be a meeting of the Read-Herakell cemetery association at the Jewett City Savings bank Monday afternoon.

Fresh oysters today at Jewett City Fish Market.—adv.

The first snow storm of the season, had the peculiarity of starting with the wind coming out of the west. By the time the snow began to count much, the light air backed into the northeast. There was some controversy among the older members of the cracker barrel delegation, relative to what constitutes a snow storm. Old Cluey Watson always declared that when there a sufficient fall so that the trucks made by the wood folks during the night, were registered in the morning, then mark that as a snow storm.

Some local weather observers, declared Friday evening that this season is in for 30 storms this winter, the date of the first being Oct. 30.

At early night-fall the shrubbery and bare tree branches covered with snow, went to make a typical winter scene.

OBITUARY

John Murray

John Murray, 56, died in a Hartford hospital Thursday. He was born in Harvard, Ill., the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Murray. He and his parents were for many years residents of Jewett City.

Mr. Murray had been in Hartford for 13 years and for a considerable time was a linotype operator on the Hartford post, later being employed by the Calhoun Print.

His body will be brought here for burial in St. Mary's cemetery. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Edward Farrell of Wauregan, and two brothers, Dennis of Phillipsdale, R. I., and Matthew of Kenmore, Ohio.

MISS LESTER BEAUTIFIES ANCIENT PACHAUG CEMETERY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 29—Pachaug cemetery has been undergoing a process of addition to its bounds and beautifying, since 1921. The plan originated with Andrew Lester, a native of Griswold, and has been carried out by his daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Lester, now of Philadelphia. The Pachaug cemetery association has cooperated with Miss Lester in every way possible. In the old part of the cemetery there were six and one-half acres. Through her brother, Miss Lester purchased from F. H. Gilbert, three acres more joining the cemetery. The cemetery association gave the boundary wall to construct a new wall on the two new boundaries and this wall is made similar to the walls of the old part of the cemetery. One of the most expensive processes was the clearing of the three acres of trees and bushes preparatory to the beautifying of the spot. It has been graded and seeded, the central plot raised and winding drives laid out. Japanese barberry shrubs beautifying the walls and shrubbery of various kinds are set in the planting spaces, and about the memorial gates, all being done under the direction of a lanscape gardener. There is a forty-foot entrance with ornamental iron gates with two side entrances three feet wide. The inscription on the right post of the Main entrance is "Pachaug Cemetery." On the left hand post is "Lester Memorial." On the right hand post of the right hand small gate is the inscription "The gift of Mary Elizabeth Lester, 1925." Later larger trees of the scarlet oak variety are to be added to the spot. In 1902, a Lester memorial fountain was given to the town by this family, which fountain makes a beauty spot in Pachaug. The Lester family then lived in New York, but spent the summers in the ancestral home on Stone Hill. Their highbred horses were greatly admired, and particularly Miss Lester's own horse. Many remember that she wished this pet to be the first horse to drink from the fountain, but the gushing forth of the water made the animal afraid to approach the fountain. So Miss Lester made a cup of her hands, and gave the Lester horse the first draught.

This family has held prominence in Griswold since 1720 and not until the old home was burned, did the family cease yearly visits here. Miss Mary Elizabeth Lester in beautifying Pachaug cemetery, and David Hale Fanning in his gifts to the Jewett City cemetery leave lasting memorials. It is to be wished that the cemetery in the rear of the Bantist church might find some benefactor, who would so honor the town.

The committee were in charge of the dining room, Mrs. Francsi Campbell, coffee, Miss Ida I. Foster, program, Miss Mabel McBroome.

Mrs. George H. Prior attended the King's Daughters' state convention of Rhode Island in Hope, Thursday, giving the charge to the officers and conducing the memorial service.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The body of John E. Murray, 57, who died at St. Francis hospital in Hartford Friday was brought to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Farrell in Wauregan Friday night. Mrs. Farrell is Mr. Murray's sister. The deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Murray, the family for years resident in Jewett City.

Ludger Levesque, 57, died Thursday at his home in Moosup, where he had been employed as a night watchman at one of the manufacturing plants. Mr. Levesque was a native of Canada. He leaves his wife and several children.

Not in years has there been such a liberal early season sale of non-freeze liquids for radiators as is the case this fall. October has made a record of being unusually cold for so early in the season, and motorists have learned by experience, or advice, that it is expensive to neglect the care of motor car radiators at this time of year.

It is not improbable that the traffic guide set in the intersection of Broad and Reynolds street this week will be removed as inadequate to serve the purposes for which it was intended. It is claimed by some motorists that no reflection from the red glass in the device is visible for a sufficient distance to be of real value. Possibly another type of device will be substituted.

Scientific tests of the eyes of pupils enrolled in Killingly's schools have been conducted during October. Of teh 1244 pupils whose eyes were examined about 15 per cent were found to have defects of sight in some form or other. In Killingly 125 parents have been notified that the vision of the children referred to is defective and in need of attention. Similar examinations of eyes were made in the schools of Brooklyn, where 17 parents were notified that the children's eyes need attention.

Every minute, every day, someone buys a May Tag. Call Putnam 245-2 for free demonstration.—adv.

This is Hallowe'en and much will be done about it in Danielson. Dances and parties head the list of special amusements arranged for the occasion. But these affairs will be wholly overshadowed by the parades of the young folks, at least so they assert. Goblins will appear tonight after darkness falls. Spooky kingdom inhabitants will return for a jollification. There'll be pumpkin moonshines and many other devices to add to the sense of delusion sought. The young people await the night with great anticipation.

Following are the newly elected officers of the Spark Plugs of the Baptist church: President, Cora Browne; first vice-president, Edith Gallup; second vice-president, Sarah Chase; secretary, Alice Jordan; treasurer, Florence Moran.

There was not the motor traffic through here Friday that was induced by the Yale-Brown game at Providence on Saturday of last week, but the Dartmouth-Brown game at Providence today (Saturday) was causing some increase in traffic as well as the Yale-Army game at New Haven today. The Danielson route appears to be a favorite one with motorists traveling to the big football games in southern New England.

While there were snow flurries here Friday afternoon, it was snowing steadily in Woodstock and by nightfall the ground up in that region was white with snow. No great amount of snow was represented in the downfall.

Judge James N. Tucker notes from that place that the pupils in the schools of East Killingly have made their contribution of $3.50 to the Old Ironsides funds and comments that while this amount seems small it would be sufficient, if duplicated throughout the nation, to raise more than twice the $500,000 required for saving the famous warship.

At Goodyear, Health Officer Dr. W. H. Judson is again concerned with treating cases of contagious impetigo, a skin trouble that was mentioned in Dr. Judson's health report issued early this month. Children are afflicted. The treatment is simple and effective.

Monday evening the Danielson Farmers' exchange will have a meeting at Grange hall in Brooklyn. County Agent F. L. Davis of Putnam is to address the meeting and there also will be a talk by Frederick W. Waugh, market specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural college. Mr. Waugh will talk particularly about potatoes, a subject among which there is much interest among growers just now, particularly because of the reporter short crop.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at Miss Bluin's Music studio Thursday evening, when 15 of her pupils took part in the first recital of the season. They were assisted by Miss Margaret Burton.

Tomorrow (Sunday) is the feast of All Saints and Monday the feast of All Souls.

Leon T. Wilson, Putnam, representative of the state internal revenue organization, was in Danielson on business Friday.

Hunters report that partridges are being found dead in surrounding territory and the indications are they are victims of the disease now afflicting this type of wild game birds in various sections of New England.

The third and fourth degrees are to be conferred on a class of candidates of Killingly grange Monday evening.

NOW DOES ALL HER WORK

Has No Backache, No Bad Feelings Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Drove Her Illness Away

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"I was in a badly run-down condition and I would get weak spells and terrible headaches. I felt so badly last year that I could not do any housecleaning. The minute I would lift or stoop it seemed as if I was going to fall to pieces. I told a neighbor how I felt and she said that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was surely the right thing for me. I took four bottles then and in the fall of the year I took three. I had been treated by a doctor but he gave me an iron tonic and that did not help me. It seemed that the tonic did not have in it what the Vegetable Compound did. That gave me the strength and ambition I needed and I have gained in weight. This year before I started to clean house I got four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and am taking it right along. I tell all my friends about it and how much good it does me. They can notice it because I have gained in weight. I weigh 118 now and do all my work myself again."—Mrs. EARL O. BRANDENBURG, 651 37th Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

LANDLORD ROGERS RETURNED WITH RECORD MOOSEHEAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 30th—E. C. Rogers, landlord at the Putnam Inn, has just returned from a hunting trip in New Brunswick for the past month, secured the largest moosehead taken there during the 1925 season. The antlers have a spread of 64 inches. Before leaving for New Brunswick, Mr. Rogers declared that he would not shoot a moose unless it was out of the ordinary. The walls of the Putnam inn are adorned with many fine heads that he has secured on various hunting trips and he did not care for any more unless they were unusual.

A despatch from Fredericton, N. B. reads as follows:

E. C. Rogers of Putnam, Conn., has secured the largest moosehead taken out of New Brunswick forests during the 1925 hunting season. The antlers have a spread of 64 inches.

Mr. Rogers obtained his trophy in the Bald mountain district on the Miramichi, where he was hunting with J. W. Thompson of Terre Haute, Ind. Mr. Thompson also shot a fine bull moose and a bear.

Mr. Dieminger kept the boys highly amused with all sorts of games, etc. Prizes were given the following five boys whose costumes were judged to be the best: Roy Lamothe, Leo Beauchmin, Berni Verranesault, James Foy, and Joe Monty. The judges were Timothy Driscoll, Oscar Dahloff, James Coffey, Gus Coffey, and Cecil L. Butler. Thursday night the club seniors held a Hallowe'en party and dance which was well attended.

At a smoker, held by St. John's council of the K. of C., many interesting speakers were heard. Kid Couchon, and Young Burley, gave a fast, six round boxing exhibition and a preliminary bout between Joe Smith and Young Jarvis was witnessed. Grand Knight Arthur Mathieu was in general charge during the evening.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Chance of Greatness

Whether you are a first child or a fifteenth does not affect your chances of greatness, according to Dr. Wilhelmine E. Key, who recently reported to the Eugenics Research association the results of her statistical studies of eminent persons.

Dr. Key, according to Hygeia, wanted to learn if there was any scientific basis for the popular notion that the eldest child has the best chance of obtaining prominence. She studied the family records of many famous Americans, from Alexander Hamilton to Augustus Saint Gaudens and Mark Twain, and her conclusions were that the order of birth in a family has nothing to do with their achieving fame.

James Fenimore Cooper was the eleventh of 12 children. Gen. Sherman came in the middle of a large family. Dr. Key's studies seemed to indicate that the regular law of averages was at work when it came to position in family and in world affairs.

Germans Find More Potash

FREIBURG, Germany, Oct. 30 (AP)—Deposits of potash salts of an exceptional quality are reported to have been struck at a depth of 800 yards at Buddingen potash works after three years of continued borings. The concern, subsidized by the government of Baden, was established three years ago.

"Just right for baking"

Have your dealer cut for you the butt end of an Armour's "Star"—about four or five pounds. That will be enough to serve a big dinner for the average family, with plenty left to slice for a delicious cold supper or luncheon. An economical way to buy.

Bake it with sugar and spices. Then settle yourself for a treat of choice, young, tender ham, with the famous uniform flavor that only "Star" possesses!

AUTOMATIC TRAIN STOPS

It is an interesting report which comes from Detroit concerning the test made on a stretch of Pere Marquette tracks of a safety device for automatically controlling trains through operation by radio. Probably there isn't a railroad in the country but what is giving attention to this new development in the search for the most satisfactory and "fool-proof" device for dealing with this particular problem.

In requiring the railroads of the country to equip a certain part of their tracks with an automatic train control, the claim has been made before the interstate commerce commission that the roads ought not to be hurried into the large outlay that is involved until something in he way of a standard equipment is provided. It has been urged that while there are devices which work they have not reached the proper degree of perfection to warrant big expenditures for there is no telling how soon the roads will be required to do the whole job over again and replace what has been bought with something which is better. In order to avoid this waste the roads have sought further delay. If the new device tested at Detroit is found to be practical and the last word in automatic train stops it will probably be pointed to as illustrating the very situation to which the railroads have been directing attention.

For the protection of the traveling public and eliminating great wastes to rolling stock, safeguarding life and property from the effects of needless wrecks and, collisions is a matter of no small importance. For the most part the railroad trains are carefully operated but there are occasionally glaring instances of neglect and times when the safety of the human cargo does not receive the protection it is entitled to. The automatic train control is needed to augment the human agent at the throttle and it is gratifying to know that progress is being made in this direction.

FRANCE'S NEW CABINET

France had a Painleve cabinet before and it has got a Painleve cabinet now. The personnel of it is slightly changed and for tho most part the making of the change is what was aimed at. Whether it can or does accomplish any more than the old cabinet remains to be seen. It has at least got the chance and attention from all directions will be directed to it in the immediate future.

When Finance Minister Caillaux refused to resign there was nothing left to do but to dump him. That was accomplished by the resignation of the cabinet and its reorganization with a few other chances. Caillaux is out and Premier Painleve takes upon himself the duties of the minister of finance. Caillaux failed to bring about an adjustment of the financial problems of France, and to fund the debt that is owed to this country. Those problems are still faced. Caillaux was called in for the job because he was regarded as a financial wizard. But inasmuch as he was unable to accomplish it it will of course mean a big feather in the cap of Painleve if he is able to turn the trick.

It is to be realized that this new ministry must devise a plan for solving the finangial problems that will get the approva lof the deputies. The capital levy tax is one of the moves that has been urged by the radicals and the cabinet has been made up on radical lines, slightly more so than it has been.

The new ministry is yielding to the insistence of the radicals must depend upon radical support for its existence. How long that can be retained is a question which the future will reveal. It is possible that it may not even get to the settlement of the debt question with this country.

SEE BEFORE BUYING

The story of great wealth and easily amassed inspires others to get like results. The experiences of those who have invested small amounts and taken out big profit never fails to appeal. Too often it is the case those who could get similar results fail to investigate. They rely upon the statements of strangers and are attracted by the alluring tales of fabulous profits. It is easy to tell a tale that will work upon the imagination, but it is a decidedly different proposition to make those schemes work out as desired. It is too often a case of groping about blindfolded only to come to a realization of the fact that the investment was recklessly made and the prospects nothing.

At that stage it is too late to recover, and for the purpose of warning against getting into such predicaments there is told every little while how many millions are lost each year through putting reliance and funds in worthless propositions.

Florida is that at present abusing more interest than the gold fields ever did. It is attracting great numbers from all over the country and funds are being poured in there. There are those who can and do tell of some big profits that have been made in that state and it is not improbable that more will be made, but the possibilities do not exist on every corner or in every lot that is staked out.

The advice that has been given to the effect that property in Florida should be seen before it is bought must be regarded as golden. That is no more than a person would do at home, no more than he would do if he were to buy in a neighboring city. The logic of such procedure cannot fail to apply to Florida. It is possible to put your money into "salted" mines and alluring securities but it is most unwise to make any investment until some information is obtained about it and if it is the case of buying land or buildings in a distant state the wisdom of looking it over and not buying something sight unseen ought to be apparent.

CANADIAN RESULTS

Canada has just gone through an election which has or will bring an upsetting of the present government. It has been a contest between the liberals and the conservatives, with some uncertainty as to what a third party would do in the distribution of votes. The liberal government under Premier King has been in control for the past four years, but by no overwhelming majority. It has not increased its strength according to the election results for with only one province electing liberal candidates it is evident that the pendulum has swung back to the conservatives. The regime of the liberals and the policies for which Premier King stood did not jibe with the sentiment of the people.

There was in particular a test on the question of the tariff. The conservatives have stood for a protective tariff with the liberals displaying a modified attitude fixed between a tariff and a free trade policy. That the liberals have not succeeded in convincing the Canadians of the wisdom of such a policy is to be judged from the outcome of the battle of ballots. Even Premier King and seven members of his cabinet failed for re-election so thorough was the opposition in its determination to put an end to the influences that have been guiding Canadian affairs for the past few years.

Having been tried in the balance the verdict of the voters is for something else than the liberal government. Whatever fears there may have been about the third party, the figures show that they were much worse than the realization. Canada has demanded a change.

HEROISM AT SEA

The reception that was given the President Harding and its commander Captain Grening this week on their arrival in New York was no more than was to be expected. Most certainly it was deserved. There have been heroic acts performed at sea before, and there have been those who have failed to respond in emergencies.

When the Italian steamer rudderless and at the mercy of a wild storm in mid-Atlantic sought assistance it was the President Harding that was nearest. The call for assistance was quickly answered when it was learned that it was a case where the saving of lives was sought and not one of towing the disabled vessel to port. The storm did not cause Captain Grening to hesitate. It did not result in his departure from the vicinity of the helpless steamer when he found that the storm conditions were so bad that it was impossible to take off the crew at once. There was a chance to save lives and he utilized every means at his command to accomplish it. Through the magnificent cooperation of those of his crew who volunteered, the rescue was accomplished under most trying and dangerous conditions. There was no faltering even though there was great risk.

Where human life is at stake there are invariably those who are ready to do their utmost to save it. And yet those acts of heroism are never going to be so commonplace that they will not deserve or that they will fail to get the plaudits of those who witness or read of their deeds. That is why the arrival of the President Harding with the rescued crew received such a reception at New York. It was most praiseworthy from any angle that it is viewed and credit should certainly go where it is deserved.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

If we gain anything from our study of humanity we are justified in saying that to be radical is to be human. We have a wonderfully strong inclination to jump to extremes in what we think, say, and do. This is not the development of any new trait in man, but has appeared in the lives of most men ever since Adam figured so conspicuously in the Garden of Eden. Radicalism is not merely a tendency of the human mind, but is a striking characteristic of nature as well. What extremes do we find in theological belief; in man's conception of human government, and in such trivial things as fashion and society. But nature, if possible, goes man one better. She makes the royal lily grow on the edge of the glacier. She lifts her tall peaks like Ararat right out of the plain. She performs somersaults weatherwise, as shes did on October 10, that Saturday when the boys wanted to see and play football—when it jumped from a rain to a wind so fierce and cold that players longed for their ulsters. Was this mere chance, or was it law?

We have had fire prevention day—a day designed to bring us up with a jolt as to the sacrifice of human lives and the loss of human property. That we need to be reminded of our inexcusable carelessness along this line is evident. Much of this caution is directed to the careless smoker and forest fires. About this season of the year also do we not need to be reminded of other fires, perhaps, equally careless? Do we not need to be cautioned against the overheated coal stove, or in the matter of having inflammable material near the steam heater? Another source of trouble along this line is the oil stove when the oxygen of the room is exhausted. Just a little foresight in these matters would loom up big in the aggregate of human life and property saved.

In the recent address on the Value of Higher Education, President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford university said the following very suggestive thought: "Prescribed courses of study are like ready made clothing, fitting no one but the man who does not care." This general custom of all our colleges and universities years ago, and, in fact until comparatively recent days, was to put all students into one hopper expecting that about the same grist would be turned out. Radical differences of temperament, and individual aptitudes were not considered. This was standardization with a vengeance and accounts for the lack of strong individual initiative. On the other hand it ought to be said that perhaps the majority of boys when they enter college do not know what studies best suit their individual needs. Their ability has not been sufficiently brought out to determine what line of studies is best for them.

There is a strong ethical side to the tragedy on that fateful 30th of May last in Shanghai. The press generally has had most to say on its political effect. It began when a Japanese boss struck and injured a Chinese girl in a textile factory. She was only 12 years old and was working on a 12 hour night shift. Her awful crime was falling asleep at her work. Very strangely her 18-year old sister interceded in her behalf, and she too was assaulted by the same brute. For some mysterious reason it touched a sore spot in the heart of China, and the long-sleeping giant began to bestir himself. Chinese students made a protest in the great name of humanity. Some of them were shot by the British police in the attempt to restore order. All this brings to the fore the question. Just how long will peaceful China be oppressed by Japan and the leading nations of Europe.

Rally Sunday has come into the life of our churches and Sunday schools as a sort of necessity. In fact it has come to be almost indespensable. We certainly need it as a reaction from the effect of the long summer vacation which, with each succeeding year, seems to be lengthening out somewhat. The well-to-do without business cares, as soon as the long school vacation begins, can go with their families to their summer homes either in the mountains or the seashore, and there remain till Labor day reminds them that the children must report for school. There are others who have cottages at the shore but tend to their work during the week, and go to and fro by means of their automobile. Still others take what they can of Saturday and Sunday for long week-end trips with their families. It is easy to go to the Catskills, the Adirondacks, the Berkshire or the White mountains in these days. But the church suffers, hence the Rally day for the church and Sunday school.

Several weeks ago the writer had an item on the manner in which the youth of our country or both sexes is flocking to our colleges and universities. If there was not a sympathetic atmosphere pervading the country generally this would not be. If the employers of young collegians in large numbers looked adversely on the college man, the trend on the part of the young would naturally be the other way. It is also refreshing to find that the old lectureship is more and more coming back into vogue. College professors with their messages are coming more and more unto the people. Take, as an illustration, the course of lectures now being given at the Connecticut College for Women. They include the names of men from the faculty of Yale and Harvard who have reputations in their distinctive fields.

As time rushes on we are impressed with Richard Burton's thoughtful words:

"If I had time to find a place
And sit me down full face to face
With my better self, that cannot show
In my daily life that rushes so."

Is it possible for one to find "his better self" when life consists mainly in skimming over so many things imperfectly, and in doing so few things really well? Is it possible for the average man today, who has his regular work to do, to sit down and commune with that "better self," that does not come to the surface spontaneously anyway? And if he succeeded in bringing it to the surface what would it do with a world that was not in sympathy with it? A restful Lord's day would come the nearest to the demands of one's inner life if anything. At any rate we are not justified in keeping this better self behind prison bars.

Let those of us who are older keep our tempers if the young engage in a few innocent (please mind I say, innocent) pranks tonight for this is All Hallowe'en. Let us remember that the forefathers of all the so-called Nordic (and some that are not quite so much Nordic) races indulged themselves to the full at the festival of All Hallows ever since the fourth century. This is sometimes called All Saints day and has been observed by many who are not all saintly, neither all Nordic. In a spiritual sense the hearts of the people had a sort of Fourth of July feeling in observing All Hallows, as it marked the cessation of the persecution of the early saints. A joy came to human hearts on this account, and joy sometimes has a strange way of expressing itself. It is well to keep in mind the significance of the celebration of All Hallows.

As to Ball Lightning

"Ball lightning" has thus far baffled all attempts at explanation. That it actually occurs cannot be doubted. A recent work on that subject by Dr. Walther Brand contains an elaborate discussion of 215 cases, reported by careful observers.

THE AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY IN AMERICA

The American public will still remember how the World war, by brushing aside the question of costs, for a brief period stimulated the progress in design and in construction of aircraft—and how the post-war slump reversed the process, turned prosperity into depression, and brought the entire industry almost to a standstill. It was the usual sad story of unwarranted enthusiasm, overexpansion, slump, elimination of the weakest—and then a slow, gradual return to normal conditions. This unfortunate "economic" cycle came to an end in 1924, states a survey by Sulzbacher, Granger and Co.

Post-War Slump

The most fitting tribute to the vitality and inherent strength of the American aircraft industry is that chapter of its history which covers the post-war slump of 1919—1923, and ends with the sudden and spectacular recovery staged only a few months ago.

Undersold from ex-military sources, outbid by competitors who were in the habit of "borrowing" designs—with no recourse to or help from government—the position of an aircraft manufacturer in this country was far from being enviable. It took a great deal of energy and grim determination to weather that long period of depression into which the young industry was plunged directly after the war—and where it was abandoned to its own devices for a long and disappointing period of almost five years.

U. S. Government Attitude

The main difficulties, which, until recently, were confronting every aircraft manufacturer in America were:

1. Floating surplus of ex-military aerial equipment.
2. Unfair competitive biddings.
3. Infringements of design bidding.
4. Lack of wholehearted government co-operation.
5. Insufficient government appropriation.

The lengthily process of absorbing the surplus war materials came to an end almost a year ago, and lately the remaining negative factors have been definitely eliminated. So that, once again, the airplane industry is ready to expand—this time, however, on a different, healthier and much more permanent basis.

A fresh and powerful impetus has been given to the aircraft industry by the liberal increase in government appropriation for 1925-26. $65,000,000 instead of the former $10,000,000 are to be spent next year on construction, experimental work and maintenance of the aerial force. About $25,000,000 worth of orders are to be distributed among the few American manufacturers, whose standing, workmanship, resources and factories qualify them for supplying the United States with aircraft. And, since only very few airplane builders in this country are considered able to meet the strict requirements imposed, all these can safely rely on receiving proportion of government orders.

Air Mails

The size of the government appropriation is of paramount importance, because at present the larger percentage of aircraft business still comes from the army and the navy. However, in addition to military, the civil aviation, though hurt and retarded by the thoughtless post-war policy, is also slowly coming into its own. The first achievement was due to the efforts of Col. Henderson, who after considerable work succeeded in establishing a 34 hour transcontinental air mail service between New York and San Francisco. Few people realize that during the three years of air mail operation, the time schedule was maintained throughout the year—in all kinds of weather, fine and foul; that 5,783,628 miles were flown and 159,543,096 letters carried.

With the passage of the Kelly bill, the post office department acquired the authority to let out private contracts for the transportation of air mail. Seventeen companies have already submitted bids for carrying the mails on eight different routes. The bids average between 60 and 80 per cent of the postage received, and prove that air mail contracts are regarded as a profitable business venture. Many additional routes are being planned, and competition among the would-be-air-mail carriers is growing very keen.

Whether or not the air mails are on a paying basis today is of minor importance, for they are the first logical step in the development of commercial aviation—the forerunner of aerial passenger traffic. Beside popularizing the idea of commercial aircraft, the air mails effect an enormous saving in time and money by bringing the Pacific coast within 34 hours from New York. Incidentally, the profits of the post office department from the operation of air mails during the year 1925 are estimated to exceed a net of $500,000.

The necessity and dangers of flying the mail at night brought up many new problems which have been solved in a remarkably creditable manner. New hazards called for construction of planes designed to retain high flying speed, and at the same time to reduce materially the landing speed. Most of the night mail planes now in operation have a useful load capacity of about 1000-1200 pounds, a speed of 130 m.p.h., and a landing speed of 50 m.p.h. The latest development, the Nighthawk, has just passed with flying colors the tests of the post office department; while retaining the speed of 131 m. p. h. in the air, this night plane can land fully loaded at only 46 m.p.h., and will carry 1,500 pounds of freight.

Commercial Aviation

Though without any assistance from the government, civil aviation in the U. S. A. is by no means limited to the operation of air-mails. Several companeis and individuals, scattered all over the country, operate sight-seeing and taxi planes. Large newspapers, oil companies, etc., frequently faced with the problem of urgent transportation over land and water also maintain small flying fleets of their own. The Ford Motor company—a synonym of all that is sound, efficient and profitable in business—is already operating a private air mail express line between Cleveland and Chicago, via Ford airport near Detroit. Many airplanes are devoted to the important task of aerial photography, which, at a much lower cost, can quickly supply better and more exact information than any other typographical survey.

Closely affiliated with aerial surveys are the aerial forest patrols, which, although but recently established, have already performed valuable service in the discovery, checking and prevention of forest fires in the west.

Another important field of aircraft application—which, it is estimated, could profitably and permanently employ about 2500 planes—is the dusting of cotton crops with calcium arsenate (the only effective means of combatting the boll-weevil, whose appetite costs the United States in excess of $200,000,000 per annum.)

Dusting from the air increases the crop yield about 33 per cent, and saves about 50 per cent of the insecticide. One plane can do the work of 75 mule-drawn ground dusting machines, and will cover from 200 to 1,000 acres within one hour. Cost of equipment and operating expenses are also strongly in favor of airplane dusting as the most efficient and economical method of caring for the crops.

Several companies have already been organized for the sole purpose of dusting cotton plantations in the south, and there is little doubt that in time more and more orders for airplanes will be forthcoming from this source.

Of course, the real future of commercial aviation is in the long-distance passenger transportation. Europe is already intersected in all directions by a network of 47 regular passenger air lines, and today one can travel by air from London to Constantinople, and from Lisbon to Moscow or Stockholm, just as comfortably and almost just as cheaply as in a ordinary train.

In Germany every town of importance can boast a flying school. England and France with the Aero Clubs are following not very far behind. Even in the United States there is enough public interest to sustain 22 private schools of flying.

In this country passenger transportation by air is yet to come—but those who witnessed the initial progress of the automobile in Europe, and the present undisputed domination of the entire industry by the United States, will have no doubt that American supremacy in the air is also merely a question of time. The American public is ready to travel by air: there must be a reason why from 40 to 60 per cent of aerial traffic in Europe is represented by American tourists and business men.

From Small Beginnings

Bayard Taylor, the Great Novelist

Farmers are the richest of all men. They have a wealth of fresh air, the ownership of beautiful views; an independence that others do not possess and such constant necessity for hard and healthful work that they enjoy excellent health. To that sort of wealth Bayard Taylor, the famous American novelist and traveler, was born. His father, a Pennsylvania farmer, had been thrifty and had saved a small amount of money, but the family was far from being rich.

Bayard Taylor, as a boy, helped his father in the farm work, and looked across the great waving fields of hay at the woods and hills beyond, wishing that he might have the means to travel farther than the nearby villages where he and his father went for supplies. He did not know that his energy and ambition would give him the tickets to travel farther perhaps, than any other man of letters the United States has known. Energy and ambition are far better than inherited wealth, and the Pennsylvania farmer's son grew up into a great author and "the great American traveler."

After the boy had gone to the little schools in the neighboring villages he became a "printer's devil," tasted printer's ink, and from that time became a servant of the press. By the time he was 19 he had written that stirring poem called "Xinena" and enough other poems to gather together in a volume. That was his introduction to seeing himself in print. With a boy's enthusiasm he gained the confidence of the editors of the New York Tribune and went to Europe to write letters of travel. For two years he wandered about the continent, spending only about $500 in all that time and writing the brilliant letters that were later gathered together in the book called "Views Afoot."

Now he had gained a new will 'o the wisp, that of travel, and in the following years he visited California with the "Forty-niners," Mexico, Egypt India, Japan, China, Africa, northern Europe, Poland, the Mediterranean lands and many other places, writing delightful letters of travel for periodicals and bringing out books of travel that sold "like hot cakes." At 39 he wrote his first novel and wrote three others later. He served the United States in the diplomatic service and won world wide popularity at home and abroad.

He was only 53 when he died, one of America's greatest men.

Sunday Morning Talk

THE LILIES

On the northwestern shores of the lake of Galilee, and beside the waters of Merom, may still be seen a gorgeous flower of luxuriant softness, with three inner petals which is known as the Hulch lily. There is a strong probability that in the time of our Lord, when the soil of Palestine was under high cultivation, this brilliant flower abounded, and may have been in sight when He said to His audience in the sermon on the mount, "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow." If they were an object lesson to His hearers they are equally so to all Christians in these days. No subject can be more thoroughly practiced than growth in grace; it is finely illustrated by the growth of the lily.

The first lesson to be learned is that the flower to which Jesus pointed grew by the action of the vital principle within it. A bit of white marble is the same today as it was years ago; it has no life. But there is a subtle mysterious principle in the lily which slowly lifts it from the ground and expands it into an exquisite cup of white and gold. Life, in the natural world is never self produced. The first lily was the creation of God; all the rest have been its propagated successors. Spiritual life is never self-originated. It is born of the Holy Spirit. It begins with the entrance of the Lord Jesus into a converted soul; that is regeneration. He that hath the Son hath life. The apostle Paul meant just this when he said, "I give, yet not I; it is Christ that liveth in me."

The lily grows not only by its inward principle of life, but by the help of its surroundings. Put a lily into a dark cellar and it perishes for want of light. Put it into an exhausted receiver, it dies for want of air; send it off to Greenland and it dies for want of warmth; stick it into a dry sand-bed, and it dies for want of moisture. Air, light, warmth, and moisture are indispensable. When these conditions are fulfilled, observe how busily the flower assimilates into itself the required particles out of the atmosphere, out of the soil, out of the sunshine and out of the rain drops.

A similar provision is made for us that we may develop our Christian character, and enlarge our Christian lives. God's holy word is our light; we must open our souls and let it in; "The entrance of Thy word giveth light" said the Psalmist.

A Surprise for Peter

He does his friendship prove full well
Who knows your secret and won't tell.

—Sammy Jay.

"Well, there's another one gone," said Peter Rabbit as he stared at the place where Slowpoke the Box Turtle had disappeared and was still digging his way down to go to sleep for the winter. "If this keeps on there won't be many left by the time Jack Frost gets here. I am glad that there are some who are not afraid of cold weather. I would go look for Nimblefeet the Jumping Mouse, but it would be useless. He went to sleep long ago. I believe he is the first to go to sleep and the last to wake up. He spends as much time asleep as he does awake. What a lot a fellow like that misses."

"Have you seen Danny or Nanny Meadow Mouse lately?" asked Peter

"He does so," said a voice. "I don't know what you're talking about, but he does so." There sat Sammy Jay just over Peter's head.

"I said," repeated Peter, "that any one who sleeps half the time, as Nimblefeet the Jumping Mouse does, doesn't know what he misses. I wouldn't sleep like that for anything."

Sammy chuckled. "No, Peter, I don't think you would," said he. "You have too big a bump of curiosity for that. Just think of all that could happen and you not know anything about it. I never could understand just why Nimblefeets does sleep that way. His relatives don't. You'll find Whitefoot the Wood Mouse skipping about on the snow any pleasant night. Danny Meadow Mouse is forever tunneling under the snow and running around on top of it. Trader the Wood Rat doesn't sleep any more than the rest of us do during the winter."

"Speaking of Danny Meadow Mouse reminds me that I haven't seen him for some time," said Peter. "I think I'll have to run over and call on Danny to see what he's doing to get ready for winter. Almost every one seems to be doing something. What are you doing, Sammy Jay?"

"Oh, hiding away a few acorns," replied Sammy carelessly. "By the way, I saw Danny Meadow Mouse a long way from home the other day."

"Where?" asked Peter.

"Oh, it wouldn't be fair for me to tell that. Danny might not like it," replied Sammy. Just as if the thought of doing such a thing troubled him. The real reason he didn't tell Peter was because he knew that Peter's curiosity wouldn't let him rest until he had tried to find out where Danny had been. In this Sammy was quite right. No sooner had Sammy gone his way than Peter started straight over for where Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse had been living all summer. He wanted to ask Danny where he had been when Sammy Jay saw him a long way from home. He also wanted to ask what Danny and Nanny had been doing to get ready for winter. He knew exactly where their home was, so he went straight to it. But when he got there no one was around.

"It must be that they are off hunting for food," said Peter to himself. "I'll just sit around and wait a bit. I'm in no hurry."

So Peter sat around and waited a bit. In fact, he waited quite a bit. He heard no squeaky little voices, he heard no rustle of little feet. It suddenly came over him that there was a deserted look about that home of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse. Peter began to sniff along some of those private little paths cut through the grass. He could smell Meadow Mouse, but it was very faint. Peter began to have a suspicion that those little paths hadn't been used for several days. He was still sitting there waiting when along came Carol the Meadow Lark. "Have you seen Danny or Nanny Meadow Mouse lately?" asked Peter.

"No," replied Carol promptly. "They've gone away."

"What?" cried Peter in surprise.

"They've gone away," repeated Carol.

"Where have they gone?" Peter asked.

"I don't know and I don't care, for it is none of my business," replied Carol, and away he flew.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Gen. Felix Agnus, who is reported seriously ill at his home in Baltimore is a former newspaper publisher who for many years played a conspicuous part in public affairs in Maryland and by his sterling citizenship and fervent patriotism contributed in no small measure to the welfare of his home state and the nation at large. General Agnus is now past his eighty-six year. Lyons, France, was his birthplace. He was educated in a college near Paris and after completing his studies spent four years in traveling over the world. He fought as a volunteer in the French army in the war against Austria and later saw service under Garibaldi. In 1860 he came to the United States and at the commencement of the war between the states enlisted in the famous Duryea's Zouaves of New York. The close of the war found him with the rank of brigadier general. Subsequently he became editor and publisher of one of Baltimore's leading newspapers.

Stories That Recall Others

That Conspicious Roadster

Tom had a new and conspicious roadster which he parks in front of his boarding place noontimes on pleasant days. Two girl friends investigated one noon, found the key and jumped in for a spin, being certain he would not find it out and that he would not care if he did.

That evening when he went in for supper he was more than angry. He very firmly and in no uncertain terms told the two girls what he thought of their conduct and after that the car was securely locked.

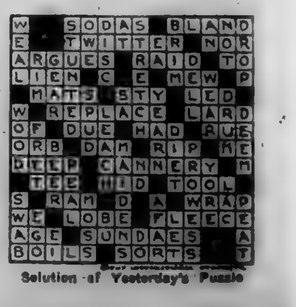
The girls wondered how he ever found it out and wondered also why he should care "about a little thing like that." They soon afterwards learned that in their drive they had passed Tom's very best girl and that he had flatly refused to let her drive his new car.

Smart After All

A young boy who lives next door to a certain lawyer did not have a high opinion of the mentality of the lawyer. His parents were not aware of their son's opinion until one day, when he came in and said:

"Well, I guess Mr. Blank is smart, after all. He took his automobile apart and put it together again, and it runs."

A man is usually able to conceal his middle name while he lives, but it always crops out on his tombstone.



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. William A Norton and daughter Ruth, of Broadway, who are in Paris at present, expect to remain abroad until the coming Spring. They will tour Switzerland and Italy and it is probable that Miss Ruth Norton will attend school in Lucerne for a time. Miss Louise T. Norton will accompany her parents from Paris to Italy to continue her art study.

A congenial gathering of half a hundred at Norwich Golf Club Friday night danced amid typical Hallowe'en decorations, received the regulation favors and had lunch later in the evening. Music was by D'Atri's orchestra. The general arrangements for the subscription dance were by Joseph C. Worth and F. Russell Smith.

Miss Evon M. Broadhurst Friday evening entertained her Sunday school class at a Hallowe'en party at her home, No. 125 West Thames street. The young people had a thoroughly enjoyable evening, the programme including the usual Hallowe'en games. Dainty refreshments were served by Miss Broadhurst. The house was prettily decorated in orange and black festoons, pumpkins and black cats. Illuminated pumpkin moonshines added much to the attractiveness of the decorations.

Eagles Begin New Pinochle Series

The new series of pinochle games for Norwich Aerie of Eagles began Friday night at Eagle's Home with 24 players entered. The series is to continue throughout the winter.

High scores for the evening were taken by C. Schlintz, with 7,410; J. Fields, with 7,145; T. Fields, with 7,140 and D. Shea, with 7,020.

On Friday evening the series between the Eagles and Polishers got under way, while plans were made for the Ladies' Night entertainment, which comes on Wednesday evening, November 11.

Memorial to First Rector

The Sunday morning service at 10.30 at Christ Episcopal church will be a memorial to Rev. John Tyler, the first rector of the church, who preached his first sermon there on All Saints day, 1735.

NORWICH MAN, SIGMUND SIEGEL IN LIST OF 32 CARNEGIE HEROES

Carnegie hero awards which were announced Friday at Pittsburgh by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, brought a bronze medal to Mrs. Rosa Siegel of 96 Mechanic street for the heroic act of her son, Sigmund, who lost his life Aug. 1, 1922, trying to save two boys from drowning in the Thames river. The Norwich award was the only one in Connecticut. Four other bronze medal awards were made in New England.

Siegel's heroic act was a conspicuous act of bravery of the kind recognized in the Carnegie awards as he risked and gave his own life in an attempt to save the life of two others who were in imminent danger.

Siegel, who was about 20 years old, had gone to Massapeag with two other Norwich young men to prepare a summer cottage on the river bank for an outing that was to be held on the following Sunday. While they were at work, they heard cries for help from the river and saw two boys struggling in the water. Neither of the other two young men could swim, but Seigal, who was only a fair swimmer, plunged in to the help of the two drowning boys, about 13 years old, who were summer boarders from New York who had come to the Sussman farm only a few days before. He got hold of one and brought him safely to shore and then returned after the other, who was sinking and panic stricken. Siegel reached him and was dragged under by the struggles of the frightened youth. They came up under a raft and were drowned, as Siegel's efforts had so exhausted him that he was not able to work his way out.

Siegel's body and that of the drowned boy, Lacy Moscowitz, 13, of New York city, were recovered within an hour afterwards, being found close together near where they had gone down.

Young Siegel was survived by his widowed mother, two brothers, Abe and Henry of this city, and three sisters, Anna and Leah of this city, and Mrs. Helen Hirsch of New York. He was a member of Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E.

Other New England Awards

Other Carnegie awards in New England announced Friday by the commission were the following:

Roland Voyer, 33 Nourse St., Woonsocket, R. I., 14 year old student, who was drowned when he attempted to save a boy at Oakland Beach, R. I., Aug. 8, 1923. To his father was awarded a bronze medal.

Leonard B. Donigan, 119 Roger Williams Ave., Providence, R. I., died assisting in an attempt to save a man from drowning at Providence, Feb. 10, 1924. His father received a bronze medal.

Frank Allen Tefft, 14 year old school boy, 87 Larch street, Providence, R. I., who went to the rescue of two girls at Providence, Feb. 10, 1924, met death. His father received a bronze medal.

Earl Clifford Ketch, Vanceboro, Me., died attempting to rescue a girl from drowning at Vanceboro, July 9, 1924. A bronze medal was given his father.

32 Acts of Heroism

Thirty two acts of heroism, in the commission of which 15 lost their lives were recognized by the Carnegie commission at its fall meeting according to the Associated Press dispatch. Two girls were among those to receive medals.

Four silver medals and 28 bronze medals were awarded, in addition to $7,260 annually to the dependents of the heroes who met death. The commission also awarded $2,355, to be applied as it may sanction: $1700 to disabled heroes; and $2,000 for other worthy purposes. For educational purposes $3,000 was set aside, and in ten cases, $8,500 was awarded for worthy purposes.

COSTUME PRIZES GIVEN AT MASQUERADE DANCE

With about 175 present a delightful Hallowe'en masquerade dance was held Friday evening at the rooms of Hourigan post, No. 594, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Prizes for the prettiest costumes were awarded. The prize for the best ladies' costume went to Mrs. Arthur Ferguson, and Albert Turner won the prize for the best men's costume. A feature of the evening's program was a buck and wing exhibition by Fred Rodman. Pitcher's orchestra furnished the dance program, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Another feature of the evening was a vocal solo, "The Hat My Father Wore," by James Kane, accompanied by the orchestra. A quartette, comprising Albert Turner, James Kane, Herbert F. Burdick and Arthur Strumfler, rendered "Pal of My Cradle Days" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." Refreshments of sandwiches, cake, coffee, doughnuts and sweet cider were served by the committee in charge. There were two prize waltzes, one prize going to Mrs. Albert Turner and Albert F. Burdick, and the other to Mrs. Arthur Ferguson and Herbert F. Burdick. The judges were Louis Hall and Arthur Fitzgerald, who were the committee in charge of the evening.

Prizes for whist were: Ladies' first, Mrs. Frank Tuttle, 42, fancy embroidered towel; second, Mrs. Joseph A. George, 40, cut glass vase; gentlemen's first, Miss Dennison, 38, cigarette case; second, Miss Eva Patridge, 38, box of cigars.

POLISHERS HAND BEATING TO EAGLES IN PINOCHLE

The champion pinochle team of the Eagles met their Waterloo Friday evening at Eagles' home when they were defeated by the polishers by over 1,000 points.

The high score for the polishers was made by Irving Drake, who counted up 7,250 points, while H. Marcue with 7,795 for the evening, led all scorers and was champion Eagle player. Total scores for the evening were: polishers, 53,390; Eagles, 52,780, a lead of 1,110 for the polishers.

Team scores were as follows:

I. Drake, 7,250; W. O'Brien, 7,195; J. Leirich, 6,980; Joseph Kirchner, 6,775; E. P. Mullins, 6,710; Captain Woodmansee, 6,440; C. Nowacki, 6,310; N. Petrone, 6,230; total, 53,890.

Eagles, Harvey Marcus, 7,795; E. J. Mullins, 7,210; Thomas Fields, 7,015; M. Shea, 6,850; W. Caughey, 6,415; J. Bowne, 6,250; W. R. Hastedt, 5,960; James Dwyer, 5,290. Total, 52,780.

CHRIST CHURCH CHOIR HAS HALLOWE'EN SUPPER

The annual Hallowe'en supper and social for members of Christ church choir was given in the church school room Friday evening under the auspices of the choir committee of the church, and proved to be one of the most enjoyable social affairs held there this season.

The program opened with a delightful banquet with a menu consisting of frankfurters, baked beans, cold slaw, ice cream, assorted cakes, chocolate, and rolls, and was enjoyed by a party of 40 members of the choir and their guests. The room was most tastefully decorated in keeping with the season, appropriate favors were at each plate. A program of games and music completed the entertainment for the evennig.

WILL PROVIDE SKATING AT EAST GREAT PLAIN

At a meeting of the officials of the West End community association held Thursday night it was voted to flood the pond at the end of the west side trolley line this winter, thus ensuring Norwich with a community skating pond for the coming season.

Fred M. Oat was appointed chairman of the committee of arrangements for the community affair and the dam will be lowered immediately to allow the pond to fill up before freezing weather sets in.

The association intends to keep the ice clear from snow throughout the winter, but as this will call for money expenditures, donations from any citizen interested in community skating will be gratefull accepted and those may be mailed in to Frank L. Royce, Alice street.

The pond will be lighted by electric lamps which have been strung on pole along the main street which runs close to the waters' edge and with ideal conditions Norwich skaters should enjoy a skating pond unexcelled by that of any city in the state. The pond, when flooded, covers a large area and affords ample space for hundreds of skaters and has always proven to be the favorite skating pond in the city. It is hoped by the West End community association that they may receive the backing of the public in its endeavor to give this favorite outdoor sport this winter and that contributions will enable the association to caary out its program of sport.

BALTIC COUPLE HAD 30TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

The celebration of the 30th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lucier at their residence in Baltic, Saturday evening, Oct. 24th, was the occasion of many hearty congratulations and the expression of wishes for many more years of marital life. Mr. and Mrs. Lucier were married Oct. 24th, 1895 in Baltic and have always resided in that village, for the past sixteen years in their present home, which they built in 1909. STATE EXPENDS $179,811 IN EDUCATION AID

The figures of the cost to the state of assisting boys and girls in obtaining a high school education for the last school year have been prepared by the state department of education. The total amount paid by the state for tuition was $124,869.22, and for the transportation of children living in towns where there are no high schools to towns which provide facilities for obtaining a high school education, the state paid $54,922.74. These two sums make a total, paid by the state on account of high school education, of $179,811.97. The number of children towards whose tuition in high schools the state contributed was 2,703, the state paying two-thirds of the tuition up to $50 per child. The total number of children conveyed to high schools was 2,388. The state pays one-half the expense of transportation provided the proportion does not exceed $35 per child. In two towns there were no transportation expenses, the high schools being sufficiently accessible to the pupils to obviate the necessity of providing conveyances.

The figures for those of the eighty-four towns in this part of the state which received high school grants are as follows:

SATURDAY TAG DAY FOR ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL FUND

Another $1,000 was added to the drive for St. Joseph's school by the reports made by the teams on Friday evening at the headquarters in the Sellas block, bringing the total to $10,000, and it was announced that today (Saturday) will be a tag day in the city when the opportunity to assist in the drive will be broadcast to the public through the tag plan.

The young women workers in the campaign will be upon the streets in the center of the city to give everybody an opportunity to respond in this way and it is anticipated there will be a very satisfactory addition to the fund as a result of the effort.

Another line from which big results are anticipated is the Sunday afternoon entertainment at the Palace theatre for which Manager McEvoy is providing an excellent programme with the entire proceeds to go to the fund.

Substantial amounts are in sight from several lines of activity which the general committee has inaugurated while reports are still to be received from several teams with good territory, so that altogether it is expected that some surprising additions will be made by Monday night when the drive will come to a close with a big dinner at the Wauregan house when all the team reports will be announced and all the captains and workers will be in attendance.

From the campaign leaders down through all the workers on the teams a fine spirit of interest and cooperation has been reported on the part of the general public and many have expressed encouragement and the hope that the drive will succeed in reaching its full goal so that the pastor of the church can completely realize his ambition to make the school building and its equipment an asset in community helpfulness.

BENEFIT WHIST FOR BACKUS HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

Mrs. Willis Austin entertained at whist at her home, No. 268 Washington street, Friday afternoon for the benefit of the Woman's Auxiliary of the W. W. Backus hospital. The whist was held under the auspices of the auxiliary finance committee of which Mrs. William H. Dawley is chairman. There were 21 tables of whist and in addition there were a number of guests present but who did not wish to play. A prize of four orange and black twisted candles in a box was provided for each table. Following the afternoon's play tea was served.

Over $120 was realized for the treasury of the auxiliary. The hostesses are: Mrs. Channing M. Huntington, Miss Jane Aiken, Mrs. Aurin E. Payson, Mrs. W. H. Collins, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. Lucius Briggs, Mrs. Clarence G. Thompson, Mrs. Lyle Fillmore, Mrs. Penry Buckley, Mrs. Clifford Wilson, Mrs. Richard Gregson, Mrs. Harry B. Ford, Mrs. David Trachtenberg, Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley, Mrs. Arthur H. Lathrop, Miss Mary Callahan and Mrs. Hope Wade Adams.

Homemade candy was for sale in pretty Hallowe'en baskets that had been made by six girls of the sixth grade of Broad street school, Dorothy Stewart, Nancy Pitcher, Fannie Quarto, Evelyn Corbeille, Ruth Grodozke, and Catherine Friswell.

The chairs for the afternoon were kindly loaned by Cummings & Ring.

SLIPPERY FIELDS MAY PLAY LARGE PART IN TODAY'S GRIDIRON BATTLES

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(By the Associated Press)—Mid-season football battles, several of them destined to create new chapters in the history of the gridiron sport, will be fought out in all likelihood, on wet fields in the east tomorrow.

Snow of a mud-forming variety swept most of the playing surfaces today over a wide area. Speculation on the effect of this was centered particularly in the great intersectional game between Red Grange's Illinois eleven and Pennsylvania, outstanding eastern championship contender, at Franklin field.

Pennsylvania conquered Chicago in the mud last week and with similar conditions likely to prevail tomorrow the speedy Quaker forward line, one of the best defensive arrays in the east, would hold an advantage over Red Grange, who would find it correspondingly difficult to get under way on a slippery surface. But Penn will be handicapped by the absence of two star backs, Kraus and Fields to offset this.

The Pennsylvania-Illinois fray, attracting a crowd of 62,000, will share the inter-sectional interest of the day with the battle which Navy will wage against Michigan at Ann Arbor, but from the viewpoint of their effect on eastern championship aspirations the most important struggles are those between the army and Yale at New Haven before 75,000 in the Yale bowl; Cornell and Columbia before probably 60,000 at the Polo grounds; Dartmouth and Brown in the new Providence stadium, Syracuse and Penn state at Syracuse.

Army, Dartmouth, Cornell and Syracuse all have been undefeated to date and are in the forefront of the title contenders, all are favorites in tomorrow's tilts, but Cornell and Army at least, have stiff fights on their hands.

Yale, with a weakened forward wall due to injuries to Butterworth, and with Kline and Cutler, two of its leading backfield performers out of the lineup, may well welcome a soggy field for the heavy army charge may be be handicapped. But the soldiers will have their full strength for the engagement, a line of tremendous power and an exceptional backfield.

Last year Yale and the Army fought to a 7-7 tie in the bowl on a day when the Elis furnished the full force of the great eleven that carried them to an undefeated record for 1924, and critics this year class the service eleven of 1925 as even stronger than that which Ed Garbisch took to New Haven.

Fumbling had much to do with Yale's setback at the hands of Pennsylvania two weeks ago and the same failing contributed to the only touchdown scored by Brown last week. Several times this season the blue backs have bungled while in the shadow of the enemy posts.

Brown and Dartmouth meeting on the Bears' new field at Providence, are continuing a feud of long standing. Dartmouth, victorious over Harvard a week ago by a large margin is favored with Brown badly crippled and facing only a fighting chance.

A wet field, however, may aid the Brunonians, with the speedy Keefer and evasive Dixon behind the line.

An aerial attack, such as Dartmouth used against Cornell a year ago at the Polo grounds for a 27 to 14 victory is likely to be Columbia's offering against a powerful Ithacan eleven. Cornell is one of the teams of the east boasting an uncrossed goal line, many consider the Ithaca line with the greatest in this section of the country.

Penn State and Syracuse provide another scrapping eastern contest and here again the orange is an eleven that has defended its goal line successfully. Syracuse, by its previous showing, is the favorite.

Harvard and Princeton are expected to face little difficulty in William and Mary and Swarthmore, respectively. The crimson undoubtedly will start its backfield without Captain Cheek and many of the reserve players should see service in the game, while Princeton probably also will try several combinations in preparation for the "big three" contests to come.

Among other prominent eastern arrays, unbeaten outfits will clash when New York university meets Fordham at the Yankee stadium while Holy Cross entertains Uncle Charley Moran's Bucknell eleven at Worcester. Colgate, also unbeaten, but tied once, goes west in search of intersectional conquest at the expense of the Michigan Aggies while Georgetown also meets an intersectional foe in Kings college. Washington and Lee and West Virginia meet in their annual classic with a close fight predicted.

Leading games tomorrow and 1924 results follow:

Yale 7, Army 7.
Dartmouth 10, Brown 8.
Cornell 14, Columbia 0.
Princeton 21, Swarthmore 6.
Syracuse 10, Penn State 6.
Fordham 27, N. Y. U. 0.
West Virginia 6, Washington & Lee, 0.
Williams 13, Union 6.
Boston college 47, Providence 0.
Vermont 13, Norwich 0.
Vermont 13, Norwich 0.
Massachusetts Aggies 17, Amherst 7.
Lehigh 6, Muhlenberg 0.
Pittsburgh 26, Johns Hopkins 0.
New Hampshire 20, Tufts 0.

WOULD ABOLISH TAXES ON GOLF MEMBERSHIPS

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (AP)—A united effort on the part of American golf clubs to bring about elimination of the federal taxes on membership and dues is under way, according to announcement today by the association of American clubs. In revealing this movement, the association said its representatives would appear before the ways and means committee of congress.

The association is made up of representative golf organizations from coast to coast, the result of a movement started some time ago in this state. William D. Hayward, former United States district attorney, had been retained as general counsel.

TWELVE HUNDRED CADETS AT YALE GAME TODAY

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 30. (AP)—Twelve hundred West Point cadets will leave at 7.30 tomorrow morning in motor busses for New Haven, where the Army is scheduled to meet Yale on the gridiron tomorrow. The cadets will be accompanied by their band of 100 pieces, and will stage a military manouever in the Yale Bowl prior to the kick-off. The West Pointers will return home immediately following the game.

Chippie Gaw Reappointed

BOSTON, Oct. 30. (AP)—Dr. George (Chippie) Gaw, former Princeton hockey coach, has been reappointed hockey coach at Boston university, the athletic committee announced today. Roger M. Washburn, former B. U. football captain was named assistant to Head Coach Charles Whalen in football.

YALE WILL HAVE TWO REGULARS IN BACKFIELD

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 30. (AP)—A driving snow storm welcomed the Army football team when it arrived here today for its gridiron battle with Yale in the bowl tomorrow afternoon. The West Pointers were taken to their headquarters at Derby, near here, and the bowl was turned over to them for practice this afternoon.

The Yale squad had its last practice in the university armory. Yale will enter the contest tomorrow with but two of its regular backfield, Bunnell at quarterback, and Allen at fullback. The latter has completely recovered from his injuries. The regular halfbacks, Kline and Cutler, are unable to start the game and their places will be taken by Noble and Foote.

The team will have the advantage of having Captain Joss in the lineup at tackle. He is the most experienced player on the team and was out of the game for the first four weeks of the season.

A capacity crowd is expected tomorrow. Twelve hundred cadets from West Point will come here by motor buses and will give an exhibition drill before the game.

The probable lineup tomorrow follows:

PHILADELPHIA PAYS TRIBUTE TO FAMOUS "RED" GRANGE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30—(A. P.)—Philadelphia bowed to "Red" Grange today, or at least that part of it through which he, with the other warriors of the Illinois football squad, passed from the railroad station to the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. Whether the University of Pennsylvania gridiron machines does likewise when they meet on Franklin field tomorow remains to be seen.

Arriving from the west in a driving snow storm, the Illinois squad, led by Coach Zuppke, were greeted at the station by a great throng. There were hundreds of University of Illinois alumni among the crowd, but the great majority were plain football fans who braved the elements to get a glimpse of Grange.

After luncheon at the hotel, the players were taken to Franklin field, which they found wet and muddy.

The Illinois players did nothing at the scene of tomorrow's battle except to walk around the field several times.

"They'll look pretty good against Penn," said Coach Zuppke after the practice. He declined to make any predictions as to the outcome.

MISSOURI VALLEY TITLE TO BE DECIDED TODAY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 30—(A. P.)—The Missouri Valley conference gridiron leadership will be decided tomorrow unless a tie should develop in the Iowa State-University of Missouri game. The two undefeated valley leaders will clash at Columbia, with Missouri striving to gain the title for the second successive year.

The Nebraska cornhuskers expect anything but an easy tussle with Oklahoma at Lincoln and Kansas, thrice defeated, will play Drake at Lawrence tomorrow.

The Oklahoma Aggies will play Grinnell at Grinnell tomorrow, while the Kansas Aggies and Washington are idle.

AGGIE FRESHMEN CLASH WITH SPRINGFIELD YEARLINGS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Oct. 30—Coach Alexander's Connecticut Aggies Freshman eleven meets a strong opponent tomorrow, when the Springfield college yearlings are met in a contest preliminary to the varsity game with Manhattan college. It will be the fourth game of the season for the freshmen, and they will have to show their best form to turn back the physical directors.

Among those starting for Alexander tomorrow are Sayer, Hartford boy, who is expected to star in a tackle berth. Eastern Connecticut boys slated to start include quarterback Williams, former Windham High athlete, fullback Allard of Plainfield, Hewitt, an end who formerly starred for Chapman Tech, and McNamara, a guard from Norwich.

Springfield has played one game to date, defeating Choate School of Wallingford 6-0. While the team has no outstanding stars, it is made up of eleven men who have had considerable high or prep school experience, which has enabled their coach to develop a smooth working and powerful team.

It will be the third meeting in as many years between the Connecticut and Springfield Freshmen. In 1923, the game ended in a scoreless tie, but last year Alexander's charges won by a 14-0 score.

Connecticut's yearlings have played three games to date, losing the Tufts Freshmen, defeated Milford Prep, and playing a scoreless tie with Kent School.

WEST WELL REPRESENTED IN GAMES TODAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 30. (AP)—The peak of the season's intersectional football competition tomorrow finds the middle west's strongest team—Michigan—entertaining the Navy. The big ten's brightest star—Red Grange—invading the East against Pennsylvania, and the country's greatest traveling team—Notre Dame—down at Georgia Tech.

Coach Yost's Michigan team has not been scored upon this season and with his squad in splendid shape their hopes for victory over the Navy run high despite the fame of Alan Shapley and his backfield mates.

Three western conference games tomorrow settle rivalries of Long standing—Wisconsin-Minnesota, Purdue-Chicago, and Indiana-Northwestern. It will be Minnesota's first conference game of the season and one of the crucial games for the two new coaches of the big ten. Little of Wisconsin and spears of Minnesota, of the two elevens, Minnesota has shown perhaps the greater strength, especially in reserves.

Iowa and Ohio State, the other western conference teams, are counted upon to win their non-conference contests. The Hawkeyes, undefeated this year, nevertheless may be given a hard fight by Wabash, which downed Purdue, but the Buckeyes should have little trouble beating Wooster college.

Nutmegs-Lorraine Game Called Off

Due to an unforeseen circumstance the game between the Lorraine football club of Westerly and the Norwich Nutmegs has been called off. If possible arrangements will be made to play the game at a later date on the local gridiron.

CONN. AGGIES WILL PLAY MANHATTAN TODAY IN LAST HOME GAME OF SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 30—The Connecticut Aggies will play their last home game of the season tomorrow, when Manhattan is met on Gardner Dow Field at Storrs in what will be the first gridiron clash ever held between those two institutions.

Coach Dole's men put the finishing touches on their preparation for the game with a snappy signal drill here this afternoon, using all the plays that will be flashed against the New Yorkers tomorrow. Snow was falling as the team went through its paces, and indications point to a slippery field tomorrow.

Every man on the Connecticut squad is in tip top condition, and Dole expects to throw his strongest line up against the metropolitan eleven. Captain Brink, now fully recovered from his shoulder injury, worked out with the team again today, and it is expected that he will start in his regular position at left end.

According to Coach Dole's statement tonight, Eddy may start in the backfield in place of Makofski. The Simsbury boy flashed a pretty exhibition of broken field running against Eddie Casey's Tufts eleven last Saturday and he repeated several times against the freshman eleven in practice this week. Provided his mates in the backfield give him proper interference, Eddy should make some good gains for the Aggies tomorrow, and it seems probable that Dole will give him his chance.

John Daly, Hartford boy, will remain at right end, where Dole shifted him from center last week. He has shown a marked ability to pick forward passes out of the air, and Dole intends to utilize that ability to the fullest extent. Lorentsen, Naugatuck boy, will play center.

Wallie Johnson of Middletown will start at right guard, a position he has been fighting for four seasons. This year, though starting late, he has come through 100 per cent., and is putting up a great game.

Manhattan comes to Storrs with a record that is none too impressive, having lost three games and winning only one. Two of the defeats were sustained at the hands of teams way out of its class, however, Holy Cross winning 41-0, and Fordham 55-0. St. Joseph's college of Philadelphia defeated Manhattan 13-6 last week, while earlier in the season Manhattan licked the New York Aggies 34-7.

Although Connecticut's record is none too impressive to date, a comparison of the two seems to favor the Aggies, if any edge can be seen in doping tomorrow's contest. Dole's team showed a great improvement in its game at Tufts, costly fumbles robbing the Storrs team of two touchdowns.

Three Connecticut boys appear on the starting lineup for Manhattan tomorrow. They are Captain Nippy Dunne of Waterbury, who formerly played for Wilby High schol. He plays right halfback on the Manhattan eleven, and though weighing only 145 pounds, is a dangerous man carrying the ball. Morgan Red Burke is another Waterbury boy playing for the New York team, though he prepped at Crosby High. Burke weighs 174 pounds and plays left guard. He is considered the outstanding linesman of the team. Thomas Skidd, former South Norwalk High star is the third Connecticut boy who will start against the Aggies tomorrow. Skidd is another big boy, tipping the scales at 174 pounds, which he uses to good advantage in the fullback position. He is a fine punter, and will "do the booting for his eleven. "Mike" Hayes is another former Crosby High star from Waterbury who will probably see action against the Storrs team, though he will not start. Hayes recently suffered a fractured elbow, which has hindered his effectiveness.

An added interest in connection with this contest is the fact that Hussan, a Turkish Prince, is a member of the Manhattan team, and may get into the game tomorrow. Hassan played regularly at fullback until internal injuries received in the Fordham game removed him from competition. He is making the trip to Storrs, but it is doubtful if he gets into the fray.

The Connecticut Aggies have played five games to date, winning two and losing three. Wesleyan and Tufts fell before Dole's men, while New York University, Maine and Massachusetts Aggies succeeded in turning back the Nutmeg Aggies. Three games remain on Connecticut's slate after tomorrow, and they are New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Rensellaer, all of whom will be played away from home.

AMES AND HIS STABLE BARRED BY N. Y. COMMISSION

NEW YORK, Oct. 30. (AP)—The state athletic commission today handed down a decision indefinitely suspending William Ames of Clifton, Mass., and his entire stable of British boxers, including Tommy Milligan, Frank Moody and Wee Willie Woods, following similar action taken by the Massachusetts boxing commission.

The Massachusetts board, acting because of Ames' residence in that state, suspended him and his stable under a ban for violating an agreement with the commission that Frank Moody would fulfill a contract to meet Lew Chester, in Brooklyn, before meeting any other boxer, following his cancellation of the fight owing to illness. Moody fought Homer Robinson in one of the preliminary matches to the Wills-Johnson fight at Newark, N. J., Monday night and the Massachusetts board immediately suspended him and notified the New York state commission of its action. The suspension here followed.

The ban hits the contemplated American invasion of Tommy Milligan, European welterweight and middleweight champion who recently signed with Tex Rickard for three matches at Madison Square Garden, terminating with a title match with Mickey Walker.

The increase in the high cost of promoting matches caused by the recent ruling of the commission raising salaries of ring officials, prompted a committee of matchmakers and promoters from the smaller clubs to appeal to the commission today for relief. Chairman Farley agreed to permit matchmakers to eliminate the six round preliminary match which heretofore has been compulsory on all cards. He told promoters this would save them $150 on a card.

The commission also made public a letter sent to the French boxing board on behalf of Johnny Dundee, whose suspension the French commission seeks for his failure to fulfill a contract to meet Bretonnel in Paris. In it the commission said it would not demand that Dundee fight gratuitously, as the Paris board suggested, owing to the loss of money by Dundee's alleged "frunout," but that it would demand that he fight Bretonnel in Paris if satisfactory contracts for the match were sent to the New York board. The letter also advised opponents in the event Bretonnel has outgrown the lightweight division.

Vito Cazzato of Syracuse was giving a reprimand without suspension for fouling Steve Wolanin an Syracuse Oct. 23.

ACADEMY PLAYS CHAPMAN AT NEW LONDON TODAY

Providing old Jupe Pluvius lets up on the early season snowstorms, the Academy will meet Chapman Technical school at Morgan park, New London, this afternoon in what promises to be a hard fought battle. Rumor has it that the team from down the river will enter the game confident that they will easily win the game. On the other hand the N. F. A. eleven, after their decisive victory over Plainfield High school last Saturday feel that Chapman will need a much better team than they have this year to defeat them.

Coach Whitney has given the team the hardest week of practice they have had so far this season this past five days. Monday, Wednesday and Friday the team was given long signal drills, while on Tuesday they had a hard, fast scrimmage that lasted about two hours. Thursday the varsity met the scrubs in a long dummy scrimmage. The team showed some fine work during the past few days and is improving at a fast rate. In the scrimmages on Tuesday and Thursday the team showed a get-your-man spirit that had been noticeable lacking up to the present time this season.

No definite lineup was to be had at a late hour Friday evening but the team that will probably start the game will be made up as follows: Ends, Marks, Sargent; tackles, Mousley, Stefano; guards, Poisky, Fiddle; center, Murphy, Sullivan. In the backfield Courbois will most likely be at quarter, with C. Brewer, and either Captain Williams or Tombari at halfbacks. Radtke Ed Brewer will most likely hold down the fullback berth.

The Academy squad is in almost topnotch form at the present time. The players are anxious to get into the game and prove that they are real football players and not the ping-pong experts that they acted like in the first part of the season. If weather conditions are favorable the team will leave the Academy at 12.45 p. m.

MARBLE KNOCKS HIMSELF OUT IN BOXING EXHIBTIION

BOSTON, Oct. 30—(A. P.)—George Marble of East Boston knocked himself out tonight at the Elks Weekly Amateur show at the arena and lost the hardest luck decision in the annals of local boxing.

Marble met John Fitzgerald of the same district in a bout in the 196 pound class and had the better of the battle. He knocked Fitzgerald down once in the first round, drove him into a corner and floored him with a terrific right to the jaw. The impact threw Marble backwards and he fell, landing on the back of his head with such force as to render him unconscious.

With box boxers down the referee began the count and he had just reached the count of nine when Fitzgerald staggered to his feet. He was adjudged the winner.

GOOD WEATHER PREDICTED FOR TODAY'S GAMES

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 30—(A. P.)—Cloudy tomorow morning but sunny in the afternoon was the football weather forecast given out here tonight by Weather Forecaster Leonard M. Tarr tonight for the Yale-Army game.

The storm will come to an end before morning, he said tonight and it will be followed by clearing weather. It will be much colder tomorow, his observations showed, and he recommended that heavy wraps be taken to the game.

In commenting on the snow storm here today, Mr. Tarr said that it was the heaviest for any one day in October in the past 52 years. It had at one time in the past half a century snowed more than .2 of an inch in any one day in October, he remarked. The snowfall today measured .7 of an inch late this afternoon.

Frank Goddard is to defend his title of English heavyweight champion in a bout with Phil Scott in London Nov. 16.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Jack Dempsey has fought four times in defense of his title since winning it in 1919.

St. Louis is the only city in the major leagues that has not won at least one pennant.

New Orleans will have 95 days of racing this winter, from Thanksgiving day to St. Patrick's day.

Nearly one-half of all the gun clubs in the United States, Canada and the Canal Zone are affiliated with the American Trapshooting association.

About $140,000 in purses will be distributed at the brief meeting of the Southern Maryland association at Bowie, the close of which on Nov. 28 will mark the finish of 1925 racing in the North.

TRAFFIC DANGER PICTURES TO TEACH SCHOOL CHILDREN

A definite plan to enlist the school children of the state in a comprehensive move to cut down motor vehicle accident totals, at the same time awakening in these citizens of tomorrow a keener realization of the traffic situation that confronts them, as automobiles on the highways continue to increase by leaps and bounds, was inaugurated in Hartford this week.

Through Commissioner Stoeckel, who is a member and treasurer of the Hartley corporation, a Connecticut body interested in educational and charitable purposes, founded and financed by Helen Hartley Jenkins of Norfolk who is its president, a meeting of the superintendents of schools, the principals of both high schools and all the district schools, the chief of police and head of the police traffic squad, was held to work out a plan to impress upon the children and, through them, upon their parents, what requirements the evolution of modern traffic imposes upon them, both for their own safety and that of others. If the plan should prove to be successful in Hartford, as those in charge of it say they have every reason to expect it to be, it will be extended to every city and school district throughout the state if desired. Its purpose is quite as much to anticipate the more difficult problems expected to be encountered with the greatly increased traffic of the future as it is to cope with the present conditions, as to the gravity of which it is generally conceded that the public is much too indifferent.

The Hartley corporation has made an appropriation to be used in connection with the promotion of certain plans to benefit traffic. These plans will be worked out in co-operation with the state motor vehicle department, and will follow lines of original endeavor worked up through that agency of the state.

The motor vehicle department is convinced that the safety of the public in this constantly increasing stream of traffic which even now chokes the main thoroughfares to the danger point, must lie largely in the education of the public to a true realization of the extent to which the danger has grown. The automobile has come to be such a familiar object, available as it now is to every second family, at least, and the mysteries of its operation have been revealed to so large a proportion of the population, that in the accepted theory that it is indispensable in modern times, the people, generally speaking, have lost sight of its tremendous destruction powers.

Department observation has been, in connection with the scores of people who daily present themselves to report accidents that it is not until a tragedy "hits home" that most people stop to consider the awful reality of the constant parade of newspaper headlines: "302 Killed in Auto Accidents Last Year;" "7,158 Persons Injured in Motor Mishaps in 1924;" "Small Girl Dies of Auto Injuries," etc.

The record for the first nine months of this year showed that one in every seventeen motor vehicles registered in Connecticut was involved in some kind of an accident. Those that were serious no doubt served as a warning to those involved. If indeed the results were not shocking enough to leave their impress indelibly on their memories. The fact that many who once figure in slight accidents come back later to report further accidents may be taken to indicate that the degree of the mishap has much to do with its moral effect.

The department's object is to teach these lessons without the pain of experience. The work among adults will continue for the effect on present-day conditions, but in looking into the future, it will undertake to prepare the children to understand, as they approach maturity, that a very real automobile traffic problem—a new thing in history—exists which depends on the public for its solution.

To this end the Hartley corporation has furnished the motor vehicle department with facilities to take moving pictures of typical traffic scenes for reproduction in the schools on the one hand and before meetings of adults, on the other. The department is prepared to furnish any school district in Connecticut with a record of its accidents over any given period and the conclusions as to responsibility, drawn from analysis of them. It is convinced that much can be accomplished, in co-operation with the school authorities not only along the lines of preparing the children to face the traffic problems of the future, but in safeguarding them now, when the potentialities of the situations are not fully apparent to them, by marking dangerous locations in the localities of schools and training the pupils to exercise extra precaution at such points.

The scheme in Hartford is to include traffic education in the curriculum of each school without increasing the sum total of subjects. For instance, classes in language and English are likely to be required to write compositions and essays on the subject, requiring careful study of existing conditions.

WESTERLY

Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 19, I. O. O. F., of Westerly, Mrs. Florence Rasmussen, noble grand, held a masquerade social and card party in Odd Fellows' hall Thursday evening which was largely attended. The committee was Mrs. Lucy Blackburn, Mrs. Lillian Freeman, Mrs. Louise Burdick, Mrs. Clara Macomber and Mrs. Emma Gardiner. Refreshments were served in the banquet hall. The costumes worn displayed originality and many were clever. The prize was awarded to Mrs. Earl Perrin and the consolation award went to Mrs. George B. Sharp.

The gentleman's first prize was won by James Rasmussen; and the consolation was given J. Edwin Gardiner.

Largely attended in the armory hall of the Knights Templar asylum on Thursday evening was the dance held under the auspices of Deborah chapter, No. 9, Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Eleanor Mitchell, worthy matron. Music was furnished by Murphey's ideal orchestra. Light refreshments were served.

Westerly's first snow storm of the season began Friday afternoon about 1 o'clock.

Howard C. Davis, a graduate of Westerly High school, class of 1901, who annually is the host to the Westerly High school football eleven, to witness a Dartmouth game, arrived in Westerly by automobile Thursday. Friday afternoon Mr. Davis witnessed the Westerly High-Plainfield High football game on the Westerly Athletic field. Today, (Saturday) he has as his guest at the Brown-Dartmouth game in Providence, the W. H. S. football players.

A party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fancher, married Oct. 11, was held Thursday evening at the Central theatre at the conclusion of the usual performance. About sixteen friends were present. After lunch was served, dancing and games were enjoyed. Mr. Fancher is chief projectionist at the theatre.

The Westerly Caledonian Society, which for over thirty years has celebrated Hallowe'en with a concert or dance Friday evening held a masquerade dance at their hall on Main street. The Crandall-Sutcliffe orchestra furnished music.

A miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Josephine Crocl, who is soon to be married to Joseph Monti, was given Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Lucy L. Passetti on Ledward avenue. About 20 friends were present. Miss Croci was presented many useful gifts. Refreshments were served and there was dancing.

A surprise miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Doris Carney was given Thursday night by Misses Eva Dooley and Mary Driscoll at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Driscoll on Grove avenue. Miss Carney's marriage with Wilfred P. Frechette will take place next month. Upon entering the room, Miss Carney was showered with rose petals and confronted with a huge crepe paper pumpkin, which contained many beautiful gifts. Hallowe'en games were played during the evening and musical selections were rendered by Miss Helen McGrath, Miss Rose Bannon, Miss Clara Handel and Martin H. Spellman. Later a lunch was served.

The Ford coupe of Anthony Ruisi of 86 High street, which disappeared Saturday, Sept. 5, was found Thursday where the thieves had abandoned it in a secluded spot off the road from Westerly to North Stonington, at some distance beyond Blanchard's station.

In taking up the trial calendar, after the case of Agnes M. Nelson, p. a. vs. the N. Y., N. H., and H. R. R. had been declared settled by agreement, and the complaint of William L. Kay, deputy chief of police of Hopkinton, against Walter Bielick of Providence for the operation of a truck in the town of Hopkinton at an unreasonable and improper rate of speed on Sept. 22 had been continued, Judge Turano called the next speeding case.

Manuel Susa, 18, of Stonington through his attorney, John J. Dunn, entered a plea of nolo to the charge of the operation of an automobile Oct. 19th at the junction of Pleasant and Canada streets, Westerly, at an unreasonable and improper rate of speed. In view of his youth, Judge Turano, said that if he appeared before him again he would be "very severe" but this time would let him off for a fine of $10 and costs.

When the docket was ended Judge Turano called the attention of those in court, also representatives of the press, to a letter received through the mail by him, as others had been. Although these letters were not exactly of a threatening nature, nevertheless the judge was told what to do or what would happen, if he did not do those things.

Deputy Sheriff Oliver L. Focht of Berks county, Pennsylvania, came to Westerly and returned Friday morning with Robert Bricker, 23, charged with deserting his wife and two children, May 14. Complaints were made to Westerly police authorities by District Attorney David F. Mauger, from his office in Reading and Bricker was taken into custody by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown Tuesday.

In Westerly, Bricker was reported to have made his home with his brother Harry Bricker, and to have been in the employ of the Westerly Light and Power or South County Public Service company.

In the Friday morning session of Third District court Clerk M. Walter Flynn Jr., read the following: Docket—New Writ—Samuel Fishman vs. Thomas Dortch. Answered by Attorney C. E. Roche who requested a bill of particulars and asked for surety for costs. Ordered in two weeks. Continued two weeks.

Old Civil Docket—Hazard J. Lord vs. Tefft Motor Mart of West Warwick. Answered by George D. Vidal and continued one week to Nov. 6th.

Agnes M. Nelson, p. a. vs. New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. Roche for plaintiff, Phillips for defendant. Settled by agreement.

Criminal Docket—State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police, complaint vs. Manuel Susa. Ready. State, Oliver P. Crandall, director of public air, vs. Edward O'Connell. Continued one week. State, Thomas E. Brown, complainant vs. Joseph Sylvestri. Continued one week; vs. David Roberts. Continued; vs. Angelo Tirano. Continued one week; vs. Samuel Main. Continued four weeks. State, William L. Kay, deputy chief of police, of Hopkinton, complainant vs. Walter Bielick of Providence. Continued one week. State Thomas E. Brown, complainant vs. Thomas Fiore. Continued one week.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Gourlay McLaren, having gone to New York from their Westerly home, are entertaining guests over Hallowe'en at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Miss Lillian T. Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Pitcher of Westerly, has returned home after an operation for appendicitis at the Home Memorial hospital, New London.

Foundations have been laid for a new concrete sidewalk in front of the New Park hotel, which has been recently covered with stucco and new copper and plate glass store fronts added.

Joseph Stedman of Westerly was a business caller in Boston Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Perry left Westerly Friday by automobile for New Hampshire, to pass the week end.

NOANK

Mrs. Henry Babcock of Hartford was calling on friends in the village.

Wednesday the Missionary Circle held the October meeting at the home of Mrs. A. M. Beebe. Ten were present and Mrs. Beebe was in charge of the meeting. The 100th psalm was read, followed by prayer. The secretary's report was read, as was a letter from the state president. Miss Mary Howard. Fourteen neckties were made and a barrel was packed for Rev. Francis Rose of the Philippine Islands. The collection was nearly three dollars.

VOLUNTOWN

A week's mission at St. Thomas' church closed at the 8 o'clock mass Sunday morning. The services which were held morning and evening throughout the week were very largely attended and it is believed that all members of the parish approached the sacraments during the week. The pastor and parishioners are congratulating themselves on the success of the mission.

Monday evening, at a meeting of Unity Circle, No. 1250, C. of A. two candidates were initiated and other business was transacted after which a Hallowe'en party was given. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served to members and their guests. Dancing and games were the favorite forms of amusement.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church served a chicken pie supper in Union hall, Wednesday, a very large crowd attending. After the supper a pleasing entertainment was given by the school children, directed by the principal, Mrs. Mary Peckham. Those participating were given hearty applause by those present. The successful evening netted the society about $100.

Many local inhabitants got a glimpse of "Miss Essex" the commercial aeroplane as she passed over the village Tuesday afternoon.

Teresa Marie, infant daughter of Peter and Nora MacDonald Violette, was given the sacrament of baptism, on Sunday by Rev. L. Paradis at St. Thomas' church. The God parents were the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDonald, who were also celebrating their 34th wedding anniversary.

Since the closing of the local picture house, owing to the new state tax, local business men are claiming that it has also hit their Saturday evening business pretty hard, it has also deprived the people of the village of one of their chief amusements and many expressions of regret for the passing of the pictures are heard. Hopes are expressed that some arrangements can be made where a return to this popular mode of entertainment will be possible.

Autumn

Now the summer time is over and the autumn days are here,
The richest, rarest, ripest days through all the whole long year.
For October's skies are bluer than the skies of any June,
And the earth is brimmed with beauty on this smiling afternoon.
There is not the simple sameness as in summer's robe of green
For gay colors, bright and vivid, sparkle in the harvest scene.

Now the greatest, grandest artist with his magic brush and dyes
Has splashed the lanes and woodland with the tints of sunset skies.
From the hickories and hazels gleams of glowing crimson shine
And the grapes are deepest purple hanging heavy on the vine.
There the sassafras and sweet-gum flaunt a flag of scarlet hue
And the ragged wayside weedings blossom out in tender blue.

All earth's carpet soft, is turning just to match the russet brown
Of the leaves that crisp and flutter from the waving branches down,
But there is no somber sadness in this sign of creeping age
For the year is brave, triumphant in the glory of her wage.
Though her days are growing briefer and her nights hold hint of cold,
Yet from every tree and bramble shines her wondrous wealth of gold.

As the Master decks the woodland with such beauty near the end
Will He not, to His dear children, richer, rarer garments lend?
In a radient coat of colors will He robe the ripened soul,
And in every rent or wrinkle place a patch of wisdom's gold.
When the spring of life is over and the summer, too, is past,
We will find life's brightest blessings have been kept until the last.

The Old School Gang

There are times at night when the low lamplight
Plays tricks with my tired eyes,
That I see once more through a distant door
The dreams that the day denies.
How my hot tears start, and my harrowed heart
Is pierced with a poignant pang,
As I backward gaze on my hard days,
And I dream of the old school gang!

There were Joe and me, and Stumpy and Lee
And Freddy and freckled Bill,
A feller named Dick that I wanted to lick,
I'm longing to lick him still!

Oh, the pranks we played, and the plots we laid,
In our new discovered slang!
And the time we smoked till wecoughed and choked
In the cause of the old school gang.

In the cave at night where, pale with fright,
We planned under pirate sails
That we'd drop our dead till waves ran red,
For dead men tell no tales!
Yet the tales we told while our blood ran cold,
And the artless songs we sang,
And the bamboo poles by the fishin' holes
Where I sat with the old school gang.

And the tryst I kept where the willows wept,
And I sued for my sweetheart's kiss;
But me and my pup had to give her up
'Cause the fellers called me "Sis"!
Ah, lads that I knew! You were tried and true.
And I mind how your glad cries rang,
But your lips are dumb, and the words won't come
For gone is the old school gang!

Could my eyes behold, and my arms enfold,
Those childhood chums of mine,
I would give my all, and I'd call it small,
As pay for such joy divine;
But those chums have flown; so I muse alone
Where memory's portraits hang
And I'd sell my soul if my lips could roll
A call to the old school gang.

Let Me Live My Life

Let me live my life, my own real life
Unbiased, unprejudiced and unafraid;
Let each new day find me out on the way
Where stronger foundations are laid.
Ask me not to adopt in whole or in part
Just the steps your own feet have trod;
Each soul is different from all who have been
In its climb upward and outward toward God.

Let me live my life, not that of some other
Whose footsteps are only obstructions to me.
Their path up the hill so winding and chill
Would only hinder my soul to be free.
Let me live my own life as new lessons come
My soul glad as yonder wild lily's nod;
Let me walk with my king, whistle and sing
In my climb upward and outward toward God.

Let me alone. No, give me a boost 'a God bless you'
As I struggle up the long ladder's round,
A smile always aids us the hard climb is made
For we must all begin at the ground.
But let me be myself, my own personal self
Heaven hath decreed that my path should be trod.
Then give me the right to make my own fight
In my climb upward and outward toward GOD.

HOW TO MAKE HOOKED RUGS

Dear Corner Sisters: As I saw a request from Kitjo in regards to hooked rugs, I will send her my answer, as I have made a number of them. You will need a little frame similar to a quilting frame in order to hold your rug in shape. I have a hook I bought in a hardware store and like it very well; also a little hand machine I call it which I like much better than I do the hook. When using the hook, I put it on two chairs (the frame I mean) then sew the burlap on as the quilts are put on. You can buy the stamped patterns, but I never do. I make my own from grain sacks. When firmly stretched on I usually make my own patterns, lay them on the burlap and take a little dish of ink and a match and trace my pattern on. Then take off the paper and proceed with the work but when you use the hook you must stand up all the time in a stooping position.

Cut the rags about one half inch wide. Take the rags in left hand and hold under the burlap, put your hook down through and hook the rags up. Leave about two or three threads and then insert hook again and again and proceed. You use your own judgment. If you use flowers, etc. use colors to correspond. That is the way I use the hook. The other way I have two little pieces of board that I had made cut with grooves to hold the frame these I tack to a certain place on the wall I use only for that purpose. I get my rags all cut a little narrower than in the foregoing rug and you can sit down to do this work. On the ones made this way you work from the wrong side of the rug. The hooked ones you work on the right side. On these where I use the little hand machine, there is a hole in the needle-like point and you thread your rag into this eye and insert the needle and you can work both hands just as fast as you feel like it. When you come to the end of the rag you just push it through on the right side. When the rug is finished you take from the frame and cut off all the superfluous ends and clip all the little loops, for when you use this machine you form loops and when these are all cut the effect is velvety. I have made quite a number of those rugs. I forgot to say in making the burlap foundation I turn in a hem about three inches deep and run it around on the sewing machine to reinforce the edges. I much prefer the machine made ones to the ones I hooked in because I can do it so must faster and you can sit down while at work. You can make pretty patterns yourself if you are handy and they are much cheaper too. I had one on the floor for the past ten years and there were several holes in it and a party saw it and wanted it so badly that she bought it and gave me $2 for it. It was pretty well used up as it had been in constant use for ten years with hard usage. I have one on the frame now. The advantage of the rugs made this way is you can use up every little scrap of pretty bright colored rags.

I have made lots of different kinds of rugs. Some of them are quite pretty. This little machine I speak of a man had them for sale one time at the fair. If you succeed from my directions Kitjo, please let me know. Should you wish any further information on the subject, please write a personal letter to

MBORE

WRITE ONCE A MONTH AT LEAST

Dear Members: It has been some time since I wrote but I suppose I have hardly been missed as there have been so many nice letters—much better than mine. I have been reading them from week to week with much interest. I have been watching to see if the page was good and full and if it hadn't been I should have written before. Now don't you all think we ought to write at least once a month? If we did that the page never would lack of writers. Let's try and make it a rule.

The days are getting a lot shorter which keeps one very busy with so many household duties but I look forward to the evenings when you can sit down in the old arm chair and listen to the music from all parts of the world and good speaking. It is nice to sit down on a Sunday when you can't go to church and hear the sermons from different places. I think the radio is the most wonderful invention yet. It is a God send especially to people in rural communities and shutins. It is nice to know a little of what is going on outside your own door.

I suppose Free Air is down in Florida by this time and I hope we shall hear from that delightful place often through her letters and cards. It is nice to get rid of the cold winter but the good old state of Connecticut is not a bad place. You can't beat it in the summer time. You can't find a perfect place if you tried so let us try and make the best of our surroundings and think of people much worse off then we are.

A little gift amidst the graw
That's sunshine.
A little brightness on the way
That's sunshine
A little smiling through the tears
That's sunshine
A little faith behind the fears
That's sunshine.

Best wishes to all.

CLUB NO. 2 MEETS IN ODD FELLOWS' HALL

Dear Social Cornerites: Ethelyn's letter last week reminded me of my first letter to the Corner, a subject on cats. Hers is on care of cats. Mine was on Tramp Cats, which reminds me of one that came to my door most four years ago and would not leave me. It became a great pet in our home. A short time ago it looked as if a dog had bitten it and when I got home from Club No. 2's meeting hubby said Billie is dead and buried.

I, as well as others, get or attached to them and their little habits. They seem so knowing, I think I'll never have another one.

have another one.

One Who Reads: Accept my sympathy in your loss of a good mother. You will feel so lonesome from your years of care of her. I took Mr. M's phone message at store for your nephew on Broadway.

Wetona: Your letter on Friendship was fine. I hope you write again with just such a nice letter. Didn't you think Forget It, sent in by Geraldine, great?

If everybody would learn it and remember it it would be beneficial. I think when a hard and untruthful thing is said about a friend, a neighbor, a lodge, or club member it would help to stop it at the starting and not add and add to it until it is told to everybody one meets when there is no truth to it. We all in the Corner should learn it or cut it out and frame it, especially this part of the verse.

So when you hear some one knocking,
A man or woman's good name,
Just say it's a lie, forget it
And never repeat it again.

Thank you Geraldine for sending it in. I shall prize it more then you know perhaps.

True Blue: Congratulation on your silver anniversary.

Just to remind you, Club No. 2 meets in Odd Fellows hall, Main street, Nov. fourth. Bring plate, cup, silver and the usual articles of food, and something to help Chocolate in the program to entertain after dinner. Everybody, who are Corner Members, welcome.

CALLA LILY (Club No. 2.)

TRYING OUT UNKNOWN ROADS

Dear Social Corner Members: It is some little time since I have written but the page has been full so all was well.

Tatting: Am glad you came to life. That's a fine thing to know how to remove iodine stains. I remember a long time ago a friend showed me a beautiful piece of work that was ruined by iodine having been spilled on it.

Do you ever see Interested Reader, or has she moved out of town? I miss her letters in the Corner.

True Blue: I often think how I did not recognize you at the fair until you spoke and then I saw you so soon again on the street. I see where you went to another fair. I have never been there but hear it was very good.

Oh yes, O. D., I think you are quite a sport after all, even if you didn't go to Ocean Beach.

Forget-me-not: You must not believe O. D. when she says its hard for her to get acquainted. I did not find her that way and now count her one of my dearest friends. Do you and Kenny get to the meetings in Norwich?

Dorothy Bradford: What has become of you? You never answered my questions. Were you in W. recently to attend a W. C. T. U. convention? Not long ago I enjoyed a ride to Beach Pond. What a nice place for a picnic I saw in the Social Corner where one of the sisters was! There the same day but it must have been at a different time as there were only a few men and one lady there fishing. We saw a sign that said Ekonk. As I had never been there I wanted to go. So we went—some road. We went quite a distance on beyond there then inquired where we were. We were three miles from Moosup and by taking another road we could go to Oneco and then a turn would take us into Moosup. As we had never been in Oneco we went that way. We came to a sign that said Providence, (so we must have missed the road to Moosup.) We went a short distance and a sign said Liberty one mile. Arcadia six. We took that one. All of a sudden we left the state road for a fairly good dirt road and then it began to grow narraw, more narrow and still more narrow. We went for miles over this. It was not so bad only for mud holes every little way. We were right down in cuts with bushes thick on each side. I don't know what we would have done if we had met any one. There were no turnouts whatever, and no sign of life. There were two or three houses fallen down and places where saw mills had been. We finally came where the road widened and there were houses and a church or two and in a little while we came into Arcadia. Now can any one tell me what that road is called? All the way through that awful stretch there were boards up with arrows pointing in the opposite direction from which we were going. It seems to me such a road ought to be closed because for miles it was simply impossible for two cars to pass. After we came out of the worst of it there was a sign at the right said, Beach pond six miles. It was too funny for anything. When we had been there and had gone miles and miles around and then come back within six miles of it. I like to go on strange roads but don't want to find any more like that.

FILLING THE CAR FOR NORWICH

Dear Corner Sisters and Editor: Suppose everybody is housecleaning or all through. I am painting, papering and making new curtains all upstairs and oh! such a mess! I get very much disgusted when I look at everything all unset, but then I think I think the new quarters are lovely, done."

Whirlwind, Jennie, Mavis and I had a delightful time at Willimantic and I think the new quarters anr lovely.

Rose Lee and her helpers certainly gave us a good feed and Eveready gave us a good program.

Am going to lodge tonight so can't write very much.

Mavis, Jennie and Olive: I do hope you are going with us next Wednesday Nov 4th to Norwich as this may be the last time we can go in the car till spring so I'd like to fill the car. If you can't go let me know. You can all meet me at Parson's theater about 9 o'clock. That will make it easier for Mavis I think.

All you Cornerites that I owe letters, cheer up, I'll write soon.

With best wishes to all.

FONGLOVE.

NEW YORK SUBWAYS

Dear Social Sisters: Sometime ago Irva Lynn and Gotham wrote about New York.

Recently I visited there. With Irva, I say, "Oh, those subways!"

With Gotham I say, "Nowhere else can one get such a ride for the money."

My friends said the subway would be the quickest and surest way for me to reach their part of town. I might add they live near Woodlawn cemetery.

Anyway, I followed the crowd into an opening marked "subway."

Will Rogers once said New Yorkers reminded him of gophers. They always rushed for the holes in the ground.

At the bottom of the stairway stood a row of drop-a-nickel-in-the-slot-before-you-can-go-through turn-stiles.

Everyone nickel hunts. Pockets and purses are hurriedly searched. Each one his own generally, although police records show that frequently others search too.

If no nickel is found, you join a line at a window where dimes, quarters, etc., are changed into nickels.

Having found my "open sesame" I rushed ahead. The crowd saw to the rushing. On the east, west and south of me I was given shoves that would have butted me squarely through the turn-stile only for my bag. Somehow it caught. To add to my discomfort, stray remarks about women and baggage reached me. Now the bag was of ordinary hand-bag size. Neither am I exactly of hippotamus proportions. Still there seemed to be a superfluity of one of the other.

A pull on my part, a push on the other fellows, put the bag minus a handle, and me minus poise, oh the other side of the stile.

Another stairway led to the platform. Here a guard herded the people into pen—like inclosures to await the train.

Soon a crowded one came. When the few passengers leaving were off, the mob was allowed to scramble aboard.

The train was filled to overflowing. I on the overflow end.

If others thought, "Enough was enough," not so the guard. With his shoulders, hands, and knees he shoved the overflow into the trains. Being in the rear, he sort of picked on me to push the crowd with. How it was possible to shut the door, I don't know. Fortunately it stood the strain. Should it have burst open, I would have been the first to fly out.

The air was stifling. I was squashed so I could hardly breath. A superrespirating son of Israel, whose last meal had obviously been all garlic, stood in front of me, and nearly finished me.

At the next station there was more pushing and squashing to let passengers off and on.

My coat was nearly pulled off. Public undressing is not at all to my liking.

More than one strap-hanger's elbow tried to change the shape of what I had considered to be my smartly tailored hat. Perhaps it needed a more rakish angle to give it New York class.

I wonder what would have hapnened to millinery, Queen Mary's style?

A station or so before I was to get off the crowd thinned and I managed to get a seat. It gave me a chane to give my fellow passengers the once over. Most of them were buried behind newspapers. And what newspapers? Jewish, German, Italian and other foreign looking scripts, and oh yes, a few in the English language were there too.

Opposite me hung a public notice printed first in English, and directly underneath in Yiddish and Italian.

Food for thought, what?

Oh, well, I have always been too intensely U. S. A. I must learn to be an internationalist like New Yorkers.

The next morning my friends suggested taking the subway at 242nd street for a trip to the outskirts of Brooklyn, a distance of 15 or more miles.

Oh yes, the cost! Only a nickel. What more can one expect for a nickel? Why mention a few discomforts, a more life and the like?

Well we took a taxi. But that is another story.

ELLY JAY.

GREETINGS FROM DELIAH DEAL

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I have been trying for a long time to answer the lovely letters so full of words of sympathy and love which you have all sent me but as fast as I begin to get a little better of one thing and think "now I'll soon be able to write" then something else grips me. I have decided that the only way will be to send a general letter to you through the Corner page so you may know your letters have been received and been very much appreciated by me. I miss meeting with you and receiving the hearty handclasp which I have enjoyed so many times.

I hope I shall not skip one of those who have written me in giving the list. If I do please overlook it as I have tried to keep the list and have read the kind words and enjoyed them more than once, but have had to depend upon different ones to put away the letters safely for me lately. So many letters have been received since I could get around at all and was suffering so much. Now my limbs are better so I don't have severe pain and can get around my rooms on the crutches quite a little, get in and out of bed and turn over alone but have had very little appetite all summer and for the last month scarcely any at all. If I have to get anything for myself, I'd rather go without them even to toast a slice of bread for myself.

Thanks Lucille, Rose Lee, Rosy Posy, Balsam Fir, Saturday Eve, Stugent, Whirlwind, Palm Leaf, Scottie, Interested Reader, Mavis, Twice Twenty, Loretta. One card from Norwich with just the initials signed and I never could make out who it could be from.

Calla Lily: Was so glad to get your promise.

Daisy Dean, Nannie Lou, Diana: Surely if I was giving any subscriptions this year would try and help you out. Am having great trouble lately with my heart which affects my head and eyes. I heard that Canatola had gone away to make a new home about the first of September but have never heard any thing from her direct so don't know. Think it was Seymour, Conn., where she was going. Now must close as I can hardly see to write.

Yours with love and best wishes for editor and all Corner sisters.

Your Social Corner sister,

DELIAH DEAL.

AN ODD SALAD

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: I am sending in an odd salad I have just got. Never heard of it before. It is called Black Eyed Susan salad and makes a very pretty company salad.

Black Eyed Susan Salad: Separate four oranges in sections. Chop dates to make 1-2 cup, roll a cream cheese in balls, arrange the orange sections to form daisy petals. Roll the cheese balls in chopped dates to cover and place in center or orange sections. Serve on lettuce with your favorite fruit salad dressing.

Cucumber Salad: Cut cucumbers in medium sizes across length. Remove seeds. Mix with mayonnaise, bits of green pepper or tomato or cabbage and put in the cucumber shells. Serve on a bed of bleached lettuce leaves.

Grape Catsup: Nine pounds grapes six pounds brown sugar. Boil the grapes until soft, rub through colander, add sugar and boil until quite thick, then add 2 pints of vinegar, 2 tablespoons each of clove, cinnamon and pepper boil until thick and bottle hot.

Although it may be late for this catsup, some one might like to try it with the Concord grapes which just now are so plentiful and reasonable. I enjoy reading the many nice letters of the Social Corner.

TAFTS.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I have read many of the letters written to the Corner and have found them very interesting and I would like to become a member.

I will take for my pen name

HOUSEKEEPING WHILE TEACHING

Dear Corner Sisters: I am a school teacher and, as you know, do not have so much time to prepare my meals.

It is just hubby and I, but by careful planning and managing I am always able to do my work and as hubby leaves before I do and does not return until after I get home he is never reminded of my absence. I make it a point not to discuss my troubles with him.

For the benefit of wives who work I am going to tell just how I manage. I arise at seven o'clock, go over my whole house, dust and run the mop over the floors, then I get hubby's breakfast, with consists of cereal, a glass of milk and fruit.

I put my roast of meat in the oven and roast it for one hour before I leave for school. I arrive home about 4:30, light my oven and at 6:00 have the same kind of a dinner other housewives have who have been home all day.

I buy a four-pound roast of beef on Monday, a four-pound roast of pork on Tuesday and a four-pound roast of veal on Wednesday.

Each day there remains a half of each roast. On Thursday I bring from the ice box the beef roast and reheat it in the oven with the gravy. In the same same way I reheat the pork and veal Friday and Saturday. Our Sunday dinner usually consists of a small chicken or porterhouse steak.

My hubby works in an office and as he detests restaurant foods, I pack a lunch for him. I always have nice sandwiches from each roast which is so much better than the meats one buys at the stores, for hubby will not eat them. I am never tired and am always ready for company should hubby bring them or should they chance to drop in.

I wish also to say that my meat for the entire week only costs about four dollars and I am able to run the house on about $40 a month. I do not do my washing or ironing and one little girl, a pupil of mine, helps me Friday after school; she scrubs the porches, and washes up the kitchen floor.

I hope the above suggestions will help some other housewife who is working.

HAPPY DAYS.

A DAY AT BROCKTON FAIR

Dear Editor, Social Corner Folks: Here I am again. Great things have come my way. I have been to Brockton fair. We were there on a Thursday. I got up three times during the night to take a look at the weather which grew very foggy toward morning. At three I got up, dressed, built a good fire, made some coffee and Biddy and I had breakfast. I was so excited I couldn't eat much. At five we were on the road all packed into a small open car. My how the wind did cut my ears and face. I wore all the clothes I owned. I'll say we sailed I lost my cap. We were too far to back up so had to turn around. That set the sails in Biddy's veil the wrong way. In reaching for my cap I got tangled in the veil pulled off her hat and the wheel went over it. I was sorry, after that it wouldn't stay on and Biddy put the shawl over her head. We arrived at 7:30. The guard opened the gate for us. We parked our car in the best place possible and went right seeing. Going through a building as soon as it was opened and we skipped none of the side shows. We tried for prizes at the midway and I got a box of worms' chocolate candy and a Montana diamond stick pin. I tried everything once. Everybody was glad to see us. The fakirs called me "Uncle". We bought something on a stick; looked like cotton. After much coaxing I took a bite and found I hadn't anything. I tried to cover the red spots at one stand and with the work in part of all our heads we did manage to cover one; but the man what runs the place wouldn't give us a prize. I tried at knocking down dirty milk bottles, when I did finally hit one I moved quickly thinking he likely would make me pay if I broke one. I was pretty fair at throwing a little stick with feathers on. I used to practise on Sis. She would stand up against the barn with outstretched arms. Sometimes they came very close to Sis. On one end of these sticks sharp points such as needle or pins are pushed into the wood, points out.

At the fair we saw a man with two swords cut the head off of a pretty girl then with the head under a cloth he went around the crowd trying to sell it. One man did buy it and took the cloth off only to find a head of cabbage. We saw the smallest horse in the world. I got lost from Biddy while she was stretching her neck to see some handsome horses to do some fine jumping. I got so badly mixed up in the crowd that I could not find her. However, she found me a little later in the style building. I never saw such pretty girls or such stylish clothes, beautiful dresses, coats, shoes, stockings and hats. The girls looked fine in everything, even their hats. I was surprised because Biddy Ann has lots of trouble getting a hat. Sometimes she gets one too small in the head size. These she ties on with a veil. Others are too large. These she stuffs with tissue paper. Once her hat came off and she lost the paper and had to carry the hat in her hand all day. When Biddy found me she took me by the arm and wanted me to go see the hogs. We ate at every stand, hot dogs, old dogs, and sour dogs. The steak cakes were good, only the one I had the onions were raw and there was a fly's wing on top. I looked in vain for the rest of him. We had ice cream sandwiches that one has to eat in a hurry. We tried all the drinks that were in sight. In the evening with a generous supply of peanuts we went over to the grandstand and saw the sights all over again only we were seated and resting this time. We saw the bicycle stunt. The wood choppers were great. In my younger days I was considered some chopper, but these men had me beat to a frazzle. We saw an airplane. The balloon went up twice, the man making a fine parachute drop. Governor's day was Thursday and we saw him as he was escorted onto the grounds and around the track with a whole regiment. I counted 71 hoses, some without riders, and about 50 automobiles. Gee whiss, it was some sight. The governor was a pleasant faced man. I had a fine time at the fair and hope I can go again some time. I shall wear my button next time and find some Social Corner folks, perhaps.

Best wishes from

LULAH WYLIE.

USES FOR POTATO RICER

Dear Social Corner Members and Readers: I have thought for some weeks that I would add a bit.

There are so many good ideas and suggestions. And what interesting accounts of many of the historical places.

How few of us have taken the time to inquire about them!

Aries: I would just like to visit Squaw rock, if I knew how to get there. I am wondering if someone could give us a story of the huge rock with a frog's head painted on it, beside the highway between Abington and Phoenixville.

Here are a few uses to which I put my potato ricer:

Squash or pumpkin can be sifted quickly freeing it of lumps and coarse grains.

Place a square piece of cheese cloth in the botton of the cup and strain your pork fat, especially if there is no one around to help.

Thought it may be late, but when I am making jelly and time is limited I place a similar cleese cloth in the cup then lightly press about a mixing spoon of pulp at a time, emptying the cloth each time and repeating.

Then take your liquid and let drain through a heavy cloth.

In this way you can put your sugar in in less than one half hour, and you have more of the real fruit juice and it will jell quicker.

How nice it would seem to hear from many of those who have only applied for membership.

My deepest symmpathy goes out to sick and bereaved.

Long may our Social Corner stand.

AUNTIE BEE.

CORNER MEMBERSHIP INCREASED

Dear Editor of Social Corner: I have enjoyed reading the letters in the Social Corner and I should like to become a member, as I know some of the Social Corner sisters. I will take for my pen name,

ACCESSORIES FOR DOLL HOUSES

Dear Corner Sisters: When the cornstarch-brick house is finished according to plans given last week the next thing to do will be to get the yard in order. For all the conveniences as well as the things to beautify the yard and garden, which any doll who is a good housekeeper will want about her home, cornstarch may again be used. A brick-well with a bucket molded of the cornstarch can be placed in the yard. Also a tiny clothes-reel, with a corn starch and salt post, tooth pick arms, and threads for clothes line. Let the toothpicks harden in the post before attempting to string up the clothes lines.

Other things that you can put in the yard are concrete garden seats made of gray paste, a sun-dial, a fountain, a garage, a hose and sprinkler of toothpicks attached to the house and a stone wall around the edge of the garden.

If you already have a large dollhouse for six-inch dolls which is not furnished, you can furnish the entire house yourself. Some pieces of the furniture can be made of cardboard, and many things that you could not possibly make of cardboard may be molded out of the corn starch paste.

For dishes use the white paste with no coloring matter. For making a plate, roll a perfectly round ball of the paste between your hands, then press it flat with a round eraser that comes on the end of a lead pencil, depressing it slightly in the center. Use the eraser for making the hollow in the cups and pitchers. When the dishes are hard paint the edges with wreaths with water colors. Vases and jars are easily made of the paste, and can be decorated with tiny beads of colored glass around the edges.

For a small center-table, make a large ball of cornstarch paste and press it perfectly flat. Mold out a graceful pedestal, and set it in the exact center of the table top, press both parts together, and let the table dry. Armchairs with molded seats, the bathtub and the set bowl can be easily molded from the paste.

You can even make a bureau of it. Use white paste for the body of the bureau. Cut out three flat slabs, place another sheet across the top and press it to join the sides. I like cutting the whole bureau out with a knife from a solid lump of paste. Make a large circle like a plate for a mirror, and press into it a circle of glass. If you have no glass of the right size let the bureau dry perfectly, then I outline the mirror with black ink. Also use black ink to indicate the bureau drawers. Almost any article of doll furniture can be made of the cornstarch paste, cardboard and spools. These articles can be given the color desired, either by letting them dry thoroughly, and then painting them, or by mixing the cornstarch, before cooking it. I personally like painting afterward with water color paints, as I explained in the directions for making bricks. When the paste is to be made with colored water, the water should be colored much darker than the shade desired so that after it has been mixed with the cornstarch the desired shade will result.

One of the most important points to learn when making articles of cornstarch work quickly is that when the paste begins to thicken on the stove, it does so almost instantly. So it should be stirred rapidly from the minute out on the stove. When building with soft new bricks, they should not be allowed to cook otherwise, they will have to be pressed in order to make them stick together. Of course, when the things are to be molded from the paste, the molding must be done while the paste is quite warm and soft. Bricks that have become hard may, however, be used for building by putting them together with glue.

Prettily engraved and decorated articles may be made by the use of a slender nail, a large and small screw, and leather work tools while the articles are still soft.

WELL REMEMBERED ON BIRTHDAY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Once more I will take my pen in hand to let you know I am well and hope you all are. Right here I want to thank all the sisters who sent me cards on my birthday—Primrose, Aries, Strawberry, Lucille, Theoda, Joan, Catnip, Honeysuckle, Elisa Jane, Foxglove, Foxglove's Mother.

Katy Did: No, I have not forgotten you.

White Clover: Thanks to you for the pretty little gift. Every one I have shown it to to has fallen in love with it. Just too cute for anything.

Rosy Posy: Thanks for the pretty booklet.

I had a nice time and some pretty gifts. Foxglove gave me a nice linen center piece with tatted edge. Mother a check. If there are any whom I have not mentioned accept thanks just the same.

Aries: 'Tis a pretty verse you sent me. Will have to memorize it.

Practical Polly: Santa Claus tells me you are to receive a present Christmas color scheme, Yellow.

Diana: Received your letter and was glad to hear from you, will answer soon.

Don Pedro: How are you these days? Well, I trust.

Foxglove and I are planning to visit Norwich and Willimantic once more before the real cold weather sets in as it is a long cold drive in cold weather, and then we put Dorothy Jane and Betty up for the winter.

Canning and house cleaning is all over so now it is preparing presents for Christmas. I have mine started and one or two finished.

Am sorry to hear Roxana Wince is ill. Will send her a post card. To all the sick and shut ins I extend my sympathy.

Think I had better ring off as I want to listen in for a while to the concert in Hartford.

WHIRLWIND.

BUCKINGHAM MEMORIAL MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Just a few lines to help keep the Corner page full.

Was more than pleased to meet so many sisters at the Buckingham Memorial last meeting.

Such a nice time as we did have and also such a nice dinner with all assisting the hostess in serving. Our Corner is sure growing as several new members joined us at the October meeting. As I am hostess for our next meeting Nov. 4th, hope to see many more of the members present.

Success to the Corner.

"CANNING" LEFT OVER FUNDS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I have been helped so many times by our household suggestions that I would like to tell you of my plan which has been a wonderful help to me.

My husband gets paid twice a month, and each pay day I take $20 for meat and groceries (not including milk) and when any day comes gain if I have any money left I invest it in canned goods at a grocery. Some times I have only 10 cents left but that buys a can of tomatoes and if I have 50 cents or more I buy a variety. All these cans are placed in the pantry and are not used until winter.

And when so one morning when I wake up and find it is snowing, oh so hard, well I'm not going to worry about going to the market. You see I'll just peek into that pantry and right there on the very front row I see a can of peas and a small can of salmon. What am I going to do with it? I'll open the peas and drain all the liquid off, pour half of them in a casserole, then I'll make one and one-half cups of cream sauce, pour half of that over the peas, add butter, salt and pepper, then two tablespoons dry bread crumbs. I'll open the can of salmon, take the bone out and place salmon on the bread crumbs, then the remainder of the peas, and cream sauce, a little more butter, salt and pepper and last more crumbs and into the oven it goes for 30 minutes. It's enough to serve four people and very good.

And right then and there, I'm so glad I put my "left over" dimes into "cans" for the winter.

THE SEED SCATTERERS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Would all be members of this famous band scattering seed along the highways and in the fields. The barren spots may be made beautiful by our garden flowers, such as phlox, poppies, pinks and larkspur. In time will take their place among the wold flowers. Let us join the army of seed scatterers. Shall we? And let us not forget that there are other seeds to scatter, at home among our friends and all whom we come in contact with day by day—seeds of kindness, charity, patience and good will as well. The barren places which need them.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

There was no coal strike a half century ago and Norwich was overloaded with coal. All available docking space was taken up by boats loaded with coal bound for inland cities and special night trains were running on the Norwich & Worcester road conveying the coal inland.

Interesting items of 1875 as taken in part from the columns of The Bulletin of that year are as follows:

Monday, October 25, 1875—Preston has been having a little excitement lately over the school question. It is stated that a teacher there had been teaching until recently without a certificate and the families of the pupils called a meeting to discharge her and secure another teacher. The meeting was called but the father of the young woman, who is a member of the school board, slipped her a certificate, and the meeting was to no avail.

Work on the coffer dam was in progress all day yesterday. There was a very heavy tide and it was feared that it would fill the box, but the water stopped rising when within a few inches of the top.

Stonington repines because its postoffice has no money order department, and because outsiders claim that the people there live on fish in the winter and strangers in the summer.

Tuesday, October 26, 1875—A meeting of the county commissioners, selectmen, judge of probate and city officials was held yesterday to appropriate the annual expenses of maintaining the court house. It is understood that it was decided that the city of Norwich pay five twelfths, the town of Norwich three twelfths and the county the remaining four twelfths.

A party of Norwich fishermen went to Fishers Island yesterday and returned with a catch of nearly 500 little mackerel.

A Boston newspaper has printed an article which states that the New York & New England railroad loses from $40,000 to $59,000 annually by running the Norwich & Worcester line. This report is entirely untrue as a profit is made annually by this branch.

Immense footprints were found near a Laurel Hill house yesterday and it is believed that some Windham county girl had been wandering around there the night previous.

In Providence and Worcester the price of milk has gone up two cents for the winter but our excellent system of water works enables milkmen here to retail at the old rates.

Fourteen vessels laden with coal for inland points are now at local wharves awaiting unloading.

Wednesday, October 27, 1875—Col. Harstow of the horse railroad was in the city yesterday. The delay in repairing the road has been caused by a misunderstanding between the other proprietors but the work will soon be started on both lines. Three new double cars were ordered in New York recently.

The women suffragists in New Haven are wrestling with the question "Who is the superfluous women?" Of course we can't tell but we know a number of family men in town, each of whom think he has married her.

The east abutment of Preston bridge is sadly in need of repair. The stones are cracked in several places and the earthwork has settled.

Butter manufactured from animal fat is now being sold in town for about 25 cents a pound and is said to do well for cooking purposes.

Wild geese are seen flying over the city almost daily now indicating that cold weather is approaching.

Deposits in the Dime Savings bank have shown a steady growth, now totalling $1,030,000.

Thursday, October 28, 1875—There was a violent storm yesterday morning consisting of rain, hail, snow, thunder and lightning. It was the worst storm here this fall and made people think of coal bins and winter.

The two hand engines owned by the city, the old Niagara and the Greeneville, have been exchanged in Boston for a quantity of hose.

A large eagle shot in Uncasville early in the week is on exhibition at the store of Mr. Rawson, on Water street, and is attracting much attention.

The net earnings of the New York, Boston & Providence railroad last year totalled $408,641, the gross income being $968,171.

The new station at Taftville will be 83 by 26 feet with a mansard roof and will include a tenement for the station master.

Friday, October 29, 1875—The Messrs. Cheney of Hartford are negotiating for a tract of about 900 acres on the west end of Fishers' Island, including Race Point. The price asked for it is $25,000.

Extra trains are running nightly on the Worcester road carrying coal to inland cities. Practically all available docking space is now taken up by coal laden vessels and the unloadings are the heaviest in many years.

Cider is now worth from $3 to $3.50 a barrel but sales are not heavy as yet. There is plenty to be had and the price is not expected to rise for some weeks.

Mackerel are bringing from 5 to 8 cents a pound now and one Norwich man sold 1,300 of them this week. The record catch for one day has been reported as 1,500, made by a Mystic resident.

The Otis Library reopens today under the new librarian, Mrs. Robinson. As her salary is three quarters of the income on sale of tickets it is hoped that a liberal support will be given.

Saturday, October 30, 1875—One of the workmen on the railroad tunnel at Laurel Hill was crushed badly yesterday morning just as work began, when the derrick, carrying a large stone swung over and pinned him against the bank. He died shortly afterwards although medical aid was summoned.

A Norwich man caught an eel off Watch Hill yesterday that measured four and a half feet long and was 18 inches in circumference.

Tomorrow is the fourteenth Sunday in just three months, and it will be the last time this will happen for some time to come.

POETRY

The Sheik of Hallowe'en

To reconnoi a Sheik of lordly air,
The Sheik of Hallowe'en;
He had his subjects everywhere—
The gladdest ever seen.

Up street and down—across the street—
He went, his crowning way;
His teeny feet and teeny feet
Were pairings in the day.

He first came knocking at our door,
His purpose to outright;
We cried: "Don't do that any more,
Or we'll not sleep tonight!"

He laughed and went his merry way
To terrorize the square;
Sheiks, somehow, always like to say
They gave 'a mawful scare!'

We talked in whispers of The Sheik;
Who could this Arab be?
We gave command that none should seek
To solve the mystery.

Then suddenly his mask came off,
He ran behind the trees;
We heard what seemed a baby's cough
And then a mighty sneeze.

He lost his turban in the squall,
And then 'twas plainly seen
The Sheik was not a Sheik at all,
But little Betty Jean!
—William Hamnell in Indianapolis News.

Hallowe'en

Pixie, kobold, elf and sprite,
All are on their rounds tonight;
In the wan moon's silver ray,
Thrives their helter-skelter play.

Fond of cellar, barn or stack,
True unto the almanac,
They present to credulous eyes
Strange hobgoblin mysteries.

Cabbage stumps—straws wet with dew—
Apple-skins and chestnuts too.
And a mirror for some lass
Show what wonders come to pass.

Doors they move, and gates they hide;
Mischiefs that on moon-beams ride
Are their deeds—and, by their spells,
Love records its oracles.

Don't we all, of long ago,
By the ruddy fireplace glow,
In the kitchen and the hall,
Those queer, coolike pranks recall?

Very shadows were they then—
But tonight they come again;
Were we once more but sixteen,
Precious would be Hallowe'en.
—Joel Benton.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What is untold wealth?"

"That which doesn't appear on the income-tax return."—The Progressive Grocer.

"Poor Ed, he had his faults, but his heart was on the right side."

"Lord, no wonder he died."—Yale Record.

"Has your brother come home from college yet?"

"I guess so, or else the car's been stolen."—De Pauw University Yellow Crab.

Gertie: To think you used to catch me in your arms every night!

George: Yes, dear, and now to think I catch you in my pockets every morning!—Good Hardware.

"This is a terrible show, dear; let's leave."

"We'll do nothing of the sort! We'll stay and get our money's worth."—Life

From letter of mother to son in college:

"Dear Son: I do wish that you would not shoot the little craps. Remember that they love life as well as you."—Our Dumb Animals.

Solomon's 177th Wife—Sol, are you really and truly in love with me?

Solomon—My dear, you are one in a thousand.

And she snuggled closer.—Columbia Jester.

"What's on today?"

"We're gonna shoot Julius Caesar."

"See how these people mangle history," remarked the professor. "They should stab Caesar, not shoot him."—Wall Street Journal.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Whale oil is rich in fat-soluble vitamins.

The average Englishman is five feet eight inches tall, according to the latest statistics.

Investigation of Scottish rivers has shown that there are fewer salmon in the small streams, but that they spawn more frequently.

The first frame house erected in the city of Poland, Ore., was manufactured in Maine, and taken in a ship, in pieces, around Cape Horn, and set up in Portland in 1847.

In Yellowstone National park limestone deposits left by hot springs cover the whole face of Terrace mountain, which is more than 1,000 feet from its base to its summit.

According to health statistics, the rural south seems the best place for the negro. There are sixty-six negro deaths to 100 births in that region, while the southern city ratio is 127 to 100 and the northern city ratio is 116 to 100.

A child was run over by forty cars at Monroe, La., and was extricated without a scratch on its body and no more than a bad scare was the result of the experience. As a freight train was passing through the town the engineer saw the child, just able to toddle, in the middle of the tracks throwing stones. He was unable to stop the train.

Henry D. Ross, on a camping trip with his son in the woods north of Clifton, Ariz., had a bear for a bedfellow one night, and this after failure to find bears in several days of hunting. He sleepily resented the invasion of his blankets and pushed the intruder away. His explanation of the affair is that it was only a poor little cub, seeking companionship and warmth and that he is too much of a sportsman to shoot a cub.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

MOOSE

Final arrangements for the Moose hallowe'en ceremonial and frolic to be held Saturday evening, Oct. 31, have been completed. And all is in readiness for the large number of candidates who will take the first degree in Moosedom. A program filled to brim with entertainment also awaits the Moose who will be on hand from the four corners of the state to assist in the degree work.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

At a successful evening of whists from which the proceeds are to be applied to furnishing the post rooms of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, twenty tables were in play. The prizes were taken as follows:

Ladies'—First, Mrs. Everett Peckham; second, Miss Winnie Clabby; consolation, Mrs. Henry Davenport.

Mens'—First, George Gladue; second, Mr. McKelvey; consolation, Henry Davenport.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS

Sebequanash Council No. 11 met in the Tepee at 58 Broadway, on Wednesday evening with a good number present. There was quite an amount of business to transact, which was quickly disposed of. Deputy Sister Lovenia Clark, of Hiawatha Council No. 15 of New London, was present in her official capacity. All were glad to see her as she has just recovered from a very painful accident which happened at her home in New London.

Although it was a stormy night outside everything was bright and cheerful in the tepee. After the salute to the flag the meeting closed, and all were invited into the dining room which was decorated in Hallowe'en colors. Favors in the shape of silver hearts and Hallowe'en cards were at each place. The hearts were made especially for Sebequanash Council. Refreshments of doughnuts, cheese, fancy cakes, apples, salted nuts and tea were served by the entertainment committe. There is a very bright prospect ahead for Sebequanash Council No. 11, as they are anticipating the adoption of several pale faces in the near future.

GROTTO

Full information about the indoor circus to be held at the state armory, Dec. 8, 9, and 10, by Nemrod Grotto in conjunction with the national guard will be given to the Grotto members at the first regular November meeting of the Grotto next Monday evening. It will be the first indoor circus of this type ever held in Norwich and the two organizations supporting it will lend every effort to make it a magnificent success.

For November 7 a special event for Grooto members, many of whom will attend from Nemrod Grotto will be the ceremonial of Aziz Grotto of New Britain. Because his Excellency Governor John H. Trumbull and the Most Worshipful Grand Master of the state of Connecticut are to be in the class at the ceremonial, the pilgrimage to New Britain will attract a large number of Prophets from all parts of the state.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange, No. 127, had a class of four in the first and second degrees at its meeting in Steiner hall this week, the degrees being conferred in impressive form by the grange officers. At the conclusion doughnuts and coffee were served by the feast committee of which Mrs. Ida Richardson has agreed to accept the chairmanship. The third and fourth degrees will make an interesting session for the next meeting. The grange is to serve the dinner for the meeting of the county pomona, when it comes here in December.

ODD LADIES, M. U.

The social committee of Loyal Victory lodge, met at the home of Mrs. William Mathers, Taftville. ONLY ONE PUBLIC BEQUEST MADE IN W. S. CALVERT WILL, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 30—The will of Walter S. Calvert, former State street merchant who died from injuries received when struck by a train at Harrison street crossing a week ago was admitted to probate at a hearing held in the probate court late yesterday afternoon. The will named Mr. Calvert's son, Edward P. Calvert, executor.

The instrument, which was drawn March 31, 1920, and was witnessed by Lewis Dart, Mabel C. Almy and Abel F. Tanner, provides that the executor have a suitable stone erected upon the lot of testator, in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The testator bequeaths to the Methodist Episcopal church $1000.

The testator bequeaths to his widow, Georgianna P. Calvert, the use and income of the rest and residue, both real and personal, for her natural life, but provides that if the same is not sufficient to support her in comfort the widow may use as much of the principal of said estate as may be necessary (with said income) to insure her a comfortable support.

The will further provides that at the death of Mrs. Calvert the residue be divided equally between the testator's three sons.

Last winter the city escaped heavy expense because there was very little snow and the necessity of clearing was reduced to almost a few dollars. Now that snow has appeared so early, there is a possibility that an appropriation for snow removal from the highways will be necessary in the budget being prepared.

John Ullmayer of the Crocker house, Mrs. Robert Grosck and infant daughter, 135 Howard street; William White, 18 Ledyard street, and Mrs. Rena Ullmayer and infant son, Crocker House, patients at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital, were dismissed today.

The funeral of John H. Sweeney was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. The bearers were Leslie Abell, Clarence McArdle, John Coast, Adrian Murray, John Farrell, and Robert McCarthy. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Funeral services for James L. Gormley were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, Rev. Philip M. Kerridge officiating. The bearers were Dr. Winthrop E. McGinley, Harry May, James McGary and Thomas E. McGinley. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery

Samuel Chertoff today sold to the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad a parcel of land in the rear of Chertoff's place of business, 33 Bank street. The land abuts the tracks of the railroad. The price paid was $4,000.

John E. Silveria, 144 Allen street, Groton, last midnight requested the New London police to institute a search for his wife, who was absent from home. Silveria stated that his wife started for New London about 7 o'clock to attend a motion picture house and that she had not returned home at midnight. Silveria also stated that the woman might be found at the home of a family named Miller, residing at 64 Shaw street. Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney and Patrolman Edward Daniels visited the Shaw street house and found Mrs. Silveria there. When acquainted with the information that her husband was seeking her, Mrs. Silveria returned to her home.

Tony Cadrillo and his wife mixed things up at their home and then were called upon to tell the judge about it in the police court this morning. The prosecutor represented that the pair might still be reconciled to each other, though the woman had a badly discolored eye. He said they seemed penitent now because of what had occurred and that they had promised reformation. Judge Prince queried them as to whether they were to continue to come before the court, and warned them that they were starting on the road to jail unless they changed their course. To determine whether they meant what they had promised he continued the complaint for six months. Cadrillo is a taxi man, but he has been previous and that is supposed to have led to the conflict that caused the arrest of him and his wife.

The gymnasium in the Bacon block, 139 State street, of which Joseph Connelly is proprietor, and which is used by many of the fighters appearing at shows being held monthly in this city and vicinity, was burglarized last night. It was found this afternoon that the place was entered some time after 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon and much of the fittings and equipments was stolen. The break was discovered by Connelly when he went to the gymnasium about 3 o'clock. He found the entrance had been forced and entering the place he discovered boxing gloves, two sets of weights, punching bag, head gear and gloves used for punching and sand bag missing. Not only were these articles of training equipment missing, but, the sand bag had been mutilated by the use of a jack knife. Connelly reported the break to the police. From the mutilation of the sand bag it is apparent that some one holding a grievance against Connelly figured in the break.

Sergeant James C. Sullivan, recently promoted to lieutenant of police by City Manager William A. Holt, to succeed Former Lieutenant Benjamin Beebe, retired a year ago, will assume the duties of his new office Sunday night; when he will take charge of the night force. Desk Sergeant James D. Gaffney, who was acting lieutenant the past year, will return to his duties at the desk. Patrolman Timothy C. Sullivan, who has been performing desk duties a year, will return to patrol duty. Patrolman William T. Babcock, who was promoted to day desk sergeant at the same time Desk Sergeant Sullivan received his appointment, will also take up his new duties Sunday.

Miss Josephine Brennan, 24 Ocean avenue, is spending a few days as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. C. Sherman, Hartford.

Mrs. Louis Schwartz has concluded a week's visit with relatives and friends in New York, and has returned to her home, 35 Squire street.

Deputy Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Melvin E. Snow conducted hearings of drivers of automobiles who have been guilty of infractions of the motor vehicle law and at the conclusion of the hearing, he returned the licenses of six drivers. Those to receive the licenses back were: Clarence H. Luther, Preston, reckless driving; Thomas White, 411 Bank street, operating under the influence of liquor; Archie A. Blatchford, submarine base, operating under the influence of liquor; Mrs. George Joy, Deep River, fatal accident; Leon E. Maynard, of Groton, operating under the influence of liquor; Pete Peterson, 59 Willetts avenue, operating while under the influence of liquor.

Mrs. Leroy C. Potter, 103 Truman street, is in East Orange, N. J., where her father, J. E. Sweet died suddenly yesterday. Mrs. Potter was summoned to East Orange yesterday, but did not arrive there until after the death of her father. Mr. Sweet had visited in New London frequently.

Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, is in Springfield, Mass., tonight where he addressed the members of the Springfield Rotary club.

A girl of 14 reared by parents of respectability, was committed to the House of Good Shepherd at Hartford this afternoon by Judge E. Victor Prince, the girl being accompanied to the institution by Policewoman Jane Cassidy. The girl has made a practice of late of remaining away from home till all hours of the night and was in danger of falling into ways of vice. She also had tendencies that would eventually land her in jail for she has been guilty of light-fingered acts of late and recently while in Norwich she is alleged to have committed petty thefts. A search for the girl was made here several days before she was finally located this afternoon.

An automobile, owned and operated by Peter Collins, Waterford, struck an unidentified woman on Bank street, near Truman street this evening. The woman did not appear to be injured and refused to reveal her identity. The woman was crossing the highway at the junction of Bank and Truman streets when the automobile, headed in a northerly direction came along. The woman evidently believed that the autoist would drive around her, but instead Collins continued to drive the machine toward the woman and before the latter could get out of the path of the car, she was struck by the fender and hurled to the pavements. She suffered bruises and contusions but declared however that she was not in need of medical attention.

An automobile owned and operated by George Sistare, Jr., Station 13 1-2, Waterford and a machine owned and operated by Ernest Watrous, 21 Benham road, Groton, were in collision this evening on State street, corner of Meridian street. Both cars were slightly damaged. Sistare's car has been stolen twice lately, only to be recovered abandoned in and out of the city. The machine has also figured in two accidents within a fortnight.

James Lewis, resident of Rosemary street, who was taken in charge by the police late yesterday afternoon, when discovered living in filth and without heat, was not committed to the Norwich state hospital as was anticipated. City Physician George P. Cheney examined Lewis, but did not decide that the man's mental condition was such as would warrant his being sent to the hospital. Lewis is now back home and is obtaining his daily rations from charitable neighbors, who take foodstuffs to his home.

Announcement is made of the marriage last Tuesday of John J. Dodds, son of Mrs. Harriet P. Dodds, 457 Ocean avenue and Miss Alice Edmonds, 45 Maple avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Walter P. Buck at the residence of the clergyman, 357 Broad street. Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Dodds, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

GLEN W. PHILLIPS DEAD— WELL KNOWN MUSICIAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 30—Glenville W. Phillips, 57, known as one of the talented pianists of this city, died at his home on Montauk avenue this evening about 7.45. He was born in New London, the son of the late Elisha Phillips. He was married, having a daughter, Miss Donna, who is a pianist at the Crown theatre, this city. His wife also survives.

For many years he was the pianist at the Lyceum theatre and has been connected with the orchestras of the various theatres here for nearly forty years. Mr. Phillips inherited his musical ability as did his brother and his daughter inherited the same talent from him. Mr. Phillips was a member of the orchestra at the Broadway theatre in Norwich for a time and also played at the Strand.

Nearly two years ago he was affected with hardened arteries but he took treatment and apparently had improved in health. Of late he encountered trouble with the heart superinduced by the condition of the arteries, and that proved fatal.

He was a member of the Musicians' Union of New London, also belonged to the Konomoc Hose company.

GUTHRIE ESTATE CHANGES IMPLY MODEL RESIDENCES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 30—The sale of the Guthrie property at the junction of Pequot avenue and Lower Boulevard is one of the most important transfers of real estate in this city during the 1925 season. It is to be, it is understood, the purpose of the purchasers to develop that section and to establish a colony there with residences that will be built along modern lines and which will be designed after the buildings that art and science approves. The plan is to cut a street 100 feet wide through the entire length of the land and to lay out some sixty lots that will be built upon or offered to residents who desire a location close to the Sound. There is a modern residence on the land now. It was erected by C. S. Guthrie when he was at the head of the board of directors of the Standard Oil company. Death came to him and this led his widow to determine to change her mode of residence.

An exclusive residential section known as Hillside road was developed "down the road" in proximity to the Guthrie estate, and that has proved a magnet which attracted residents who desire to have homes somewhat exclusive. The direction of building in recent years has been toward the southern section of the city and the indications are that it will not change.

M. H. DONOHUE, BALTIC, SELLS COTTAGES FOR HOTEL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 30—It was disclosed today through the purchase of three cottages on the boardwalk, at Ocean Beach, that it is contemplated to erect a large hotel at the shore resort, such a structure as will house lodgers the entire year, summer and winter. The properties acquired today were three cottages owned by M. H. Donohue, the Baltic mill owner. Sidney M. Suiman, this city, representing a group of realty owners at Ocean Beach, negotiated the acquisition of the shore front property, which it is understood, was sold for $50,000.

Owing to the present restrictions at the shore, the hotel will not be a reality for some time, because of the restrictions preventing the erection of a hotel on the boardwalk until at least 75 per cent. of the property along the boardwalk has been acquired by the realtors. They however, have options on several other cottages and anticipate their acquisition before long.

It is of no use for the railroads to fight motor vehicle transportation, and they might as well accept it as permanent. Such is the opinion of Conrad E. Spens, vice president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy.

VET'S INSURANCE HINGES ON SMALL GREEN PEBBLE

HELENA, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Upon identification of a green pebble, a quarter of an inch thick, hard, flat and smooth, largely depends the outcome of an effort on the part of parents of Charles William Nelson, a Montana veteran of the World War, to obtain his government insurance.

Nelson enlisted from Hardin, Mont. In France he was wounded. Three pieces of shrapnel were taken from his body.

On May 22, 1919, he was discharged. His shoulder was hurt and he carried his head a little to one side. He had been gassed, he said. He died in the oil fields of Sage, Wyo. Influenza was given as the cause.

He was buried at Marshall, Minn., the home of his parents. "Old John the Sexton," dug his own son's grave.

When application was made for Nelson's war insurance, the bureau of war risk insurance said the contract expired in July, 1919. Suit was filed in behalf of the beneficiaries. The government answered asserting that wounds in Nelson's thighs were not sufficient to cause death and alleged that he died of influenza," which cause of death was by no means identical to military service."

The veterans' bureau and Nelson's parents agreed upon an exhumation of the body under the direction of Dr. Ralph St. John Perry, physician for the bureau. Agent "Old John" turned the soil that held his son's body. The result was the discovery in the body of the green pebble, which recalled tales that the Germans, when they ran low on scrap iron, used pieces of stone in their shrapnel.

A laboratory examination convinced the doctor that the pebble was foreign to American soil and he declared that its presence undoubtedly caused a disability sufficient to have been the contributing cause to the boy's death.

Investigation turned to the battlefield where Nelson fell with four wounds in his body and upon search for proof that the little green pebble came from the mouth of an enemy cannon.

Dr. Perry's report has been filed with the veteran's bureau and a suit against the insurance bureau seeking payment has been set for trial at Mankato, Minn.

OPTIMISTIC FINANCIAL OUTLOOK TAKEN BY BELGIAN MINISTER

BRUSSELS, Oct. 30.—(AP)—An optimistic view of the Belgian financial situation is taken by M. Janssens, minister of finance. In an interview he declared that, far from being in danger of devaluation, the franc is bound slowly but surely to improve its position.

No loans would be issued during 1926, he said, to cover new expenses, and although a foreign loan would have to be floated, it would be used to "consolidate" the franc, to make reimbursements to the Bank Nationale, and to build up a strong cash balance that might be the means of steadying effectually the financial market.

TAKING A BATH WITH RIFFS IS FOUND SERIES OF SWEATS

QUEZZAN, Oct. 30—(AP)—Taking his first bath in a native bath-house was much of a sweat to one of the American aviators with the Escadrille of the Sherifian guard. Even then he had to wait until after sunset, when the Arabs and their women had finished.

"We went through a high door, down a short passage, turned to the left and walked down a long, sloping passage, with high arched ceiling, turned again to the left and found outselves in the undressing room, not too large, also with high, arched ceiling, where we left our clothes on a long bench, the only thing in the place not dripping wet.

"The flooring everywhere was of charmingly colored tiling, very slippery, and we were assisted over it by a naked Arab, who kept telling us in his own tongue to be very careful and not fall. We passed through a first room, in a corner of which was a large square stone fountain with the sound of running water. Then through double doors into a bare room, for it was, where we stayed until in quite a sweat.

"From there we passed into an even hotter, more steaming room, where were many huge buckets of very hot water, in which we washed and soaped ourselves. When we had had enough of that, our naked naked attendant threw two or three buckets of hot water over each of us, then another man rushed out to the fountain and fetched bucketfull after bucketfull of cold water which was also thrown over us. I never had a finer bath, but one cannot go too often, as it is fatiguing."

SCHOOL FOR CHEER LEADERS FEATURES LOYAL LEADERSHIP

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 30—(AP)—Leather lungs and a capacity for back-hand somersaults are less essential in a college yell leader than the spark of leadership which enables him to mold the mob into a loyal unit, Prof Preston H. Scott thus lectures to Purdue University's classes in cheer leading.

Scott is tutoring the embryo rooter kings of the Boilermaker school on mob psychology. The course in cheer leading was offered this year for the first time in any western conference university. Fifty students are enrolled. Its aim is to develop a type of college yelling which will inspire Purdue athletic teams to climb from the cellar positions in which they have reposed too consistently in almost every major sport.

"A cheer leader of the right type," Scott says, "wields a vast power for good over campus opinion. Human beings collectively become unable to listen to reason, clinging eagerly to mass opinion. This mass opinion may be started into action by a few speeches, by a fumble on the football field, by anything that can claim attention.

"Yet a cheer leader with the crowd's confidence can check its rowdyism with a word, subdue its panic, and change grim stalling into cheers for the man who fumbled. No other phase of college life is so dominated by a single individual."

Men who can qualify as cheer leaders, he says, will find in later life that they have developed ability for leadership in other fields.

INDIANS HAD OWN THEORY OF EVOLUTION ROCK SHOWS

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 30.—(AP)—The research of Dr. Jean Allard Jeancon, curator of archaeology for the Colorado museum, has disclosed that the North American Indians devised a theory of evolution which antedated that of Charles Darwin by some 3,000 years.

Written on rocks in symbolic language, which archaeologists have found in ruins, the Indian's legend of the creation and evolution of man was that he was born of Mother Earth in her innermost recesses and after four stages of development found his way to the surface, where he attained physical perfection.

In the lowest form, in the caves of the earth, the legend depicted man as having neither eyes nor a nose and, strongly resembling Darwin's protoplasmic man, having dangling tentacles which afterwards evolved into arms and legs. Lacking ordinary means of communication, the creature used telepathy.

Later stages of evolution came when the two hero gods answered the prayers of this lowest form of man and gave him a grain of corn to plant. The grain grew through the ceiling of the cave, pushed through thre higher caves and reached the earth's surface. As the Indian followed the stalk of corn, he acquired speech, sight and smell and gained the knowledge of good and evil.

In one of the caves a long tail became part of the man's body. He lost it when he attained the surface. The myth of the tail is interesting, as the Indians knew nothing of the monkey family.

WILD CANARY TO HAVE DEBUT BEFORE NEW YORK FOOTLIGHTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—(AP)—The wild, pure-blooded canary is due for its debut before the footlights in New York.

A company of these genuine five and one-half inch native Canary Islanders are coming here to star in the bird chorus managed by The International Roller Canary Breeders' association at their show December 14-19.

Bird fanciers from all parts of the United States will bring their domesticated songsters to match the tremulous trill of their blue-blooded ancestors. The Greater New York Canary club announced that more than 5,000 canaries will be in competition for prizes.

The wild canary is not more than five and one-half inches in length. Some of its domestic relations measure eight inches. Most of the varieties, of which 27 were recognized as early as the 18th century by French fanciers, differ merely in color and markings of the plumage.

The natural song of the canary is light and clear, and in their native groves, especially during mating season, they sometimes sing with such ardor that they burst the delicate vessels of the throat.

The females are said to select the best singers as their mates, causing considerable competition in canary melodies.

One of the most valued varieties has at first black wing and tail feathers, a peculiarity which disappears after the first moulting. The less desirable are those on which the plumage is irregularly spotted and speckled.

A native of the Canary Island and Madeira, the canary was first domesticated in Italy in the 16th century. It soon spread over Europe and later to America.

10 Quarts of Ice Cream Each

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 30—(AP)—Enough ice cream will be produced in the United States this year to provide every man, woman and child with ten quarts or more.

Fred Rasmussen, executive secretary of associated ice cream manufacturers said a survey showed that the year's output will total more than 1,230,000,000 quarts. There are approximately 4,000 ice cream plants.

To Popularize Bible Sales

PARIS, Oct. 30.—To make the Bible a "best-seller" in France as it is in English-speaking countries, M. Francois Bernouard, a publisher, is going to issue an edition in 30 volumes, with Hebrew and Greek texts opposite the French, with woodcuts scattered liberally throughout. Mr. Bernouard also is a poet whose work has found its way into many French anthologies.

In order to find the conection between air currents and the spread of the spores of the deadly grain disease known as stem rust, collections of germs are being made on sticky glass slides exposed in flying airplanes.

OIL SHALE INDUSTRY IN JAPAN SOURCE FOR BIG DEVELOPMENT

TOKYO, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Japan's oil shale industry in Manchuria probably will develop into one of the big assets of the Empire, said Viscount Masatoshi Okochi, professor in the Tokyo Imperial university and a noted metallurgical authority, upon his return from a prolonged inspection trip.

He declared in general that the industry bids fair to succeed if the dry distillation system of oil shale is conducted according to the approved method which is used in Scotland. Coal is used for fuel in this method, which is an advantageous factor since Fushun has the largest colliery in the Far East.

Motoring in France

While oil and gasoline are high in France, all other motoring expenses are infinitesimal. Garage charges vary from 15 to 60 cents a night; washing and polishing a big, closed car costs from 30 to 75 cents; the standard charge for demounting a tire, repairing the tube and remounting the tire is 5 francs—a quarter.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Ernest Torrence has suddenly become the polish gentleman, and he feels—well, something like the man who has deserted his plow and has donned his boiled shirt for a day in the city.

'After all the rough-neck roles I've had," he says, "I am almost afraid I will trip over my stick.'

Tailored suits, smooth shaves and neat haircuts and Torrence have been strangers during most of his movie career. Since he began in "Tol'able David" most of his roles have been of the frontier variety as in "The Covered Wagon" the "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and "North of 36." "In The Sideshow of Life," "West of the Water Tower" and "The Fighting Coward" he was far from being a fashion model, but now everything seems to be different.

Mrs. Torrence is willing to go out with him in public again. Recently he acquired a wardrobe of the latest mode for his role in "The Dressmaker of Paris" and when he appeared in the Paramount Long Island studio to begin work as John Bentley in Allan Dwan's production, "Night Life of New York" he could have given the Prince of Wales a few fashion pointers. As a successful business man in this picture he wears everything from a gray felt hat and raglan shouldered coat to spats.

Torrence is featured with Rod La Rocque, Dorothy Gish and George Hackathorne in the leading roles of the production, which will be shown on Sunday at the Palace theatre. Helen Lee Worthing, former "Follies" beauty, heads the supporting cast. Edgar Selwyn, wrote this story of New York's night life especially for the screen.

Norwich Music Association

Members of the Norwich Music association are assured of a delightful song recital on Monday evening, the 2nd.

This recital is to be given by Miss Gertrude Tingley, a mezzo-contralto possessing a really lovely voice, assisted by Millicent Chapman Cooke at the piano.

The recital will be given as usual in Slater Hall annex at 8 o'clock and the following program will be presented:

L'amour de moi, 16th Century; Trois Jours de Vendange, Hahn; Le rossignol des lilas, Hahn; two folk songs, Arr. by Bax; Femmes, battez vos Maris, Berceuse; Lamento Provencal, Paladilhe; La Lettre, from Pelleas et Melisande, Debussy; Nature's Voices, Rimsky-Korsakow; Song of London, Cyril Scott; The Unforseen, Cyril Scott; Two poems from the ancient Chinese, Feast of Lanterns, Griffes. Return of Spring, Wymann; A Joyous Hymn, 12th century; Madonna song, Willoby; The Shepherdess, arr. by Schlindler; southern songs (to be announced); At the Well, Ingeman.

Next meeting Monday evening, Dec. 7th, Madame Nikolaric, pianist.

Learning to Feed Their Children

The mothers in Connecticut who have been taking advantage of the well child conference have learned that value of giving their little children the right food. They have even had it brought to their notice that adult food, such as fried food, rich pastries, tea and coffee, partaken of by their little children, will keep them underweight, in a highly nervous condition, fretful and unmanageable.

All this has been called to their attention by those who are in attendance at the well child conferences. After the doctor has examined the children, the nurses advise the mother about the child's hygiene, and make a special point of the value of choosing the right food. All these aids to health are valuable to mothers who live near any one of the 43 well child conferences. The next conference, in Wauregan, will be held on Wednesday afternoon, November 4th, in Company hall, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Silvertone Male Trio at Y. M. C. A.

At 4 o'clock on the coming Sunday afternoon at the local Y. M. C. A. building, both men and women are cordially invited to hear the special music by the Silvertone Male trio of New London. The trio consists of a first tenor, second tenor, and a baritone, whose voices blend sweetly. These vocalists have rendered programs in several towns and cities in Connecticut and have greatly pleased their audiences. The selections for Sunday will include the following: Happy Evening Time, Blue Galilee and I Love to Talk with Jesus. Hugh Kinder will officiate at the piano for the service and Secretary Hill will give a brief talk on "The Harmony of Life." The hour promises to be a most interesting one.

A serum which may reduce the morbidity of high blood pressure was described by Dr. F. N. G. Starr, of Toronto, Canada, in an address before the clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons in Philadelphia.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At the Breed

Tod Browning's The Unholy Three, a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production that has been hailed as the greatest crook film of many years, will be seen at the Breed theater, Sun., Mon., and Tuesday.

Browning has long been famous as a director of underworld stories and he is said to have excelled all past performances in making of this thrilling melodrama.

"It's pure melodrama," says Browning, "but there is no villain with a mortgage and there is no widow whose home is about to be taken from her. Also there is no great storm scene and no erring daughter kicked out to the mercy of the raging elements by an enraged father."

The Unholy Three is a film adaptation of C. A. Robbins' story of the same name and its local is New York City and vicinity.

The cast includes such famous players as Lon Chaney, Mae Busch, Matt Moore, Victor McLaglen, Harry Earles and Mathew Betz.

The story opens in a cheap museum where, following a riot, three of the freaks on exhibition become a trio of crooks and assume the title of The Unholy Three. Rosie O'Grady, who has been picking pockets in the museum joins the crooks who cover their tracks by operating a bird and animal store.

An innocent male clerk, played by Matt Moore, becomes infatuated with Rosie O'Grady (Mae Busch) and the rivalry starts between "Prof. Echo" (Lon Chaney) and the clerk (Matt Moore.)

Following an atrocious murder the trio escape by framing evidence against Rosie's lover. He is saved by what is almost to be considered as a miracle and two of the crooks lose their lives. The story ends with the reunion of the lovers and the regeneration of the master crook.

The film is filled with heart interest and a large amount of comedy.

Lyceum Theater

With the same consistency that the successful manufacturer of clothing, food or any other commodity devotes all his resources to the exploitation of a particular brand or quality of merchandise, John Golden, producer of plays, has given the public only clean, wholesome entertainment. The coming of his great success, Seventh Heaven, to th Lyceum, New London on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday with a Saturday matinee, Nov. 5, 6, 7 stirs pleasant memories of other Golden plays that have touched the hearts and funnybones of local audiences.

The list of Mr. Golden's plays reads like a roll of honor of the American theater and it is not surprising that wherever the English language is spoken mere mention of his name lures to the box office throngs of people who seldom witness spoken plays. Turn to the Right, was his first offering and since have come Lightnin', Three Wise Fools, The First Year, Thank-U, Dear Me and Pigs. The wholesomeness and fine artistic quality of these plays has taught the average husband and father that he is safe bringing the whole family to see a Golden play.

Broadway Theater

The Love Gamble, a Banner production from the novel by Maysie Greig, open a four day run at the Broadway theater Sunday night.

Lillian Rich has the principal feminine role, with Robert Frazer playing opposite. Others among the principals are James Marcus, Pauline Garon, and Arthur Rankin, all of whom do excellent work.

The story relates the adventures of a Beacon Hill girl, who lived there among the Boston Bohemians, but was not of them. Instead, she sought a business career. Love complications, with strikingly possible situations and clever acting, make the picture one of the unusual films of the season.

It is the first picture incidentally, to present Beacon Hill in Boston. Heretofore they have taken their atmosphere from Greenwich Village, New York, or the Latin Quarters in Paris.

Entertainment is guaranteed by the management and all critics having reviewed the fine cinema-drama.

The second feature stars William Fairbanks and Eva Novak in The Fearless Lover an altogether different type of photoplay. This depicts the life of a policeman, with its dangers, thrills and comedy. A new comedy, kinograms and augumented orchestra are the other subjects.

All seats are 25 cents.

Palace Theatre

Hallowe'en Cabaret night and regular bill pleased hundreds at last night's performance at the Palace Theatre.

One of the features of the party was a pie eating contest and ducking for apples by four boys. This little stunt proved such a hit with the audience that the management is thinking very carefully of making it part of the cabaret program every week.

The regular bill for today consists of five corking good acts, Broadway Lights being the star act, which includes a male quartet which carry the house by storm.

Another feature act on the bill is the McAllister Kiddies, two bonnie wee lassies in kilts that make a decided hit.

There are three other acts, a musical, sensational and comedy act which meet with great approval from the audience.

The show will run continuous today from 1:30 to 10:30, three complete shows.

The feature picture is New Brooms with Neil Hamilton and Bessie Love.

Next Week at United Congregational Church

The cabinet of the Woman's Guild will meet in Miss Pullen's study at three o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

Midweek worship Thursday evening at 7:45. Mr. Abbott will lead.

All women of the congregation are cordially invited to hear, from Mrs. David Miller, secretary of relief work, recently returned from France, of the work of the McAll mission, at the Osgood Memorial parish house, of Park church on Thursday afternoon, at three o'clock.

The regular meeting of the Camp-Fire will be held at the Community house on Friday evening.

The Philathea class will meet on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Philip O. Roberts, 89 Lafayette street.

Joe's Service Station

At 135 Franklin street, Norwich, Conn., just a reminder that a new up-to-date Service station has been installed for me and will give prompt attention to your tire, battery or lubricating trouble, also radio supplies.

Gave Mansfield Players Ovation

Enthusiasm ran high last Tuesday evening at New London when the Richard Mansfield players, the distinguished repertory company who are making their appearance in Norwich in The Goose Hangs High, played for the first time in their home city of New London. The players, although a New York company recruited from the ranks of well known Broadway actors, are all living and working at the Grange, the New London home of the late actor.

The Evening Day of New London had the following to say, among other things, regarding this brilliant event:

"The visit of the Richard Mansfield players in the famous Beach play, The Goose Hangs High, was an event that had been looked forward to with keen anticipation and a large and especially enthusiastic audience was on hand to greet the distinguished artist Mrs. Mansfield, and her companion players and play. Everyone leaving the theatre last night had a fine time, including the cast. The play altogether is one to delight actors and audience. As Eunice Ingals, Mrs. Mansfield returned to the stage to receive a positive civic demonstration and at the end of the second act she was given a cascade of flowers, much to the delight of her hundreds of admirers in the audience. In her role of the sacrificing wife she convincingly visualized and vitalized the part. Robert LeSueur, as Bernard the husband, interpreted his role with intelligence, sympathy and human understanding. A most competent player was Lillie Brayton as Mrs. Bradley the grandmother, who assisted so materially in bringing order out of chaos. And particularly irresistable was the charming Betty Pratt in the part of the flapper—whose performance was well nigh perfect. Theodore St. John was another member of the cast who, as Bradley Ingals, presented a most finished performance. The play was splendidly mounted, and the accessories were in keeping."

ORTHOPHONIC VICTROLA AT PLAUT-CADDEN'S

One of the outstanding musical events of the season will be a demonstration of a new and revolutionary type of talking machine, to be given before the general public by The Plaut-Cadden Company, Norwich, Victor dealers at their store at 135 Main street next Monday, Nov. 2nd, throughout the day.

Said by acoustical experts and musical authorities to be not less than 100 per cent more efficient than any previous development in the reproduction of sound from a record, the new instrument, known as the Orthophonic victrola, is to make its public debut here next Monday, November 2d

Developed upon the same basic principles which made possible long-distance telephone communication, the Orthophonic victrola is described as a mechanical instrument which reproduces accurately practically the entire range of musical sound. Its outstanding virtue is said to be the elimination of all unmusical vibrations which marred reproductions on old-type instruments, and the extraordinarily faithful preservation of tone color. Notes which heretofore could not be reproduced at all, or were so distorted as to be unpleasant or almost unrecognizable, are now said to be given forth by the Orthophonic instrument in all their true beauty.

Instruments which in the past have been the despair of the talking machine laboratories, are now recorded and reproduced with uncanny accuracy, say experts who have heard the new instrument. The piano reproduction is that of the real instrument, with all its magnificent range. The harp can be distinguished clearly, the drums weave their resonant background, and the various other instruments preserve their true individuality, while blending with fidelity in the ensemble.

At the recitals Monday, the Orthophonic instrument will be played in comparison with the old-type instrument, to give its hearers an accurate conception of the vast musical advance that has been made.

Palace Sunday Afternoon

There will be a benefit performance Sunday afternoon at the Palace theatre for the St. Joseph's school. The entire proceeds will be donated to the schools fund drive for $25,000.

The program will be made up of moving pictures, William S. Jeffs and his 20-piece jazz symphony orchestra in an elaborate program with special effects. There will also be a number of vocal soloists. The price of admission will be 50 cents. Doors will be open at 2.15 and the show will start at 3 o'clock promptly.

JUSTICE BY POWERS TO CHINA THE ONLY SOLUTION OF GREAT EASTERN PROBLEM

(This is the sixth and last article of the series by Drew Pearson on "The Chinese Puzzle.")

PEKING, China.—What is the solution to the Chinese puzzle? What can be done to keep China out of the hands of the Bolsheviki? How can trade be restrode, and the resentment against the white man wiped out? How can a color war beprevented?

The answer to all these questions, according to the Chinese, lies in two steps only. The powers must abolish extraterritorial rights for foreigners and must restore to China the right to affix her own tariff duties and collect them.

By Drew Pearson

All of which sounds like a supremely simple solution until you talk to the American or British businessman in China. He will tell you that if the Chinese were allowed to collect their own customs duties, that all of the money would go to pay the gambling debts of the high officials or to buy dresses for their concubines. He will tell you that the foreign treaty ports are the only safe spots on the entire map of China and that wealthy Chinese move there so that their person and property may be protected. To a certain extent the business man is quite right.

But before arguing the pros and cons of this subject which has already upset the ordinarily imperturbable life of four hundred millions of people, let us set down just exactly what those extra-territorial and tariff privileges are.

Back in the middle of the last century when residence in China was rather a risky thing for a white man, Great Britain and France wrested from China by the approved method of superior force, the right of their nationals and other foreigners to dwell apart from the Chinese in compact little foreign communities. These 'treaty ports" as they were called, were owned, governed, policed and taxed by the foreigners themselves. The Chinese could enter these concessions only upon the sufferance of the foreigner and, although in Shanghai today some 700,000 Chinese live within the foreign city they could be expelled at any tme.

Inside these cities and for that matter any place else in China if a foreigner commits a crime he is tried not in a Chinese court, but if he is an American in an American court, if he is British in a British court.

Graft Complications

Finally, foreigners control the Chinese customs. China is allowed to tax foreign goods only 5 per cent and she has no right to tax any one article any more than any other. For instance the United States taxes silk 60 per cent and admits shoes free of duty, but China is not allowed to discriminate. Also the Chinese customs are collected by a very efficient group of British and Americans who turn the money over to the Peking government after deducting certain sums to pay the Boxer idemnity and interest on foreign loans.

The great powers have pledged themselves at the Washington conference to grant to China a tariff increase of 2 1-2 per cent and at the customs conference to be held in Peking on October 26 they will undoubtedly give formal assent to this promise. Also they may allow certain Chinese goods to be taxed at a higher rate than others. But China is not going to be satisfied with this. She is not going to be satisfied until she has the complete right to affix her duties and collect them herself.

On paper this seems a reasonable request. But when you dig beneath the surface of Chinese affairs and realize that only a very small per cent of the revenue collected by the ordinary Chinese tax-collector ever gets further than his own concubines then you begin to wonder how the immense loans which have been put up by foreigners would ever be paid, if foreign customs control were abandoned. These loans were originally secured by customs control and are not worth the paper they are printed on if you put customs collections into the hands of the Chinese alone.

A Chinese Compromise

An advisor to the Chinese government informs me, however, that the Chinese will offer the powers a compromise proposal something like this: The Chinese will be given the right to affix duties on foreign goods as they see fit. However, the present commission of British and Americans which is collecting revenues will continue on the job for twenty or thirty years more until the foreign loans are paid off, thus safeguarding these loans.

The problem of surrendering to the Chinese the great commercial cities which the foreigners have built up and submitting to trial by Chinese courts is much more difficult. But unless the problem is solved, there will be no trade and little peace for the white man in China.

It would seem that the first and easiest step the Chinese could take toward ridding their country of foreign privilege would be to protect the foreigner and his property. But during last year it was necessary for foreign troops to land in both Shanghai and Canton to keep warring Chinese armies out of the international cities. Perhaps if China is able to show the Powers a record of three or four years without civil wars the latter will be. At present there is not the slightest At present theres is not the slightest inclination on the part of foreign businessmen in China to relinquish these rights, nor much energy on the part of older Chinese to push the issue. The students are less reasonable.

There is, however, on all sides, a tendency to push the matter of trial by Chinese courts. Austria and Germany were forced to give up this extra-territorial privilege after the war, and Russia voluntarily relinquished it. The nations of these countries claim to have gained some trade advantage due to the closer friendship which the Chinese now have for them, but opinion is divided as to whether or not they have recived a square deal in the Chinese courts.

The Enigma of Chinese Law

Chinese civil law is difficult for a westerner to fathom. For instead of meticulously seeking out the right and wrong of the case and awarding a verdict to one side, the Chinese judge tries to compromise. If a rich man is sued by a poor man, for instance, the judge reminds the former that he is very rich, and that even if he is in the wrong he should pay a little something to the complainant.

Dr. C. T. Wang, ex-foreign minister and premier, told me that China expected soon to complete the codification of her laws at which time they would be equal to those of any European country. He also suggested that if the foreigners were not satisfied with Chinese courts that the Chinese be given a trial period of three years during which they would have jurisdiction over cases involving foreigners in China. If the conduct of these courts was not satisfactory after the trial period that they would be returned to foreign control.

The further you delve into the details of the Chinese puzzle the more convinced you become that both sides are absolutely right and at the same time absolutely wrong. Theoretically the Chinese have every right to govern the foreigner who is a guest in their land. Practically, it is difficult and sometimes impossible for the Chinese to give the foreigner safe and sane government. The big issue, however, should not be obscured in the mass of puzzling details. The issue is that the Chinese unless given what they demand, will eventually take it, and in doing so will poison the world with a color prejudice which may bring about a world catastrophie greater than the last.

Coffee: lower; easier Brazilian cables.

Chicago

Wheat: easy; rain Australia.

Corn: barely steady; predictions better weather.

Cattle: dull.

Hogs: higher; demand good.

MOTORS FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(By the Associated Press)—Spectacular bidding up of the motor shares, several of which advanced to new record high levels featured the irregularly higher movement of prices in today's stock market. Sporadic bear selling and profit-taking frequently interrupted, but failed to halt the upward swing of prices which reached its peak in many issues in the last few minutes of trading. Total sales exceeded two million shares for the fifteenth consecutive full session.

Speculators for the advance found encouragement in the weekly statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank, which showed an increase in the reserve ratio, testifying to the apparent healthiness of the credit situation, temporarily stiffer money rates were disregarded.

Weekly mercantile reviews confirmed reports of recent improvement in business. "A more marked upward trend is visible in most lines of business," says Dunn's review, adding that "expansions since the fall season opened have been progressive; something being added each week to the gains previously made, but the general outlook is decidedly promising." Bradstreets states that "trade and industry generally speaking, have been maintained at about the best levels of the year, with gains over a year ago at this time still reported despite the marked rally shown last fall from the dullness of mid-year in 1924."

Hudson was the new leader of the motor group, soaring 8 1-2 points to a record high at 114 and closing at the top. Dodge Brothers A moved up 4 3-8 points to 47 3-2, and Jordan 4 to 60, both new high records. Studebaker crossed 67 to a new top and then slipped back to 65 3-4. Chrysler crossed 3 points higher at 237 and General motors nearly 2 points higher at 138 1-2; but they did not touch their recent highs. The combined sales of Studebaker, Hudson and Dodge A exceeded 325,000 shares.

With the exception of American Car which advanced nearly 6 points to 236, or within a point of its record high, despite the fact that it was selling exdividend, standard industrials failed to participate extensively in the advance. United States steel common closed fractionally higher at 128 1-8 after having reached 129 1-4. Baldwin showed a small fractional loss at 122 1-2 and American Woolen at 50 1-2.

Atlantic coast line was the sensational feature in the rail groups, soaring over 14 points to a new high record at 215. After the market closed the road announced the proposed construction of a new line in Florida. Seaboard air line was run up over 4 points to a new high at 50 5-8 and Louisville and Nashville crossed 130 also for a gain of more than four points. Pennsylvania sold above par ($50) for the first time since 1918. The Van Sweringen issues displayed a firm undertone. Bangor and Aroostock was heavy on profit taking.

Several spirited advances again took place among the specialities, Coca Cola soaring 7 points to 163 and International business machines and Loose-Wiles biscuit 7 each to 176 and 114 respectively, all new high records. Other outstanding strong spots included Goodrich, International nickle, American brake shoe, American Water works, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies, California packing, Chicago pneumatic tool, the Commercial solvents issues, Kelsey wheel and United fruit, all up three points or more.

Call money held firm at 5 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling ruled 1-3 cent lower ground $4.84 3-16 and French francs fell below 4.20 cents for a net loss of about 4 points. Other changes were largely nominal.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

Pressure is high almost generally over the eastern half of the country, but it relatively low and falling from the Eastern Gulf of Mexico northeastward to the Virginia Capes and strong northerly winds and gales have set in along the coast between Cape Hatteras and Atlantic City, Cape Henry, Va., reporting 56 miles an hour from the north. Snow has fallen in the last 24 hours in Southern New England.

The snow fall at Washington, D. C., up to 8 P. M. amounted two inches which is the first snow fall in excess of a trace ever recorded in October at Washington. The temperature is still much below normal over the eastern half of the country and southern plains states, but it has risen decidedly throughout the northwest.

Except for rain in Florida and along the South Atlantic coast and snow in New England and along the middle Atlantic coast Saturday, fair weather could prevail almost generally east of the Mississippi River during the next two days. The weather will become warmer generally east of the Mississippi River during Sunday.

There are no indications of a return of abnormally low temperatures in any part of the United States for several days thereafter.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Jacksonville Fla. to Boston Mass.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook: Strong northeast and north probably gales, overcast thick weather with rain or snow Saturday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Northerly gales and overcast weather with rain Saturday.

Forecast

For Southern New England: Snow Saturday. Sunday fair and warmer.

GREENEVILLE

The Ladies' Aid society of the Greeneville Congregational church gave a very successful supper Thursday evening in the parlors of the church. The tables were tastefully trimmed in Hallowe'en decorations. The menu consisted of baked beans, cold meats, salads, rolls, brown bread, cake and coffee. Delightful music was rendered by the Roamer's orchestra and was much appreciated by all. Over $30 was realized from the sale of aprons in charge of Mrs. James W. Semple and Mrs. Thomas Haslam. Home-made candy was also for sale in charge of Mrs. Pedrick and Mrs. Howard Spaulding. The committee in charge of the supper was Mrs. Richard Stevenson and Mrs. William Brown. Mrs. Fred Sears, Mrs. Charles Levitsky and Miss Mary MacConnell.

Thursday evening in the guild room of St. Andrew's Episcopal church a Hallowe'en social was given to the members of the Sunday school and the parish. The hall was prettily decorated with Hallowe'en streamers, pumpkins, cornstalks, all making a very pretty effect. The guests were appropriately dressed for the occasion. The grand march was led by William Taft, Jr., all marching in single file with mother witch, Mrs. Maude Crowe in the rear. Miss Doris Peterson won the first prize for the prettiest costume and John Herbert for funniest. Music was furnished by Arthur Fitch's orchestra which was greatly enjoyed by all. Games were enjoyed by the children and prizes were given to the winners, Miss Hazel Banfield in charge. May Adams pleased all with a vocal solo. At the close of the dance Auld Lang Syne was the closing number. Sandwiches, doughnuts, apples, ice cream, cookies and coffee were served by the refreshment committee, Mrs. W. Banfield, Mrs. E. Bernard, and Mrs. E. Ridley. The decorating committee was Mrs. W. Mabrey, Mrs. C. Erwin, Mrs. H. Gordan, Mrs. A. Baker and Mrs. H. Adams.

TAFTVILLE

The Ponemah Wheel club celebrated the 30th anniversary of its founding Thursday evening, by a get-together at the German Shooting club in Lisbon. All the old members on the list had been invited, and over 150 members took the opportunity of attending to meet old friends and make new ones. The committee in charge had arranged a vaudeville show, which was greatly enjoyed and applauded by the members. Swahn's orchestra furnished music before and between the acts. The program included Professor William J. Banfield, mysticism and legerdemain; George Seidel in whimorous dialogue and funny stories; John Holland, character singer and comedian; Lou Gagnon's Hollywood Four, harmonizers; Scotty Powers in a Harry Lauder interpretation; Frank Steinke, basso; Hooker and Cassano, Spanish and Mexican dancers and mandolin and guitar instrumentalists. The last affair on the program was a wrestling match, two out of three, between the Flying Finn and the One Ring Weasel. This resulted in a victory for the latter. The match was refereed by John B. Benoit, and the entertainers were introduced by E. Tracy Clark.

After the vaudeville, refreshments of sandwiches, weenies, coffee, cake, soda and cigars were served cafeteria style in an adjoining room. During the smoker which followed, the members were entertained by Harry Schwartz, expert jokester, and a number of the vaudeville entertainers kindly con-

SAFE FOR CHILDREN

Made without opiates, and only of the best California honey and purest ingredients. FOLEY'S HONEY & TAR is safe for children. A trial will prove to you why this has been one of the largest selling cough remedies for over fifty years. "Can't recommend FOLEY'S HONEY & TAR high enough," writes Mr. J. E. Dennis, Spiro, Oklahoma. "A sample treatment relieved me of a severe cough and cold." Refuse substitutes. Lee & Osgood Co.

ENUMERATION OF NORWICH SCHOOL CHILDREN SHOWS TOTAL OF 7,492

Enumeration of children between 4 and 16 years old in the town of Norwich has been completed by the enumerators, Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes. The total count is 7,492, which is a gain of 36 over last year.

Most of the fifteen districts show small gains, whereas the central district shows the greatest loss, which is 67. This may be accounted for, it is believed, by the removal of families to the outlying districts where there has been much building of new houses for occupancy by people who wanted a small plot of land to cultivate; or in some cases have changed their residences to avoid city taxation.

The following table shows the comparison between the school age enumeration in 1924 and 1925:

Dist.	1924	1925
Central	1,826	1,759
West Side	1,602	1,624

HALLOWE'EN ENTERTAINMENT AT WHEELER DISTRICT SCHOOL

A Hallowe'en entertainment was given at Wheeler district school Thursday evening to which parents and friends of the pupils were invited. A terrifying looking ghost at the doorway gave the arriving guests a thrilling greeting. The following short program was given: Song, Hallowe'en Is Here; recitations, October, Anna Schmitz; October, Thelma Schmitz; Jack Frost, Jack Birbeck; song, America; reading, Origin of Hallowe'en, Catherine Birbeck; recitations, Jack-O-Lantern Moon, Raymond Schmitz; October Party, Anna Gray; Autumn, Hare Gray; song, Hallowe'en song.

After the program games were played including throwing a ball through a pumpkin's nose, blowing out candles, bobbing after apples, and fortunes told by the ghost.

Refreshments were served by two waitresses and a waiter with orange and black crepe aprons and caps to match.

The room was decorated with autumn leaves and braided orange and black crepe paper draped across the room with a big pumpkin in the center. In the windows were skelatons, bats and pumpkins. The room was lighted by a large orange and black Jack-O-Lantern hung in the center of the room, candles and pumpkin-moonshines during the program.

Had Head Cut Open

George Stimpson, son of Samuel Stimpson of Willimantic, who is staying at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Knapp, at North Carolina, recently had the back of his head cut open, but is getting along well. The boy was watching a tree being chopped down and was struck when it fell.

Probably the worst mistake a man can make is to correct the mistakes of his friends.

RETURNED FROM ATTENDING CONGREGATIONAL COUNCIL

Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey returned Wednesday evening from a trip to Washington, D. C., where they spent a week in attending the meetings of the national council. In addition to the meetings of the council, which were characterized by much earnestness and enthusiasm in securing a "free church in a free state in a friendly world" and which were embellished with splendid music, the delegates were privileged to visit places of historical interest in and near the capitol city.

Pilgrimages were made to Mt. Vernon, Alexandria, Arlington with its new amphitheater, and its new field of the dead signifying by acres of fresh headstones the cost of the World war, the Lincoln memorial as well as the government buildings which are a source of interest to all true Americans.

The President, who is the honorary moderator of the council, gave an address upon the need of religion in elevating the moral and spiritual tone of the nation, and invited the delegates to the White House for a group photograph of the council. Mrs. Coolidge held a noon-time reception to the women delegates in the east room of the White House.

Mr. Bailey was one of the delegates of the New London Association of Congregational churches to the council. The other two from this county were Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of Norwich and Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, D. D., of New London. The delegates will give a report of the council to the association meeting to be held at Norwichtown on Nov. 16.

BERRY IS IN JAIL UNDER MURDER CHARGE

Charged with first degree murder, Eugene J. Berry, 31, of No. 324 Boswell avenue, was bound over to the criminal superior court without bonds Friday morning by Judge Arthur F. Libby at the city court session. Berry was immediately taken to jail to await his trial.

He is accused of chloroforming his two small children at his home on Oct. 20. At the time of the murder Berry attempted suicide by drinking turpentine and cutting his throat but his effort at self-destruction was unsuccessful. Since the fatal day he has been a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital, under police guard. He has recovered from his suicidal attempt and on Thursday morning was presented in the city court. None of his family was present and there were but a few spectators. Berry wore a heavy overcoat, the collar of which completed covered his neck.

Attorney Edward G. McKay and Attorney William H. Shields, Jr., appeared as Berry's counsel. Attorney McKay entered a demurrer pro forma, which was overruled by Judge Libby who then bound Berry over, holding him without bail.

Berry's case will come up at the January term of the criminal superior court which will be held in this city with Judge Allyn L. Brown presiding.

REV. HENRY WILLIAMSON DIES IN DUNDEE

Word has been received by friends in Norwich of the death of Rev. Henry Williamson on Oct. 16 at Dundee, Scotland, at the age of 86. As a young man he lived and worked in Norwich and joined the Universalist church in 1859 under the ministry of Rev. Benjamin Whittemore. He was later educated for the Unitarian ministry and became minister of the Unitarian Christian church of Dundee in 1866. He held that position until his death—a pastorate of over 59 years—and was one of the most liberal ministers in all Great Britain.

He cherished his membership in the Norwich church and always sent a word of greeting for the annual roll call meeting.

His name will be remembered at the "All Souls" service at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, on Sunday morning.

BALES ON FIRE IN GILMAN'S BOZRAH MILL

Shortly after 12 o'clock Friday afternoon the fire department received a call for assistance at a fire in Gilman Bros. mill in Bozrah. The Yantic fire department was notified and responded, finding on arrival that the fire had been practically extinguished. Mrs. Nathan Gilman, wife of the owner, discovered the fire from her home across the road from the mill. The employes had left the plan for dinner and there was no one in the plant. Mrs. Gilman sent in the telephone call to the department, and then sounded an alarm at the mill. The burning bale of cotton, shoddy and rags were pulled from the storeroom and the fire extinguished. The loss was several hundreds of dollars.

HALLOW'EN SOCIAL BY BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE

A most enjoyable Halloween social was given by the B. Y. P. U. of the Central Baptist church Friday evening, seventy-five being in attendance. Bushnell Chapel was attractively decorated in orange and black, with pumpkin faces staring the guests in the eyes at every turn. The balcony was arranged in booths to which the guests were escorted by ghosts and where dire things happened to them. Miss Unabelle Harbeck was the queen and Mr. Parkhurst the king in one booth. Miss Marion Royce was Bluebeard's Wife in another. Games appropriate to the occasion were played during the evening and prizes awarded for the best costume and booby prizes awarded a fellow and girl.

Miss Amie March was the general chairman, assisted by Ledlie Pitt, Mildred Cass, Marion Royce, My Gray, Robert Storms, Austin Covey, Norman Smith, and other members of "Group Four." The First Baptist Society were special guests for the evening. Pumpkin pie, coffee, and cheese were served, and the party broke up with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," everyone voting the evening one of much good fun.

LUTHERAN LADIES AID HAD SUCCESSFUL SALE

The entertainment and sale given by the Ladies Aid society of the German Lutheran church was a very successful and interesting affair. The assembly hall of the church was packed with people long before the entertainment started. The German play, "Der Besuch aus America," was very cleverly acted by Mrs. Frank P. Decker, Mrs. W. Budceck, Mr. Retkowske Mrs. M. Retkowske, Hattie Hunzinger, Margaret Hunzinger and Marie Hunzinger. Other features of the program were a piano solo by Miss Margaret Seidel and humorous recitations by Fred Rathke. At the close of the program refreshments were sold by the women of the society.
